THE EDITORS GO AFTER GRANDDAUGHTER

The Gaston Owens left Quitaque Thursday night, driving to Fort Sumner, New Mexico before stopping for the night. They drove on to Gallup, New Mexico the next day, and when they arrived the Malcolm Prince family and the Harry Hendrickson family had planned a sight-seeing trip for them. They got in two cars and made another 201-mile trip into Arizona viewing Canon de Chelle with unbelievable sights after going through New Mexico near Fort Sumner and Vaughn with nothing to see but sand hills. The Canon de Chelle was the Palo Duro of Texas in magnitude. The sheer walls, dropping as much as 700 feet straight down, concealed the Indian farms and their ancient mode of life. They looked like ants crawling around down there until you viewed them through binoculars. The farms looked like a branch of a tree had been pulled across the ground until you looked through binoculars and could then see the rows. We saw a covered wagon and another wagon uncovered being pulled by horses making the long trip down the canyon.

The Owens were treated royally with good food and homemade ice cream both nights they were there. They returned home Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reeves of Plainview spent from Saturday until Monday with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Bailey, in Quitaque.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adamson were in Iowa Park Tuesday to attend a high school reunion.

Mrs. Alvie Simmons of Hedley spent several days last week in Turkey visiting in the John Adamson home.

Mrs. E. O. Stewart, sr. and son, Ernest O. of Clovis, New Mexico, visited last Thursday with the J. R. Adamson, jr. family.

Mrs. Sid Bogan was taken to the Central Plains Hospital in Plainview Saturday night for treatment.

The singing school held at the Church of Christ by Claud Woods of Slaton last week had singers from all around this area. On Monday afternoon the group went on a cookout at the roadside park. Wednesday night after singing the group went to the Hubert Price home for cookies and punch. Friday night there was an ice cream supper, and Saturday a picnic was held at the Billy Joe Pinkertons.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Holland and son have moved back from California. They are making their home in Littlefield. He has received his discharge from the Army, and will be working as engineer for the Highway Department.

Ray Persons spent from Thursday until Saturday at his home in Quitaque.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Lilly of Commerce and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shropshire of Dallas, visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barbee last week. Mrs. Lilly and Mrs. Barbee are sisters, and Mrs. Shropshire is a niece of Mrs. Barbee.

To Replant or Not

Hail hits a portion of the South Plains cotton crop each year, and some producers must face the decision whether to replant or just hold on to the injured stand of earlier cotton.

pecially serious because of the shortage of good quality planting seed after a poor crop in 1971. "Several factors such as growth stage, type and extent of injury and seasonal conditions must be considered in making decisions to replant," says Dr. Bob Metzger, Extension area cotton specialist for Texas A&M University.

He says that producers often wonder how much stands can be reduced and still give normal yields. Several years of research have shown that only two seedlings per foot in 40-inch rows will still give optimum yields.

"In fact, no yield difference was obtained with plant populations ranging from 26,000-63,000 plants per acre, or two to five seedlings per foot of row," he reports.

Metzger explains that a hail storm can reduce the plant population to only two seedlings per row foot, and there is still no reason to replant unless the remaining crop is poorly distributed or there are long skips.

The specialist has some suggestions for evaluating hail damage. Most important, producers should not make a snap decision immediately after a storm.

"It will always appear much worse than the actual damage at this time," Metzger says, "a cotton seedling has a number of buds that provide a remarkable capacity to recover in a short time."

He also says the entire field should be examined to determine if the injury is widespread. Whether a field should be replanted depends on the area receiving the most severe injury.

The plants should be examined to determine the number of leaves or traces of leaves still attached to the stalk.

"A plant having only traces of leaves will still recover better than one with no leaves," Metzger says. But he emphasizes that a stand with no leaves can still make a crop.

If the stem is intact, free of large breaks and the seedling has sound buds, recovery is still possible although it will be slower than plants having at least some leaves.

"However, if the stem is shattered and the bark loosened or broken at points below the leaf buds, then recovery is impossible," the specialist warns.

If the producer decides not to replant, a sandfighter should be run as soon as possible to prevent sand injury to vital buds on stubs left in the field. Metzger says that any regrowth hinges on either the sound terminal bud (the growing point) or axillary bud located at the point of leaf attachment.

If the terminal bud is destroyed then the axillary buds become active and begin growth. After sand-fighting, the producer should cultivate immediately to prevent crusting.

The specialist emphasizes that hail injury in May or June will cause less yield losses than damage in July or August.

"If the damage is suffered early, a crop can recover to the point that the injured plants are difficult to distinguish from undamaged plants," he adds. Also young cotton that survives early hail damage is often more mature at first frost than a crop that has been replanted.

Area Concern For Water Conservation Noted at Foundation

Area concern for preservation and protection of the underground water in the Ogallala formation can be noted in a recent grant to the High Plains Research Foundation by High Plains Undergrround Water Conservation District No. 1.

The grant was awarded to the Foundation to continue its research for reasonable alternatives for preplant irrigation. Foundation scientists indicate that some of the water used in preplant irrigations is lost before it can be used by crops. Results from a study in 1971 indicate that preplant irrigations may be limited and, in some cases, eliminated in favor of irrigation after planting to provide moisture for seed germination.

Foundation reports on the 1971 irrigation method study show that in two plots, the irrigation method beginning after planting yielded 6,861 pounds of grain sorghum while using 40.4 inches of water. The preplant irrigation method plot produced 6,853 pounds of grain sorghum with 50.6 inches of water.

District directors, in awarding the $1,000 grant, noted that all avenues of research must be explored that could lead to better water conservation practices and the prolonging of the area's water supply.

Jim Vallant, research director at the Foundation, estimated that from 30 to 60 percent of the water applied at preplant is lost before planting. "However, there are probably instances in which preplant irrigations may remain necessary," he said.

Wayne Whittington drove to Amarillo Thursday of last week to meet his father, R. D. Whittington, of Richmond, California. Mr. Whittington is visiting here and in Plainview with his sisters.

Mrs. Willie Jragson and girls of Wellington spent Thursday, Thursday night and Friday with her parents, the Wayne Whittingtons and her grandfather.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bingham and family of Amarillo visited the Bruce Gibsons over the weekend. Also Dave Reeves of Amarillo is spending the week with the Gibsons.

"When a crop is totally destroyed, the producer has no choice but to replant, especially if the damage is early in the season," Metzger says. "But in most hail storms, the crop is usually only partially injured."

Under these conditions, he says the decision about replanting becomes more difficult and must be based on sound information.

Dolph Briscoe Thanks People For Their Support

AUSTIN—Dolph Briscoe, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, thanked the people of Texas and reaffirmed his pledge to provide honesty and effectiveness in state government in his victory statement delivered here Saturday evening.

Greeted at campaign headquarters by reporters, campaign workers and exuberant supporters, Briscoe, accompanied by his wife, Janey, and their three children, was immediately shuttled off to a press conference. Under the brightness of television camera lights, he issued the following statement:

"There are many people I want to thank tonight. First in my heart is my wife, Janey, and our three children, for the strength they have given me and for the confidence they have in my ability to serve Texas.

"I also want to thank the countless number of people throughout the state who have actively worked for my campaign, particularly those who came forward during the early days last Fall when some observers gave us little hope of upsetting the political power structure. It is those people in every county of Texas who put aside their own personal lives many times to do that extra bit of work which always makes the difference between a winning campaign and a losing one.

"And, of course, I want to thank the people of Texas, all the people who gave us their warm welcome to our great cities and our wonderful small towns. I want to thank the people who believed in me and who voted for me and who offered encouragement every step of the way. Our victory tonight and a victory in November will mean that Texas is going to have a new government. I am going to do everything within my power as a human being and utilize every resource of the Governor's office to see that ours is a government which is responsive to the people. I will work to make it a government which will strive to leave behind it a mark of excellence and not the stain of irresponsibility."

Congressman Jack Brooks of Beaumont, the Uvalde rancher-banker's longtime personal friend, was also on hand to congratulate Briscoe on his success at the voting polls. Sunday, Briscoe returned to his ranch home, to combine a few days of well-deserved relaxation with making arrangements for parleys to determine his choice for chairman of the June 13 state party convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Earl Jones and Eddie Allen of Duke, Oklahoma spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. J. A. McKay, helping her to get ready to bring Mr. McKay home from the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Davidson and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Woods took Mrs. E. E. Woods to Jayton Sunday where she plans to visit three of her brothers.
