

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Calvin Holt

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE PAST TO THE PRESENT

This week Highlights from the Past to the Present moves to the Holt Community south of Spearman where we visit this week with the Benjamin Calvin Holt Family.

Born in Douglas County Missouri in 1878 to William Russell Holt and Martha Jane Johnson, Benjamin Calvin Holt grew up in the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas. One of fifteen children, he grew to boyhood in the land of timber learning the work of the farm and helping his family with the chores. He always recalled that wood supplied the fuel and heat for the home and remembers the corn being taken to the grist mill to be ground. All their food was supplied through their garden and either cured, canned or dried. Wild game supplied the fresh meat for the family. At an early age Mr. Holt became a quite excellent marksman, shooting a gun with homemade bullets.

At the age of eight, Mr. Holt's mother died, he and his half brother, William Thomas Coble spent a great deal of time with their grandparents the Thomas Johnsons. The next year the Johnsons moved to Texas and brought Tom Coble with them settling in Clay County Texas.

The nine year old lad yearned to go with his grandparents and saved his money from the parts he made on the crops, throughout the years. In 1892 at the age of fourteen, the boy packed his clothes and few belongings which included his most prized possession, a violin, and hid them in the woods. While supposedly enroute to school he slipped away taking his belongings and walked twenty miles to Mountain Grove where he took the train to Henrietta, Clay County Texas, to the home of his grandfather. Not knowing how to get to the home of his grandfather he sat on the platform playing his violin. Attracting attention and many people he soon learned the whereabouts of his grandfather.

He was welcome at the home but had to pay his room and board. Working at any job he could find he would return home by night in time to help in the kitchen with the night meal, one chore he loved to do.

Though only finishing the 6th grade he was quite educated through self learning. Three years after he came to Texas his sister died and he returned home to help his father with the crop and to comfort him during the time of sorrow. The next year his youngest sister died.

His father made plans to re-marry after a period of time and Benjamin Calvin Holt made plans to return to Texas. He had encouraged a half brother and family to come and the wagons and mules were provided for the trip, but the family became discouraged as they went through Oklahoma and turned back leaving the young lad of nineteen alone in Oklahoma to make the trip by himself in the early part of 1897. He spent the nights alone on the prairie and recalled many sleepless nights that he guarded the mules and remembers several occasions which he almost lost them to the Indians. He returned to Clay County where he worked at various jobs, one of planting water-melons and selling them. Clay County being near Oklahoma, Mr. Holt would take the melons into the Indian Reservations for sale in his wagon pulled by mules. He also worked at a ranch job on the Dunn Ranch.

Mr. Holt was never a cowboy at heart though he broke horses and worked many cattle. He liked to farm and cooking was also something he enjoyed doing. The opportunity arose for him to accept the job as cook for a mess wagon which was to travel with the cowboys across the plains. The job brought him to the Texas Panhandle in 1899 where they settled on the Turkey Track Ranch. The trip also brought his half brother, Tom Coble and his Johnson Uncles, along.

They began work on the Turkey Track Ranch as cowboys. Living in a bunkhouse near the home, the cowboys were in their room one evening when one had an urge to try on a pair of boots which were sitting in the corner. Mr. Holt recalls this story because the boots had been worn prior by a cowboy who had been bitten by a rattlesnake through the boot and died. The fang of the snake was still in the boot and broke the skin of the cowboy and later died as a result.

The prairies brought hardships and good fortune and Mr. Holt could see a great deal of future in the country. He and his brother and his uncles bought four sections of land apiece which was sold to them for from $1 to $1.50 an acre. That sounds rather reasonable but when a cowboy was making only 50¢ to $1 per day that was rather high.

The men built their dugout on one section and the dugout served as their headquarters until they were able to build more. They continued their work on the Turkey Track Ranch for two more years. Mr. Holt along with the others was required to live on the land. Carrying water in two jugs from a spring some two miles away after work each day was done by Mr. Holt.

Mr. Holt became quite ill with smallpox. He stayed

WAYNE MILES RELATES EXPERIENCES IN U.S. FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL WORK

"In most cases I feel like we're making real progress."

This is the way Wayne Miles expressed himself on the United States agricultural aid to foreign countries.

Miles was in Gruver this week visiting in the Rob Alexander home. He is on his way to serve the government in Siagon, Viet Nam after a tour of duty in South America. He has also had duty in Israel since becoming an agricultural advisor with the U.S. Government.

Although he has spent the last 13 years primarily in foreign countries, Gruver is no strange place to Miles. He was born at Texhoma and later spent two years in Goodwell where he was a student at Panhandle A and M.

His father was the late W.H. Miles and his mother was formerly Pearl Alexander, a sister of Rob Alexander of Gruver.

Miles didn't say everything was perfect in the American agriculture program overseas, but he did have some reassuring ideas and remarks about the programs he has worked in.

Though he has had plenty of difficulties with some of the countries receiving our aid, Miles thinks we have kept many of them from falling into communism and "brought some valuable time" as he put it.

Asked about the criticism American aid has received, he said, "I wish some of the people who know all the answers would go and work in those nations."

Wayne attended grade and high school in Texer, New Mexico, irrigated country in the Pecos Valley. He then moved to Dalhart and went to Panhandle A and M a couple of years.

"I had to drop out of school a couple of years during the depression," he said, "then I went to Canyon and finished my schooling in agriculture in 1936."

After spending two years at Vega, Texas with a soil conservation pilot farm program, he moved to Tucumcari and worked in agriculture until 1951. During that span he spent about 18 months in western Utah.

In the early part of 1951 he went to Israel with the Food and Agriculture organization of the United Nations for a three year stretch of duty. He was a range management and irrigation specialist.

He then moved to Santiago, Chile with the same organization and put in three more years as a forage specialist.

In 1957 he shifted to the AIF (Agency of International Development) commonly referred to as AS the Point 4 program and spent the next four years in Chilian, Chile. There he was mostly in soil conservation work with the U.S. Technical Assistance and Program (Economics division. His work dealt mainly in irrigation and pastures.

Bogata, Columbia was his next stop and there he served as a soil management advisor in the Agrarian Reform Program.

He said each of the countries had different problems. In Israel the problem was to develop an area where irrigation had been a minor portion of the development.

"The people there had the will and were doing the work on a big scale and from all I hear they're still making progress," he said. "They are now sending people to help other nations in that area," he added.

He said his work in Israel centered around turning the hills into suitable and deciding which land was best suited for pastures. He also helped introduced land leveling techniques.

Wayne said Chile needed help most in pasture and forage work. "We tried to get on a scale of field planning in pilot farm programs," he said. "We did a lot of pasture reseeding and made some material progress with subterranean clover and inharding grass."

He said the climate and land there compared a great deal with that in California and the country is ready to make a great deal of progress.

Wayne thinks Columbia has one of the biggest problems in South America. "The government there is trying to establish family size farms in a country where farms are either very large or very small," he said. He also said that the country had more than 300,000 families to place and was trying hard to keep them from thinking no one cared.

"The people are so poor that bandits and communists can herd them around at will," he continued. The government had to set up a completely new organization and it's taken a year just to get organized. They've done a pretty good job and haven't jumped on the wrong things. At least they've stalled the communist threat."

"I believe we've certainly helped hold back communism in South America," Miles added. The U.S. is aiding in industry and is farming and I believe it will work to our advantage in the long run.

He said the big problem in South America was that the birth rate was as fast as the progress made by the countries. He also said that health standards were some higher and that many people were saved because of spraying by the government to kill mosquitoes.

Miles said he was inclined to think South America was our most vital area of concern. He feels that the countries there should form a common market such as in Europe in order to stabilize their economy. "Some countries can farm, others can mine minerals and others are suited for industry," he said. "Things would be better if they had some way to market their products through one solid system."

He said that if that happened that the countries there would compete with us for some items but said he felt that we would create new and better markets there because of the higher standards of living and a bigger demand for better things.

Wayne also feels that a common market there, and the one in Europe, will make us stronger in the long run because we will have more capable allies. He also feels that the common market ideas will stop communism in those areas.

He is now on his way for a new assignment to Siagon, where he will work with the farmers. He said he didn't care to elaborate on the plans there but felt that the U.S. planned to strengthen Viet Nam economically as well as in military ability.

PRESS CONVENTION PROVIDES THRILLS

Speeches from Governor John Connally, George Bush, and Robert H. Johnson Jr. the Awards Banquet, along with a trip to NASA made the trip to Houston and to The Texas Press Convention quite eventful.

The above mention only a few of the exciting experiences I had while in Houston. The highlight for me was to receive the award for The Gruver Independent for outstanding column writing at the Awards Banquet Friday morning. It looked mighty good to see the front page of the Gruver Independent flashed on a large screen before an audience of some 800 Press men and women in the Emerald Room of the Shamrock Hilton Hotel.

Following the morning banquet I returned to the Claypool home (my aunt and uncle) where I found Grandmother, Mrs. T.H. Claypool, waiting to join me at the continuation of the press convention in the Hotel. Many Gruver citizens remember my Grandmother or have heard my mother of my best speak of her. She will be 90 years old next month but acts as though she were just a young woman.

We returned to the Hotel where we were in time to hear an intriguing talk by Robert H. Johnson Jr., Chief of Bureau Associated Press of Dallas as he gave the "Dallas Story". He was head of the Dallas as well as the Associated Press which covered the assassination of President Kennedy and of Lee Harvey Oswald. He gave the methods in which the press went about in relaying the truth and facts of the terrible story to the country.

George Bush, Republican candidate for Senate spoke next emphasizing several major issues in the campaign. His clever personality was shown as presented several comical jokes at the beginning.

Governor John Connally was the luncheon speaker and expressed his congratulations to the Press of Texas for their news coverage throughout the year. He brought out how much the papers of the State informed the people of upcoming issues, and current news.

Grandmother returned home following the speech of the governor. Next on the agenda was the trip to NASA which is the Astronaut town which developed from a pasture where cattle grazed only two years ago.

Humble Oil and Refinery was host for the afternoon. Six Greyhound busses of press members went along for the tour which began at the Hotel. First we visited the lush homes which were being constructed in the town that is called Clear Lake City. From the residential section of town the busses took us to the actual Astronaut Center where we entered a beautiful new auditorium. Three astronauts spoke and showed pictures of the work done in the center. In two more years the construction is to be completed and everything but the actual launch-

IN THE GRUVER

The wheat harvest is just about over and though this can't be classified as a good year in this area, it shows some promise. Many farmers, with the help of irrigation, did make some pretty good wheat and kept this from being a totally unproductive spring.

Now most farmers are expecting the biggest feed crop harvest of all time here this fall and this will help make up for some of the money lost in cattle and wheat.

The good point is that this area has probably seen its last complete crop failure. More irrigation wells will continue to be drilled here and farming will go on the year round.

Things have been pretty tough the last couple of years but one good moisture year and better cattle prices could easily put the area back on its feet.

The Gruver Independent is indebted to Dotty Jones for bringing home the first state award. Dotty won third place in column writing in our division of the Texas Press Association at Houston last week.

Dotty has been working in the newspaper for less than that. She has written more than 80 articles on families of this area and has become a veteran in the newspaper business faster than anyone we know.

The Independent is fortunate to have people like Dotty and Ray Kelly on the staff. Both are intelligent young people with bright futures.

The newspaper is receiving many more complaints about the flies and mosquitoes this year, especially the latter since they are causing diseases down south.

We received a letter this week with a note giving us authority to print it. We won't use it all but here is one statement taken from it: "What about getting this town sprayed. These flies and mosquitoes are so bad you can't get outside and look what they are doing down state. I would rather spray than have my children come down with some filthy thing caused by these filthy flies. Let's spray this place like other people do in other towns."

Also we have had people come to us about starting a petition but advised against it. We feel that the city will surely take care of this problem this year. The City Officials have many problems and are currently involved in getting the streets repaired.

There is nothing we would like better than seeing the town sprayed at regular intervals. It would cost a little money but last year Spearman offered to furnish a truck if Gruver would pay the driver and buy the spray chemical.

But, as a newspaper, we have no authority to spray or do anything else concerning the city.

Proud winner, Dotty Jones

ing will be done from there. The meals at the conventions were extremely good for fish seemed to be the topic of the menus and I do love to eat. The San Jacinto Inn was the place for evening dining and courses of shrimp cocktail, boiled crab, deviled crab, oysters, ocean trout, topped by fried chicken were served to the guests.

It was very interesting meeting the various Publishers, Editors, Business Managers and Advertising Managers from throughout the state newspapers. Some stood out more in my mind than did others but one little man who is a Lifetime Member of the TPA, I will never forget. He was comical and had a poem or rhyme for every occasion which presented itself. His pipe was also an interesting personality factor of the little gentleman.

The humorous aspects as well as the serious ones made the trip a complete success and one I will never forget.

Miss Jane Hitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Hitch Jr. of the Hitch Ranch north of Gruver was named Miss Oklahoma, Saturday night at Tulsa.

at the Turkey Track Ranch in the bunkhouse while ill. He remained isolated and food was taken to him. His illness resulted in severe eye damage and after he was over the smallpox and came out of the solitary confinement he realized that he would have to see a doctor. With no money only his land he sold the four sections of land to Seymour in 1903 for $3,500.00 and went to Wichita, Kansas where he sought a doctor to restore his eyesight. One was restored completely while the other eye received only partial vision.

Still yearning for the Texas Panhandle he returned to the area buying two of the sections back which he sold to Seymour. He soon began improvements on the land by having a well dug, corrals, fences and sheds built. A home was the next project for him and he soon began work on a 14x14 half dugout with the help of his neighbors, the Joseph Newton Kirks. The top part was built as an attic room with a low ceiling. The Kirk daughter Birda Mae also helped with the plans. When it came time to furnish the home Mr. Holt went to the Kirk home for help on this matter too, taking his Montgomery Catalogue along for Birda Mae and Mrs. Kirk to help choose his furnishings. One piece of furniture was an organ which later plays into the picture. Being fourteen years of age, Birda Mae as well as her parents could see no association at the time. But the Kirks were making plans for their daughter to go to school at Abilene for better education. Time was short for Mr. Holt to let his secret be known. He went to the Kirk family where he asked for their daughter by proposing to her.

On November 5, 1905 the couple were married at the home of the first county judge of Hutchinson County, Judge Whiteside. Birda Mae was only fourteen years of age. Mr. Holt had a farm stocked quite well with cows, geese, chickens and etc. Knowing nothing about house work because Birda Mae had been her father's helper, she preferred the chores of caring for the horses and cattle while her husband cooked breakfast. But with the patience of an understanding husband she soon became a good cook. The two often played together for dances. She enjoyed playing the organ while he enjoyed his violin.

The couple married during the freighting season and while Mr. Holt was busy doing the freighting he asked his wife to pluck the geese for the feathers. Doing a quite thorough job, she plucked all the feathers but those on the wings and the heads of the birds. It was quite a funny sight to see all the geese with no feathers and rather remarkable how they survived through the cold working in his shop fashioning or inventing a useful tool or device to make work easier on the farm or ranch. His interest was always toward good schools and good education facilities for his family and was instrumental in establishing the schools for the Holt Community. The Community, itself, was named for Mr. Holt.

One thing often recalled and respected by the friends of Mr. Holt was his belief which was that he did not drink alcohol, or coffee and thought smoking was a dirty expensive habit.

The couple had six children who were Ora Calvin, Maude Marie, Myrle Mae, Joseph Newton, Benjamin Fredrick and Nolan C.

Mr. Holt soon built a home for his family and later added a tank for the children to use as a swimming pool. The tank was also used as a baptistry during revivals and this one special revival will never be forgotten for more than one reason. Maude Marie was converted and baptized at the meeting and the tank was used. The Holt boys and their cousins were mischievous as are all young boys. They sprinkled hydrated lime into the tank so as to make the bottom quite slick. The preacher walked into the tank with Maude Marie and began to repeat these words: "I baptize thee, Maude Marie Holt, in the name of the Father, the Son and.....". The preacher lost his balance and both were submerged in the tank. The boys slipped out of the group and moved to behind the barn where they had a good time laughing.

Mr. Holt became quite ill and was given little chance to live, her husband took her to Kansas City, Missouri, to a specialist. After a stay she was well and returned home. Upon her arrival she found that the two room dugout was a blaze. The house stood nearby and the neighbors were fighting hard to save the house. The house was saved but it was quite a scare to return to a house which was near burning.

The home was later moved but another was built in its place and was much larger. Mrs. Holt continues to make her home on the same place where she began her married life. Mr. Holt died in 1952.

As we visit with the pioneer families we bring outstanding phases of their lives into the focus point. It is remarkable how they struggled through the pioneer days of hardships and heart breaks to make a future for their children and the other pioneers of the area. How these families should be admired and recognized, for in this fast moving day and time it is quite easy to overlook their accomplishments and take them for granted.

Mr. Holt also butchered some hogs before leaving on a freighting trip and told his wife that she might make some hogshead cheese from the hogs heads. Not knowing just how to go about the procedure, Mrs. Holt could not figure out how to get the meat from the bone, therefore she scrubbed the heads quite well and made sure the teeth were washed the best possible. She then put the heads in an iron wash pot and cooked them. After they were done she took them out but the eyes looking at her made her feel uncertain that she had done the right thing. She put the heads in her buggy and went to her sister's home, Sallie Lambert, for further instructions. Her sister found the situation quite amusing and the two began to laugh.

The family freighted their grain to Texhoma, Guymon Channing and Canadian. Upon return from a trip to market Mr. Holt would bring supplies and coal for the family. The supplies would be bought in large quantities being two or three hundred pounds of flour, two hundred pounds of sugar and etc. Mr. Holt took a great amount of pride in his wagons and had a fine breed of horses. He was also remembered by his friends as being quite happy when

SOYBEANS

Soybeans look like real "comers" on the Plains. Not only are they usually a profitable crop in their own right, but they also have an advantage in their own right, but they also have an advantage in their late planting date. According to Area Extension Agronomist Billy Gunter, soybeans are fast gaining acceptance as a "catch crop" for hauled-out cotton when it's too late to replant. Gunter points out that soybeans are recommended for planting on the plains between June 1 and June 20. However, they can be planted as late as July 1 in the southern portion of the Plains if required.

Another advantage of the late planting date is in weed control on weedy fields. Mechanical tillage can be practiced up until the time beans are planted.

In the last few years, soybean acreage on the Texas High Plains has mushroomed. From 18,000 acres in 1956 to a record approximate 90,000 acres in 1963, this crop has boomed in planted acreage. Gunter says over 90% of the total Texas soybean acreage is on the High Plains. While 45-50 bushels are not uncommon, average yield last year for the Plains was approximately 32 bushels an acre. Support price for soybeans on the Plains this year will be around 2.17 a bushel. In recent years, market price has been higher than the support price.

To grow soybeans successfully—for both high per acre yields and high net profit—an ample amount of management knowhow is needed, continues Gunter. He outlines recommendations for soybean production as:

Varieties: Hill and Lee varieties are recommended for the High Plains. The variety Hinn looks promising, but at present is available only to certified seed producers. Soybeans are well adapted to all major soils of the High Plains. The only exception is where chlorosis shows up in the grain sorghum.

Planting: Seed one bushel (60 pounds) per acre. Use good quality seed and place them two inches deep in the soil. Plant with a shallowbed to assure getting cutter bar of combine below pods. (On the last cultivation, lay by so cutter bar can still get under lower pods.)

Irrigation: For maximum yields, three to four summer irrigations are required. However, 30 to 35 bushels are frequently made on only two summer irrigations. The first irrigation should normally be made when bloom buds begin to appear. The last irrigation is normally in September—and can be the most important watering. Though not recommended for dryland, an occasional producer has made good yields on dryland.

Fertilizer: Soybeans are a legume and supply their own nitrogen—when properly inoculated. An exception to this is when they follow a high residue crop such as grain sorghum. In such situations, Gunter recommends adding about 20 pounds of nitrogen to act as a "starter." Soybeans are also heavy feeders on phosphorus and a soil test is recommended to learn if a phosphorus deficiency exists.

2,4-D ON GRAIN SORGHUM
Grain sorghum is more tolerant to 2,4-D when it is from 6-12 inches tall. If you spray for weeds when the sorghum is smaller than 6 inches some damage could occur to the plant. No

Extreme caution should be used when applying 2,4-D as the spray drift and fumes could damage susceptible crops.

Nee Miss LuAnn Cator

Wedding Ceremony Held For Jim Smith and LuAnn Cator

The Gruver Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of LuAnn Cator and James Wilson Smith, Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. June 20, 1964. Reverend Charles Broadhurst, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hale Center and brother-in-law of the bride, read the double ring ceremony and was assisted by Reverend R.L. Kirk, pastor of the Gruver Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jim Cator and the late Mr. Cator of Gruver. The groom is the son of Mr. Guy W. Smith of Memphis and the late Mrs. Smith.

The couple were united before an ornately adorned altar. Tapered candles of pastels made the background for the scene and were intermingled with palm greenery. Two spiral candelabras, also holding the pastel candles and two palm trees stood aside the pulpit. One large basket of variegated flowers and four pastel candles on the altar rail centered the decor of the arrangement. The white kneeling bench completed the scene.

Traditional wedding selections were presented at the organ by Mrs. Barbara Cluck, Arthur Smith, brother of the groom of Irving, Texas, presented the solos for the wedding. The songs were "At Dawning" "Whither Thou Goest" "Happy the Home", and "The Wedding Prayer".

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Lively of Riverside, California. Brides Matrons were Mrs. Wayne Garner of Ralls, Texas and Mrs. Sid Ross of Abilene, and bridesmaid, Miss Kathryn Peddy of Gruver. The bride's attendants were attired in identical street length gowns, each of a different pastel color which included, pale yellow, iced blue, petal pink and mint green. The gowns were fashioned of imported linen combined with silk chiffon. The fitted bodice featured a detachable roll collar and puffed chiffon sleeves that fitted midway of the arm. The rounded neckline tapered to a V at the center back and was accented with a bow which was repeated at the waist line. The softly controlled skirt fell in two small pleats at each side front and a deep pleat at the center back. The attendants wore a short circular veil of illusion which fell from a small tailored linen bow, each matching and accenting the tone of the gown. Completing the attire of the attendants were corsages in crescent shape at the waistline. They carried pom pom mums to match their dresses.

The best man was Robert Weir of Abilene, Texas. Groomsmen were Jim Useton of Hereford, Texas, Thomas Bormann of Stuttgart, Arkansas and Paul Thompson of Lakeview, Texas. The groomsmen wore boutonnieres of carnations to match the colors of the bridesmaids dresses. Ushers included Bill Smith of Abilene, Texas, Ralph Wisian of Springlake, Texas, John Clayton of Tulia, Texas, Jim Cameron of Stratford, and Wayne Winkler of Fort Worth.

The candelighters were David Smith, brother of the groom from Memphis, Texas, Mack Devin of Tulia Texas, and Kim Cluck of Gruver. The flowergirl was the bride's niece, LaDonna Broadhurst of Hale Center. She wore a pink and white dotted swiss dress and carried a white satin basket of pink petals. The ring bearer was Leslie Broadhurst, nephew of the bride. He carried a white satin pillow which held the two rings.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. L.G. Nobles, the bride entered the sanctuary and walked the aisle atop a white silk cloth. She was attired in an original gown fashioned of imported pure silk peau de soie in a diamond-white. The gown was accented with imported re-embroidered Alencon lace. The molded bodice featured an overlay of re-embroidered lace completely covering the upper bodice and ending just above a set-in midriff, giving an empire line. Sprays of seed pearls were sprinkled over the lace. Natural lace scallops formed a natural line into the upper part of the fitted three-quarter length silk sleeve. The controlled skirt featured a flat front that unfolded in deep single pleats at each side, giving the effect of a sheath front. An overlay of lace completely covered the center panel and sprays of matching lace were applied down each side of the back skirt drifting into a chapel train. A rose of peau de soie accent ed the center back at the waistline. Her bouffant veil of imported pure silk English illusion fell in tiers from a Queens crown of matching lace and gave a scalloped outline, tapering higher at the center front. She carried a white bible atop which was a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis. The tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue was carried through the ceremony.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Cator, chose a navy crepe suit with pink accessories and accented with a corsage of pink rose buds for her daughter's wedding.

The guests were registered by Miss Maelynn Cator, sister of the bride.

A reception followed immediately in the fellowship hall of the church and was catered by Josephine Gruver. A receiving line was formed as the guests were then served from the refreshment tables. The bride's table was laid in white satin and accented by bows and grapes complimenting the ends. Tall candelabras bearing three candles a-piece offset the ornate wedding cake which was made of four clover leaf tiers. Multi color roses in pastel nosegays covered the cake. The pillard top layer held white wedding bells to complete the attire. Pink punch was served from a crystal bowl. Completing the decor of the bride's table were the bride's attendants' pom-pom bouquets of pastel shades. The groom's table was laid in beige satin overlaid with brown organ-dy. The groom's cake was chocolate and bore a Bible as its decoration. The church symbolized the profession which the groom will follow. A silver coffee service completed the table array. Serving were Jennie Blankenship of Amarillo, Peggy Thompson of Claude, Mary Francis Vemon of Spearman, Judy Young of Garland, Karen Stockdale, Mona Hale, Sue McClellan and Kay Hobbs all of Gruver.

For the couple's wedding trip the bride chose to wear a yellow silk suit with black patent accessories. Her hat was of yellow straw accented by flowers. The orchid from her wedding bouquet served as her corsage.

The couple returned to
