Computer Course on Managing Finances In Agribusiness

On March 6-7, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will begin a 2-day computer shortcourse on developing financial statements needed to accurately assess the fiscal health of virtually any kind of agricultural operation.

Producers can learn more about generating profit and loss statements, plus other special reports such as Schedule F and Form 1099. They will also need a working knowledge of Quicken 7 software.

Issues to be covered include managing overhead expenses, inventories, growing crops depreciation, family living withdrawals. Instructors will be demonstrating methods for analyzing the progress of a business through its financial statements.

There's still time to register for the upcoming shortcourse. Classes are being offered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service instructors using its traveling computer lab.

The advanced computer training sessions are designed to help producers keep their records current through use of faster, more efficient computer technology. Extension Service specialists are offering participants opportunities for "hands-on" learning using only the latest versions of the popular notebook-style computers and financial management software.

Call Rebel Royall, Briscoe County Agent at (806) 823-2131 to preregister. Classes begin at 9 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. each day. There is a charge for the course. Couples are encouraged to attend and will be charged only one registration fee if they share one computer. Preregistration and prepayment of the course fee is required.

To obtain more information about future classes call any county extension agent or the district office at (806) 359-5401 and ask for Regina Linder.

Worker Protection Training Must I Comply With Worker Protection Standards (WPS) Guidelines?

The Answer: Yes, if you utilize pesticides on your farm operation.

On Monday, February 27, 1995, ag producers will have the opportunity to hear from Texas Department of Agriculture representatives regarding the Worker Protection Standard (WPS) and how it effects local farmers and ranchers. The training will start at 12:00 noon in the Matador Senior Citizens Building. Lunch will be provided courtesy of Zeneca Ag Company and Stockmen's Supply.

The Worker Protection Standard, which came into effect on January 1, 1995, requires producers to take steps to reduce the risk of pesticide-related illness and injury. If a producer uses agricultural pesticides and/or employs agricultural workers, the WPS requires them to provide employees with information about exposure to pesticides, protection against exposures to pesticides, and ways to mitigate exposures to pesticides.

The WPS Training on February 27th is designed to assist producers in understanding the WPS regulations. In addition producers will have the opportunity to ask questions in order to assist them in complying with WPS. Two (2) CEU's will be offered for recertification of private applicator's license at the training.

Please RSVP before Friday, February 24, if you plan to attend. For additional information on the Worker Protection Standard, Call Michael Clawson at (806)347-2733.

Catastrophic Crop Insurance Offered Through Farm Bureau

by Lana Robinson
 Farmers must purchase catastrophic coverage to be eligible for USDA farm program benefits. The new catastrophic coverage is available through agents contracted with the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies.

Mike Gerik, vice president of Administration for the TFB Insurance Companies, said the new crop insurance is being offered by Farm Bureau agents through Rain and Hail Insurance Service, Inc. (RHIS) of Des Moines, Iowa, with a regional office here in Texas.

Gerik indicated that Farm Bureau agents have received the federal training required to enroll farmers in the new catastrophic insurance program.

According to a company spokesman for Rain and Hail Insurance Service, Inc., RHIS was among the first private insurance organizations to receive USDA approval to enroll farm program participants in the new crop insurance program. There are many coverage choices available to growers at varying costs, Eugene Gantz, senior vice president for Marketing and Public Relations for Rain and Hail Insurance Service, Inc. said.

"It's critical that growers buy enough coverage to carry them through disaster years because it will be almost impossible for the government to provide additional future disaster relief," Gantz said.

At the present time, most growers purchase 65/100 coverage, which is a yield guarantee of 65 percent of their proven yield at 100 percent of the maximum indemnity price. Most risk management and financial advisors feel that the 65/100 coverage is the very minimum amount of protection that is adequate, according to Gantz, and levels providing more protection are available. Details on the more meaningful additional coverages are only available from approved private agents, such as county Farm Bureaus affiliated with RHIS.

Growers already signed-up for the crop insurance can upgrade the coverage.

For more information, growers can contact their local county FB agent or call 1-800-776-4045.

Putting First Things First

by John Hall, Pastor, First Baptist Church, Quitaque
 Stephen R. Covey, in his book First Things First, raises a question all of us should ponder from time to time. The question is: Are we spending our time on what is urgent or important? There is a major difference. Most of us respond to urgent needs: the ringing of the phone; the crying of a baby; paying the bills; a hair appointment; and unclogging the drain! However, the challenge lies in making time for what is truly important.

What is truly important in our lives often receives just a ration of our time. Let me challenge all of us to be conscious of putting first things first! What is deeply important to you? Is it God, family, church, relationships, career, sports or grades? Are you spending your time on what is important to you?

Take a life inventory today and discover if you are spending your time on what is truly important! You will be glad you did.

Leadership Special

By Ronda Alexander

Would you like to develop your leadership potential? Would you like to learn how to make your views known to decision makers? Would you like to make your organization stronger by developing leadership in your members? If the answer to any of these is yes, Leadership 2000 is your answer.

A four day leadership training series is being planned for the Panhandle area. Leadership 2000 will help prepare Panhandle residents for active roles in decisions in their communities. The training series will be held from 9:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. on March 4, April 5, September 30, and October 24 at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West in Amarillo.

The course series is sponsored by Family Community (FCL) and the Texas Association for Family and Community Education (TAFCE) in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Family Community Leadership is an educational program designed specifically for people who want to develop their leadership potential and become more involved in decision making in their community. It was started in 1987 and as of 1993 over 800 volunteers have been trained across the state who have shared their information with over 10,000 others. They have assisted in their communities in a variety of ways to improve life for families.

Those interested in attending may attend one day or all 4 days receiving training in leadership styles, problem-solving in a community, how to prepare for change, how to teach others, teamwork, improving communication skills, delegating of duties, effective group work, conflict management, motivation of members and networking. The information can be used personally by participants and with groups or organizations. It is the intent of the FCL program to train individuals who can in turn work in their community sharing the information and making their community a better place to live. The course cost $10 per session or 4 sessions for $35 and includes lessons for the day, refreshments, lunch each day, and supplies for the class.

To enroll in the class or to learn more, you may call the Regional Extension Office at 823-2131, ext. 12.

LEGAL MATTERS

BY TEXAS ATTORNEY GENERAL DAN MORALES

DESIGNED TO PREVENT CRIME

You may not have noticed it, but convenience stores have changed in recent years. Well-designed shops place cashiers near large front windows, and feature height-measuring tapes on the door-frames, tamper-proof safes and limited amounts of money in the cash drawers.

Why the changes? In a word, crime. Too many stores have been collaborated with police and archirects, and came up with ways to design safety into structure. This new approach is called Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED).

HOW CPTED WORKS

CPTED (pronounced sep-ted) seeks to reduce opportunities for criminals rather than responding to problems after they materialize. It integrates building design, traffic flow, neighborhood planning and other important factors.

At the Office of the Attorney General, we are actively promoting the use of CPTED to reduce crime in schools, communities, and commercial areas. While strict law enforcement and swift punishment play an important role in crime fighting, prevention is the real key to clamping down on crime.

CPTED BENEFITS BUSINESSES

After studying the research about crime and criminal behavior, many businesses have redesigned their facilities along the same lines as convenience stores. They have installed lighting around side cameras, and installed safes with timers. Armed robbers expecting to steal a large sum of cash will be disappointed. It takes about two to three minutes before each $20 bill can be dispensed from a safe.

Although the initial costs of implementing these improvements may be expensive, they are well worth it in the long run. It is less expensive, of course, if the design principles are incorporated into new construction as opposed to applying them to an existing building.

OUR FAITH SHOULD NOT BE OVERSHADOWED BY POPULAR MYTHS

The legend that the duration of winter depends on whether or not a certain groundhog sees his shadow is a popular one that persists today, in defiance of all modern technology in weather prediction. It is still widely believed that the emergence of this famous rodent from his burrow can provide a more reliable forecast than all the meteorological instruments combined; not to mention the cold fronts and cut-off lows on the satellite map. Superstition of one kind or another has always preyed upon the gullibility of human nature, and has been known to create serious problems; notably in the study of religion. Let your House of Worship dispel any false notions you might have and shine the light of truth on the doctrine of your faith, so that you will understand it better and learn to rely on God's love and guidance; beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Things Seen or Heard Turkey News

Visitors in the Gene Fuston home last week-end were their daughter Kacy and her roommate, Christel McClaun and a friend, Jamie. Jamie was quite surprised to learn that some of his former neighbors in Clint, Texas now reside in Turkey. They are Pat Carson, Lisa Price, and Jay Proctor.

Rita Guest took a bad fall off her porch last week, breaking her ankle. While waiting for the swelling to go down her sister-in-law, Margaret Lane of Midland, came to stay a few days with Rita. After Mrs. Lane had to return home, Rita's niece, Lee Ann Lane, also of Midland came to stay with her.

On Monday Rita's son, Neil Guest and Lee Ann took her to Lubbock to a bone specialist. At this time she is a patient in St. Mary's Hospital and will return home Thursday afternoon.

Four Turkey ladies and their daughters enjoy each Monday out. The four and their daughters, Vivian and Savannah Smith, Jay and Jaycee Proctor, Lisa and Chancy Price, and Jackie and Jordan Jenkins, all travel to Plainview each Monday evening. The daughters are enrolled in a tumbling class. Following the tumbling classes, the mothers and daughters enjoy having dinner before returning home.

Wes and Karen McDougall arrived in Turkey Friday afternoon to spend the week-end with Karen's mother, Dot Arnold. The McDougalls visited with their friends and relatives while here before returning to their home in Amarillo Sunday afternoon.

Visiting in the home of Les and Sue Hall last week-end were three young people from Lubbock. They had been in Les's youth group at St. Luke's Methodist Church several years ago when Les worked with them.

Leaving town last Thursday for Idabel, Oklahoma were Tink and Estelle Lane. They are visiting in the home of their daughter and family, Dr. Jon and Debbie Maxwell and daughters.

Paulett Lipscomb was in town recently. She was returning to her home in Amarillo. She had been to Midland to visit with her parents, Juanita and Ralph Meacham. She reported that her Dad is in very serious condition. She came back through Lubbock and visited with her brother, Jimmy Bell Meacham, of Junction. Jimmy was hospitalized in a Lubbock hospital with a heart condition and a new valve had been placed. At this time Jimmy seems to be doing better.

Veta Colvin returned to Methodist Hospital last week-end and had more surgery on her leg. Monday, they amputated a little bit more of her leg, but still below the knee. She will have a re-evaluation on Wednesday to see if the blood is flowing back and forth as they hope it will be. Les Hall was there for the surgery.

Following Veta's surgery, Les visited the Horizon Hospital, across the street, south of the Civic Center. Ella Colvin is now a patient there. Les reported Ella was in good spirits.

Harold and Frances Wheeler took Harold's mother, Dovie Wheeler, to Oklahoma City last week. Dovie saw an eye specialist and received a laser treatment. It is supposed to improve Dovie's vision.

I returned home a week ago last Tuesday evening after spending a week in Borger with my brother, Chuck Bogan. I believed that now Chuck is on the road to recovery.

Visitors in the Royce and Ying Lyles home were K. O. and Connie Lyles of San Antonio, Texas and Austene Clark of Jal, N.M. They also visited other family and friends in Turkey.

John and Maebelle Francis of Silverton and Louis and Oleta Randell attended the Frankie Kelly Concert in Tulia Saturday night. They were met there by Oleta's niece and husband, Helen and Cliff Masters.

Maurice Fuston, Marjorie Bell, Vernell Cotten, Oleta Randell, Mary Tripp and her granddaughter of Amarillo attended the Texas Ballet at Valley School Thursday night.

THE FAITH OF OUR FOUNDING FATHERS INSURED OUR FREEDOM

"I will get unto me the great men... for they have known the way of the Lord."

—Jeremiah 5:5

There is a tendency to regard any encouragement of religion by our elected officials as an attempt to impose a government-mandated form of it on our citizens. This comes from a natural concern about the separation of church and state, but it can result in an attitude toward religion normally reserved for an insidious disease. It should be remembered that our founding fathers who make no secret of their reliance on divine guidance, insured our own religious freedom by including it in the laws by which we live. Moreover, to this day every public official takes the oath of office with one hand on the Bible, and legislative sessions routinely begin with prayers; with no harmful effects on the populace. Indeed, perhaps the encouragement of faith would help to solve many of our own serious problems. Our revered forefathers thought so, and we would do well to follow their example.

IMMUNIZE YOUR LITTLE TEXAN BY TWO SHOTS ACROSS TEXAS

Shotline
I took my baby to get his shots and he cried from the pain. I don't think I can put him through that again.

When adults need a shot, they know it's going to cause a short, stinging sensation. They expect the discomfort in advance and can prepare for it. But your baby isn't able to anticipate what is about to happen, so he may cry from the surprise as well as the sting. True, immunizations may startle and hurt a bit, but they give lifetime protection from serious diseases that can cause your baby much greater pain or even death.

Immunization methods have been developed to help avoid discomfort. Polio vaccine is given in drops that babies swallow. Other vaccines have been combined, making fewer shots necessary. For instance, measles, mumps and rubella vaccines are usually given in one injection. And Haemophilus influenzae type b vaccine has been combined with diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis vaccines.
If you think your baby's reaction to his shots was unusual, tell your doctor or nurse before the next series of immunizations.

Maine is the largest New England state.

Expiration Dates Set For Ration Stamps

A new policy of definite invalidation dates for Food ration stamps, with each series good for about four months, has been established, according to Opal L. Wood, district OPA Food Rationing Officer.

Continuing the present policy, a new series of red stamps for meat and dairy products and blue stamps for processed food will be validated each month. Instead of being good indefinitely, however, they will expire after about 16 weeks.***
