Fingerprinting Service Offered

Almost two million children are reported missing in the U. S. each year, and child abuse, abduction and sexual molestation have become serious threats in some parts of the country.

A program has been scheduled for this area that has the backing of the Quitaque Chamber of Commerce, Senior Citizens and the Valley School, and it should be of great benefit in aiding the identification of missing children.

On Wednesday afternoon September 11, from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. and on Saturday, September 14, from 9:00 a.m. till 12:00 noon, a free child fingerprinting record will be offered, and fingerprints will be recorded of all children whose parents or guardians have authorized officials to do so. The service will be held at the Quitaque Senior Citizens building on Main Street in Quitaque.

These fingerprints will be delivered to the parents, and if they so desire the Valley School has offered to keep these with the permanent transcript of the students. Law enforcement officials nationwide have commended this type of program and in some cities where fingerprints were maintained, it has been of great benefit in helping locate kidnapped or missing children.

Parents must be present and sign an authorization form before their children can be fingerprinted, and the children's prints will be given to the parents at that time.

All parents are urged to take advantage of this free service.

Texas Farm Quilt Put Together Here

Farm women from all over the state made blocks that were incorporated into a quilt relating to agriculture.

Local ladies set the off-white blocks together with a bright royal blue. Mrs. Opal Hamilton quilted it.

A dollar donation to help finance AAM in their fight for a good farm bill makes it possible for your name to be drawn as winner of the quilt.

Donations will be accepted as of September 1, and the lucky name will be drawn at the State Convention in November.

Bike-A-Thon to Be Held September 7

Bike-a-thon chairman Janice Guest today asked Turkey residents to join the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike-a-thon slated for September 7 at Turkey.

Ms. Guest said this ride honors Jaime, a leukemia patient at St. Jude. "With every turn of the wheel, riders become 'spokesmen' for all the kids with cancer, like Jaime, who want to know they aren't in this battle alone."

Ms. Guest added, "People willing to give time to create more time to children crying for help stimulates a better event and raises more money for the hospital. Riders are really needed. They make or break a Bike-a-thon."

Sponsors donating a sum for each mile completed are enlisted by riders. Those who raise $25 receive a St. Jude T-shirt. When $75 is raised, the rider receives a barrel tote bag and a T-shirt. Pick up sponsor forms at C & L Food or my house, she said.

"The general plan is to have a good time while helping a wonderful group of children counting on our support," the chairman said.

Contact Box 545, (806) 423-1279 for details on riding or sponsoring a rider.

"It appears that he fell asleep at the wheel," Speed said. "After hitting the culvert the truck caught fire. He (Smith) was very badly burned."

A farmer who lives across the highway from where the car crashed, Jim Stockton, called the DPS to the scene, Speed said.

Services were conducted at 5:00 p.m. Monday at the Quitaque First Baptist Church with the Rev. Jess Little officiating.

Do You Remember . . . ?

From the files of the Turkey Escapades

January 11, 1945.—From PIC Arville Seiffert, in Belgium, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Seiffert. This letter was written in November but was only recently received. I hope Mother and Dad. How are you these days? I am fine but the weather isn't exactly the kind I would like. Well, yesterday was Armistice Day. I was picked along with 16 other men from our company to be honor guard at the Libanon Soldier's tomb here in the village. It opened by us marching into place before the tomb. Then we fired three shots apiece from the firing squad over the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The mayor addressed the crowd and a chorus of small girls sang the Belgian National Anthem, as we stood at attention. . . . Mother I really enjoyed your last letter of 18 pages. My friends said they didn't see how you could do it. Goodbye, love, Arville R. Seiffert.

August 26, 1945.—Sgt. Jesse Meacham, who is with the Fifth Army in Italy, recently was awarded the Bronze Star for heroic achievement, which action is described in the citation which accompanied the award . . . Sgt. Meacham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Meacham of Turkey, a squad leader, is in the 81st Division and has been in Italy many months. . . . His outfit helped to whip the Germans and conquer Italy . . . The sergeant's wife, Mrs. Glenn Meacham, lives at Turkey and Children . . . Captain Jesse L. Meacham, Sergeant Infantry, United States Army, for heroic achievement in action on March 1, 1945, near Frazzato Sassano, Italy, while leading a mule train with vital supplies for his battalion, Sgt. Meacham performed most courageously. The mule train was subjected to extremely heavy enemy fire, causing the Italian mule-tenders to take cover. He, disregarding all personal safety, immediately braved the intense fire to round up the badly scattered and frightened mules. He reorganized the mule-tenders, who, inspired by his courageous actions, returned to their mules and resumed the trip. Although subjected to constant enemy harassing artillery fire, Sgt. Meacham ably guided the mule train to its destination, with its vital cargo, losing only one mule. His courageous loyalty to duty in the face of overwhelming enemy artillery fire reflects great credit on himself and becomes the highest traditions of the U. S. Army. Entered military service from Turkey, Texas, signed: R. E. S. Williamson, Brigadier General, U. S. Army Commanding . . .

Stress Contributes To Illness

Stress may be the greatest single contributor to illness in the 20th century. Stress is an internal stimulation that results from a mismatch between your expectations and the likelihood of achieving them. If the gap between expectations and the real world is small, you can mobilize your energies and use your skills to bridge it. If the gap is too wide, you mobilize the energy anyway—finding no way to release it. You become frustrated and turn all this psychic energy against yourself. You lose the sense that you can control or influence your environment. You become increasingly susceptible to the whole range of physical and mental disease—from tension headaches, heartburn and anxiety attacks to ulcers, heart disease and depression.

The crucial issue is how you deal with potentially stressful situations. If you tend to be "thin-skinned" and overreact to common situations, your body overreacts as well and produces unnecessarily large amounts of stimulating hormones. During a stressful phone call, for example, you could produce the same amount of hormones necessary to run up a flight of stairs with a heavy suitcase in each hand. Your body pays a very high price if this is the way you handle simple situations.

You can change the way you deal with stress. Learn to deal appropriately with potentially stressful situations. Be productive without being self-destructive. Here are some ways to get started. (1) Take control of your life. Pick one aspect you'd like to improve. As you begin to make gains in this area, branch out to another. (2) Set realistic goals for yourself, then organize them according to your priorities. Remember, if you set impossible goals, you're sure to fail. (3) Control the events in your life. Act as though you have only six months to live. Do only the things you have to do and the things you like to do. Eliminate the rest. (4) Don't overbook your life—and don't let others overbook it for you. Learn to say "no" when requests for your time and energy are not in your best interests as you see them. (5) Strike a balance. Spend "quality time" at work and play, with friends, family and self. (6) Eliminate the words "should" and "must" from your vocabulary. They represent demands others have placed on you. Use instead the goals and priorities you've set for yourself. (7) The next time you "fly off the handle" about a minor incident, ask yourself "Do I really need to get so upset about it?"—Perhaps rage is an unnecessary emotion if a little anger will do instead. (8) Spread out stressful events. Allow yourself time to relax. (9) Keep a healthy mind in a healthy body. Make exercise a part of your life. (10) Share the important thoughts and concerns in your life with those who are close to you. Sharing dispels fears and attracts support. If you feel there is no one with whom you can share, try your family physician.

As you improve the quality of your own life, attempt to enrich the lives of others around you. In doing so, you may achieve an even higher level of fulfillment.

—Dora Crandall Stubbs, M. D.

Cotton is Going Back to School

More than 40 million elementary and high school students are returning to public school and millions more are returning to private schools and college, and cotton—always a hot seller—is part of the action.

"Cotton is well represented in the back-to-school scene and this offers much opportunity to cotton growers," said Libby Clark, Cotton Incorporated Director of Merchandising in New York.

The really big sellers, Ms. Clark said, are the basic all-cotton blue jeans. Manufacturers are working overtime to produce jeans as stores are restocking; demand currently outstrips supply.

Dean Christian, a spokesman for Levi Strauss and Co. in San Francisco, said jeans sales have increased 20 percent this year and the trend is expected to continue into the holidays and beyond. Sales of the 100 percent cotton, five-pocket, button-fly 501 jeans are especially brisk.

Blue jeans are the biggest users of U. S. Upland cotton. Last year, 880,000 bales were used; cotton represented 87 percent of retail purchases (by weight) of the total jeans market, up from 80 percent in 1975.

Cotton Incorporated is also working with Levi's on a major new corduroy product—a 100 percent cotton five-pocket button-fly which will be introduced in key urban markets this month. This product marks the first time Levi's is using the Seal of Cotton in promotions, Ms. Clark said.

"This all-cotton corduroy and another version with a zipper front is expected to continue the momentum for all-cotton in this otherwise lackluster market," she said.

China Sets Up European Distribution

China's efforts to set up distribution in Europe is just one of many challenges that Cotton Incorporated's new director of international marketing in London will have to tackle.

Brian Jones, formerly director of product and process research for Cotton Incorporated in Raleigh, returned to his native England August 1 to work with Norman Shwartz, manager, Europe. The two will work to expand markets for U. S. cotton by providing technical liaison and marketing services to European mills.

Ira Livingston, Cotton Incorporated vice president of international marketing, said China is still establishing itself in the Far Eastern market, but is making efforts to capture increased share of the European market.

In 1984, U. S. cotton represented roughly one million bales out of about five million consumed in Europe. In the Far East, U. S. cotton represented about four out of eight million bales consumed. The export market represents roughly 55 percent of the total U. S. crop.

The United States continues to be the No. 1 supplier of cotton to both Europe and the Far East, Livingston said.

"As the importance of exports grows for the U. S., it will be necessary for Cotton Incorporated to expand its activities in the international market so that we can establish additional contracts with other large textile markets both in countries that we are already working in and new areas," he said.

Since offices were opened in London and Osaka in 1982, Cotton Incorporated has been the only company that offers technical service, marketing services, new products and fashion ideas to international textile mills.

School bells ring! It's again for buying pencils, notebooks, new jeans and more, and handing out money. If this is your child's first day of school, his first day of school is a milestone in his life. You, as a parent, play an important role in your child's lifelong learning. Encourage your child's confidence in dealing with new people, classmates and new situations. Help your child's attitudes toward the school and learning. Help your child's separation from the home and family show a positive experience. Your child's first day of school is your greatest gift to your child.

Prepare your child by discussing his questions about school with him. Remember that as adults, we must not fear new situations and people. A kindergarten student is just as anxious about his first day of school as a college freshman about his first day on campus. Treat going to school as a normal part of the growing up. Be understanding of his feelings and encourage him to overcome his difficulties, but remember, he doesn't have to go to school if he doesn't like it.

Your positive attitude, encouragement and support will help your child feel excited by this new challenge and build his confidence in accepting future opportunities.

Prepare your child by answering his questions about school honestly. Discuss his concerns about school with him. Remember that as adults, we many times fear new situations and new people. A kindergarten student is just as anxious about his first day of school as a college freshman is about his first day on campus.

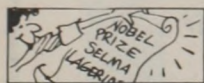

Treat going to school as a normal part of the events of growing up. Be understanding of his feelings and encouraging about his difficulties, but remember, he doesn't have the option of not going to school if he doesn't like it.

Your positive attitude, enthusiasm and support will help him feel excited by this new challenge and build his confidence in accepting future opportunities.

If you are interested in being a community chairperson or would simply like to do volunteer work, contact the Muscular Dystrophy Association office at 1713 South Avondale, Amarillo, Texas 79106 or call 806-359-3141.

Clothing Costs Require Careful Shopping

In spite of the heat wave outside, shoppers will be flocking into air-conditioned stores this month to buy back-to-school wardrobes, dress-for-success suits, and other fall clothing.

According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist Becky Saunders, what they'll find in the stores is high prices.

"Clothing prices increased at a lower rate than prices for other items over the last few years," she says. "But when the effect of inflation is removed, U. S. Department of Agriculture figures show the percentage of personal expenditures for clothing and shoes is at a 25-year high."

Annual spending for clothing and shoes is now estimated at $588 per person.

Part of the increased spending for clothes is due to higher prices, and part is because we're buying more clothes than in the past, she explains.

Clothing industry figures also show that the number of small children who are outfitted for school is growing at a fast pace, Mrs. Saunders says. This is probably due to the increasing numbers of working mothers who enroll their children in nursery schools and more money available for clothing in smaller families with two incomes.

The specialist points out that while many shoppers are interested in cutting their clothing costs, they also want quality, and are willing to pay for it.

She suggests a few simple steps to insure you get the most for your clothing dollar:

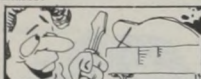

- Before you begin to shop, know what you already have that is wearable. Consider fit, needed repairs and appropriateness of the clothes you have now.

- Figure out what you need in terms of types of clothing, colors, and fabrics. Cut fabric swatches so you can match items you already own.

- Get organized for shopping. Set a budget and shop with a list.
- Remember that separates are a relatively inexpensive way to extend a wardrobe, since items can be mixed and matched.

- It doesn't cost anything to try on "trendy" clothes, but be careful when you buy them. Make sure the clothing is suitable for you, and that the trend is new, rather than on the way out.

- Try on every item of clothing you plan to buy. This is important both for children and adults. Sizes are often little more than a guideline since they vary too much from manufacturer to manufacturer to be entirely reliable.

The minimum time needed to tune a piano is one hour and thirty minutes.

The best way to suppose what may come is to remember what is past.

HOMEOWNER LOSES ALL IN FORECLOSURE

When a home burns or is flooded, insurance provides protection for the owner, but in foreclosure, the homeowner loses all—initial investment, equity and the house itself.

That's the unfortunate situation in which an increasing number of Texans are finding themselves, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"Appreciation in home value has been stalled by low inflation," she says, "and many homeowners who are forced to sell because they can't make payments find they have to accept much less for their home than they paid for it."

When proceeds from a sale won't cover the original mortgage debt, the owner faces a total loss, the specialist points out. Some pay cash to make up the difference between their selling price and the amount necessary to pay off the mortgage.

Other homeowners walk away from the home, rather than pumping in additional money to pay off the mortgage. In this case, the lender has no recourse but to foreclose, Dr. Berry explains.

"Many people bought houses and condominiums when interest rates were high through builder buydowns," notes the specialist. Builders artificially lowered interest rates for the first few years of the loan by adding the "buydown" costs into home loans.

As the interest rate and monthly payments increased, some of these homeowners found themselves with lower incomes or without a job. The result was high foreclosure rate in many areas, she remarks.

"There's no quick-fix in sight," Dr. Berry observes, "but mortgage lenders are in the process of tightening lending requirements to avoid risky mortgages."

She warns prospective home buyers that they will find it more difficult and more costly to secure financing, as the lending industry evaluates buydowns, negative amortization, variable rate mortgages and other "creative" financing devices which have contributed to this rush of foreclosures.

Children's Eating Habits Can Be Source Of Worry For Parents

A child's eating habits can be a source of constant worry for parents.

If you think your child overeats, undereats, is overweight or too thin, it's a good idea to check with your family doctor. A physician can use growth charts and medical tests to determine your child's growth rate. If the child is found to be growing well with no weight problems, you can stop worrying.

Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says children often go on eating jags, eating mostly one or a few foods for several days.

"Eating jags are usually temporary," Dr. Cooksey says, "so continue offering good nutritious food in a pleasing way."

When a child doesn't eat much, this may be a normal "slow-down" stage of growth. Eating will increase as nutrient needs increase, she explains.

If obesity is a problem, check to see whether your child is eating too many high fat or sweet foods, or just too much food. Are snacks nutritious or do they contribute excess calories? Does your child get enough exercise? Is too much time spent at quiet activities that use few calories?
