New Business Opens in Shallowater

Continued growth in Shallowater is noted when another new business establishment opened last week, located at 609 Clovis Road in the Fields Building, Irene's and Thompson's Antique and Used Furniture Shop. Owned and operated by Steve and Irene Thompson, it has many attractive features and everyone is invited to drop by and browse through their merchandise.

In the wearing apparel, Irene will be handling mostly sportswear in all name brands in the latest fashions at prices you can afford. New merchandise is arriving now.

In the furniture department, Steve invited all interested persons to drop in and look over the lovely antique and collector's items of glassware and furniture the firm has on display.

The telephone number is 832-4588 and the establishment will be open 6 days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The owners may be reached after hours at their residence with the same telephone number.

Irene is former owner and operator of Irene's Pants and Tops Shop and Cleaners here for 9 years, located in Horton's Building and has operated Irene's Shop on 50th Street in Lubbock for the past 4 years, prior to moving her business back to Shallowater.

A resident of the city 13 years, she has two daughters, Mrs. Sue Elliott and Mrs. Pam Lusk, both residing in Shallowater.

The Shallowater community was deeply saddened Saturday when word was received that an oldtimer and friend, Henry Mahoney, had died at 6:25 p.m. in Methodist Hospital, where he had been hospitalized for several days.

Services for Mahoney, 85 years old, were held Monday at 2 p.m. in the United Methodist Church with former pastor, Rev. Cecil Tune, now with Rotan Methodist Church, officiating, assisted by the present pastor, Rev. Tommy Ewing.

Burial was in City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

Mahoney was born in Marshall, Texas on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1890, and came to Lubbock County in a covered wagon in 1900 with his parents, Henry and Brigid O'Mahoney. Mahoney was the last survivor of the six children born to the O'Mahoneys, who migrated from Ireland in the 1800's.

As a young man Mahoney attended college in St. Mary's in Kansas and returned to the South Plains where he worked as a cowhand on the Spade and L.F.D. ranches. His picture has been featured in the Avalanche-Journal "Face of a Cowboy". At the time of his death, he was a retired farmer and resided at 1103 8th St.

He was married to the former Nettie Stokes on Oct. 8, 1916 in Slaton. Mrs. Mahoney accompanied her parents to the South Plains in 1907 from Evening Shade, Arkansas.

Mahoney was very active in community affairs until ill health interfered. He has served as a school trustee in the local school, on the water board of the Buffalo Lakes project, and was named outstanding citizen of Shallowater in 1973.

Survivors include his wife Nettie, a daughter, Mrs. R.W. Woodruff, who shared her father's birthday, three grandchildren, Mrs. Sally Hazard of San Antonio, Hank Woodruff and Tommy Woodruff of Shallowater, and four great grandchildren.

Pall-bearers were G.T. Doggett, Jack Kassahn, John Shipp, Walter R. Lupton, Garland Stokes and Mabry Brock.

Honorary pallbearers were E.B. Reed, J.U. Cone, M.J. Williams, O.A. Lambert, George Blackmon, Mose Fowler, Emmett Wright and Dr. James Hart of Lubbock.

Ushers were Gale Ballard and G.W. Gates, Jr.

Gary's first coaching job was in Hereford, at La Plata Junior High School where he coached 7th and 9th grade football; 8th grade basketball and 9th grade track.

When asked what he thought about Shallowater, Coach Goodin replied, "I like the community, the facilities and the administration. I'm really looking forward to having a successful year." He also added that, "It is a real pleasure working with Coach Wolski and the rest of the staff."

Goodin and his wife, Lily, are looking forward to another school year in Shallowater.

Hardins Attend White's Merchandise Show

Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Hardin, owners of the White's Auto Store in Shallowater, Texas; H.L. and R.L. McPherson, owners of the White's Auto Store in Wolforth, Texas; and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Flusche, owners of the White's Auto Store in Idalou, Texas recently attended the semi-annual merchandise show held at the Statler Hilton in Dallas, Texas July 21-23.

The Hardins, McPhersons and the Flusches were part of a group of dealers who attended the meetings and the presentations of merchandise lines for Christmas 1975 and the fall season. This year's show emphasized the new and exciting lines of giftware and housewares, and all the latest ideas from the toy world. White's has recently expanded their housewares and giftwares lines, and the toy lines are more complete than ever before.

During the show, the Hardins, McPhersons and the Flusches also received product sales training from company representatives and were counseled concerning credit, service and advertising.

White's is a chain of stores with over six hundred franchise and one hundred and fifty company owned outlets located in eighteen states.

Shallowater School Board Sets Higher Budget for 1976-76 Year

The Shallowater School Board approved the budget for the 1975-76 school year at the budget hearing meeting held on Tuesday, July 28.

The tax rate of $1.70 per 100 valuation was also approved with no change in the tax rate from 1974-75.

The new budget of $627,695 is slightly more than $110,000 above last year's figure of $517,323.

Since most of that increase reflected state required salary hikes—$76,830—which are funded by the state, and since some other programs will receive state funding for the first time, school officials said there are sufficient increases in state funds to almost cover the increase in the budget.

Cafeteria lunch prices will change for the 1975 school year. The changes are as follows: 65 cents without milk for adults' lunch; 10 cents per one half pint of milk for adults; 55 cents including one half pint of milk for students; and 6 cents per one half pint of additional milk.

Also approved, was the Breakfast Program that will begin this coming year. The application has been submitted for state approval.

In Fondest Memory

by Dardie Williamson

With the loss of Henry Mahoney Saturday, memories of knowing such a fine and friendly person began to unveil in my mind.

Having known Henry Mahoney for only a short eight years, since I have been a resident of Shallowater, seeing him in the post office, on the street, or in one of his favorite spots, when he was able, the Shallowater Restaurant, always meant he had a friendly hello and cheery smile when he saw you.

You never saw Henry without his favorite hat and above all, his favorite pipe, of which he had many stashed around to enjoy.

I can remember the first time to meet the Mahoney's, I resided just around the corner from them on 9th St. and we were to have the Community Revival in the local ballpark that year and since we were new residents, we were picked to visit residents in that particular block and invite them to the revival. I remember so well the nice warm reception I received from them, when I met them for the first time.

Since that first meeting many fond and happy memories have occurred. One I shall never forget is Henry on his birthday each year arriving at the post office, in his green hat, which showed he was a true Irishman, and wore his green hat with great dignity, and when health kept him from being out on his birthday the past couple of years, he was always missed being seen.

After health confined him to his home and to a wheel chair, weather permitting, Gladys, his day nurse of 20 months, prior to his death, would push him around the streets of Shallowater, where he could visit with his many friends passing, by, who would always stop to say hello and chat with Henry.

One of his greatest enjoyments was the mornings that Gladys would bring him to the coffee shop to visit with all his friends, who were always glad to see him and share a cup of coffee with him. When he had better health, he always drove his pickup and would stop by most every day and get one of his favorite buddies, E.B. Reed and away they would go to the coffee shop or drive around the country side, viewing the luscious crops that were growing.

Birthday parties for both Sam Thomas and E.B. Reed were enjoyed at the Shallowater Restaurant by all their friends this year, topping the list in attendance was Henry and Nettie Mahoney. Although health didn't permit the celebration of Henry's birthday this year, he was in our thoughts and was the recipient of many well wishes.

Now, Henry has gone on to the great beyond, and all we have left is the fondest in memories of such a good and friendly person. But he shall never be forgotten by those who knew him, whether it be many years, or only a few.

Home Canned Foods Can Be Deadly

With the increase in food prices has come an increased in home canning, as families buy goods in bulk at their peak seasons to save on the grocery bill. And with the increase in home canning has come a serious health hazard—botulism. Botulism is a serious form of food poison that produces critical illness and is fatal in one-fourth of all cases, the Texas Medical Association states.

Unless strict precautions are followed, home-canned food may be contaminated with the spores of Clostridium botulinum. The danger does not come directly from eating the bacteria themselves. In fact, a great deal of fresh food contains the spores of the bacteria which, when eaten, pass harmlessly through the

REMEMBERING...

By BILL D. BROOKS

CATTELGUARDS

History probably doesn't record the person's name who built the first cattleguard but I suspect it was someone who didn't like to open and close gates. The cattleguard is strictly a time-saving device which has been used by cattlemen for many years. Cattleguards provide openings in fences that vehicles can pass readily through but cattle will not.

They are made in several different ways, the earliest being constructed of wooden timbers or logs. A ditch or trench was dug in the fence row and heavy timbers were placed to span across it. Railings made of timbers or logs were attached across the main supports forming a platform over which vehicles could travel. Spaces of four or five inches were left between these railings to give an open look to the platform. Upright pieces or posts were placed at each end of the structure and the fence was attached to these.

I presume, though I haven't done any research on it, the open look of cattleguards is what prevents cattle from attempting to cross over them. Apparently old bossie comes up, takes one look at that man-made contraption, looks between those rails down into that ditch and decides it is not to be tampered with. She probably goes back and spreads the word to the rest of the herd. I knew a fellow one time who trained his horse to jump over cattleguards. However (this is sad), just as the old horse was getting the hang of it he broke his leg because his timing was a little off.

Most cattleguards today are made of steel. Large pipe is commonly used as well as railroad rails. Concrete is also used in various ways.

digestive tract. However, under special conditions Clostridium botulinum produces a toxin, a substance which may be the most lethal human poison in existence. Food canning, if improperly carried out, can provide perfect conditions for the production of this poison.

The problem of botulism is prevented in commercial canning by use of equipment producing a combination of temperature and pressure capable of killing the spores so they cannot grow into bacteria to produce their toxin. However, since the botulinum bacteria can survive 20 hours of boiling at normal sea level pressures, simple home canning methods may not succeed in getting rid of them, and during storage there is plenty of time for the fatal toxin to be produced.

Home canning can be carried out safely if correct procedures are carefully followed. A pressure cooking device is recommended for obtaining the combination of temperature and pressure which can kill the botulinum organism during the canning process.

If you have a supply of home-canned food, you can make sure of its safety by one simple precaution—boil before using!

Although the bacteria may not be destroyed by boiling, the highly dangerous toxin is made harmless by ordinary boiling—10 minutes at sea level, longer at higher altitudes. Make sure every particle of the food is heated at the boiling point in order to destroy all of the dangerous toxin.

Botulism kills through the paralyzing action of its toxin upon the nervous system. Control of the muscles is lost, beginning with those about the face and neck. Loss of the ability to swallow makes it impossible to eat, leads to choking which may introduce foreign materials into the lungs, and usually procudes death in several days. Most patients give a history of having eaten food which tasted spoiled, followed in a few hours by nausea and vomiting. Later the symptoms of muscle weakness begin to appear. If medical aid is quickly obtained and the correct diagnosis is rapidly made, it may be possible to save the patient. A serum may be injected which, while it cannot help the nerves already damaged, is sometimes able to limit further paralysis.

But the best treatment for botulism is prevention.

Commercially canned food can be considered safe. If you are given some homecanned food you can make sure it is safe by boiling at least 10 full minutes before use. Those who do their own canning should review their procedure to make certain it protects against botulism, even if they have been canning for years without incident.

Never taste preserved food which appears to have spoiled for a very small amount of botulism toxin can produce illness. When in doubt, throw it out.

A newspaper, like a friend, is missed when not available.

Society in most small towns is a great show.

CATTLE GUARD

They are built of strong materials and construction so that they will support the heavy loads of vehicles on farms and ranches. Cattleguards are of course more costly than gates but they are as handy as a pocket on a shirt (so one man described them). If you ever had to open many gates a cattleguard is always a welcomed sight.

One painful memory I have of a cattleguard comes from an accident I had with one when I was a young boy. We were visiting at a neighbor's house and were leaving to go back home. His cattleguard was built up above the level of the road with a mound of earth inclined up to it on both sides. Above it was a beam from which a sign (the name of his ranch I think) was hanging by two chains directly over the center of the road. I was in the back of the pickup and for some stupid reason was standing up. As we went over the hump at the cattleguard I was looking backward and didn't know to duck my head. I tell you that sign just about took off the top of my head. My sister claims to this day that's what is wrong with me.

There's no way to economize without doing without something.

Energy problems? Fuel shortage? Oh-kay, we'll buy it, if it's true. But you couldn't prove it if you counted the number of cars, pickups and trailers towing boats on the highway any Friday afternoon of the summer.

If one were to count the number of boats passing, say a designated spot on the Slaton Highway just outside of Lubbock, it might be revealing. Big boats, small boats, in-between size boats. Boats on trailers. Boats on top of cars.

And 55 mph? Don't be ridiculous. If you even drive a moderate 60 mph, almost every car on the highway will pass you. And this includes cars that have "Texas Highway Dept." on the side, as well as unmarked cars bearing "State Exempt" tags.

Nope, 55 mph has been as much of a success as prohibition was. You can thank CB radios and trucks for part of this, but most of it is because the majority feel there is no shortage.

It was amusing this past vacation. We had no CB radio, but all you had to do was observe the truckers. If they were going 55 mph, slow down! Somewhere up ahead was a patrol unit. And, sure enough, sooner or later you'd see one.

But when the trucks got rolling at 70 to 80 mph, all you had to do was speed up and get behind one. Generally, that's the way traffic flowed—the truck set the pace, everyone else followed.

What the boat traffic boils down to, I think, is that people say to themselves, all right, there may be a shortage, we may have to pay more for gas and we may have to forego all this in the future, so let's enjoy it now.

After all, a boat doesn't use much gas, I've sunk a lot of money into it, conditions may get worse. So, until the whole thing explodes, by gollies! I'm going to enjoy myself. Anyway, with the cost of things the way they are, this is pretty cheap pleasure.

The plethora of football exhibitions have begun, and I, for one, am as excited as a clam digging in sand. I wish that they'd forget about the exhibitions, on TV, until the real thing comes along. An exhibition game is as exciting as kissing your sister.

Players aren't in shape, timing is off and clubs are getting a long look at a bunch of rookies, many of whom won't be around the whistle for the regular season starts.

The exceptions are, of course, the All America game here and the All Stars vs the Pro Champions. Both are charity events and don't claim to establish any kind of superiority.

But the other games merely are for revenue for the clubs—and TV networks—and mean nothing. They aren't generally worth watching in the first place, and with the regular season running as long as it does, are as needed as an ant on a picnic.

Billy Martin is "home", with the New York Yankees, following an unsuccessful stint with Texas. Personality and a lacklustre season cost Martin his job with the Rangers.

It will be interesting to see what he can do with a Yankee team that drew many votes to win the American League East, but which has been on the skids since mid-June when they dropped a key series to the Boston Red Sox.

If Martin can turn the Yankees around—and they had a 10 game gap as of Sunday morning last—he'll be hailed as a miracle worker. All he has to do is beat out the red hot Sox and a solid Baltimore club, which is starting to come on.

Granted that Bill Viridon has no more color than a piece of chalk, baseball men generally thought he did a good job with the Yanks. The management didn't think so and, like a lot of managers before him, he drew his papers.

Talked briefly with Wally Hess, the Tech football team physician, on Sunday morning last and asked him when the Raiders reported for drills.

"I guess the 18th (Aug.)," he replied, "because examinations are set for Aug. 19. Hey! That's right. That's less than two weeks away."

And that, friends, is how close college football is. In fact, Tech plays its first game five weeks from this Saturday, and high school football begins Sept. 5, four weeks from tomorrow.

I don't know what the "policy" concerning Tech football team bowl appearances was to have been in the Board of Regents' meeting in El Paso, but, like everyone else, I can guess. It probably would have been:

- 1. No bowl game unless the team had a truly outstanding record; and
- 2. No guarantee by Tech on the number of tickets it would buy to insure an appearance in any bowl, anywhere.

Sometimes it helps to lock the barn doors even after the horses have been stolen.

The Roundup: Phil Tucker, former great Tech lineman, is doing well for Jones & Lowe Insurance in Brownfield. Had a nice talk with him recently . . . You know how restaurants bring you coffee even before you've sat down in West Texas? Not in the Northeast or Canada. They bring it with the meal and not before . . . In Canada you had to ask for water with your meal, or you didn't get it. . . Very little, if any, litter on Canadian Highways. One reason might be the $1.50 deposit charge on beer bottles, regardless of whether it's a case or a 6-pack. Canadians really return their empties . . . Gas in plazas on the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway was 83.9 cents a gallon. If you left the freeway and went to a small town nearby, the price magically dropped to about 71 cents a gallon!

Hockley County Extension Agent EXPERT SAYS $48 WILL BUY WEEK'S FOOD FOR FAMILY OF FOUR—$47.90 will buy enough food for a family of four to eat nutritionally sound meals for a week.

Or that same family, under a liberal-cost food plan, can buy a week's food for $71.70.

Many families estimate food costs way above the $47.90 figure. If these figures appear ridiculously low to some people, it may be because they're buying more than food at the food market.

The $48.00 figure does not include costs of non-food items, deals, gimmicks or a lot of service with food.

"Deals" are also a consideration. They take many forms, and most of them increase the amount people spend at the supermarket.

One "deal" requires the customer to send a box top or coupon, with cash, for a product. Very often the produce is less than its declared value.

Another "deal" is the premium.

Cotton Strengthens Grip On Open End Spinning

On the production line and the profit and loss statement, cotton is proving itself the fiber of the future to textile mills running the modern open-end spinning frame.

Production of 100 per cent cottons and cotton blends accounted for 78 percent of all open-end spun yarns in February 1975, said Karl Mueller, director of product development for Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of U.S. cotton producers.

"That's an increase of six per cent in less than a year," said Mueller. "Cotton's share of total open-end spinning in March 1973 was 73 per cent."

Mueller said the increased use of cotton came at the expense of synthetics, which dropped from 27 per cent of open-end spinning production to 21 per cent.

Mueller told a convention of the American Association of Textile Technologists that cotton is proving itself better than synthetics in performance, economics, and aesthetics for use in open-end spinning.

Open-end spinning first made its presence felt in the United States in the late 1960s. Hal E. Brockmann, Cotton Incorporated vice president for textile research and development, said it offers several advantages over conventional ring-spinning equipment. Most important is increased production, with lower costs for labor and raw materials, Brockmann said.

Cotton Incorporated has installed the most advanced open-end spinning frame in the U.S. in its research center at Raleigh, N.C. The frame is being used to find the best possible uses for cotton in open-end spinning, Brockmann said.

Mueller, from the New York marketing offices of Cotton Inc., told the textile experts that the increase in cotton use over the past year has been greater than had been predicted.

"Advantages of cotton for open-end spinning are not even questioned anymore," Mueller told his audience. "Open-end machinery manufacturers have told me quite clearly that the more cotton in the blend, the more easily the rotor spins."

Synthetics cause problems because lubricants or finishes, which are applied in the manufacturing process, come off during open-end spinning. The foreign substances build up deposits on the rotor and combing rolls and interfere with the spinning.

Mueller predicted that as the economy improves, more mills will invest in open-end machinery. Increasing adoption of open-end spinning will then generate even more use of cotton, he said.

Brockmann added that further adoption of open-end spinning should also mean better markets for cotton now considered low in quality.

"Low micronair, short-fiber cotton performs as well in open-end spinning as more expensive high micronaire, long fiber cotton," Brockmann said.

This works to the advantage of both mill operators, who can profitably use the less expensive cotton fiber, and producers, who should find greater demand for their "lower grade" cotton, Brockmann explained.

Open-end spinning also means lower costs for the mill because it eliminates at least one packaging stage and it delivers yarns in bigger packages that cut down on labor requirements.

Use of the open-end spun yarns made significant inroads last year into the production of denims and other bottomweight, or coarse yarn, fabrics, Mueller reported.

Recent studies conducted at the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University prove that denims made with open-end spun yarns easily meet the required industry standards for performance.

"Satisfying performance requirements for denim means that the entire bottomweight fabric market has become fertile ground for open-end spun yarns," Mueller said.

Tests at Texas Tech also show that open-end spun yarns meet industry performance standards for the middleweight fabrics.

And at the Cotton Incorporated research center, Brockmann said, tests already indicate that cotton spun on the open-end machines may perform well in the knitting of medium weight and lightweight tricot fabrics, both of which have been made only from synthetics in the past.

Texas Department of Public Safety Searching for Applicants

The Texas Department of Public Safety is in need of qualified applicants of both sexes and from all racial backgrounds. "The next class for Department of Public Safety Recruits will begin on October 28, 1975, with what we hope will be a full compliment of 110 persons," Major C.W. Bell, Regional Commander announced recently. "The qualifications an applicant must meet are to be between 20 and 35 years of age, of good moral character, excellent physical condition, weight proportionable to height, visual acuity of 20/40 correctable to 20/20, a citizen of the United States and have a minimum of sixty college hours." Major Bell continued, "Among the benefits that a Department of Public Safety Trooper enjoys are: two weeks annual vacation, all holidays provided for by the Legislature, modern liberal retirement system, group hospitalization and life insurance plan, traveling expenses, longevity pay, and uniforms with all necessary equipment to perform their duties."

A Department of Public Safety Recruits training consists of eighteen weeks of comprehensive programs in all aspects of modern law enforcement at the Homer Garrison Law Enforcement Academy in Austin. During training the October School Recruit will receive pay of $768 dollars a month. Upon graduation the new trooper will be assigned to one of the uniformed services of the Department.

The Texas Department of Public Safety has been increasingly successful in its search for recruits from minority racial groups of both sexes and encourages persons who think that they would qualify to contact the nearest Department of Public Safety Trooper or Department of Public Safety office to receive complete information regarding the application and employment procedures.

"Region 5 is most interested in being well represented by the best qualified persons available from the Northwest Texas area in the upcoming school," Major Bell stated, "but to do this, we must have the persons apply."

The Texas Department of Public Safety is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

There are any number of people who will do great things if they can do them without exertion.
