Chemigation Workshop Offers Producer Guidance

A workshop to help farmers with center pivot irrigation systems learn more about their potential for applying fertilizers and insecticides will be held in Dimmitt on Monday, Feb. 22, at the Expo Building.

Many High Plains producers have invested in center pivot systems due to their greater water efficiency and labor saving, said Dr. Allen Knutson, Castro County Extension entomologist. "Some pesticides and fertilizers can be effectively applied through center pivots," he noted.

This practice, termed chemigation, can reduce application costs and allow greater flexibility in application timing, Knutson said.

The workshop, to be conducted by the Texas

Agricultural Extension Service, will emphasize safe and effective use of center pivots for chemigation. It will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. A Dutch treat catered lunch will be available.

The program will begin with a comparison of the economics of center pivot versus furrow irrigation by Dr. Steve Amosson, Extension agricultural economist at Amarillo. Application of fertilizers by center pivot systems will be discussed by Dr. Michael Hickey, Extension soil chemist at Lubbock.

Fungicides for chemigation will be covered by Dr. Harold Kaufman, Extension plant pathologist, Lubbock. New regulations by the Environmental Protection Agency regarding chemigation and human safety will be reviewed by Dr. W. Pat Morrison, Extension entomologist, Lubbock.

Insecticides for chemigation will be discussed by Knutson. Chemigation with low energy precision application (LEPA) center pivot systems will be explained by Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, Amarillo.

Herbicides for center pivot application will be the topic of Dr. Brent Bean, Extension agronomist, Amarillo. Chemigation equipment and calibration will be explained by Leon New, Extension agricultural engineer and irrigation specialist, Amarillo.

CRP Land Needs Plant Prepping

Briscoe County farmers who have bid their land into the Conservation Reserve Program and have their dead litter cover ready should be preparing to get the grass seed planted. A few farmers have already planted their grass prior to the snow we've received and with good spring and early summer moisture have a good chance of getting grass up and off to a good start.

Optimum dates for the remainder of the planting season for establishing warm season grasses is February 15-April 15. Grasses seeded within this time span usually with good moisture and growing conditions have a fair chance of developing a root system prior to the hot days of June and July when rainfall normally tends to be a little short for good results on getting grass started.

If wheat is your dead litter crop you will need to kill the wheat so grass will be able to get started. The wheat stubble needs to be tall enough to make a good cover. The wheat needs to be a minimum of 3-4 tillers prior to killing. Preferably the wheat needs to be 8-12 inches tall to be adequate. This generally requires longer growing periods in the spring. Farmers need to remember they have until the end of May to get grass planted.

Farmers should have their grass seed located and have someone to seed it lined up and ready to go. Soil moisture is good, the surface should be ready to start next week unless we have another wet spell.

If you have any question or need assistance please call or contact the Soil Conservation Service at 823-2320.

Mike Delano, Soil Conservation Service checking the grass seed in a grass drill on the Buck Hardin farm east of Silverton. The grass was planted early, received good winter moisture and, with a good spring, has an excellent start this year.

Petitions require signatures of three qualified voters and must be filed with the county clerk. There is no filing fee for this election and the deadline for filing is April 7.

A PRAYER FOR THE MIDDLE-AGED

Lord, thou knowest better than I would know myself that I am growing older and that some day I shall be old. Keep me from the fatal habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion. Release me from craving to straighten out everybody's affairs. Make me thoughtful but not moody, helpful but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all, but thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.

Keep my mind free from recital of endless details, give me wings to get at the point. Seal my lips on my aches and pains; they are increasing and love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by. I dare not ask for grace to enjoy the tales of others' pains, but help me to endure with patience.

I dare not ask for improved memory, but for growing humility and a lessening of cocksureness when my memory seems to clash with the memory of others. Teach me the glorious lesson that, occasionally, I may be mistaken. Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint -- some of them are hard to live with -- but a sour old person is one of the crowning works of the devil.

Give me the ability to see good things in unexpected places, and talents in unexpected people. And give me, O Lord, the grace to tell them so. Donated

To pass time at stoplights, too, you can call to mind what things you think were essential in the stock of an Old West General Store. I am told most people, when so challenged, forget two of the more basic: whiskey and Bibles.

About half as much hot water is used in the average shower as in the average bath.

Divorce Rate Goes Down

The family that stays together is a lot more common than many Americans have been led to believe, according to the latest national survey.

New figures challenge the widely held belief that nearly one out of every two marriages ends in divorce. Survey results indicate it's one out of every eight marriages that ends in divorce.

"High divorce rates can often be traced to 'Vital Statistics of the United States,' generated by the U.S. National Center for Health Statistics," reports Louis Harris of the polling firm Louis Harris and Associates, Inc., which conducted a nationwide Family Survey on behalf of Philip Morris Companies Inc. "People compare the 2.5 million new marriages reported each year with the 1.1 million divorces to conclude that roughly half of all marriages are breaking up. This is nothing less than statistical nonsense."

At a recent Lions Club Banquet, the guest speaker was Judge John Forbis, of Childress.

Judge Forbis is a smiling man, bearing a more than casual resemblance to Tom Bosley of "Happy Days" fame. It fits His Honor... he says he is probably the happiest man you will ever meet. He attributes his happy outlook on life to the following things; they are good ideas, and ones which would be wise for all of us to live by -

1.) "look for some good in every person with whom you come in contact."

"There is some good in the worst of us, and some bad in the best of us, so it behooves the most of us to never belittle the rest of us" is a little quote we might remember. There is something attractive or worthy in even the vilest person - look for it.

2.) "Tell that person about the good (or pretty or worthwhile) characteristic or feature you see in them." A word of praise, a compliment; the acknowledgment that someone else sees something praiseworthy in him or her, can make that person become worthwhile or pretty, or more confident. We all need strokes. Sometimes, all it takes is the realization that someone else sees his good qualities - maybe something he has never even found in himself - to give one those good qualities, or to bring them out.

3.) "Speak well of others." The Bible teaches that our tongue is the hardest member of our body to control, and idle gossip is the product of that uncontrollable little demon. But we can do something about it. When you hear something bad about a fellow human being, instead of adding fat to the flame - kill it - by saying you don't believe it. Judge Forbis said he says, vehemently, "that's an outright lie! And there's not a lick of truth in it!" - whether or not the statement might be true, he said he doesn't know, but that response usually stops the slandering remarks.

He told of "Steamboat" Barnes - a loved and respected old Negro man of Childress, now deceased, who, when someone would try to pass on gossip or something ugly about another, would reply sadly, "I sure hate to hear you say that about him; he speaks so well of you."

He speaks well of you... isn't that something we need to do? Speak well of our neighbor, and watch him become taller, more respected in the eyes of others?

Another Valentine's day piece of advice... it's surprising what a hug can do... even for those who don't seem to need one. Sometimes those folks are the ones who need it the most.

Social Security News

Workers in the local area suffering from a physical impairment which prevents them from working should consider applying for Social Security disability benefits when it appears the impairment will last 12 months or longer.

Social Security disability benefits can be paid to workers under 65, disabled before reaching 22.

Under Social Security, a person is considered disabled if he or she has a severe impairment which prevents him or her from doing any substantial gainful work and is expected to last for at least 12 months or result in death.

No payments can be made to a disabled worker, widow, or widower for the first 5 full months of disability.

Before a person applies for disability benefits it will be helpful if he or she gathers certain information. This will help speed the application process. This includes:

- The person's Social Security number.
 - Date last worked.
 - Date person became sick or was injured.
 - Names, addresses, and telephone numbers of doctors, hospitals, institutions, or clinics that provided treatment.
 - Military service serial number, dates, and VA claim number if available.
 - List of kinds of jobs performed in previous 15 years.
 - Names and Social Security numbers of spouse and children.
 - Claim number for workers compensation or any other public disability payments.
- For more information you may contact us at 1401-B West 5th or call us at 293-9623. Appointments can be arranged if desired.

Decorate A New Home At The Old Address

"If only walls could talk," people say. And sometimes they do. They seem to say that a room is larger than it really is, or brighter or cozier. It's a fact—choosing new wallcoverings can be an inexpensive way to give your home a new look.

Lighter, brighter colors tend to open up a room and make it look larger, decorating experts agree. Deeper colors can offer a cozy retreat or add drama. Borders and fabrics help create interesting accents.

Whatever wallcovering you choose, your home decorating venture needn't be expensive when you buy direct from the wallpaper supplier. Using the mail order service offered by Priced-Rite Wallcoverings, retail costs can be drastically reduced to wholesale-direct prices. The service offers over 250,000 brand name patterns, many with coordinating borders and fabrics. All orders are shipped in a matter of days.

Facts From Experts At Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Hints For Insurance Buyers

Q: I'm a young, married working woman with a new baby. What's the best kind of insurance policy for me?

A: You might want to go with term insurance—it's inexpensive when you're young and you can carry it as your protection until your children are older.

Term insurance is for a specific amount for a specified time—one or five or ten years—and your cost increases as you get older. There are no benefits unless you die. When you stop paying, the coverage stops. It's like renting an apartment; as long as you pay the rent, you're covered.

Old Texas Forts

Presidio La Bahia - Built in 1749 to protect nearby missions, Presidio Santa Maria del Loreto de la Bahia became the most fought over fort in American history, participating in six wars for independence. In 1836, the site was dubbed Fort Defiance by 443 Texian soldiers, who surrendered, then were executed in the largest loss of life during the Texas Revolution. Among many other superlatives, this is the only fully restored Spanish Colonial presidio in the country that includes its military, religious and civilian components. The Catholic Church administers the property and still holds services in the presidio chapel. Located two miles south of Goliad off U.S. Hwy. 183, beyond Goliad State Historical Park. Open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 512/645-3752.

Nuevo Study Club

The Nuevo Study Club of Turkey was hostess for Milly Setliff, a native from Holland visiting in Turkey with her husband, Rod Setliff and 4-month-old daughter. The Study Club invited Milly to be their guest speaker at the Feb. 11th club meeting, held in the fellowship hall of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Lurline Walker, club president, introduced our speaker to the members and their guests they had invited. Milly preferred to remain seated to the delightful question and answer session to which she presided. She told us of their life style, and her home life in Denhelda. The religion there is predominately Roman Catholic, and the people speak the Dutch language, a mixture of German and English. Bicycle riding and ice-skating are their favorite activities, and favorite team sport is soccer. School children attend public school from age 6 to 15, then go on to large universities. Milly had studied to be a teacher.

The Dutch, she said, are hearty eaters, and love food --one favorite dish is thick pea soup, as well as meat. Vegetables are usually served mashed together with potatoes. Milly said American food is much more fattening due to the amount of sweets we eat, but she enjoyed them while spending her vacation visiting here and in Fort Worth.

The Dutch still grow tulips, the farmers still wear their wooden shoes around the barns, which makes walking in the muddy Dutch soil easier. The shoes are left at the doorway when the farmer comes into the house.

Rod Setliff appeared at the close of the program with their baby daughter, Robin. Refreshments were served from a table decorated with hearts carrying out the Valentine theme. The group enjoyed hot coffee, spiced apple cider and home-baked cookies while visiting with the Setliff family.

Members and guests present were Mmes. Nadine Baisden, Ella Colvin, Louise Meacham, Kathleen Green, Lurline Walker, Dessie Robertson, Wilma Wedge, Mary Joe Barnhill, Lois Lipscomb, Colleen Stone and Helen Fowler.

Setliff is employed in offshore oil drilling by Halliburton Oil Service.

Steamboat Cruises Show Off Mississippi River

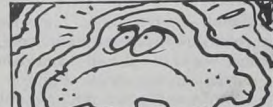

Imagine yourself cruising the Mississippi River on an authentic steamboat and stopping to visit historic plantations and mansions along the way. The steamboats Delta Queen (a national treasure) and Mississippi Queen offer passengers the romance and flavor of America's most gracious age—the Great Steamboat Era—coupled with modern day amenities.

Steamboat cruises offer an historic look at the Deep South.

"Southern Celebration" cruises are a treat for those who want to join in on a true celebration of the Deep South—its beauty, cuisine and Victorian lifestyle. Cruises stop at historic towns such as Natchez, Vicksburg and St. Francisville. Passengers can take in special programs on the gardens, furnishings and architecture of the plantation and mansions of the 1800s that open their doors to visitors. Intriguing on-board demonstrations will cover a wide range of subjects providing the travelers with a firsthand portrait of the history and beauty of the South.

For a free brochure on Southern Celebration cruises and other Steamboat' vacations, contact a travel agent or the Delta Queen Steamboat Company, Dept. NA11, #30 Robin Street Wharf, New Orleans, LA 70130 or call toll-free: 1-800-543-1949.

Sitting around a hospital room for two weeks ain't the greatest occupation that one can think of. You can watch closer, and know less, than anything you can think of. You're always in the way, and marvel at the fact that a patient can improve while being given medicine to rest, woke up to take temperature, shot to relieve pain, rolled over when they get comfortable, and all the while, half-a-dozen IV's running a drop at a time... and about that time, they bring in the food which isn't the most appetizing stuff you ever looked at. You're expected to eat it all regardless. About the time the doctor will stroll in and ask how you're feeling and doesn't wait for an answer while saying "maybe you'll feel better tomorrow" and add another twenty-five bucks for another visit... in addition, you buy all the equipment they use... pitchers, pillows, mattresses, tools, gowns, scissors, band-aids, pots, pens, aspirins, and many many other things you can't see and don't know you got.

But what the heck, folks, it's a place to try to get well and only costs four or five hundred bucks a day after the expensive stuff is all done. But considering the alternative, what else can you do? It's just the penalty and interest you have to pay on misery!

Looking at the weather since groundhog day, it would seem justifiable to shoot the varmint right between the eyes... his forecast ain't any better than the weather man!

DID YOU KNOW?

Here are three statistics in which you might take a healthy interest:
• Life expectancy at birth is rising. It's now about 70 years for men and almost 80 for women.
• Cancer is being conquered. Medicine can now save the lives of half of all those who get any form of cancer—much more than that for some forms—and are constantly coming up with new ways to deal with the disease.
• Heart disease, America's major killer, is also showing a decline.

Among the reasons for this good news are the many machines and other diagnostic and health care tools and the often almost as vital communication and computer equipment that comes here from Europe.

COLLECTOR'S CORNER

Dolls Are More Than Child's Play

Once considered mere playthings suitable only for children, today dolls are actively collected by almost 3.4 million adults in the U.S.

These adults are part of a growing number of hobbyists who have never outgrown their enthusiasm for dolls. Doll collecting has been on the upswing in this country for some time, but its popularity has really soared in the past 10 years.

In response to the demand created by this phenomenon, producers began to introduce dolls specifically for adult collectors, and the modern collectible doll market was born. Today, more than 150 firms, including the Edwin M. Knowles China Co., offer collectible dolls. These dolls are primarily made of porcelain and are designed for display.

The modern collectible doll market is divided into five categories: celebrity dolls, costumed dolls, artist dolls, limited edition dolls and limited production dolls. Many of these dolls are issued in thematic series, with prices ranging from $50-$600 per doll.

A celebrity doll is an accurate representation of a real person, such as a military, historic, political, sports or entertainment figure. They cover a broad range of personalities, from Elvis Presley to Eleanor Roosevelt.

Collectible costumed dolls do not depict real people, but they are distinguished by their clothing which represents a certain historical period or character. An example of this type of doll is "The Glamour of the Gibson Girl," the first issue in the Parade of American Fashion series produced by Knowles. This doll authentically recreates the dress of a fashionable young woman in turn-of-the-century America.

Artist dolls are designed by recognized doll artists. For example, celebrated doll artist Yolanda Bello designed Yolanda's Picture-Perfect Babies collection, an award-winning series of porcelain baby dolls which is produced by Knowles. The latest issue in this collection is "Heather," an adorable little girl resting on her own lace-trimmed pillow.

Limited edition dolls are produced in a fixed quantity predetermined by a number, ranging from 250 into the thousands. For limited production dolls, the quantity is fixed by a production period, such as year of issue.

To be considered "collectible," a doll must fit into at least one of these five categories. However, because these categories are not mutually exclusive, in many instances a doll will fit into several of them. For example, "Little Bo Peep," the first doll in Knowles' Children of Mother Goose series, is a costumed doll, an artist doll (designed by Yolanda Bello) and a limited production doll (limited by year of issue).

Collectors interested in adding a Knowles doll to their collection should visit their local giftware and collectible dealer or write to The Ashton-Drake Galleries, 9200 N. Maryland Ave., Niles, Ill., 60648.
