

Shallowater Industrial Foundation Discussed

WIND DAMAGE LAST THURSDAY—Frank Henry, operator of Frank's Fina in Wolfforth, is shown examining the twisted remains of his 65 foot Fina sign that was destroyed last Thursday afternoon by the high winds. The sign toppled at about 5 minutes after 2:00 and fell in the middle of a new building site next to the Fina station. Fortunately, only the foundation and floor had been poured for the new building. Shallowater Water Rates to Increase

At their February 18th meeting, the City Council of Shallowater decided unanimously to increase the city's water rates. The decision was reached after an evaluation of the present water system. The additional revenue will be used to finance additional water storage facilities, additional sources of supply, and to improve the water system in general.

The new rates are effective immediately although the increased rate will first apply on water statements mailed April 1, 1974. The new rate schedule is as follows:

First 3,000 gal. min., $1.00 per M
4 thru 20,000 gal., $0.55 per M
21 thru 50,000 gal., $0.45 per M
51 thru 150,000 gal., $0.35 per M
Over 150,000 gal., $0.30 per M
This is the first water rate adjustment in the City in more than 10 years.

Mr. E.H. Sheffield of the Texas Industrial Commission was in Shallowater Tuesday to discuss the need for an industrial foundation for the city. At a meeting at First State Bank of Shallowater, Mr. Sheffield explained the advantages of industrial foundations over chamber of commerce organizations.

An industrial foundation can hold, lease, and own land. According to Mr. Sheffield, "They're a bank of the community's resources." An Industrial Foundation is formed by private citizens and operates with privately subscribed funds although it can borrow money thanks to the nature of its state charter. The foundation would be a vehicle for financial sources outside of the community as well as a source of information and community guidance.

There are 400 industrial foundations in the state at present.

Mr. Sheffield recommended a non-profit organization so that it could get loans through the state. A non-profit foundation would require twenty-five members for chartering.

Mr. Mabry Brock of First State Bank said that Southwestern Public Service Company is preparing brochures on Shallowater at no cost.

George Blackmon Honored as Citizen of The Month

Although he wouldn't have you know what he has done for his community, the citizens of Shallowater would. It was with this thought in mind that the residents of Shallowater selected Mr. George Blackmon, 67, as Citizen-of-the-Month.

The civic minded Mr. Blackmon has been a Shallowater resident for eleven years. He has lived in this area since 1918. He is a retired farmer and former assistant mail carrier. He and his wife, Faustina, have been married for 41 years. They have a daughter and two grandsons.

Although Mr. Blackmon would not admit to much activity outside of an interest in baseball, a local citizen described George's real hobby as "aggravating people at the local coffee house". Mr. Blackmon is a member of the First United Methodist Church.

An open house in Mr. Blackmon's honor will be held Monday, March 4, at the First State Bank from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. In addition, a tree and plaque with his name on it will be placed at a prominent site within the city. Mr. Blackmon is the fourth citizen to be so honored. The Citizen of the Month program is a creation of the Shallowater Lions Club and is funded through citizens contributions.

by Joe Kelly

As I told Gerald Myers Saturday night, soon after the Red Raiders looked like themselves again, "fine thing. I go away for two weeks with Tech in good shape and what do you do? You blow it!"

Gerald grinned in reply and said, "Yeah, that's the trouble. You went away." Neither statement had any more truth in it than some of the Watergate testimony, but it was good for the Raiders to get back on the winning track. It was almost essential that they blast Rice.

Now, the Raiders go into the final two games in pretty good shape and with a little more optimistic outlook. You can call it confidence, if you like, it all adds up to the same thing.

The changes are good, following Texas' upset of A&M on its home court, that when Tech and the Smoos play here Saturday, it will be the Raiders playing for a title tie. What a reversal. After TCU upset Texas, Tech held a two game lead with five games left, three at home, and looked like the biggest cinch since Nixon beat McGovern.

I was in Houston when Tech played A&M, heard the major portion of the first half via delayed broadcast. And I thought Tech had a good chance to win. We started to listen at my daughter's home when TV announced the double overtime loss.

That wasn't the end of the world, but it wasn't long in coming. Tuesday night, to be exact. I couldn't get the game on the radio at Fredericksburg, so had to wait until the 10 o'clock news. It made me sick.

Then I remembered back to what I had written even before the league race started: the hardest thing for any team to do is to win back-to-back titles.

By all rights, winning or losing Saturday should be academic. As it is, both SMU and Tech will be hoping for a miracle, that Arkansas or Baylor will upset the Horns. SMU hopes so and that it can beat Tech for a title tie. Tech hopes so in order to beat Smoo and win the crown outright.

"It's going right down to the wire," Gerald declared after the Rice game. "I was pleased over the way our defense played. We needed that kind of game right now. And the offense did well."

The defense did play well, which was fortunate early in the game, because the Raiders were tight.

"Yeah, the pressure's on them," Polk Robison said. But when they came out of it, they smashed the Owls. With Tech leading 13-12, the Raiders outscored Rice, 19-4 up to the half and 25-10 in the first 8:36 of the last half.

William Johnson, with Rick Bullock double-teamed and sagged on, has come to the fore. In the last seven games, he has been the high point man four times.

Grady Newton has come through, too. If the Raiders can avoid fouls and still be aggressive, while playing tight defense, they can still win and either take the title outright, or force a play-off.

As Polk said, the pressure's on and Saturday will be for all the marbles in all probability.

And now there's not a team that hasn't lost once at home, with Texas the giant killer. The Hook-em folks have beaten Tech, SMU and A&M on the road. In fact, the Horns have the best league road record (5-1), but slipped to Tech and SMU at home. Tech, A&M and SMU are all 5-1 at home.

But the key to the race is the second half. SMU is 5-0; Tech and A&M are all 3-2. That's allowed the Ponies to come on fast with a drive that might earn them a title tie.

Last week I called on a man by the name of Wallace Ottmers. As soon as I saw the name, I recalled a Frank Ottmers, who played end for Texas Tech back in the late 40s. Could they be kin?

"Kin? He's my brother!" Wallace said with a grin. The records shows that Frank played at Tech in 1945, came back and finished his eligibility in 1947 and 48. He was a fluid end, with good moves, good hands and an engaging personality. The big, likeable guy with a good sense of humor was one of my favorites.

Wallace, a Gulf distributor in Fredericksburg, and I had a good talk about Frank, who is in the oil business in Dallas. I asked if he, Wallace, had been a football player, too?

"No," he replied, "I played in the band."

"Where, at Tech?" I persisted.

"No, at Hardin-Simmons. I was in that great organization at the same time Frank was playing for Tech."

And for those who don't have memories any better than mine, in those days Tech and H-SU were bitter rivals, almost always meeting in the year's last game for the Border Conference title.

Friends, do you remember what rain is? Last week in Fredericksburg a thunderstorm came through about 11:30 p.m. It had been so long since I had seen rain that I went to the door in my PJs.

Rain is wet-feeling. It is an almost clear substance that you can feel when you put it on your hand, or rub between your fingers. It darkens everything it touches. I washes your car. It glides silently down the gutters. It has a refreshing smell. Maybe, just maybe, one of these days we'll see some in Lubbock.

Fishing fever is reaching Fredericksburg, as it is most South Central Texas. After all, magnolias, jonquils and other trees and flowers are in bloom, it's in the 70s and 80s, trees are leafing out and the bass and crappie are starting to move.

I told Wallace I was thinking of throwing a rod and reel in the back of my car and he said: "You do that and we'll go out. The fishing is great around here."

All over Fredericksburg there are deer horns. Fred Kraus, the Pearl and Coca Cola distributor, had elk, reindeer, deer, moose and antelope heads on the wall of his place, as well as a javelina head.

Many stores have deer heads and one service station has an antler tree. Hunting is maybe the second way of life, although it gets good competition from fishing. It's a proud community. People are proud of their German heritage, but also proud to be Americans.

Fredericksburg, in fact, was the only city I went through on Friday, Washington's birthday, that flew American flags. Not only that, but the flags lined both sides of long Main Street long before dawn, to say nothing of side streets. Yes, and they had flown on Monday, too.

It's one of the few cities where "danke, schoen", "bitte", "wie geht's?", "was sagen sie?" mingle with "howdy, come again, thanks and you bet!" And it's all natural and easy.

Stock a rifle or rod in your car and visit this unusual city. You'll enjoy it! You can bet I'm going back.

Scott H. Baxter Receives Eagle Scout Award in Ceremonies Sunday at Reese

Reese Air Force Base Chapel. The Eagle Scout Award is the highest rank a boy can achieve in scouting. Only one of every 200 boys ever earns that rank. To become eligible for the award, a boy must be proficient in traditional and some new scouting skills. He not only must be an active participant in scouting activities, but must also be active in church, civic and other community functions. Before final selection, a scout must be determined to exemplify the scout spirit and pass before six boards of review.

Only 135 boys out of the South Plains Council's total number of 10,385 scouts received the Eagle Award during the past year.

Scott is a sophomore at Lubbock High School and the son of Colonel and Mrs. Walter H. Baxter III. Colonel Baxter is the Commander of Reese Air Force Base's 64th Flying Training Wing. Scott has been active in scouting for more than seven years starting as a cub scout while the family was stationed in Germany and moving on to membership in a Boy Scout troop in Pennsylvania. He currently is a member of Longhorn District Troop 548 at Reese Air Force Base.

Lubbock-Cooper Independent School Boy Scout Troop 165 met in their Court of Honor Monday evening, February 25th in the Elementary School lunchroom. Eleven Scouts received skill awards, merit badges and nine youngsters were admitted to the rank of Tenderfoot. Rudy Ramon and Jerry Reynolds were also announced as Troop Leader and Junior Troop Leader respectively.

The boys of Troop 165 plan to stage a newspaper pickup campaign, along with community trash hauling during the month of March in order to raise funds for the Troop treasury. An overnight campout is planned for late March. (Staff Photo)

New higher interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds.

Now U.S. Savings Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity.

Here's how it works: The higher interest rate applies to all new Bonds purchased since December 1, 1973, raising their rate from 5½% to 6% when held to maturity. And the maturity period on Series E Bonds is shorter, too. Now E Bonds mature in 5 years, with a first-year rate of 4½%.

Series H Bonds, with a 10-year maturity, will earn 5% the first year; 5.8% for the next four years; and 6½% for the last five years. This gives you an average 6% yield over the 10-year period.

It works for Bonds you now hold, too. There's no reason to redeem your older Bonds to buy new ones.

Their yield has improved, too.

All outstanding E Bonds will receive a ½% increase in yield for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973, payable upon redemption. This also applies to any Freedom Shares you may still hold.

All outstanding H Bonds will receive a ½% yield increase for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973. This is payable in the form of increased semiannual interest payments.

It all works to your advantage. Now, more than ever, it makes sense to buy higher-paying U.S. Savings Bonds and hold them to maturity or beyond.

The DE school store had its grand opening Tuesday, February 26th. The store is selling Cooper Pirate pencils, pens, various assortments of paper, and different types of folders. Mrs. Foy Graves, instructor of DE, said that the store was more of a service to the school and more of a teaching device rather than a profit organization. The students had to buy the articles, decide what to sell them for, and the store will be managed by the DE students.

$100 Collected for Heart Fund

A total of $100 was contributed to the Lubbock County Heart Fund by Wolforth and community residents in the recent campaign conducted by the Frenship Young Farmers.

The contribution will be used in the Texas Heart Fund's educational and research programs.

The Wolforth figure is part of approximately $21,800 which has been contributed to date in Lubbock County. Additional funds will be forthcoming from projects scheduled in the near future.

Mike Dunavant, president of the Young Farmers, coordinated the Heart Fund drive for Wolforth.

Members of the Young Farmers contacted city and area residents for contributions. At the same time, they distributed educational material concerning heart disease.

"We're very grateful to the people of Wolforth community for the part they've played in providing funds to fight heart disease," said Dale Johnson, suburban coordinator for the count drive.

"We appreciate very much the fine work of the Young Farmers under the direction of Mike Dunavant. Our drive would not have been possible without their help," Johnson added.

Father's Role
Essential To Children

Fathers play essential roles in helping children develop into well-balanced adults.

Fathers are necessary, not just to be "good providers" or wield the discipline stick, but for more far-reaching and important reasons.

Know what "daddy" means to children helps point out the unique contribution men make to their children's development.

Just being a man is one of the most important things a father does. In order to grow up and take their places in the world as either men or women, children need an image of how men act.

No matter how successful or unsuccessful a father may be in his life, children learn much about masculinity from watching and listening to him.

However, since his influence is strong, a father must be careful not to hand down too rigid a concept of what a man does and doesn't do.

It is a good thing for boys and girls to see their father engaged in various activities and responsibilities which include helping with home and child care.

In conversation, how a father answers questions also may influence the child's life.

Whether he knows it or not, a father interprets society's codes when answering questions about why people fight wars, why the family can't buy a new car, or why they can't go hunting this weekend.

While children are still young, parents are their primary link with the larger world. A father's answers create impressions and build links with that larger world.

A child also learns a great deal simply by listening to his father's comments as he reads the paper, talks with the man at the store about current events, or discusses work with the child's mother.

For such observations, the next generation weaves its values and opinions.

If you're not in charge of hiring and firing in your company, give this ad to someone who is.

Look around your company and notice who your fellow-workers are.

Chances are, not one of them is handicapped. And this is unfortunate, because handicapped people have very specific skills and capabilities.

Right now, thousands of them are out of work. And the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation in your state is determined to do something about it.

Once the Department evaluates a person's disabilities and helps him develop new skills, its most difficult task is still ahead: To find him a job.

And this is where you come in. If you are not in a position to hire these people, talk to someone who is.

Tell him that rehabilitated people—people who have made it the hard way—have greater determination and drive than most people.

Tell him that they will stay on the job and help your company grow.

Tell him that we follow up and re-evaluate all employees we place with your company.

And tell him to write to your state's Director of Vocational Rehabilitation at his office in your state capital.

Tuesday, March 19 is the date set for the seventeenth annual membership meeting of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock based High Plains cotton producer organization. The meeting will begin at 2:00 p.m. at Van's Catering Service on the Slaton Highway just east of Lubbock and is expected to adjourn by about 6:00 p.m. according to PCG President Ray Joe Riley of Hart.

General theme of the meeting will be "Markets for High Plains Cotton," with emphasis placed on what has been, is being and will be done to maximize the advantages of High Plains type cottons in open-end spinning mills and other new textile processing systems under development.

"High Plains cotton producers through PCG have the opportunity to greatly enhance their position in world fiber markets through aggressive research, marketing, and investment in a textile industry right here on the High Plains," Riley said.

The newest commercially proven yarn forming process is open-end spinning, and the opportunities open to High Plains cotton through use of this system will dominate the meeting, Riley announced. He adds, however, that "rapid progress is being made in the perfection of a twistless yarn forming process and a new wave motion loom, and these plus other technological developments still in the experimental stage also hold promise of using shorter staple, lower micronaire cottons more effectively than do systems presently in use."

Texas Tech's Textile Research Center Director James Parker will address the group on how producers through PCG can best utilize the Textile Research facilities at Tech in pursuit of markets for High Plains cotton in open-end spinning mills. TRC has two open-end spinning frames in operation, plus prototype machines for the new twistless of "Twilo" system.

A top-level staff member of Cotton Incorporated will outline CI's plans for product development and marketing efforts in connection with new systems. His address will be entitled "Making Cotton the Optimum Fiber for the Textile World of the Future."

Cotton Incorporated is the national cotton producer organization supported by "dollar-a-bale" grower contributions supplemented by federal funds. Cotton Incorporated headquarters are in New York "where textile markets are made" and the company has extensive yarn and fabric development research facilities in Raleigh, North Carolina.

The potential for a textile industry on the Plains will be discussed by Paul Cook, a man already deeply involved as president of both Feather Fabrics and the Textile Investment Group of Texas (TIGOT). Following the formal address the three speakers will serve as a panel for answering questions from the audience. In addition President Riley and Executive Vice President Donald Johnson will give reports to the membership on PCG activities of the past year.

The PCG annual meeting is normally held in the fall of the year, but was postponed until March this year to avoid interference with early harvesting operations during the excellent weather on the Plains in October, November and December, Riley explained.

Following the membership meeting the PCG Board of Directors will meet at the Carriage House, also on the Slaton Highway, to elect 1974-75 officers.

People who worry about the "next war" might give a few thoughts to driving carefully.
