Valley Clipped By Nazareth

Nazareth turned a deflected pass into a touchdown which gave the Swifts a 7-0 victory in Friday night's game here. The play came with 5:14 left in the game when Nazareth had a third down and 11 at the Valley 44 yard line. Valley had the play defended but the taller Swift receiver out-jumped the two defenders for the ball and raced untouched into the end zone.

Valley held Nazareth to 44 yards rushing on 44 attempts. The Swifts had 87 yards passing for 131 yards total offense. Valley had 100 yards rushing and Kirk Saul completed nine of 18 passes for 80 yards, totaling 180 yards of offense.

Nazareth had a big size advantage over the smaller Patriots. "Our defense played super. We knew we had to shut down the Swift running game to have a chance to win. We couldn't be prouder of our kids. They played as hard as they could for four quarters. The pass play Nazareth scored on was just

City Drug Store Has A Visitor They Do Not Like

A visitor has been making himself at home at City Drug during the night-time hours. This has been going on for several nights but he has not been caught.

They wondered at first what it was and on Sunday night, Marvin Randell, night watchman, saw an opossum sitting in the front show window.

Mr. Gonce, the exterminator man, has looked and looked, but so far he has not found the hideout.

We will keep you posted and hopefully, the problem will be solved in a few days.

Visitors in the Wendell Farley home over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Farley, April and Cory of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wellman, Jamie, Richard and Ryan, and new daughter, Jessica, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Farley, Melody and Vance.

Others stopping by during the weekend were Leanna Farley of Amarillo, Mrs. Euna Lee Barrett, Judy Barrett, Jana Boyles, Teresa Griffin and Mrs. A. B. Ramsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Shorty Woods were in Lubbock Wednesday of last week to attend the South Plains Fair with their children and grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Terry Woods and children.

a fluke play," Coach Adams states.

Turning in good defensive performances were Chuck Martin, Jamie Cox, Rosendo Silva, Joe Silva, Freddie Ruiz, Eric Scoggins, Matt Barrett, Roy Beavers, Thomas Rodriguez.

Freddie Ruiz had 41 yards on nine carries to lead Valley rushers. Lane Myers had two catches for 22 yards, and Matt Barrett had three catches for 17 yards.

Valley plays Bovina Friday in the Homecoming game.

Fans, let's all go out and support the Patriots!

Valley Junior High Loses To Nazareth

The Valley Junior High Patriots lost a close game to Nazareth there Thursday of last week by a score of 8-0.

Boys who played a good defensive game were Manuel Silva, Stephen Silva, Henry McNary, Warren Merrell, Benjie Hughes and Curtis Williams.

Love Fund Started For Cortney Hill

A Love Fund has been started at the First National Bank in Quitaque for Cortney Hill, year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Greg (Karen) Hill. Mrs. Hill is an employee of the bank.

Cortney was transferred from a Dallas hospital to the University of Texas Children's Hospital in Houston last week by air ambulance, and underwent heart surgery on Friday. The doctors were attempting to remove a portion of her heart that never developed, but were unable to finish the surgery because a baby cannot be kept on the heart-lung machine very long.

Doctors had hoped to finish the surgery this week if Cortney's condition permits. The child was reported to be sitting up and doing pretty well in Pediatric ICU Sunday. They are giving her medication to keep her condition stable while doctors decide what to do for her. She still has a very rapid heartbeat, but has done remarkably well considering all she has been through.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Carlie Hill, returned home Saturday night and went back to her job as Briscoe County Appraisal District chief appraiser Monday. She says that the family realizes the power of prayer and knows how many, many prayers have been said for Cortney, and that the family appreciates this very much.

Greg and Karen Hill are staying at the Ronald MacDonald House in Houston (they also stayed there in Dallas) where no charge is made and the only requirement is that each family take responsibility for a job to maintain the home. There are refrigerators and freezers where food is kept, and they prepare their own meals. Laundry rooms are provided also. At Dallas, their responsibility was keeping the toy room cleaned and the toys picked up.

OBITUARIES

WARE FOGERSON

Funeral services for Ware Fogerson, 70, were conducted at the Silvertown Church of Christ at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday. Officiating were the minister, Ted Kingery, and Doug Lawyer, Church of Christ minister from Oklahoma.

Interment was in the Silvertown Cemetery, with arrangements by Schooler-Gordon Funeral Directors.

Mr. Fogerson died at 5:15 p.m. Monday at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo where he had been a patient since suffering a stroke at his home here September 3. He had been moved to the Bivins Rehabilitation Center for therapy last week, but was returned to the hospital when his condition worsened.

Born in Silvertown September 10, 1915, he was the only child of Walter and Florence Money Fogerson. He attended Silvertown Schools and was married to the former Sylvia Day in Matador on September 26, 1936. They went to live with his mother in the same house on the corner where his mother had lived as a bride. The original house was badly damaged by a tornado in 1957 and was torn down, a new home being built in its place.

Three children were born to the Ware Fogersons: Victor, who preceded his father July 4, 1953; Diane and Stanley.

Ware Fogerson and his mother, "Ma," as she was known to her family and friends, operated the Fogerson Grain Company for several years. Later they had a feed store and cream station and he also operated a trucking business.

In 1947, he opened a lumber yard on the northeast corner of the square. This business continued until February 6, 1967 when it was destroyed by fire. In September of that same year, he purchased Willson-Nichols Lumber Company at the southeast corner of the square. That business had been in operation here since 1925.

In 1970, Ware and Stanley Fogerson organized a corporation, S & W Pork Producers, Inc., which they operated in addition to the Fogerson Lumber & Supply. They have cultivated a pecan orchard, in addition to other farming activities.

The lumber yard was sold to Stanley Fogerson in 1976, but the elder Fogerson had continued to assist with the operation.

Ware Fogerson was a veteran of World War II and a member and treasurer of the Silvertown Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Jack (Diane) Mayfield of Gassville, Arkansas; a son, Stanley Ware Fogerson of Silvertown; and three granddaughters, Kristy and Penni Fogerson of Silvertown and Elana Mayfield of Gassville.

Pallbearers were Perry Brunson, Don Cornett, Jerry Patton, David Tipton, Wayne Nance, Mike Juarez, Garner Garrison and Anthony Kingery.

Mrs. Bea Strain of Portales, New Mexico and Mrs. Ann McBee of Amarillo were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kimbell in Quitaque over the weekend. There were several others locally who stopped in Saturday to visit the visitors.

The Kimbells and their guests were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Setliff in Turkey Sunday. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Brunson of Edmonson, Mr. and Mrs. George Setliff, Mr. and Mrs. James Lynn Kimbell, Travis and Shorty, all of Turkey.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1985
 List of Eligible Voters is Posted For ASC Election

A list of the names of eligible persons to receive in the upcoming annual committee elections is at the county ASC reports James E. Griffith Farmers will begin candidates for the ASC on October 3.

ASCS, an agency of Department of Agriculture responsible for farm administration. On the level, ASCS operates farmer-elected committees. This year's election by mail ballot between November 22 and December 12 may also get ballots County ASCS office.

Anyone who meets the requirements is eligible to vote in these farmer elections; any individual voting age with an interest in farming as owner, operator or sharecropper who is not participating in any ASCS program.

Several general provisions apply to ASCS voter eligibility. The spouse of an eligible voter is also eligible to vote. An individual under legal voting age or who is a guardian who runs a farm, a child can vote for the person can be denied the vote because of race, color, religion, handicap or national origin.

A person may cast a ballot in any county in which he is an eligible ASCS voter, but she cannot vote in more than one community in the county. An eligible voter has separate interests in more than one community in the same county. Special care will be taken that only one ballot is cast for that voter.

Farmers are asked to submit candidates of their own for the October 28 to be on the community committee ballot. The ASC community election will be held from November 22 to December 12 by mail ballot. The communities in Briscoe are "A," "B," and "C."

ASC committees are responsible for managing federal programs on the local level. To meet the needs of producers, ASC committees must be concerned with responsible individuals. Farmers have the opportunity to nominate persons that would best serve the community. Farmers received petition forms by mail and are now submitting the county ASCS office.

A few basic considerations should be kept in mind when circulating petitions. In order to be valid, petitions must be limited to one nomination that the nominee is eligible to serve if elected, must be signed by at least three eligible voters in the ASC community and must be received at the county ASCS office by October 28 deadline.

List of Eligible Voters is Posted For ASC Election

A list of the names of all known eligible persons to receive ballots in the upcoming annual ASC committee elections is available at the county ASCS office, reports James E. Griffin, CED. Farmers will begin nominating candidates for the ASC election on October 3.

ASCS, an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is responsible for farm program administration. On the local level, ASCS operates under a farmer-elected committee system. This year's elections will be by mail ballot between November 22 and December 2. Voters may also get ballots at the County ASCS office.

Anyone who meets the following requirements is eligible to vote in these farmer committee elections: any individual of legal voting age with an interest in a farm as owner, operator, tenant, or sharecropper who is eligible to participate in any ASCS program.

Several general provisions relate to ASCS voter eligibility. The spouse of an eligible voter is also eligible to vote. Any person under legal voting age can vote if he or she runs a farm, and a legal guardian who runs a farm for a child can vote for the child. No person can be denied the right to vote because of race, sex, age, color, religion, handicap or national origin.

A person may cast a ballot in any county in which he or she is an eligible ASC voter, but he or she cannot vote in more than one community in the county. If an eligible voter has separate farm interests in more than one community in the same county, special care will be taken to see that only one ballot is issued to that voter.

Farmers are asked to nominate candidates of their choice by October 28 to be on the ASC community committee ballot.

The ASC community committee election will be conducted from November 22 to December 2 by mail ballot. The three ASC communities in Briscoe County are "A," "B," and "C."

ASC committees are responsible for managing federal farm programs on the local level. To meet the needs of individual producers, ASC committee members must be concerned and responsible individuals. County farmers have the opportunity to nominate persons they feel would best serve the farm community. Farmers have received petition forms by mail and are now submitting them to the county ASCS office.

A few basic considerations should be kept in mind when circulating petitions. In order to be valid, petitions must be limited to one nominee each, must include written certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected, must be signed by at least three eligible farm voters in the ASC community, and must be received in the county ASCS office by the October 28 deadline.

Farmers may circulate or sign nominating petitions for as many candidates as they choose. Anyone wishing to nominate a farmer for the ASC committee election may contact the county

ASC office for full details, including eligibility requirements for office holders.

Farmers should petition for and elect those individuals they feel would do a good job as a member of the ASC committee. The election of concerned farmers to positions on ASC committees is essential in the administration of farm programs.

The county ASCS office welcomes all valid petitions. The opportunity to nominate, vote and be elected to office is guaranteed to all farmers regardless of race, religion, sex, age, color, handicap or national origin.

Mother, Educator Trade Words on Teaching Child

by Lawrence Ray Ward

A mother wrote an open letter to teachers. I suppose she meant well. Yet, the essence of the letter was, "Teach my child by my standards, and I will be happy."

I am writing a response. I mean well. At least I think I mean well. You may judge for yourself.

Like many teachers, my theories have been tested on the firing line for many years now. I have scrapped many of my preconceived ideas. I have modified many others, and have been shown a number of better ways.

Here is the mother's letter. My response follows. It is written on behalf of all teachers.

Dear Teacher:

Beginning today, I trust to you one of my cherished blessings. He comes to you with holes in his socks, stubby fingernails, faded jeans, and stars in his eyes.

There is only one general category into which he fits—boy. In all other ways he is a variation from the mold. For the first six years of his life, his father and I have tried to let him be an individual. He does not know that conformity has been enshrined by many people.

There is an old proverb that says, "If the shoe fits, wear it." Please, don't make him wear it if it does not fit! You would not think of trying to squeeze his feet into the shoes of a boy across the aisle just because they are both six-year-olds. Please, don't try to fit his intellect, his emotions, or his personality into a mold of what a "six-year-old should be."

He may hear a different drum beat; he may have different dreams and different fears. Sure he has to walk the wide road with the mass of men, but he may want to chase a few butterflies down side roads and he may need to gather a few flowers on the way.

Yes, there will have to be rules, but be sure those rules contribute to his growth and that they are not only for your convenience.

If he doesn't read and write as soon as your lesson plans indicate he should, do not consider yourself a failure. If he does, do not consider yourself a success. A more accurate indicant will be those shining stars.

Can you keep those stars shining in his eyes?

Dear Parent:

Beginning today, it is my privilege to teach your cherished child. I don't mind the holes in his socks, his stubby fingernails or his faded jeans. I love to see the stars in his eyes.

I'm sure he is all boy and does vary from the mold, just like all the others in my class. Each one is an individual.

Believe it or not, he does know that "some" people enshrine conformity. His mannerly behavior indicates that he follows family rules just like you trained him. He bathes, speaks a common language with you, celebrates your holidays, comes home when you tell him to, and dresses just like you teach him. We often wish to think that conformity is what other people do.

Your family circle is a small one. Most likely it's a "shoe" that fits you well. I'm sure it's a good one. You would be pleased if the school circle were an extension of your family circle. You would be pleased if we valued what you valued. I will not ask other children to wear your son's shoes. Please don't ask us to readjust rules that have served total student growth in exchange for rules that serve only your convenience. That would force us to be unfair to others.

You may teach him the values and conformity you cherish. Grant us the freedom to teach him some of the wonders of knowledge that will light his future, and to share with him a broad sense of social responsibility. There is nothing wrong with him hearing the drums around him and beating with them instead of contrary to them. We will also encourage him to beat some rhythms of his own.

As educators, we, too, hear drummers. Our drummers are legislators, administrators, head teachers, fellow teachers, and parents. Each has a different cadence and rhythm. But most important, we try to hear the drums our students beat. Some are soft and delicate. Some bang, seemingly for banging's sake.

Some just look at the drum in wonder, afraid to beat their own thoughts at all. Some only try to imitate the beat they hear from others. Grant us the latitude you have asked us to grant him. It's only fair.

Sometime he will yield to pressures around him and be molded into patterns that you find disheartening. Please don't blame us thoughtlessly. So much of it he learns from others. It's called "peer pressure" and "growing up." I promise not to blame you for his every misguided act I see at school. Please don't blame me if he, with his wondering eyes, picks up bad acts or attitudes at school. We try to protect him at school, but some children's parents think "four-letter" words are cute. Good language is one of the conformities we enshrine.

Please don't try to press me into a mold of what you think a "teacher should be." I can't please 22 sets of parents. (Some of my colleagues teach more than 150 different students per day.)

If he doesn't read or write as soon as my "lesson plans indicate he should," I will feel no failure. I will have guided him carefully, patiently, and skillfully, hoping that soon the window of light will be opened and the stars will shine in his eyes. I only ask that you don't consider me a failure. More importantly, please don't consider him a failure simply because he needs more time.

You also ask me not to consider myself a success. Here I cannot comply. Someone may grow beautiful flowers. Nurturing delicate plants is a skill. The most skilled florist cannot force even one flower to bloom. She can only care for it. Yet, people have counted it proper to accept some credit for their success in raising flowers. I will, too. Your son's success is my success.

You concluded by asking, challengingly, "Can you keep those stars shining in his eyes?" The question itself is an indictment. It says, "If the stars quit shining in his eyes, I will hold you to blame." I'll accept the challenge. Really, I have no choice, but I would accept it anyway. You see, I chose to teach. I believe in myself. And, I believe in your son. If given just half a chance, I will keep his eyes shining, and I will fill them with wonder.

Best wishes for you and your son,
His teacher

After exercising it's a good idea to replenish body fluids with a refreshing drink of iced tea—a delicious inducement to complete your daily exercise regimen!

RISKS versus BENEFITS

(taken from "The Leaguer" September, 1985)

Despite rumors to the contrary, extracurricular competitive activities are good. That is the consensus of a panel of experts who met in Austin to grapple with the question: "Is educational competition viable and, if so, what are the values?" The panel, consisting of Dick Fawcett, assistant to the director of the National Federation of State High School Associations; Bob Floyd, director of bands at Berkner High School; Richardson; and Lynn Hick women's basketball coach at Texas A&M University, heard two major speeches and personal testimonials from the 50 invited guests attending the seminar while helping to validate the statement of purpose that the benefits of competitive activities far outweigh the risks. The statement of purpose is as follows:

The University Interscholastic League believes that most students enjoy the pursuit of excellence and seek opportunities to test themselves against their own accomplishments and those of their peers.

that such opportunities best provided through properly conducted and equitably administered competitive activities, that the classroom is enriched by the flow of student energy into the more intensified arena of competition and back into the classroom.

Therefore, we reaffirm that students are the focus of endeavor and deserve an opportunity to:

- refine physical and mental aptitudes
- nurture self-realization and build self-confidence
- experience teamwork and develop a sense of fair play
- foster self-discipline and perseverance
- learn the need for rules and the gracious acceptance of decisions
- affirm self-worth in times of disappointment as well as achievement
- cultivate lifetime skills
- complement their classroom with practice and performance
- have fun
- experience the joy of achieving their potential in a wholesome environment
- and discover that ultimate the true meaning of winning is doing one's best.

The one-day program began with speeches.

Dr. Donna Lopiana, director of Women's Athletics at The University of Texas at Austin, said that sports require a physical and intellectual effort, that are value free, that they encourage participants to pursue perfection, and that competition is essential to the definition of perfection.

"First, all sports activities require the coordinated action of mind and body together," said. "There is no such thing as separating the physical and intellectual."

"Second, sports is essentially meaningless and valueless. However, the people who participate and administer the competitive sport programs bring values to sport. If you are

The one-day program began with speeches.

Dr. Donna Lopiana, director of Women's Athletics at The University of Texas at Austin, said that sports require a physical and intellectual effort, that they are value free, that they enable participants to pursue perfection, and that competition is essential to the definition of perfection.

"First, all sports activities require the coordinated action of mind and body together," she said. "There is no such thing as separating the physical and the intellectual.

"Second, sports is essentially meaningless and value free. However, the people who play, coach and administer the conduct of sport programs bring their values to sport. If you are a dishonest person, you can be dishonest in sport.

"Third, sport is one of the few activity constructs available in a highly technological society which enables participants to pursue perfection," Dr. Lopiana said. "Our society has become so complex, so convoluted that few people have the opportunity to take full credit for doing one thing perfectly, from beginning to end.

"Competition is no more than comparing yourself with someone else doing the same thing. The inter-change between two competitors creates a series of steps ascending to the possibility of perfection. And like sport, competition is value free. People bring their own values with them to the competition."

Dr. Lopiano said the current problems in scholastic athletics are the result of "good people failing to broadly define their responsibilities as leaders of educational sport." She added that the schools' obligations to student-athletes are fourfold: to set a goal to win; to achieve a 95 percent graduation rate and a minimum 2.0 grade point average among athletes; to set a standard for ethical conduct, appropriate behavior, and public speaking skills, and to communicate to the general public the obligations and goals of the program.

"Principals, athletic directors and coaches must be required to produce athletes who win on three courts: on the playing field, in the classroom, and in the arena of mature adults who accept their responsibilities as public figures," she said. "We also have an obligation to educate our spectators of their responsibilities in a very formal way. Accepting these obligations as inherent in educational sport programs insures a legacy for student-athletes that is more than basketballs, trophies and newspaper clippings. Just as important, conducting a program which fulfills all of these responsibilities will insure public support and respect for our programs—support which has been sadly and rightfully lacking."

Dr. Bob Moats, a psychologist and consultant in conflict resolution, said competition is endangered when the community defines for the school and the family the role of competition. "The school should define the purpose of extracurricular activities," he said. "The schools should set the tone and keep competition in perspective."

In addition, he said that coaches and administrators should teach developmental objectives and keep records of the positive aspects of participation. "Coaches need to maintain close evaluations of their students," Moats said. "They need to know the students' academic records, what kinds of careers they go into, and how many attend and succeed in college. We need to cease asking what we want from the athlete and begin stating what we want for the athlete."

He said that despite the risks, the country believes in competition.

"It is a high octane experience," he said. "We learn about ourselves. We believe that quality and excellence emerges from competition. In the absence of organized programs, kids will invent them. Contests may be fun but they are also very serious activities."

Moats said competition is often the key in allowing students "to go from being a kid to being an adult" by developing self-confidence, interpersonal relationships, integrity, morality, aesthetic tastes, and a sense of self worth. "Competition develops autonomy, the ability for students to personally decide what needs to be done," he said. "It places the responsibility on the student for decision-making. At the same time, it establishes identity or self-confidence because students learn that they are in charge of themselves."

Members of the panel echoed Lopiano's and Moats' comments.

"In music, the preparation and performance serve as vehicles to teach music," Floyd said. "It is our job to help students understand why another group won and we didn't. It is a victory if students feel good about themselves and their performances. How do you justify ratings and scores to the parents? By helping them understand what quality performance is all about."

Fawcett said that while competition can add zest to life, an over-emphasis on winning "leads to emptiness. Competition is not always the answer," he said. "Competition for water doesn't solve the water problem. We can't always be winners. If that is the only way you define your existence, then you are in trouble."

"The Greek games were designed to display wholeness—not specialization. There is a duty toward one's higher self, a duty to strive for all-round excellence, to respect the wholeness of life. Activities can be a means to this end, but they are not the end."

Diseases of the cornea—the transparent membrane at the front of the eye—are often the most painful of eye disorders.

NUTRITIONAL NEEDS OF OLDER ADULTS

Research is now being done that will lead to more complete answers about the nutritional needs of older adults, says Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"But much is already known that can help older adults stay well-nourished during the later years," she adds.

Dr. Hunt says it's known that older adults need the same nutrients as they did when they were younger. The amount of calories they need, however, is usually reduced as they become less active.

Other nutrient needs may be increased, Dr. Hunt points out. For example, the post-menopausal woman may need more than the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) of 800 milligrams of calcium.

"No nutrient can slow the aging process," states the specialist. "Research has not identified any vitamin or mineral which can prolong life, prevent cosmetic changes such as hair loss or skin wrinkling, or protect from diseases like arthritis, cancer or heart disease."

Dr. Hunt notes that taking a supplement with no more than the RDA for each vitamin or mineral usually will not be harmful for older adults. But taking large doses of some vitamins and minerals can be toxic, interfere with the absorption of other nutrients or block the action of certain medications.

"Growing evidence suggests that the way a person eats throughout life influences the chances of developing such health problems as heart disease, cancer, osteoporosis and diabetes," the specialist says. "If a person has inherited tendencies toward developing certain diseases, good nutrition may also help to slow down the process of development."

Dr. Hunt stresses that eating a variety of nutritious foods is one of the keys to a long, healthy and productive life. To get needed nutrients, she says to choose foods from the basic food groups, including milk and cheese; meats, poultry, fish and beans; vegetables and fruits, and breads and cereals.

It's easy—when you know the answers

All of life is not far removed from the classroom. There are truths to be learned every day. And there are questions to be answered.

But some people don't have the answer when they need it. And some people do...

Any teacher will tell you it's a question of preparation. And any preacher will tell you the same.

The people who go to church on Sunday have no more problems than those who stay home. Nor do they expect as a result to have any fewer.

They believe simply in preparation—preparation of the mind, conscience, heart and soul... faith.

This is the preparation God offers men... for the questions that will confront us all tomorrow!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .

. . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

It's Such a Big World

Some folks say that as we grow older the world grows smaller. Is that because of the wonders of modern communication and transportation? Or is it because when some folks grow older they become preoccupied with their own little orbit of life?

Junior certainly enters life completely preoccupied with himself. But once he begins to walk and talk—gosh how his world balloons!

That's why he needs the religious training our churches provide. His faith must keep pace with his burgeoning world.

And as grown-ups, in worship and Christian devotion, we need likewise the spiritual gifts our churches offer.

For it really is a big world. Full of challenges, opportunities, and promising tomorrows. It always looks that way to a growing soul.

Simple Procedure May Prevent Choking Death

Strangulation due to choking on food is the sixth leading cause of accidental death, says Paramedic Anthony Kingery, an EMS instructor who teaches classes all over the Panhandle. Choking symptoms are: victim cannot breathe, cannot speak, becomes pale, may clutch chest or throat, turns blue then collapses. Death occurs in four to five minutes. Since the victim cannot speak, a universal signal is necessary to inform would-be rescuers of the situation. The recommendation is that the victim grasp his neck between thumb and index finger of one hand to signal "I am choking." Knowledge of this signal, and a procedure which requires no specialized equipment or training, used promptly, could save a person's life.

Stand behind the victim and wrap your arms around his waist. Grasp your fist with your other hand and place the thumb side of your fist against the victim's abdomen, slightly above the navel and below the rib cage. Proper placement of your fist is important for the maneuver to be effective and to avoid injury.

Press your fist into the victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat several times if necessary. When the victim is sitting, the procedure is the same, with rescuer standing behind victim's chair. Another person should be prepared to quickly remove food or vomit from the victim's mouth to prevent re-inhalation.

A variation on the maneuver should be performed when the victim has collapsed and the rescuer is unable to lift him. Place victim on his back. Facing victim, kneel astride his hips. Place heel of one hand on the abdomen, slightly above the navel and well below the rib cage. Proper placement is especially important in this position as it is easy to exert enough pressure to do internal injury. If unsure of the position of the navel, open clothing to locate it. Place your other hand on top of first. Press heel of hand into victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat several times if necessary. Turn victim on his side when obstruction is removed from throat. To prevent re-inhalation of food or vomit, check to see if mouth is clear.

Since this technique has been widely popularized by the news media in frightening, life-threatening situations, some rescuers may be over-vigorous in its application. As a consequence, complications of a dire nature may be possible if not immediately recognized and treated by a physician. Use of the Heimlich maneuver could possibly result in internal injury, but despite the risk, the choking victim could well owe his life to this technique.

Indigent Health Care Discussed At Conference

Over 550 representatives from many of Texas' 254 counties were in Austin last week to attend a conference sponsored by the Texas Association of Counties to consider the role counties will play in implementing the Indigent Health Care and Treatment Act adopted by the Texas Legislature last spring. Counties without hospitals will not be required to provide health care assistance to qualifying residents until September 1, 1986.

Under the new laws, counties without hospital districts or public hospitals are charged with the responsibility for the cost of medical care for poverty-stricken Texans who are not covered by other government programs. New eligibility guidelines are being developed by the Texas Department of Human Services and should be available for county officials in the spring of 1986. During the interim, county officials will be studying area health care delivery systems in order to tailor their local resources to comply with legal requirements of the Act.

To protect other county departments from the possible negative effect of excessive health care costs, limits were placed on county liability. Generally, county responsibility is protected by limits on payment for services based primarily on AFDC-Medicaid guidelines; a per patient limit of $30,000 or 30 days hospitalization during any fiscal year, whichever comes first; and an overall county liability cap of 10% of the county's general revenue level in any fiscal year.

Also enacted was a provision for an 80% state match on any costs exceeding the 10% cap, with county liability contingent on state funding availability. To assure adequate local funds for start-up of the program, in the initial fiscal year, indigent health care costs will be exempted from the 8% rollback provisions in the Property Tax Code.

Conference speakers praised the new system as an aggressive solution to a long-standing problem in the delivery of health care services to the truly needy. The system combines efforts of state and local government with that of public hospitals and results in a comprehensive, shared program, thereby saving tax dollars that might have been wasted on a piecemeal approach.

The Bank of Vernal in Vernal, Utah, is the only bank in the world built from bricks sent through the mail. In 1919, the people of Vernal discovered that it would cost less to mail the bricks from Salt Lake City, seven to a package, than to have them shipped commercially.

The James E. Taylors of Quitaque entertained visitors from Fort Worth over the weekend.

Billy Dee and Delores Beeman and family, Gail and Sam Robertson and Miranda, Jan and Bob Beeman and Brooke, and Steve Beeman.

Billy Dee was born and reared at Buffalo Flat near Turkey.

Matt Thomas of Amarillo was also present. They all came to visit Mrs. Taylor (Team) daughter-in-law, Sammie Phillips from Jackson, Tennessee who spent the week visiting the Taylors.

The group had planned to "storm" the First Baptist Church in Quitaque Sunday morning, but the storm hit the Taylor home first so the group headed south. It was reported in Amarillo a snowstorm was in progress.

It's said that the frankfurter was first made in Germany during the Middle Ages.

A. No. Children under two years of age still must be secured in a federally-approved child safety seat system when they are riding in any seat equipped with a safety belt in a passenger car or light truck [1/4-ton capacity and below]. Children from two to four years of age must be secured by a safety belt or child safety seat system when riding in any seat equipped with a safety belt in a car or light truck.

Q. Who would be cited for a violation of the safety belt law?
A. If the unbelted person is under 15 years of age, the driver will receive the ticket. If an unbelted person is 15 or older, that person will receive the citation for the violation.

Q. Are any persons exempted from complying with this law?
A. Yes. The law does not apply to a person who possesses a written statement from a licensed physician stating that for medical reasons, the person is unable to wear a safety belt. Also exempt are U. S. Postal Service employees when they are servicing postal boxes or performing duties for their agency requiring frequent entry and exit from vehicles.

Q. What if the safety belts have been taken out of the car?
A. If safety belt anchoring hardware came as original factory equipment on the car, the belts should be present and in use by front seat occupants riding in the vehicle.

Q. What about older cars and light trucks which came equipped with only lap belts or no safety belts at all?

A. If the older model vehicle did not come equipped with a shoulder strap like the newer models, use of the lap belts alone by front seat riders is permitted. Vehicles not originally equipped with safety belt anchorages are not required to have safety belts.

Q. Can I be cited if there are more people riding in the front seat than there are belts for?

A. No. The law states that each person occupying a seat equipped with a safety belt must be secured by the belt. As an example, if three persons are riding in the front seat and three belts are provided, all must be buckled in. If only two belts are provided, the two persons in the belted positions must be secured by the belts.

Q. Can residents of other states be cited for breaking this law?

A. Yes. The statute applies to anyone riding in the front seat of the specified vehicles while they are being operated on roads, streets or highways of Texas.

Q. What if the belt doesn't fit?
A. Auto manufacturers have made belt extenders available for larger persons.

WHY ARE SAFETY BELTS SO IMPORTANT?

•Unfortunately, statistics indicate there is virtual certainty that you will be in a traffic accident sooner or later.

•If you are involved in a collision, using a safety belt will dramatically improve your chances of avoiding serious or fatal injuries.

•Widespread compliance with this law could save as many as 1,200 lives each year in Texas. ONE of those lives could be YOURS.

•Make the connection! It's the law.

The first stewardess was Miss Ellen Church, a registered nurse, who welcomed 11 passengers aboard a flight from Oakland, California to Cheyenne, Wyoming in 1930.
