

City Council Okays Windsong Addition

Windsong Addition to the City of Shallowater became a reality at a recent meeting of the City Council. The addition, which is an extension of Fifth and Sixth Streets east of Avenue N, will be developed into single family home sites. The developer of the project is Bridin, Inc., with Shallowater resident Robert Mauldin serving as president.

The lots will average 65 x 120 feet in size, and construction will be restricted to brick homes with at least 1400 square feet. In addition to the building lots, Bridin, Inc. has dedicated three well sites to the city to provide for the future water needs of Shallowater.

According to Mauldin, Bridin, Inc. will develop the addition following basically the same plan as that of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Balkman, former owners of the land. The Balkmans developed Wright Heights Addition, which is bordered by Avenues L and N on the west and east, and Eighth and Fifth Streets on the north and south.

Joining Mauldin in the development are well-known Lubbock home builder Brian Walker and Dwayne Mauldin, Vice President of Briercroft Savings and Loan.

A Shallowater-based corporation, Irrigation, Inc., will begin constructing the water and sewer lines in mid-November and the paving of Fifth Street will immediately follow.

Building sites will be ready for the construction of homes in January. Information concerning the lots may be obtained by calling 792-2907 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., or by writing to 8506 Knoxville Avenue, Lubbock, Texas 79423.

Athletic Booster Club News Report

By Dale Jackson

The Mustang Booster Club held their weekly meeting on Tuesday night, October 25, in the school auditorium. We had a good turnout present. Those attending included Supt. Charles Hohertz and Principal Beryl Harris from the school and Butch Pair from the school board plus a lot of the regular members.

A game film of the Shallowater-Plains contest was run and narrated by Coach Wolski. Following is an injury report issued by the coaches listing the Mustangs who will not be available for action in the game with O'Donnell and for some, the remainder of the football season:

(1) Marcus Lara, torn ligaments left knee which was operated on after the Farwell game; (2) Andy Blackmon, two crushed vertebrae in back; (3) Lane Giles, separated left shoulder; (4) Barry Randolph, cracked wrist bone in right arm; (5) Kyle Bedingfield, cut palm of right hand requiring several stitches; (6) Louis Caballero, cut and busted upper lip requiring 23 stitches. Quarterback Neal Luck has also suffered a broken nose in the Seagraves game but will be ready for action Friday night.

Even though the Mustangs will not be full strength, they still expect to win against O'Donnell which will be played there at 7:30 on October 28.

We received word that the new 8 station Hydra-Gym training equipment for the boys and girls will soon be delivered for immediate use.

"Fearless Frederick's" pick for this week's game is: Shallowater 20, O'Donnell 7. Go, go, go Mustangs!

PTA Carnival Anticipated

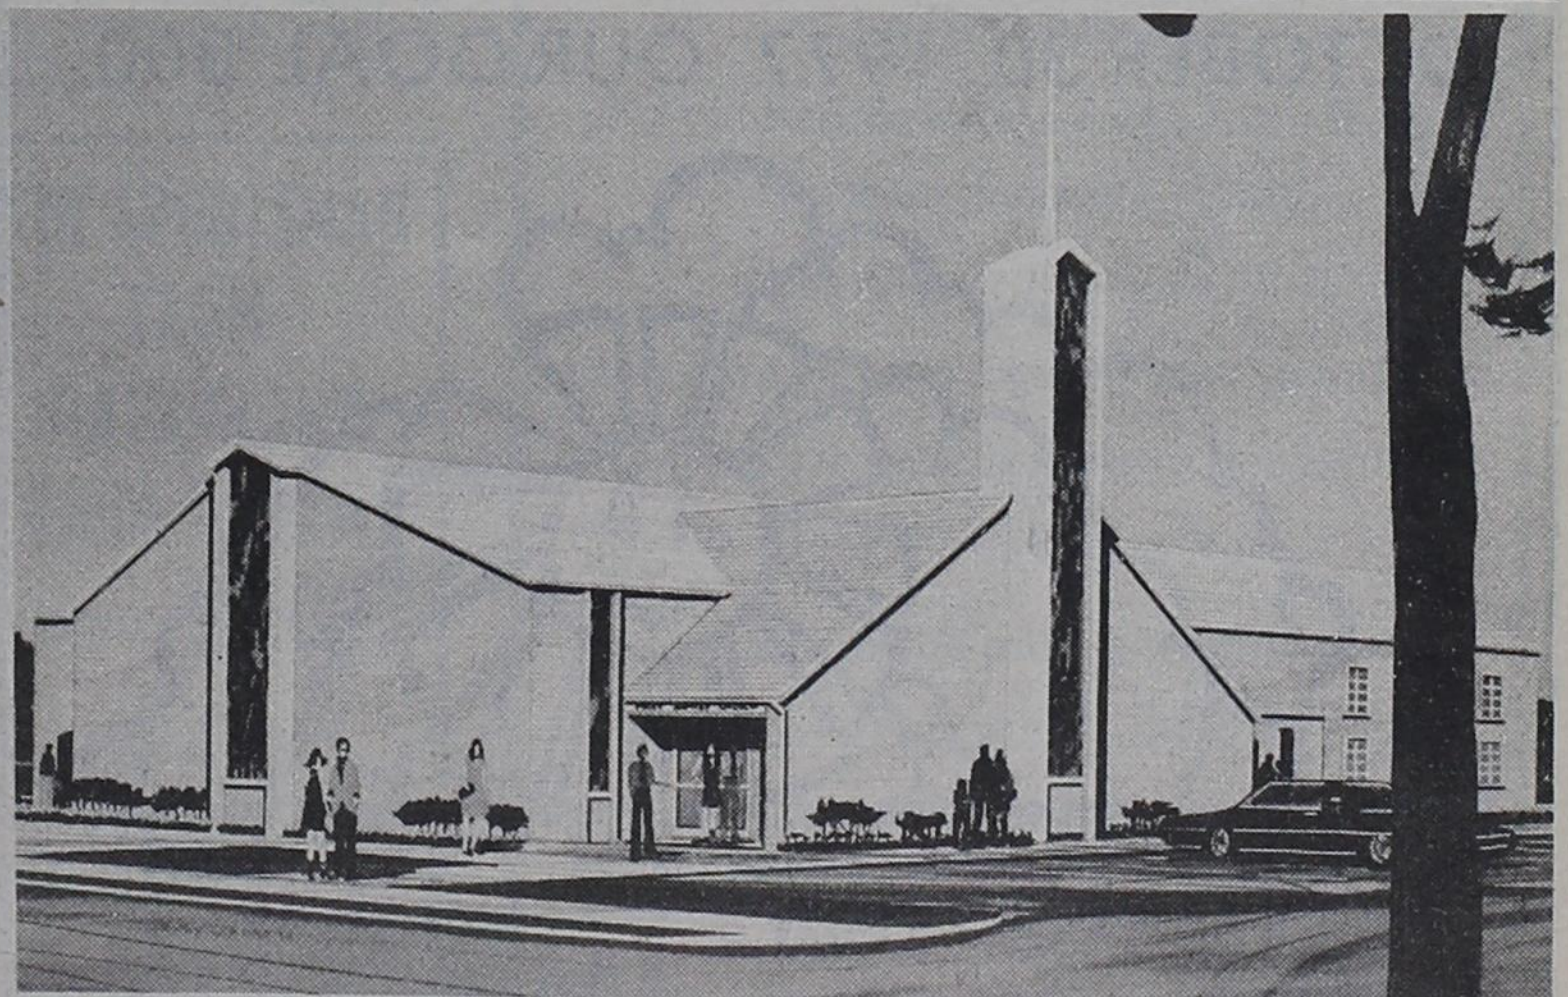

The Shallowater P.T.A. Carnival will be held October 31 at the Club House from 6:30 to 9 p.m. There will be something for everyone. Games with prizes for children of all ages will be played, with free candy for the kids.

The Country Store will feature many handmade toys, Christmas gifts, canned and baked goods. There will be a Cake Walk, Squash Box, Bean Bag Toss, Toy Walk, Football Throw, Swimming Ducks, Bottle Toss, Balloon Pop.

This is an architectural drawing of the beautiful First Baptist Church building that will be remodeled with construction planned to begin sometime after the first of the year. When finished the auditorium will seat 450 persons at a projected cost of $185,000.00. The front of the church faces the north, but when completed will face the west. Period of construction will be from six to eight months.

Bring the family and come for an evening of entertainment.

Time Changes Again Sunday

Sunday, we will get back that one hour of sleep we lost in April when the nation went on daylight saving time.

Standard time will resume officially at 2 a.m. Oct. 30, meaning all states that have been on daylight time for the last six months should set their clocks back one hour before retiring.

The present system of starting daylight time on the last Sunday in April and returning to standard time on the last Sunday in October was set by law in 1966 under the Uniform Time Act.

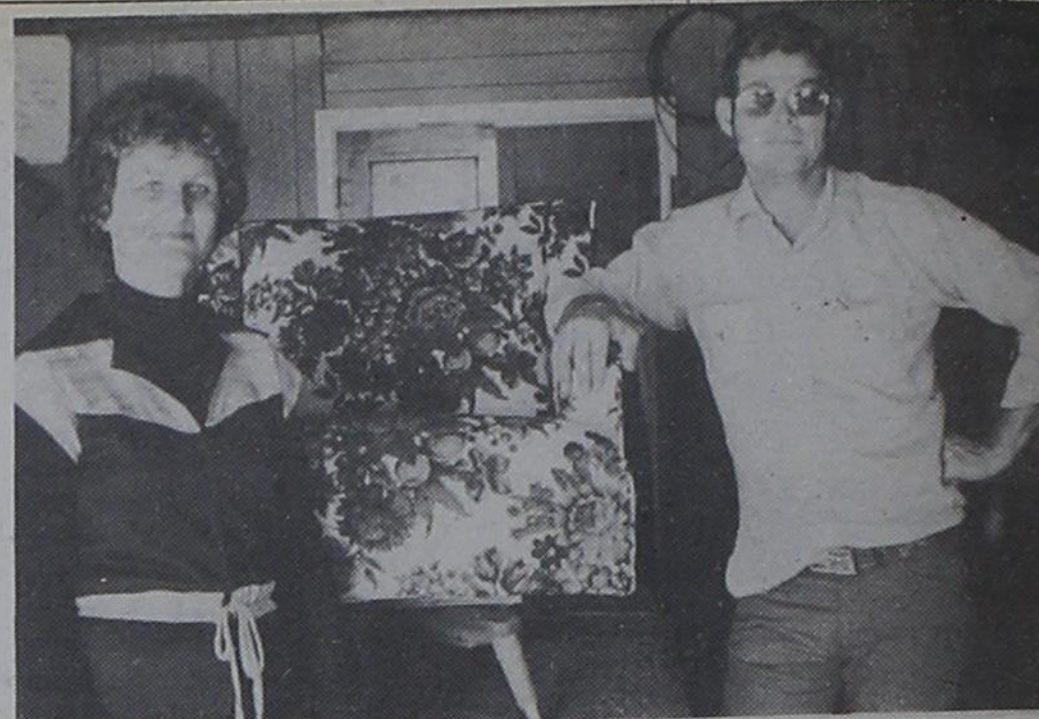

EMS Meets

The regular meeting of the Shallowater Emergency Service met at 7 o'clock Monday night for their regular monthly meeting with nine present.

Routine business was discussed and a brushup course on the ambulance operation was held.

The group meets the last Tuesday of each month.

Most adults overlook the value of play and amusement in life. Some overdo it.

Clifford and Sandra Conner have announced they will be open full time to do upholstery work in their shop, located at 1111 8th St. Called San-Ford Upholstery Shop, the Conners are well experienced in this type of work and invite everyone to stop by any time and visit, view their work and get a free estimate on any type of upholstery you have in mind.

The Conners have been residents of Shallowater for 12 years and are active members of the First Baptist Church and are community supporters. They have four children, Mrs. Dee Highley of Alpine, where their son-in-law attends Sul Ross College, Steve a senior this year, Seena, a freshman and Craig who is a 7th grader. The Conners have been doing upholstery work on a part time basis for five years.

KELLY'S HEROES

By JOE KELLY

Texas Tech plays its biggest game of the season Saturday. It's do or die, because there probably will be no second chance. Texas can make or break the Red Raiders.

A year ago the Longhorns came to Lubbock in about the same situation. They shot out in front and played possibly their finest game of the year before losing, 31-28. The defeat finished Texas as a contender for the conference championship.

There's a good deal of similarity this year, but in reverse. A year ago the Raiders were undefeated. This year it is Texas that hasn't tasted defeat. A year ago it was a "must win" game for Texas. This year it is Tech that is in that situation.

The Raiders are going to be faced with playing their best, maybe over their heads, if they are to win. And a second loss virtually would close the door on a conference title.

A year ago Earl Campbell, who had been hurt, started against Tech and what a day he was having when he was re-injured. He carried seven times for 65 yards in the first quarter. Remember, too, that it was 7-7 at the time and Texas later surged ahead by 21-10.

Now Campbell is well, stronger than ever and faster, too. No one has stopped him and it's doubtful that Tech will, either. He is just a tremendous back.

Also, the Longhorns have a new coach and the days of three yards and a cloud of dust are gone. The Steers throw the ball as part of the attack, not as an afterthought. That makes them that much tougher to defense.

Also, Lam and Ham Jones are back and a year older and wiser, with no less speed. And Brad Shearer heads up a defensive line that has been murder on opponents.

As if all the offense and defense wasn't enough, Texas now is the nation's No. 1 team. The Horns will be trying to prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they deserve that ranking.

So, you have a combination of a must game for Tech and No. 1 ranking for Texas. You don't know how able Rodney Allison will be, and he could make a difference if completely well. Still, it promises to be a bitterly fought game, one maybe as much in doubt up to the end as the Texas-Arkansas battle.

The conference ended its non-league fights last week on an impressive note, with TCU and Baylor winning. That ran the record to a fine 18-9-0 tally for the season, one of the best ever. In the process the league beat some pretty good teams.

Del Ray Mounts was one of the honorees into the Tech Hall of Honor almost two weeks ago. The Perryton graduate was one of Tech's many great guards and, in many ways, the most unusual.

Del was a walk on and first caught the notice of Polk Robison as a freshman pitcher on the baseball team. Polk saw him in action and said to himself, "now there's a fighter." He was, too. He didn't know the meaning of defeat and he played every game that way.

Leave it to Bill Whitmore, the irrepressible sports information director at Rice, to remember Del. He was in the pressbox for the Owls' game and remarked to us: "I wonder if he (Del) still has teeth marks in his head?"

It happened at Rice once. Del went up for a rebound and a taller Rice player came down on top, obviously with his mouth wide open. Del had to be escorted from the court and, as I recall, had stitches taken in his scalp. It was one of the rarer injuries in sports.

Fortunately I kept my mouth shut, so the World Series didn't cost me any money. It well might have, because I didn't think New York had a chance. In fact, I'd have bet that the Dodgers would win in four straight.

Even after the Yankees won the first game, I still thought that it was a fluke and that the Bums would win the next four. But Mike Torrez, Ron Guidry and Sparky Lyle were something else.

The Yankees were a strange championship club. They had fights. They didn't get along. They loafed at times. They pulled some bonehead plays. They lacked clutch hitting much of the time.

But, like the Oakland A's in their prime, they were pros with pride. Winning was more important than coming in second. And what a way to wind things up, with Reggie Jackson, the most controversial of all, putting his name into the record books with an almost unbelievable final game.

Will the Yankees win next year? For that matter, will the Dodgers? Will winter simmer down the feuds and fighting and fussing among the champs, or will players leave? And, even if they do come back, will the club be able to duplicate 1977?

As for the Dodgers, they had a strong club, but much of their success was getting that quick start. If I had to bet right now, I'd go with Boston and Cincinnati to meet in 1978.

Better get your long Johns out. It was just a year ago Friday that we had the big snow, which delayed the start of the Texas game an hour and a half. Doesn't seem possible, in view of the hot fall we've been having.

Prediction—it won't snow in Austin Saturday, unless it is the touchdown variety.

FBC Women Attend Meet

Six ladies of the First Baptist Church represented the Lubbock Association of Baptist Women in Freeport, Grand Bahama October 12-16. The occasion was the 25th anniversary assembly of the North American Baptist Women's Union, a department of the Baptist World Alliance.

Those attending were Syd Pearce, Marian Johnson, Stella Anglin, Jo Ann Pointer, Linda Burgett, and Sherri Chandler. Judy Hodnett of Bovina also traveled with the Shallowater group.

"Growing in the Love of Christ" was the theme of the assembly. A long list of well-known speakers, both men and women, were included in a well planned program of meetings. Among the many interesting and helpful topics discussed were "Growing ... in the home", "Prayer," and "Happiness is Sharing the Scripture."

At the close of the assembly some 2,000 men and women joined hands and hearts in singing "Blest be the Tie."

In between general meetings and specialized workshops some time was found for shopping at the International Shopping Bazaar and sightseeing. The islands were beautiful! The sand so white and the ocean so blue! One afternoon the group toured a glass-bottomed boat. Many colorful coral reefs and lots of little tropical fish were viewed by all. Other outings enjoyed by various members of the group were a visit to downtown Freeport, a tour of the luscious Garden of the Groves, sailing, snorkeling, and a barbecue on the beach.

It was a wonderful time in the Lord as Christian sisters from all over the world shared in some of the beauty of God's creation!

It's surprising what a public speaker will say to gain publicity.

Some of the music that one hears these days doesn't suggest music.

There's a medication that relieves occasional hemorrhoidal symptoms within minutes. Then it goes beyond soothing; actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues due to inflammation. The name: Preparation H[®].

Doctor-tested Preparation H, with its exclusive formula, is America's leading hemorrhoidal remedy by far. Ointment or suppositories.

This picture of six skiers behind one boat was taken at a Labor Day outing at Oak Creek Lake by Cecil Bennett. One boat couldn't get the skiers up at the same time, but with the help of another boat to get them up, the one boat with 125 HSP motor could pull them all at one time. Two of the skiers are grand-daughters of the Cecil Bennetts.

Tammy Medlock Honored With Bridal Shower

Miss Tammy Medlock, bride-elect of Chet Webb, was honored with a Bridal Shower on Saturday October 22 at the home of Mrs. Burnis Penny. Hostesses were Mms. Burnis Penny, Robert Seale, Bill Van Winkle, Bill Montgomery, Winfred Medlock Jr., Mike Vitale, Robert Hughes, and Belinda Seale, Deborah Penny, Dana Vickerey and Tanya Poole.

The honored guests were Mrs. Shelby Medlock, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. Howard Beasley, mother of the bride-groom and Mrs. L.T. Medlock, grandmother of the bride-elect. They all wore corsages of pink carnations and daisys with pink ribbons.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a lace tablecloth that covered a pink underlay. The centerpiece was a brass bowl filled with pink silk roses and baby's breath with pink candles to the side in brass candleholders. The cake was a miniature wedding cake with pink roses and the pink punch was served from a crystal bowl and cups. Nuts were served from crystal appointments.

The hostess gift was a Hoover vacuum cleaner.

Miss Medlock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Medlock of Shallowater. She is a graduate from Lubbock Christian High School. Webb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beasley of Lubbock, a graduate of Shallowater High School, and is presently serving in the U.S. Air Force and is stationed at Little Rock, Arkansas.

The couple will be married on Nov. 12 at 8 p.m. at Bacon Heights Baptist Church in Lubbock.

"Tartuffe" Showing

The second production of the 1977-78 season at the Texas Tech Laboratory Theatre will be Tartuffe by Moliere. Production dates are Friday, October 28, through Wednesday, November 2, at 8:15 p.m. nightly. In Tartuffe, a wily and crafty swindler is pitted against a rich bourgeois who, in his middle age has become a bigot and a prude. Richard Wilbur's translation of Moliere has been proclaimed as a masterpiece of its kind. We think Tartuffe is a continuous delight from beginning to end.

Ticket prices for Tartuffe are $1.50 for adults, $1.25 for students, and $1.00 for Texas Tech students with I.D.'s. Tickets may be picked up at the University Theater Ticket Office between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Further information may be obtained by calling 742-3601.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Right off the bat, let me clarify something that occurred in the line of this duty this past weekend.

As you probably know, Civic Lubbock, Inc. sponsored a local production of the famed Rodgers and Hammerstein musical comedy of Navy goings-on in World War II, the beloved "South Pacific," in the Memorial Civic Center Theatre.

Regrettably, I cannot tell you anything about the performance. I did not see it! (one of the few shows in a 20-year period and more that I have been forced to miss). The crux of the matter was that the Waddington Advertising Agency of this city, which represents Civic Lubbock, Inc., did send me two complimentary tickets (press) but they were for Friday night and I did not pick up my mail at home until close to 7 p.m. that night. The tickets were there but, fresh from my drill press daily occupation at Cutron, Inc., I was oily, dirty and no time to clean, change and make the Center in time. So, I missed out.

Too bad, too. For Janis Geddis is a longtime friend and she was "washing that man right out" of her hair and I did want to see her. There were a lot of other people involved that I equally wanted to report on, such as director Ric Brame, Lou Keay and many more. Well, it was not to be.

As I told the advertising agency, never, NEVER trust an overnight mail delivery service in this city. Allow two-three days to get a letter delivered across town. I can hear from my agent in New York almost overnight, I can hear from the agent in London in two days, but it takes from two-three days to get a letter from the Texas Tech University campus to my apartment on Avenue R, a distance of about eight blocks! So, if you want me to know something TOMORROW, don't send it TODAY! No apologies extended to the gentlemen based at 15-16th and Ave. G, either!

So, what did I do over the weekend? Well, thanks to Citibus and my sturdy and, thank heaven, reliable-to-date legs, I went off to the Fox 4 complex out on 19th Ave. to catch an important movie. (You see, since they cut off the Saturday service on the bus line, the LCC-Redbud Square route which took me to the theater door) I can only make it to 21st and Memphis and then it is hike the rest to make either the Fox 4 or the Cinema West. The glories of pedestrianism!

I went off to see the provocative Ken Russell handling of "Valentino." This R-rated, 132 minute film, out of Britain, is yet another of the outrageous, yet compelling treatments that Russell has done on remembered personalities. You'll remember he devoted a lot of time to prove that Russian composer Tchaikovsky was homosexual, he demeaned Gustav Mahler in a pseudo-biographical film and he never does anything that doesn't either drive one up the wall or enlist one in his peculiar, particular cult.

"Valentino" is no exception. To play the sultry Latin silent screen hero who died in the 1920s to more hoopla, more frantic and frenetic nonsense by adoring fans than the late Elvis could ever have envisioned, Russell took the Kirov (Russia) ballet defector Rudolph Nureyev to enact the title role.

Russell begins his film with the unforgettable mob debacle of Valentino's lying-in-state at a New York funeral home, the breaking in of frenzied fans to catch a glimpse of his rouged corpse and through the pecking activities of newspeople, certain celebrities who played roles in real life with the dead idol are caught and the story told in sometimes lurid, sometimes parody rephrasing, as he moved from male stud, gigolo, dancer up to the immortal roles in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Sheik," "Blood and Sand" and "Son of the Sheik."

There is an early sequence of Nureyev dancing with a character, the noted ballet genius Nijinsky, where in Valentino is teaching him the tango (thereby unleashing a thought of homosexuality, of course) and there are sequences throughout the film that are both witty, caustic and others that are simply too much!

At one point in the film Nureyev says (in character) that he knows nothing about acting. Well, you can't review a film and say it better. He should return to his toes and let Robert Redford have the silver sheet.

At another point in the film a very pertinent comment is made by the lady (Leslie Caron) as Nazimova that the whole thing is (well, family newspaper, expletive deleted—but oh, so true!). Only time I can remember seeing and hearing a film review itself!

None of this is to be taken seriously. The patent-leather, slicked-back pompadour that the real-life Valentino wore, the Italian dark-complected memory, these are not here. Nureyev is brown-haired, older and, in his nude scenes (oh, yes), he does display his lithe-muscular body and a provocative rear end. But, for what many consider the world's leading dancer, is this what it is all about? Surely, Nureyev didn't, doesn't need the money and a matinee idol he already is. One thing is certain! Nureyev is not threatening anyone this year come Academy Award time.

Incidentally, the few dancing bits, the Nijinsky tango, the interpolated ballet touch in the same sequence, the episode with an alcoholic partner in a dance act (performed before a most embarrassing caricature of the late "Fatty" Arbuckle) give Nureyev a chance to do what he does best—dance.

There are caricatures of the famed women in Valentino's life. Leslie Caron is the Alla Nazimova (that late, great actress) in a role that is a disservice to a memory of one of theater's big one. Caron is almost unrecognizable (where have the days of "Gigi" gone?) but she springs competence to a puzzling interpretation.

Michelle Phillips is the Rambova and down the line you'll find Carol Kane, Felicity Kendal (playing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film cutter June Mathis who discovered Valentino and made him a star) and, of all things, an aging Huntz Hall (one of the original "Dead End Kids") popping up as movie great producer Jesse Lasky.

"Valentino" is a wild, wild film. The sad fact is that today's generation is going to swallow all this malarky as whole truth when, in fact, it is a put-on and not to be confused with fact. Well, as I said, Ken Russell, when he produces 'em, he goes for shock value. He gets it again in this one. But, like the character during the course of the film, Leslie Caron, incidentally, mouths—the whole thing is—"expletive deleted."

I made a somewhat caustic comment in a few lines last week about the George Burns-John Denver movie, also at the Fox 4, "Oh, God!"—I took another look to see if I was right or wrong and I've somewhat (but not wholly) altered my opinion. I'll readjust that in our next. And, comment on Lubbock Community Concerts opener this week (too late for press time), the appearance of Dmitri Alekseyev, the eminent young, Russian pianist. In the new Community Concerts setting at Memorial Civic Center.

Cher-Shan Gallery Opens

Cher-Shan gallery opened recently in Lubbock, located at 2610 Salem in Cactus Alley shopping mall.

Director Kay Mitchell says the gallery will exhibit original art by local and area artists. Those currently being featured include Pat Isbell of Shallowater, Virginia Whitten of Big Spring, Peggy Lang of Hereford and Fred Cowart of Lubbock.

Pat Isbell is represented in various galleries and her works hang in private collections, including paintings at United Methodist Conference Hall in Lubbock and Lubbock State Children's School.

Pat participates in art shows and has won honors at Lubbock art shows, South Plains Fair and many local and area shows. The subjects she enjoys painting the most are homesteads of the southwest and many families in Shallowater and the area have homestead paintings she has done for them.

Pat grew up in western Lubbock County and began painting in 1970 with a special desire to record on canvas the beauty of God's world.

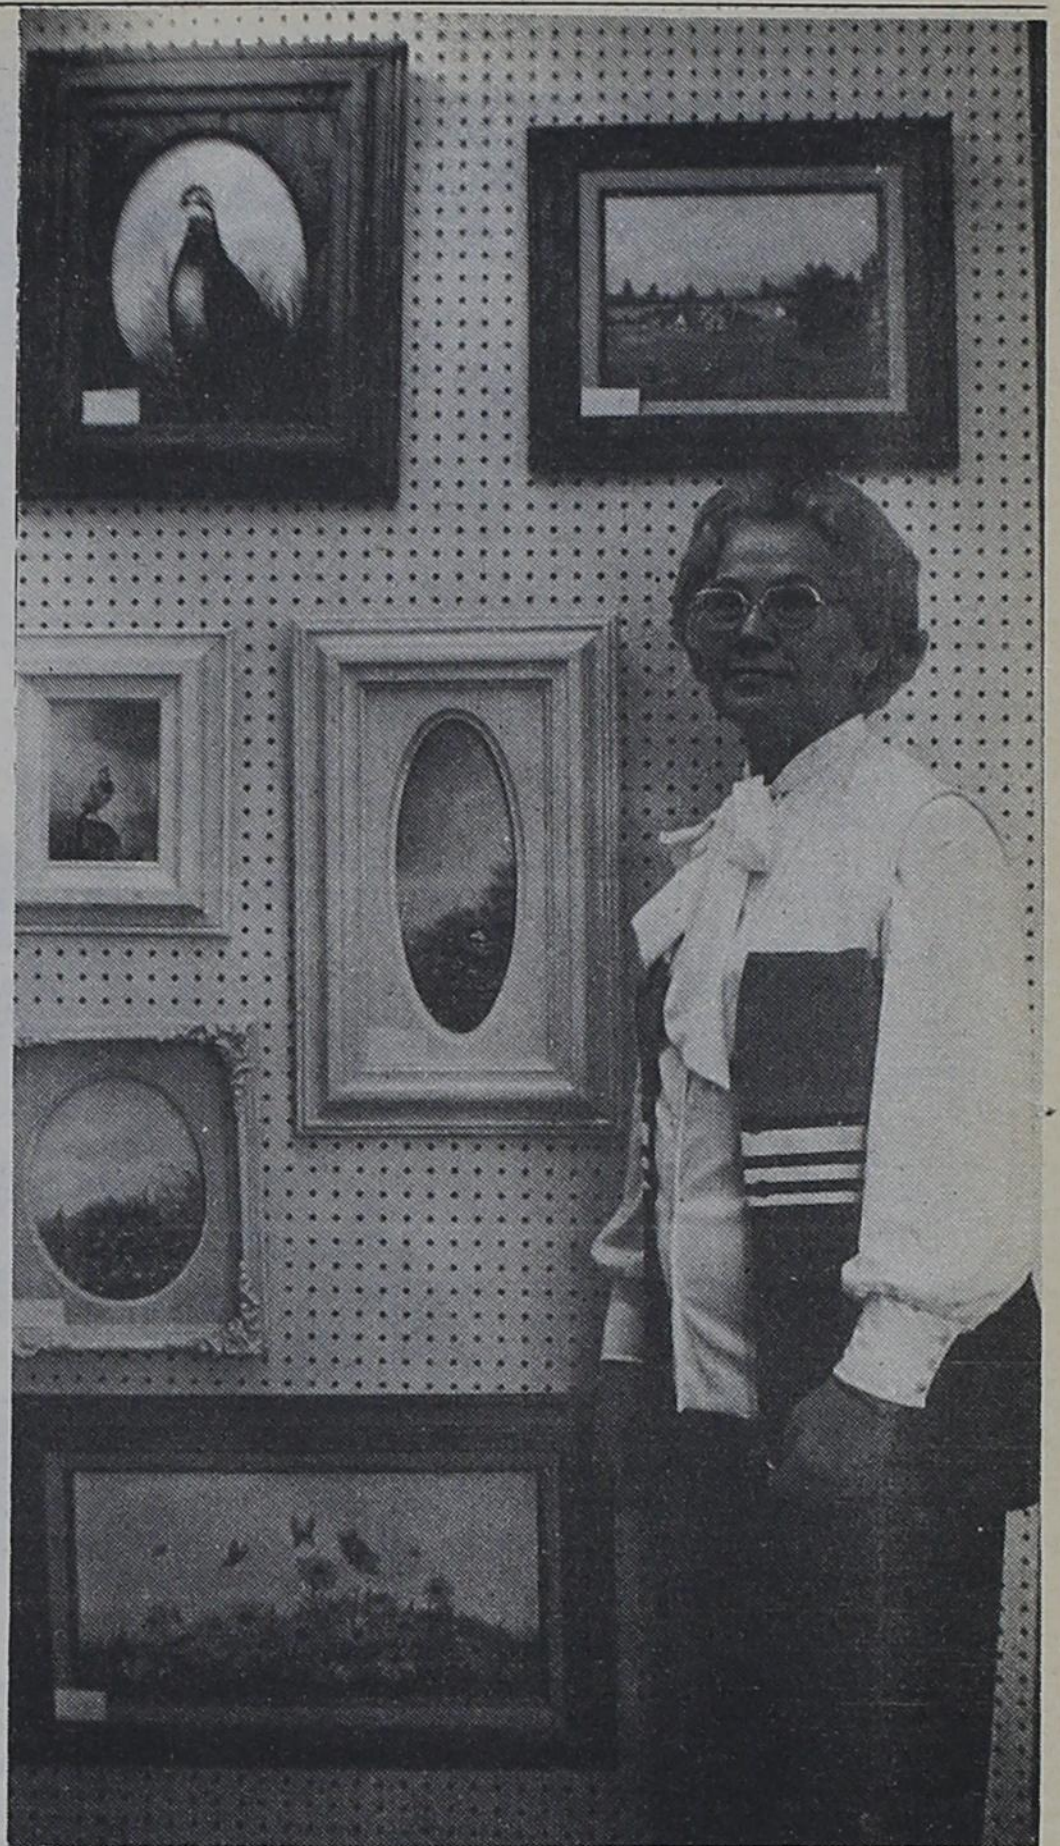

Using oil, she selects all types of subjects including animals, landscapes, windmills and florals. Her strong, crisp technique with color and line portrays scenes people want preserved on canvas and often records old homesteads from photographs.

During her growing up years, she often had the desire to capture the beauty of landscapes, flowers and birds, little realizing she had a sensitive touch for telling history on canvas with paint. She is a member of the Lubbock Art Association and teaches art in her home near Shallowater.

Mrs. Whitten has won various awards at art shows in Big Spring, Amarillo, Lubbock, Snyder, Levelland and Midland. She also taught art at Howard College.

Peggy Lang only began painting in 1968 but has had her work displayed in a number of south Texas cities, as well as Fort Worth, San Antonio, Amarillo and Taos, N.M. She has won a number of awards and through one-man shows and gallery displays her paintings now hang in collections in Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and other southwestern states.

Fred Cowart is a Texas Tech

University graduate who majored in art history. His ink graphics are very unique.

He has won many awards at art shows in Texas. He did a series of landmark windmills for the bicentennial. Currently he is completing the Zodiac signs which are being printed in a signed limited edition.

Kay Mitchell invites everyone to come by Cher-Shan Gallery and see the beautiful paintings by these artists and many more.

Durable Press Process for All-Cotton Fabrics Proving Itself in Growing Commercial Use

NEW YORK—The ongoing search for techniques to give durable press performance to all-cotton apparel has entered an exciting new phase.

It's "vapor phase," a process that is now proving itself in commercial use in the New York garment center.

Development through research sponsored by Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers, the process is seen as having almost unlimited potential for opening up new markets for cotton.

"It's the wave of the future," says William Siegel, president of Vapor Processing Company, a thriving young New York firm that holds the license as the first commission vapor phase finisher in the country.

In full operation for only a few months, Siegel's leased vapor phase processing unit is now in use on a 24-hour basis, applying durable press finishes to garments made by various manufacturers from corduroy, denim and other all-cotton fabrics. Buoyed by his early success, Siegel already is looking ahead to acquiring more units and expanding his commission business to locations in the South.

Both Siegel and James P. Hangle, Cotton Inc. director, apparel mill marketing, see the vapor phase process as the key to unlocking the door for cotton in markets dominated by other fibers.

"The big place I see for this is in tailored clothing," says Siegel. "Permanent press never worked in this area."

He proudly displays the suit he is wearing—an all-cotton suit processed in the vapor phase unit.

"I can wear this suit all day and it won't get wrinkled—not even in hot, humid weather," he says.

Hangle agrees that vapor phase could make cotton a major factor in "areas in which we have never been competitive," such as men's dress suits and slacks and women's tailored clothing.

Siegel earned his reputation more than a decade ago as one of the pioneers of permanent press—the process that revolutionized the textile industry by introducing the concept of "easy care" fabrics that didn't require ironing and resisted shrinkage.

One of the major drawbacks of permanent press, however, was that it had a weakening effect on cotton. This led to the extensive development of high synthetic blended fabrics and the prevailing thought in the textile industry that durable press for all-cotton fabrics was unattainable.

The new vapor phase system was being developed by scientists at the Stanford Research Institute in California under a research contract awarded by Cotton Incorporated.

Assigned the patents for the new system, Cotton Inc. granted an exclusive license to American Laundry Machinery Industries for developing the equipment. They began building the hardware and sub-licensing the process to apparel manufacturers.

The first units were used to process industrial uniforms and career apparel, mostly of polyester/cotton blends.

Siegel, meanwhile, saw in the emerging vapor phase system the breakthrough he had been seeking to give durable press finishes to a wide range of cotton fabrics—woven as well as knits.

Siegel's philosophy in opening the business in New York was to provide vapor phase processing to the smaller manufacturers "who can't afford the equipment and don't have the space or technical know-how to put in the equipment."

His biggest surprise has been "the way the big guys jumped on it." In addition to a number of smaller companies, such big names as Wright Manufacturing, a division of Oxford Industries; H.D. Lee, Brooks Brothers, Sears and J.C. Penney have sent garments to Siegel for either Recently, Elkay Industries, a New York children's wear manufacturer, ordered two vapor phase machines for its own use, a direct result of the New York located unit.

"I can assure you that without the work of Cotton Incorporated, the big companies never would have gotten involved in this program," says Siegel.

The gymnasts were divided into competition levels according to their age and skills. Congratulations to our gymnasts who placed: Renea Applegate 1st, Sylvia Perez 1st, Kim Lollar 2nd, Elida Luna 2nd, Jackie Whaley 2nd, Mary Alice Whaley 2nd, Betty Duenez 4th, Mabelle Johnson 4th, Dee Dee Bigham 5th, Kelly White 5th, Robin Lesley 5th, Tammy Tischler 6th, and Tonya Applegate 6th.

The Shallowater Tumblers and Coach Marvana Cave would like to thank all the parents and school personnel who have supported the Gymnastics Program.

Junior Mustangs

by Cindy Jackson

This week two Juniors are in the spotlight. They are Barry Randolph and Kyle Bedingfield. These two boys really deserve the title of being—Mighty.

Barry Randolph is a 6 foot, 170 lb. end. The number on his back and chest that is worn proudly is the number 80. Barry was injured in the Plains game and won't see any more action this year, but he has made up for all the action he will be missing in the past games. We hope Barry recovers quickly and we appreciate all the hard work he put forth this year.

Kyle Bedingfield is a 5'8" guard. He carries 170 lbs. and exhibits the number 65. Kyle has been injured with a cut hand but is supposed to see action this week. That's good news for us but bad news for the Eagles.

These two Juniors are great competitors and a great asset to the Mustang team. Watch for the black images of the numbers 65 and 80.

NHS Meets

by Kenneth Young

The National Honor Society met in its regular monthly meeting Monday, October 10, at 7 p.m. in the coffee room at the First State Bank of Shallowater. In charge of this month's program were Jana Hayslip and Kenneth Young. The meeting consisted of a hamburger cookout and brief business meeting. After the meeting a pair of brightly talented brothers, Tim and Tad Sinclair, teamed up to play their banjo and Mandolin for the enjoyment of the members and sponsor.

Everyone enjoyed the hamburgers and entertainment. Present at the meeting were members Andy Blackmon, Lesa Dulaney, Sheila Evans, Lane Giles, Jana Hayslip, Stacy Hohenburger, Dawn Hutchings, Laurie Jordan, Tammy McAuley, Jeani Roberts, Paul Thompson, Dana Vickrey, Kenneth Young, sponsor, Ruth Kulm, English Student Teacher, Tanya Searcy and her husband David, entertainers, and special guests, Tim and Tad Sinclair.

Yearbook Sales Begin

The Annual Staff announces the beginning of yearbook sales. The 1978 Mustang will be sold to elementary students each morning during November 1 to 7.

The junior high students will purchase their annuals during the 7th period class. Sales to high school students will be handled during the break as follows: Freshmen students will buy the book on Tuesday; Sophomores, on Wednesday; Juniors on Thursday, and Seniors '78 on Friday.

The cost of the Mustang is $8 or $9 personalized.

Cowboys Corral Mustangs

by Melissa Epperson

The Plains Cowboys traveled here with the idea that this would be an easy victory. But the Mustangs had other ideas. They came on the field with desire in their hearts and fire in their eyes.

The Mustangs had 9 first downs to the Cowboys 18. The Mustangs rolled up 225 total yds. to the Cowboys 294. The defense did an outstanding job in holding the Cowboy's drives.

The team has lost Andy Blackmon, Lane Giles, Marcus Lara, Barry Randolph, Kyle Bedingfield and Louis Caballero due to injuries. With this many out, the team needs lots more effort from the rest of the team. The turnovers really hurt the team. The fumbles and the penalties also hurt.

Some of the outstanding players were Roddy Thomas, Robin Krebbs and David Coker.

Cowboys Saddle J.V.

by Cindy Jackson

The Mustangs met up with the low-riding Plains Cowboys. It was a game of defense throughout the night. The Cowboys saddled the Mustangs to a 6-8 victory.

The first half the Cowboys pulled the reins on the Mustangs. The halftime score was 8-0.

Robert Sanders was injured in the first quarter, so he wasn't able to continue playing.

In the third quarter the Mustangs tried to gallop back with a touchdown made by Rufino Maldonado. That made the score 8-6.

The fourth quarter didn't change. It was a bucking and tossing battle. The Cowboys managed to hang on to end the game 6-8.

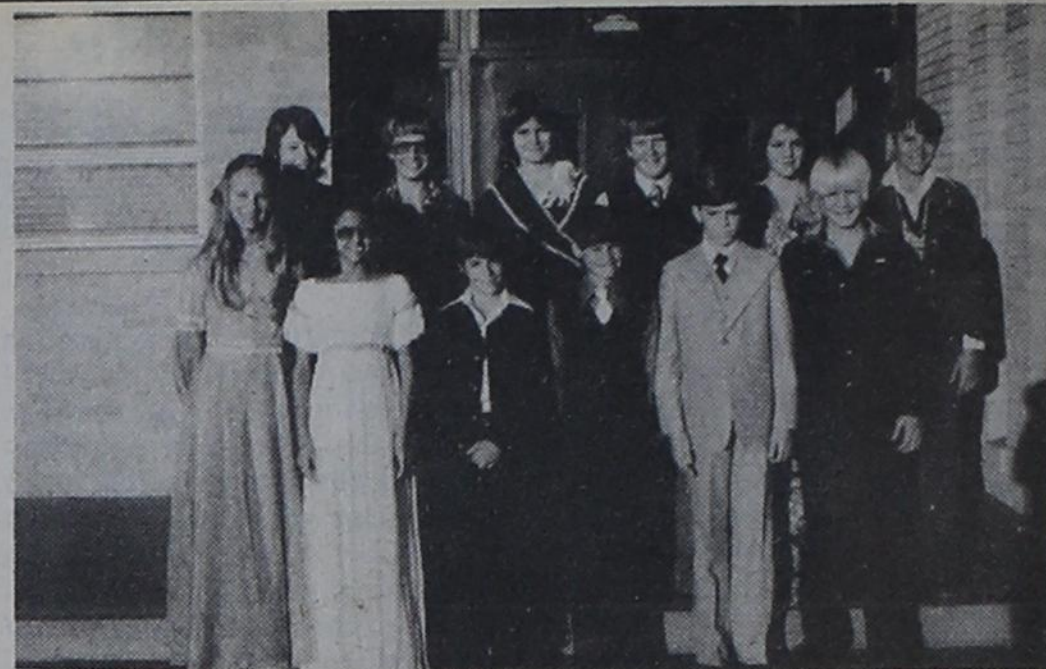

Victory Road Blocked

by Donna Evans

The 7th grade lost their second game of the season to Plains last Thursday night. They played a good defensive game and was only beaten 8-0.

The 8th grade also lost their game last Thursday night to Plains. They played a good game but couldn't quite do it. They lost the game 34-0.

Next Thursday at Todd Field these two daring teams will be seen playing against O'Donnell. Be sure and come out to watch the Fighting Ponies.

Stars of the Six Weeks

by Kenneth Young

The two National Honor Society's Stars of the Six Weeks are Kim Hickox and Rodney Jackson.

Kim was born on the 27th of December in 1961 to parents Col. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hickox. Kim's hobbies are snow and water skiing, backpacking, and cooking, while her favorite things are plants, animals, and pretty clothes.

Kim's favorite classes are Journalism and Chemistry but also is active in F.H.A. She placed in baked items in this year's South Plains Fair and holds the office of Historian in F.H.A.

Kim's comment on this year is, "Grrreat!"

The other Star of the Six Weeks is Rodney Jackson. Rodney Dale Jackson was born February 24, 1962. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Jackson. Rodney's favorite class is World History while his favorite pastime is girl watching. Like most guys his favorite things are girls and football. Rodney is active in athletics and enjoys being with his good friends. His comment on the year is a very honest one, "Can't wait until it is over."

Senior Stars

by Melissa Epperson

The Senior spotlight shines this week on two more of our fantastic seniors, Jess Truelock and Louis Caballero.

Jess Truelock was born into this world on July 22, 1960. His proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Truelock of Box 498, Shallowater. Jess lists his favorite subject as Ag Mechanics because he doesn't have to study and he gets to build things, instead. Some other "favorites" that Jess has listed are bowling, girl-watching, playing tennis, water skiing, and intertubing. He also likes his car and looks forward to getting his band jacket.

Jess is a member of the Spanish club and he holds the responsibility of reporter of that organization. Jess was the secretary of the freshman class his fish year.

Jess says that he hasn't lived long enough to decide on a career.

The other half of the Senior Spotlight shines on Louis Caballero. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gilberto Caballero. Louis came bouncing into this world on October 24, 1958.

Louis lists as his favorite subject, athletics because he doesn't have to study and it is an easy credit. His other favorite things are listening to music, his car, and eating. His hobbies include hunting and watching T.V. He is the kick-off specialist for the football team.

He plans to go to work after he graduates. He hasn't decided on a career yet. His only comment about this year is, "I'm glad it's my last one."
