

Clarence Kelley Speaks at Lubbock C of C Banquet

Art Show Currently Underway at Shallowater's First State Bank

The art work of Joe and Helga Stein currently on display at the First State Bank of Shallowater.

The First State Bank of Shallowater last week held an exhibition of art by Joe and Helga Stein.

Both Joe and Helga are recognized as accomplished artists in their respective fields.

Helga, a graduate of Ray-Vogue Art School, Chicago, has been a successful commercial illustrator for several years with both industry and federal government. Her work is known for its' bright and fresh appeal. Her pastel portraits consistently capture the sparkle, mood and personality of her subjects. Her portraits of children have been bought and cherished by parents throughout the USA and overseas.

Joe is a graduate of the University of Chicago and is retired as a Lieutenant Colonel from the Air Force. He devotes most of his time to painting landscapes of Texas and New Mexico areas. He has the ability to give his landscapes a feeling of spaciousness and serenity, with accurate attention given to light and shadow.

Clarence M. Kelley, acting director of the FBI, expressed his concern that public scrutiny and criticism of the agency's domestic security operations would "undermine the trust Americans have traditionally planned in the FBI."

Kelley, the keynote speaker at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce annual banquet Tuesday night, asked the American people to decide who posed the real threat to American liberty.

"You must decide whether it is the FBI or extremists and terrorists who menace Americans' 200 year tradition of liberty," Kelley told the estimated 1100 people gathered at the Municipal Coliseum.

Kelley, who took office July 3, 1973, said that present criticism of the agency is a result of actions the bureau took "in extraordinarily turbulent times."

The danger is that restraints which would limit the agency's domestic security operations could be enacted by Congress, he said.

However, Kelley said the FBI welcomed the guidelines on domestic security proposed by the Department of Justice.

Quoting Attorney General Levi, Kelley said that those guidelines "accept the proposition that in limited circumstances carefully controlled FBI activity which directly intercedes to prevent violence is appropriate."

The FBI director said he remained convinced that "legislative guidelines should be established specifically permitting (the FBI) to act promptly when domestic security is imperilled."

Kelley took issue with a news report which said that only four convictions resulted from 676 domestic intelligence investigations in 1974.

Citing agency work leading to the arrest of an activist who planned to bomb two blocks in an unidentified city, and the break up of a ring of arsonists responsible for 15 arsons in New Haven, Conn., the former Kansas City police chief said that agency accomplishments deterred arsonists, terrorists, and assassins.

Kelley stated that bombings had increased from 24 in 1973 to 46 in the first six months of 1975.

The American people stand to be the losers if legislation is enacted which will prevent the agency from using "investigative techniques essential to doing our job," he said.

Mustang Band Takes Top Honors at Meet

The Fighting Mustang Band proudly shows off their trophy awarded to them Tuesday at the U.I.L. Marching Contest.

The fighting Mustang band, under the leadership of Rusty Sherman, brought home another victory for Shallowater Tuesday afternoon.

The band competed in the University Interscholastic League Marching Band Contest at Jones Stadium in Lubbock Tuesday afternoon. The band was judged by three judges and they were evaluated on the appearance of the band, the sound of the band, and their marching ability.

Representative Lane Denton Calls West Texas Hearings Next Week

Representative Lane Denton, D-Waco, Chairman of the Social Services Committee, announced that his Special Areas Subcommittee will hold hearings in Lubbock on November 11. The Subcommittee will be focusing on the problems of the elderly, the hearing impaired and early childhood development in the West Texas-Panhandle region.

"We have held four hearings around the State and the response has been excellent. Many concrete suggestions have been offered. For instance, the Subcommittee is now looking into the possibility of using school buses to provide transportation for the elderly. We are trying to determine the role the Commission for the Deaf should play in assuring quality services to the hearing impaired. Of special concern will be the availability of services in rural areas. These areas are too often overlooked."

Rep. Denton said that the hearings will be held at the Continuing Education Center, Building X-15, on the Texas Tech University Campus. The hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will last all day. He added that although individuals have been invited to address the Subcommittee, all interested citizens are invited to attend and express their concerns in these areas.

Mission in Africa

Dar Es Salaam is the capitol city of Tanzania. Seventeen years ago when our ship docked there and we began our life in Africa, it was not a very pretty place. The harbor and countryside were beautiful, but the city itself was a hodge-podge of narrow and winding streets and low, dirty buildings. There was a strange blending of Arab and Indian (Asian), English and African. There were Hindu temples, Mohammedan Mosques and Anglican Cathedrals. The strange, weird sound of the Asian gerbas (dances) and the throbbing, penetrating rhythm of the African drums filled the nights. And people everywhere, talking, laughing, shouting, pushing, begging; pedestrians, bicycles, pushcarts, and wheezing old double-deck busses straight from London. A dirty, noisy, smelly place. We loved it—right from the start.

We were soon introduced to one of the unforgettable experiences of living in Colonial Africa: house servants. Now that sounds great, and it was, but it can be quite an ordeal at first if you've never had servants before. I often envied the British. They seemed to have been born to be served, while we fidgeted around nervously saying, "Here, let me help you with that." It wasn't as easy as you might think to get used to having a "house boy", although looking back at it I think it was easier to get used to having one than it has been to get used to not having one. Coming into an American home was quite an ordeal for them, too. Our ways were completely different from theirs or from anything they had seen among the British.

For example, we ironed clothes with an electric iron. They ironed clothes with a heavy flat iron heated over charcoal. When the iron was hot they ironed. When it was too hot they soured it in a pan of water to cool it off. We didn't understand the significance of these differences. The first time our man ironed, he didn't understand how the electric cord got the iron so hot and I didn't understand why he had a bucket of water by the ironing board. But when the smoke and sparks died down we both understood each other better.

We had an old Maytag wringer-type washing machine which he learned how to use very quickly. But here, again, it was the electric cord that gave him problems. After washing he would pull the machine over to the edge of the porch to drain the water out. One day he forgot to unplug it and the machine wouldn't pull—so he tugged and yanked and lost his cool and tugged again. I heard the crash from inside the house and ran out. There was Charles sitting in the back yard, completely humiliated, with soapy water all over him and the washing machine in his lap. The lid of the machine was in two pieces.

Next furlough in Fort Worth I looked high and low for a new machine lid, but with no success. Finally, a Maytag dealer agreed to take one off another machine for me. He said, "You know, I've never had anyone ask for a new washing machine lid before. I just don't see how you can break one." I never did tell him how to do it.

Mustangs Continue Perfect Season

The Shallowater Mustangs fought a hard battle and lost Friday night against O'Donnell.

O'Donnell drew first blood Friday with a 90 yard run for the touchdown and a two point conversion. Shallowater came back later in the first quarter with a touchdown and a missed PAT.

O'Donnell scored again in the second quarter and again had a successful PAT, which left the score 16-6. The Mustangs came right back with a touchdown and a missed PAT making the score 16-12 at the half.

O'Donnell scored again in the third quarter and the Mustangs scored again in the fourth for the final score of 24-18.

The Mustangs had 244 total yards offense for the evening. Johnny Taylor had an excellent night with 2 touchdowns and over 200 yards rushing.

Notes from The Mayor

Do you know what one blast, two blasts or a three blast signal means on our town's siren?

It's almost ironic (and scary) how little some of our people know about how our town operates. Lots of us go from day to day not realizing the job that other people are doing for us. These people do not want recognition or pay, or they wouldn't take this sort of job; even so, I know they would appreciate a thank you now and then.

We have a Civil Defense Director, J.D. Young. He is responsible for filling out regular, detailed, reports to the government and of course doing the other duties of a director. He and I have the responsibilities of action taken in case of a disaster of any type. J.D., as director, has department heads under him. They are: Dunk Williamson, Water Department; Floyd Epperson, Fire Department; and Don Rackler, Police Department. Each of these have assigned people under them, plus, they co-ordinate with the Department of Public Safety Officers who live here, or are assigned to work in our area.

J.D. and his men lose many hours of sleep when storm clouds come. These clouds keep them up for a short time many nights, and some nights most of the night, yet they still have to go to their jobs the next day just like the rest of us do.

J.D. helps watch the clouds, and mans the radio and telephone at city hall, while Fred has out a fire truck, Dunk the city pickup and Don and his men the police car, taking different positions around town, watching for tornadoes and keeping in contact with each other and the Department of Public Safety on their radios.

J.D. is in contact with the Weather Bureau and of course their radar is a big help in following hot spots in clouds and knowing the exact location and movement of problem areas. He also has the responsibility of blowing the siren. Now this sounds easy, but it's not. If he blows it and a tornado doesn't hit, our people will become like the people in the story about the boy who cried "Wolf, Wolf" too often. If he doesn't blow it and something hits, that's much, much worse. He has to use his own judgement on when to blow it, and so far, he has done an excellent job. Please tell these men "thanks" for being your eyes in times like this. We can all sleep better knowing they are on duty when weather threatens.

J.D., as Mayor, I want to publicly thank you and your Civil Defense associates for the fine job you've done and for just being there in case an emergency comes up.

This is not all they do. They also serve in the volunteer fire department, and I also know that J.D. is taking Emergency Medical Training which consists of 120 hours of class and hospital time.

This might raise the question to each of us: What am I doing for my town?

Could you answer the question that I asked at the beginning of this article? The answers are: one blast of the siren means for firemen to report to city hall immediately. Two blasts means we have a fire. Three blasts or more means take immediate cover for protection (tornado coming, etc.)

Recent tests proved wild rats were ten times as sure to eat Purina Rat Control Pellets as they were competitive baits. In addition, there was no bait-shyness problem with this new product. While some rats avoided the other baits—and left survivors that could rebreed—Purina Rat Control Pellets killed every rat against which it was tested. SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

One thing can be said about Texas Tech football this year (among others): it isn't dull.

At times it gets downright exciting. Take the Florida State game, for instance. It was the opener and there were few ho-hum moments.

Then came New Mexico and it was far from causing ennui to set in. Forget Texas. Oklahoma State was exciting, too. Forget Texas A&M. Arizona was a nailbiter. Some of the SMU game was, too. And no one went to sleep during the Rice game.

In fact, Steve Sloan, didn't you know that it was Homecoming and some of your fans might be prone to heart attacks? Anyway, your Raiders pulled it out to the delight of all Tech fans.

There were anxious moments, though, when the Raiders continued to show generosity above and beyond the call of duty. Three second half fumbles and a pass interception really aided the coronary disposition of Raider exhorters.

Two Tech fumbles led directly to Rice touchdowns and the pass interception led to the field goal. That's 17 points on three turnovers and few teams can enjoy that type of generosity.

The Raiders turned one Rice fumble—the only one—into a touchdown and an intercepted pass led to a touchdown. In fact, the third quarter was a fluke in that Tech scored seven points and didn't run a single offensive play in the first 7:13 of the quarter.

Sloan listed six key things in the game at this post-game conference: (1) Tech's not being able to score just before the half ended; (2) Green's intercepted pass for a score; (3) Jordan's punt fumble; (4) Rice having to settle for a field goal; (5) the 72-yard touchdown pass play; (6) Tech's long drive without a pass that ate up the clock.

That drive, of course, was stopped at the 12 on the third fumble and averted a probably score that would have iced down the game and made Rice's 84-yard drive meaningless.

Steve observed that Tech probably should have taken the wind instead of the ball at the start of the game. As for the consistent rushing game by Rice, he said that some of it was due to poor tackling and some of it was due to the ability of the Owl backs.

As for the mistakes the Raiders still make, he said that it was no specific area that breaks down each game and he is mystified as to why this is true. "Turnovers," he said, "have really hurt us." Amen.

Steve left the decision up to Tommy Duniven on the goalline play with three seconds left, because he, Sloan, couldn't see how much yardage was needed.

Tech, at the time, was out of timeouts, and Steve said that "we probably should have taken a penalty and gone for the field goal."

Steve also thought that the defensive work at the close of the game may well have given the Raiders more confidence.

This week the Raiders have the unenviable task of playing a team, TCU, that has lost 18 straight games. It may seem strange to be worried about a team with that record, except for two things: Every losing streak has to end and the Frogs usually always play Tech an outstanding game.

Sloan was asked if he had ever played against a team that had lost 18 straight and he replied that he couldn't recall a single incident.

Putt Powell of Amarillo brought a chuckle when he asked a question—and then gave Steve an out.

"Who would you pick if you had to, Texas or Texas A&M?" Putt asked, and then added, "or would you rather not?"

"I guess I'd take Texas' offense and Texas A&M's defense," he replied.

He brought a laugh before the answer when he paused a long time and then told the writers: "I was trying to think of what Abraham Lincoln would have said!"

I guess age is showing through when you forget to salute two men in particular for outstanding honors received, Leete Jackson and the late Allen "Chuff" Benton.

Both were elected to the Texas Tech Hall of Honor and both men deserve it. Leete was a post-war fullback playing for Tech when I first came on the scene and he contributed mightily to winning Raider efforts. He was a dedicated athlete and gentleman, which he remains to this day. He richly deserved enshrinement.

Chuff Benton was just a great guy in every respect. He was a loyal, 100 percent supporter of Tech. His home was always open to friends and he contributed in every conceivable way to Tech. I still miss his smile and his warm welcome. He, too, was a winner.

For the life of me I can't see why all the furor over "no-shows" at football games, or any other sport. The name of the game still is money and, if the tickets have been sold, who cares if the fan prefers to stay home than fight the crowd and the elements.

Athletic teams, pro variety, are paid to play whether there is a single fan in the stands. The empty seats may look stark and barren, but so what? Despite the opinion of the networks, the games aren't played for TV.

Some day, just for the heck of it, I'd like to see some wealthy tycoon buy every seat in the stadium for just one game. It would be strange to see two teams playing without any fans, bands, cheerleaders or any other whoopla.

It would be interesting, but a little depressing, too. For, when all is said and done, any sport is richer for the cheers of the fans. Without them, it's dull, no matter how good the performance on the field. But it doesn't take 100 percent attendance.

Hunting Can Be A Safe Sport

Considering the thousands of men and women who are roaming the fields and woods with high-powered rifles during hunting season in Texas, it is not too surprising that a few hunters fail to return home alive each year. Others return with a serious gun shot wound that requires extensive medical treatment.

The primary cause of hunting accidents is carelessness. The hunter who blazes away at anything that moves runs a big risk of bagging a fellow hunter. The professional hunter will know what he or she is firing at before pulling the trigger. The hunter must never forget that any weapon capable of killing birds and animals also can kill humans.

When getting your hunting gear together, be sure to include a "hunter orange" jacket or vest. Even a cap in that distinctive color provides some protection.

Here are some other suggestions for a safe hunt:

Never cross over or through a fence or climb a tree with a loaded gun. It might fall and discharge.

Even a small bore rifle has considerable range. Know where your bullet will stop before pulling the trigger.

Keep guns away from children. Never leave a weapon unattended without unloading it.

Always carry a gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle if you stumble. Keep the safety catch on until ready to shoot. Always be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions. A barrel clogged with mud or snow may burst.

Guns and alcohol don't mix. If you like a nip around camp, wait until you're through hunting for the day and all weapons are unloaded and cased.

Treat guns with respect at all times. They may be loaded, despite all precautions. Thus, never point a weapon at something unless you plan to shoot it.

Hunting is established as a safe sport. That is, if people follow the rules. Be a safe hunter!

Rays of Hope

by Pat Stanton

"Righteousness of the Lord"
 "No weapon that is former against thee shall prosper...and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord." (Isaiah 54:17)

Christians would be much more effective in spiritual warfare if they constantly recognized that they are "righteous in the Lord."

Any man that has believed with his heart has received the righteousness of the Lord. (Rom. 10:10)

Much too often, the devil comes and begins to tell you how unworthy you are to ask anything from God. He will remind you of past sins and seek to keep your mind in a state of condemnation.

It is at this point that you can quote this verse and win peace and victory. "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold all things are become new...for he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the Righteousness of God in him. II Cor. 5:17-21.

Righteousness is right standing with God. And we have a right standing with God, not because of what we did, but because of what Jesus did.

We can come before God with great courage because our sins have been forgiven through Jesus Christ. (Heb. 4:16)

The Rays of Hope TV program changes times beginning Sunday, November 9th. It will now be seen at 5 p.m. on Channel 28.

Coat of Arms Plaques Made

by Melissa Martin

Do you have your own personal Coat of Arms? The Home and Family Living classes taught by Mrs. Harrison now have theirs.

The Coat of Arms were made out of particle board. Each student cut their own boards with saber saw under the supervision of Mrs. Harrison. The plaques were then stained.

The symbols or words which were used by the students were based on these questions: "What is your hobby or what you enjoy doing in your spare time: What do you valued the most: What holds your family together; What would you like to do well; What do you wish everyone would believe; and What would you like others to say about you."

After the boards were stained, spachlin was used to fill out the symbols. Finally, the plaques were painted and sprayed.

The two classes worked hard on these plaques which are now on display in the trophy case at the high school building.

Roving Reporter

The Roving Reporter has taken a poll of what people say to this question, "What do you think of the quarter system?" Here are a few of their answers:

Carol Shropshire says, "I don't like it because you have tests three times a year instead of two."

Tammy Medlock and Sherry Stence say, "It's okay. The semester's not as long and you don't have to remember as much for tests."

Mr. G. Jones states, "It is more inconvenient for me as a teacher because I grade more in the quarter system than in the semester."

Alison Terry says, "I like it, it makes school seem shorter."

Kim Young says, "I hate it, because you get report cards six times a year instead of three. I rather have just the twelve weeks."

Mrs. B. McCollum says, "I stand on the fifth."

Well, readers, you have two...sometimes three different answers. What is your answer?

The happiest person in this community is probably the one who has helped the most people, in some way.
