Four Generations Gather Recently

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Doc Medley was the scene for a very special Thanksgiving Day, with four generations gathering for dinner in the Medley home.

Present for the gala affair were: Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Freeman and 2 month old Shawn, from Levelland; Mrs. Wanda Alderman, Gerry and Cathy, Levelland; Mr. and Mrs. Chris Lewis, Levelland; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clemmer and Jacki, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Medley and children of Acuff, and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Paulson and children of Farmersville.

Fire Department Officers Elected

Officers for the forthcoming year of the Shallowater Volunteer Fire Dept. were elected at the regular meeting, Monday, Nov. 24.

Fire Chief, Floyd Epperson, was re-elected. Harry Tipton was elected assistant fire chief and Joe Robinson, secretary.

The group meets each second and fourth Monday of the month at 6:30 p.m. in city hall.

United Guild Hosts Dinner

The United Guild Women hosted 58 ladies from the First United Methodist Church in Shallowater for a Thanksgiving Dinner on Monday, November 24th.

Mrs. C.M. Thomas, president, was mistress of ceremonies. The Thanksgiving prayer was led by Mrs. Cleo Vaughan, while Mrs. Marie Lusk gave the devotional. Mary Warren read the 23rd Psalm, and benediction was given by Mrs. Z.L. Evans.

The tables were decorated with fall scenes.

Shallowater Fire Department Kept Busy Recently

The Shallowater Volunteer Fire Department has been kept busy the past ten days answering six fire alarms.

On Monday, Nov. 24, they were summoned to a cotton trailer fire at the Akins farm. The following Wednesday they were called to the Sims Cabinet Shop east of town, but the structure was practically destroyed when they arrived.

Thanksgiving day kept them busy when the 7-11 Superette caught fire with minor damage to the building that was reported at 7 a.m. In the afternoon they were summoned to a grass fire at 4th St. and Farm Road 179.

Monday afternoon they were called to the H.V. Newman farm south of town to a grass fire.

Then Wednesday morning at 7 a.m. they answered the fire alarm when a blaze was reported at the Shallowater Co-op Gin, where the fire was extinguished with only minor damage.

Pioneer Natural Gas Honors Area Employees

Pioneer Natural Gas Company honored 71 employees from Lubbock and the Lubbock area representing 925 years of combined total service Tuesday night at the annual service award dinner at the Lubbock County Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hart of Shallowater attended the event where Hart was one of the 71 employees receiving an award for 20 years of service with the company.

Anna M. Umith, senior distribution office clerk in the Ralls office, headed the list of awardees, receiving an award for 40 years service with the company.

Shallowater Area Blanketed by Dust Storm Last Saturday

The area was blanketed by a heavy layer of dust around noon Saturday on the wings of a fast moving cool front that moved in.

With wind gusts estimated at around 66 miles per hour and a light sprinkle of rain, residents were greeted with a real old fashioned West Texas dust storm that began to subside around dark, leaving behind, scattered debris and tumbleweeds piled high against fences or whatever stopped them from blowing on to somewhere else.

For disgruntled housewives it meant, cleaning up after the storm, as the majority of homes or businesses aren't built to keep out the West Texas sand as it filters in through tiny cracks and crevices.

For newcomers, they probably thought a person would have to be out of their mind to live in a country like this.

But for the true-grit West Texans who have lived here for years, some all of their lives, it was just another West Texas rain storm. They dug out the sand and will sit back and wait around for the next one to come along, taking it in stride also.

You really have to live here awhile to learn to appreciate the climate, as it's truly the greatest area to live in. And as the old saying goes, "If you don't like the weather, just stick around." And be sure if you are a newcomer, don't try to predict the weather around here, for it's unpredictable, especially these old fashioned sandstorms like the one we had Saturday.

Shallowater Boy Scout Awards Ceremony Held November 24th

Pack 515 met November 24 at 7:30 p.m. Den 5 presented the colors, then told the parts of the Scout Badge as the opening ceremony.

The following received awards for their Activity Badge: Scott Middleton, aquanaut, naturalist and outdoorsman; Joe Keith Brock, citizen; Lonnie Jarrott, showman, and traveler.

Jay Call received the denner cord and Troy Medlock received the assistant denner cord for Den 3. Larwence Brewer received the denner cord and Wayne White the assistant denner cord for Den 4.

The highlight of the evening was the racing of the Pine Wood Kerby cars, made by the boys. The following were winners. Gold cup went to Todd Oliver. The first place winners out of each den were: Den 3, James Christian; Den 4, Wayne White; Den 5, Todd Oliver; and second and third place for the pace was Wayne White and Tim Chandler.

Kevin Rhinehart crossed over the bridge from a Webelo to a Boy Scout and was presented a Boy Scout neck scarf and slide.

The blue ribbon that was won on the booth at the Scout-O-Rama was shown.

Christmas Cantata Scheduled December 14th at Shallowater United Methodist

The annual Christmas Cantata under the direction of Wayne Starch, minister of music, will be presented during the regular morning worship services at the United Methodist Church on Sunday, December 14th.

Approximately 20 members of the choir will present the program, "Love-Joy-Peace" by Tom Fette, narrated by the pastor, Rev. Tommy Ewing.

A full day of events has been planned by the church with a covered dish luncheon served at noon, following the cantata.

For the evening worship service children of the church will be participating in the annual Christmas program.

On Sunday evening, Dec. 21, the choir members will sing in the chapel at Methodist Hospital which will be televised on closed circuit to the patient's rooms for their enjoyment.

Carol of Lights to Be Staged at Texas Tech this Friday Night

On Friday, December 5th, Texas Tech will usher in the yuletide season with a bang.

At 7:30 p.m., 32,500 red, white and yellow lights will be turned on, illuminating ten central campus buildings. Victory bells in the administration building will ring in the holiday season followed with carols sung by the audience.

The program, Tech's annual Carol of Lights, is expected to attract people from throughout the South Plains to the main campus.

A torchlight procession led by the Saddle Tramps, a men's spirit organization, will start at 6:55 from the fountain at the Broadway entrance to the campus, proceed along a route marked by candle lanterns and luminaries, and end at the Quadrangle.

Both the Oakwood Baptist Church Bell Choir and the Texas Tech Choir will sing traditional Christmas carols.

The university began preparation for the event in late October. When work is complete, over 10 miles of wiring will light buildings around the Quadrangle.

The idea for the program

The final obstacle between the city-county agreement over shared services was cleared Monday when the Hospital District voted three to one to appropriate an additional $44,550 in funds for the city-county Health Department.

The city-county agreement on shared services and charges for fire calls made by the municipal fire department outside Lubbock city limits had been contingent upon a total Hospital District contribution of $99,550 to the city-county health unit.

During the afternoon session, the board first agreed to pay the annual $55,000 contribution and then voted to add additional monies.

In return for a $400 fire call charge, the county, which has veto power over the Hospital District's budget, agreed November 22nd to approve the district contribution.

Mayor Roy Bass spoke before the board, explaining the city's rationale for wanting the extra money.

Bass said the $55,000 which the Hospital District had been contributing to the Health Department was one-half the 1968 cost of providing "medical care to indigents," a district function by law according to Bass.

When the agreement was made, however, the district wanted to build a teaching hospital for the Tech medical school.

The city and county agreed to charge the district only one-half of what it cost to provide Hospital District services such as medical care for indigents until the hospital was finished.

These services are provided through the Health Department which is administered by the city.

The mayor noted that, according to city statistics, services provided to indigent peoples have risen in cost by 81 per cent since 1968. The city therefore decided to bill the district for an amount 81 per cent above the original $55,000 figure.

Harold Coston, executive director for the district board, cast the dissenting vote against additional monies, saying he "could not reconcile the 81 per cent inflationary factor" in his own mind because the number was based on city statistics. The district had never agreed to pay an inflation factor, he said.

Coston also took issue with statements that the district was responsible for "medical care to indigents." The law charges the district with care for the "medically indigent," he explained.

In other action, the board approved a contract for Emergency Medical Services System ambulance service. Through the contract, ambulances will be provided to five outlying communities provided the cities have "at least six Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) available in the community for EMS services" 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The contract previously had been approved by all of the outlying cities—including Wolf-orth and Shallowater—which had been slated for an ambulance.

Extra provisions will be made

Over the years Texas Tech's basketball teams have scored some notable upsets, but none would be bigger than the 66-58 victory over a Kansas State team ranked in the top 15 in both wire service polls. It was a tremendous victory for the Raiders.

In my book it was no fluke. The Raiders played good, sound basketball. They took few bad shots. They moved the ball well. They showed patience and discipline. And they were unselfish.

If there was a key to the upset, it may well be the poise that Tech showed under pressure. The Wildcats have the type of team that can make a lead evaporate rapidly.

But the Raiders didn't let the press bother them. They protected the ball and they worked for good shots. It was definitely a team victory, even though Rick Bullock literally hogged the scoring limelight.

The triumph definitely stamps the Raiders as a team that must be taken seriously. To be trite, one game doesn't a season make, but it indicates the ability present.

Certainly there is good depth. Coach Gerald Myers was able to play 10 men and it didn't seem to make much difference what combination he used. The Raiders performed well as a unit, with each man contributing to the victory.

K-State, as advertised, has two of the finest guards anyone would ever want to see in Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans. They are pure shooters and, as long as they were on the floor, you had to hold your breath.

In fact, the Raiders didn't outgoal the Wildcats; they won the game at the free throw line. Indeed, the 'Cats didn't make a single charity toss the last half.

So, Tech is off on the right foot and has sent a warning to other teams. Simply stated it is, look out! This is a team with balance, with depth, with ability and with togetherness.

The guard play was strong and Keith Kitchens came to the front as a floor leader. There was good rebounding strength and the forwards did a good job. In short, the Raiders showed the makings of a good, solid ball club.

Arkansas or Texas A&M? It's a good question, but one that will be answered Saturday when the two meet in a game that will decide the conference champion and the Cotton Bowl host spot.

Based on defense, I'd have to take A&M. The Aggies are awesome. They do an outstanding job against the run and are tough enough to make the passing game uncertain. Arkansas will do a good job of attacking the Aggies, but Razorbacks don't appear to have quite enough strength.

The Texas-Aggie game was, in some respects, a disappointment. It became obvious that Ted Constanzo was not even an adequate replacement for Marty Akins. He simply lacks, at this time, the quickness and overall ability.

Would Akins have made that much difference? No one will ever know what he could have done to attack the Aggies and make the difference. Personally, I think A&M would have won in any event.

Had Texas won, it would have messed up the ABC television network. Talk about good fortune. ABC talked A&M and Arkansas into moving the game to Dec. 6 and now it pays off.

ABC has been fortunate in the past—and we can't call it luck, because too often re-arranging the schedule like this has paid off. Now they have a top attraction for their finale before the bowls.

The bowl games, this season, shape up as the best in years, except for the Sugar Bowl mismatch. After watching Pitt and Penn State it's easy to see why Bear Bryant picked the Nittany Lions. Alabama shouldn't have much trouble.

But the other games appear super in the major bowls, with the Orange Bowl probably getting the top attraction in Oklahoma vs Michigan.

The Rose Bowl appears to be a mismatch, with Ohio State vs UCLA, while the Cotton has a good attraction in Georgia vs the SWC winner. Florida against Maryland in the Gator should be a good game, which takes care of the major bowls.

In the lesser attractions, the best appears to be the Pitt-Kansas hookup in the Sun. And Arizona State seems to be out of its class against Nebraska in the Fiesta. Forget the others.

Talk about the ridiculous. I watched last Monday night's rather boring NFL game and decided to clock how long it took to play the fourth quarter.

Know how long it took? Exactly, by my watch, 49 minutes to get in 15 minutes. It's that type of action that is helping to kill spectator interest. If the game is close, like the Washington-Minnesota game Sunday, you don't mind the time.

A birthday, once a year, gets to be enough.

originated in 1958 when a member of the Tech Board of Regents sponsored and raised funds for the lighting. The event was repeated in 1960, and a year later, more buildings were added to the display and the name, Carol of Lights, was coined.

In 1973, the program was curtailed because of the energy shortage. Lights burned only from dusk to 10:30 p.m. on the night of the program, the Friday before Christmas, and Christmas Eve.

Last year, a restricted schedule was also followed, though the lights burned from dusk to midnight between December 6 and January 2nd.

A similar restricted schedule will be followed this year.

Mission in Africa

by Boyd Pearce

Shallowater First Baptist Church
I don't think I have ever known a people who are by nature more kind and hospitable than the Africans. One of their customs is that whenever a visitor comes to their house they must serve him something. To the new arrival, sometimes the hospitality is appreciated more than what is served, but it does lead to some memorable experiences.

The Masai are a very proud people. They are tall, stately people, who have fiercely held on to their tribal customs. They go bedecked in their tribal finery (and sometimes nothing else) and will still attack a lion armed with nothing but a spear. Of all the tribes, they are perhaps the most hospitable and gracious.

As the Masai go about their work, frequently they will have a long, cylinder-shaped gourd hanging around their shoulders. The gourd is usually decorated with beads and has a leather strap attached to it. In the gourd they carry their basic food, which is a mixture of cow's milk and cow's blood. Now, right away you can see that this hospitality would pose quite a problem. Actually, I have never heard of the Masai serving this "drink" to any outsider, but the "outsider" is not absolutely certain it won't happen.

One missionary went into a Masai "manyatta" and they insisted he stay for tea. Now, the African tribes fix tea in just about the same way. They put the tea in the water, put in sugar, add a lot of milk and boil it together. So tea is safe and once you acquire a taste for the milkiness of it, it's good. But he had never had Masai tea. They brought it to him. It was red. Not bright red, but red enough he knew it wasn't just milk in there.

He smiled. He looked around him. Everyone was looking at him, waiting. He smiled again. They smiled, too. He waited. They waited, too. Finally, his prayer life now greatly strengthened, he raised the cup and took a swallow. He gagged. He became nauseated. He jumped up and down and screamed. All that on the inside, while outwardly he sat calmly with a smile fixed on his face, rocking back and forth. The second swallow followed the first and the results were about the same. The worst thing happened though when the cup was about half empty. He realized he was beginning to like it. How could he possibly explain to the people back home that he had acquired a taste for a little something red in his tea?

When it was all over he found out what it was. It wasn't cow blood at all. The Masai put cinnamon in their tea. And it was good.

There is a Kikuyu proverb which says, "The man who never leaves home thinks only his mama can cook." How true that is. Sometimes you have to leave home to find out that good things are to be found everywhere—good people, good food, good customs, good friends.

Senior Spotlight

by Melissa Martin

Kathy Roberts and Shirley Everette take places in this week's senior spotlight.

Kathy Roberts

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roberts. She is looking forward to her 19th birthday December 5.

Water skiing, bowling, cooking, and sewing are her special interests and hobbies. When asked what her "favorite things" were, she replied, "Food-potato salad, color-blue, and kids (babies)."

Annual staff and pep squad are activities that she takes part in. This year she is the editor of the yearbook. Shorthand is her favorite subject.

After graduation, Kathy plans to go to a nursing school, then go to college and study to be a doctor (Pediatrician).

Says Kathy, "This year hasn't been exactly as I had planned. I really wanted to play basketball, but since I took co-op I wasn't allowed to do so."

"Over all, this year has been pretty good and one of my better years," is a comment made by Shirley Everette, who fills the other half of the senior spotlight this week.

Shirley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Everette. She was born on August 19, 1958, which makes her a Leo.

Like many Leo's, Shirley enjoys sports. Coin collecting is her hobby. FHA and DECA are activities that she participates in this year. Her favorite subject is Co-op.

When asked about her plans after graduation, she commented, "I really don't know. There are a number of things I want to check into. Right now I'm in retail sales."

Student Explores The Unexplained

(Recent news released in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal led to a discussion among members of the Shallowater High School journalism staff of unusual occurrences in our world such as the Loch Ness Monster. Chris Hutchings, a member of the staff, revealed that one of his pastimes is keeping up with reading of the "unexplained" and consented to write the following article for the "Mighty Mustang." Read with care, for you may be called upon to express your opinion. Ed.)

The Loch Ness Monster; fact or legend? It may well exist. There is fairly solid evidence that something huge, alive, and unclassifiable is lurking in the 750-foot deep waters of Scotland's Loch Ness.

Reputable biologists have speculated that it could be a surviving plesosaur, an enormous aquatic reptile believed to have become extinct some seventy million years ago.

Actually, there must be more than a single monster, since the earliest description was in 565 A.D.

The Royal Air Force released a film that showed "an animate object" traveling through the water of Loch Ness at a speed of about ten miles per hour. It estimated that the object was "92 feet long and not less than 6 feet wide and five feet high."

Many ships have gotten tracings of enormous shapes in Loch Ness by using sound devices.

At any rate, if this search turns up positive proof of the monster, orthodox biologists no doubt will find it hard to believe. What do you think? Does a monster really haunt the waters of Loch Ness?

Basketball Spotlight

by Chris Hutchings

This week's basketball spotlight is on the Fillies' Laura Thompson and the Mustangs' very own Bill Dixon.

Laura Thompson is a 5'6 1/2" forward who plays very well at her position. When asked why she plays basketball, Laura said, "I like to be a part of the Shallowater athletic program. Also, I get to be with my friends and I enjoy playing basketball."

Bill Dixon is an even 6 foot and plays at the post or forward position. He is aggressive on the boards and has a good shot. Bill says he likes basketball because, "I've played it since elementary and I enjoy it."

Both these players will be playing for Shallowater and we would like everyone to come out and cheer for a victory.

Club News

by Sue Wall
Annual Staff

Organization pictures were taken Thursday, November 20. All clubs from National Honor Society to Future Teachers of America were shot. If you were absent, you really missed out.

Annual sales ended November 20; however, there will be a date in spring for late buyers.

National FTA Week

Last week, November 17 through the 21, was National RTA Week. Throughout the week, FTA members did things to help their teachers. On Monday each teacher in the school system received a fresh daisy.

On Wednesday a table was set up in the high school teacher's lounge. The table was decorated in blue and white crepe paper and was piled with all sorts of goodies. Some of these were homemade cookies and brownies.

The FTA members enjoyed FTA week and hope the teachers did too.

Student Council

The high school student council met on November 19 during fourth period.

Senior Calendars Are In

The senior class community calendars arrived November 20 and were handed out to the students on the 21st. If you have not received your calendar by December 15, call Mr. Kenneth Grissom.

There are some extra calendars and they will be sold at regular price, 75 cents. If you would like to buy one, contact a senior or Mr. Grissom.

D.E.C.A.

Leading the Shallowater chapter of D.E.C.A. this year are President, Terry Bristow; Vice President Steve McBride; Secy. Diana Perser; Treasurer Gay Lynn Hix; Historian Caran Connor, and Reporter Jeanne Cason. On October 21, twelve new members were initiated into the club by the following D.E.C.A. officers, Terry Bristow, Caran Connor, Diana Perser and Jeanne Cason. Our coordinator, Mr. Gordon Jones, presented the twelve candidates for membership. One guest, Debbie Webb, attended the initiation also.

The Shallowater D.E. Club got off to a good start this first quarter with the D.E. School Store. The store is located in the D.E. building and serves the elementary, junior high and high school students. The school store sells everything from candy to school supplies and has been quite a successful fund raiser.

On the 17th of October our chapter participated in the Shallowater Bicentennial Harvest Festival. The chapter manned a DECA booth in the community center, our scrap book, area awards, and Who's Who plaques were on display for the people to look at. Many questions were asked and we feel that Shallowater now has a better understanding of DECA.

Besides the store, the club has had several fund raising projects. From the first of October to the 17th we had a candy sale. With the starting of the second quarter, we plan to have a fruit scented pen sale and the last day of school before the Christmas vacation we plan to have the high school, junior high and elementary students a Christmas movie. This last project worked quite successfully for us last year and we plan to make it a tradition.

As a young club we are looking forward to this year being the best one yet.

Shallowater Wins Two Out of Four

Shallowater boys and girls, both JV and Varsity all played Anton Monday.

The Unsung Heroes Of the Cafeteria

by Melissa Martin

Many students, teachers, and citizens of this community don't realize how much work our cafeteria ladies do for us. They provide a good wholesome meal for each of us here at the school.

This year their work is a little easier with the introduction of a new Bun Warmer. This heats six hundred rolls at a time.

The ladies all have a special "thing" to prepare. Mona Bateman is the supervisor. She does a great job of making sure everything gets to its best of taste.

Pat Grissom and Carolyn Hamm are the ladies who work in the Snack Bar. They are kind enough to take your special orders and prepare them the way you like it.

Lilly Byres prepares the meat part of the meal. Lilly has been with us for seven years.

Melba Adams is in charge of the vegetables. She has been with us for two years, and we hope she'll be here many more. Randy Brewer is assistant desert helper. She does a fine job on this.

Two of the cafeteria ladies deserve special recognition for their fine work, dedication, and seventeen years of "sticking with us!" They are Alene Randolph, who prepares the breads, and Ruth Harper, who fixes what all the little kids like best, desert.

Around five hundred students eat in the cafeteria each day. These ladies work very hard and try their best to please each and every student!

Teacher Spotlight

Mrs. Pat Bunch, seated far right, enjoys sharing a few moments of reading time with some of her sixth graders. Her students are, left to right: Ricky Warden, Sammy McBride, Debbie Risenhoover, and Tawlene Morgan.

by Melissa Martin

Ms. Patricia Bunch, sixth grade elementary teacher receives recognition this week.

Ms. Bunch has been teaching at Shallowater for the past three years. She resides at 5728 38th St. n Lubbock.

Snow skiing and attending various sports events are her special interests and hobbies.

"I enjoy the closeness of the small school atmosphere because of the opportunity that the younger students have in participating and supporting the activities of the entire school system," is Ms. Bunch's comments regarding Shallowater schools and community.

She is also involved in many activities here. She is president of the Shallowater Classroom Teachers Association.

Many students consider Ms. Bunch as a "favorite teacher."

Junior Class Play is Cast

The junior class play, "The Green Light", was cast on Monday, November 10. The members of the play cast are as follows:

William Heupel is George Parsley, Sylvia Long as Robbi Mauldin, Miss Tessie Tingle is Allison Terry, Betsey Brown played by Kim Myers, Mrs. William Heupel by Regina Howell, Clara by La Juan Paul, Anna by Donna Boone, Paul Harden is played by Brent Ratliff, Gregory Long is Curtis Howell, First Officer is Mary Dempsey, and Second Officer is played by Bryan Cody.

The play will be presented on December 12 and 13 (subject to change). Come on out and support the junior class.
