Caprock Country Christmas Time

by Edie Sargent

It's time once again to start thinking about Quitauque's annual event, Caprock Country Christmas. This year the event will be held on December 3, 1994. Folks that's less than a month away!

There are several events planned for this special day. There is room for more. Some of the events that are being organized are: Cinnamon rolls & coffee served by We The Women, an Arts & Crafts Show, a Bake Sale, Lunch at the Community Center, Cow Pattie Bingo, Buggy Rides, Book sale at the library and of course Santa will be in town.

This year two new items have been added to the agenda that are going to be wonderful additions but, volunteers are needed for these. One is a live Nativity Scene held in the downtown Mini Park. The other event is carolers set up in a wagon. If you're interested in either of these or anything to do with this enjoyable event and helping it come about, please contact Edie Sargent at 455-1218 or P. J. Baker at 455-1272.

It is time to update the calendar that We The Women put out for the community of Quitauque.

If you have any additions or if you know of someone whose name should be taken off the calendar for any reason, please let the club know.

Please call Marj Boyles at 455-1195 or Delene Tyler at 455-1109 with this new information as soon as possible.

THEN and NOW!

by Eunice McFall

Friday is a day set aside in the United States to honor all the Veterans of the Armed Services of America. We should somehow show our appreciation to all of these dedicated people who have given so very much of their lives so that we can live here in America in a peaceful atmosphere. Those who have survived did so in conditions that we probably could not even imagine. We do need to show honor to these men and women who have tried to keep our way of life here in the good old USA with the same choices that all of our forefathers had to choose from.

We cannot always repay someone that has done a great service to us but we can always help someone else. This week in the November Bits & Pieces I read the following which I think would apply to this philosophy.

"There's an old Chinese proverb that says 'You cannot prevent the birds of sorrow from flying over your head, but you can prevent them from building nests in your hair.'

"The famous psychiatrist, Dr. Karl Menninger, would agree with that. We once told this story about him:

"Menninger had just finished a lecture on mental health and was answering questions from the audience.

"What would you advise a person to do," asked one man, "if that person felt a nervous breakdown coming on."

"Most people expected him to reply, 'Consult a psychiatrist.' To their surprise, he replied, 'Lock up your house, go across the railway tracks, find someone in need, and do something to help that person.'

"Recently we discovered a story by Alexander Woolcott that points out what can happen when such advice is followed.

"A nurse found herself one day attempting to console a grief-stricken mother who had just lost her only child. The woman was sitting in stunned silence, gazing blindly into space as tears streamed down her cheeks.

"Mrs. Norris,' the nurse asked her, 'have you noticed the little boy sitting in the hall next to your daughter's room?'

"Mrs. Norris had not.

"There,' said the nurse, 'is a case.' She pointed out that the little boy's mother had been brought to the hospital in an ambulance about a week earlier from a shabby one-room apartment where she and the boy had lived since their arrival in this country from Europe three months before. The nurse had learned that the mother and son had no family. They had lost all their people in the old country and knew nobody here. They only had each other. Every day, the nurse explained, the little boy kept a vigil at his mother's side, hoping that she would come out of her coma. 'She never will,' the nurse said to Mrs. Norris. 'Death has taken her along with your daughter.'

"Now it is my duty,' said the nurse, 'to go out and tell that little fellow that, at the age of seven, he is all alone in the world.' She paused, then turned plaintively to Mrs. Norris. I don't suppose,' she said hesitantly, 'that you could go out and tell him for me?'

"Mrs. Norris stood up, dried her tears, walked out into the hall, and put her arms around the boy. She had found someone in need and did something about it. The next day she brought the homeless boy to her childless home. In the darkest moment of their lives, a grief-stricken mother and a little boy became beacons of love and hope for each other."

Can't we go out and honor our Veterans in the same way by helping someone who is in need today?

Basic Facts About Water

by Ronda Alexander

You probably know the basic facts about water, such as all living things need water to live, but did you know that almost 80% of the earth's surface is covered with water. You would think that we wouldn't have any problems with having enough water! But you're wrong.

Salt water comprises 97% of the water on earth. It is filled with salt and other minerals. Because of the difficulty and expense required to remove the salt, it is not an alternative for human consumption. 2% of the water on earth is glacier ice at the North and South Pole. The ice is fresh water and could be melted for drinking water. However, it is too far away from where people live to be usable. Less than 1% of all the water on earth is fresh water, that we can actually use. This small amount of water is used for drinking, transportation, heating and cooling, industry and numerous other purposes.

Each day, about 42 billion gallons of clean drinking water are produced by public water systems in the US and Canada. The average person in North America uses 176 gallons of water per day.

Water is a valuable natural resource that is shared by everyone. We must use it wisely. If you have ideas for water conservation, write them down and enter them in the contest which is being sponsored by the Executive Board of the Briscoe County Extension Program Council. Categories include: a Youth Essay contest on the "Best Water Conservation Idea" and adult categories for the best water conservation idea in the area of Home Use, Agricultural Management Practices. Entries are due to the Briscoe County Extension Office by November 23. Prizes will be awarded at the "Conserve Our Water" conservation program on November 28. Veterans Day To Be Observed On Sacred Ground At Memorial Site

"In demanding justice from the government we served, we veterans simply have to become more vocal," said Gregory C. Reed.

On November 11, Reed will have a pulpit to lay that challenge on his fellow veterans, when he addresses a crowd expected to reach 400 at Veterans Day Observances November 11 at the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Vietnam Veterans National Memorial in Angel Fire, New Mexico.

"Some powerful politicians in Washington are doing it again, talking out of both sides of their mouths about veterans," said Reed, a combat-wounded Vietnam veteran and National 1st Junior Vice Commander of the 1.2 million-member DAV.

"When speaking publicly, they fill the air with praise for our patriotism and virtue and willingness to risk death in defense of liberty," explained Reed. "Privately, however, in darkened rooms where deals are cut they compare us to welfare recipients and attack veterans' programs in overzealous attempts to reduce federal spending."

Even as U.S. forces are put in harm's way in Haiti and other trouble spots around the globe, Reed said, powerful forces in Washington are attempting to dismantle programs that provide medical care and other benefits earned by men and women who selflessly served their country.

"Such efforts to cut veterans' benefits--all in the name of fiscal constraint--served as vivid examples of callousness and contempt among some government leaders," Reed said.

Each year for more than two decades, thousands of veterans from all wars, their families and friends have made the pilgrimage to the beauty and majesty of the DAV Vietnam Veterans National Memorial to reflect on the high cost of war, to mourn our nation's warriors lost in Vietnam and to celebrate those who survived.

In addition to taking part in the special Veterans Day observances, visitors will be able to tour the spiritually moving memorial chapel and the 6,000square foot visitors center and exhibit area.

All facilities at the memorial are totally accessible to persons with disabilities. The visitors center and exhibit area feature pictorial displays, art, sculpture, banners and flags, as well as an interactive, computer-based audiovisual information and education exhibit. This exhibit, unveiled last year, give visitors access to film footage, photographs, television, and newspaper and magazine reports about the Vietnam War. Also featured is biographical information on the more than 58,000 Americans who died in Vietnam.

Saul Record Broken After Eight Years

In the fall of 1986, Valley Patriot, Kirk Saul, set a national record by throwing 54 touchdown passes. Saul was the Valley quarterback.

Recently a quarterback from Male High School in Louisville, Kentucky set a national high school record for touchdown passes in a season. Chris Redman increased his total to 56 by throwing for five scores in a 76-6 playoff victory over Louisville Holy Cross.

All Valley fans will long remember the record Coach Saul set with his tremendous and accurate arm. Kirk is now coaching at Valley.

Teachers Attend IBM Workshop

On October 24-26, Valley teachers K-6 participated in a IBM Computer workshop for an innovative writing program called Write-To-Write.

Cecil Fuller, IBM Instructor, conducted the 18 hour workshop preparing teachers 3-6 in a Writing-To-Write form 2-4.

Valley has had form I of this program for a year. Write-To-Write is a comprehensive writing program designed to teach elementary school students the skills required to write effectively and competently about a wide range of subjects. ## Red Ribbon Week Observed

Students at Valley School were busy during Red Ribbon Week participating in many activities. The Valley Student Council sponsored a half-time activity at the football game on Friday, October 21st and distributed red ribbons to elementary students.

Tuesday morning, students in grades six through twelve participated in "Death Day". In a twenty-four hour period, there are 69 alcohol-related automobile crashes resulting in death. Sixty-nine Valley students were dead for a day as symbolized by their faces being painted white. The students were not allowed to talk to anyone but teachers for a full day. They were required to eat at a special table for the dead at lunch time. At the end of the day, students were re-assembled and reactions given by various persons. Comments were, "I was really lonely"; "I realize drinking doesn't only effect me but my whole family" along with many others. One student shared a personal tragedy involving drugs that resulted in the death of a friend.

Meiers-Long Funeral Home was gracious enough to provide a casket for display during "Death Day." Students were reminded that "drinking and driving don't mix and alcohol and drug use may result in death."

Students in kindergarten through second grade dressed their favorite stuffed animal in red and included a drug-free message. Winners were Zack Ramsey, Jose Pozos, Chelsea Wheeler, Cody Barrett, Larisa Payne and Erica Gujosa. Third through sixth graders made drug-free posters. The winners were Rowdy Mullin, Douglas Payne and Jessica Wellman.

Rhonda Cochran, counselor, visited all grade levels during the week. The kindergarten through third graders had a visit from her bear friend, Spinoza. Spinoza told them how special they were and asked them to pledge to stay drug-free.

Fourth through eighth graders discussed making wise choices and healthy ways to cope with problems. The high school students watches a film entitled "Alcohol and Human Physiology". Students were given information on the disease of alcoholism and made aware of help available.

The culmination of the week's events was the Red Ribbon Talent Show on Friday morning. Talent included singing, dancing, cheers, piano solos, guitar instruments, imitations, dancing by student council, Hawaiian entertainers, a light show by the varsity cheerleaders and Rick and his unknown lady friends. He must have looked far and wide to find those beauties!!!! The event was fun and entertaining. Some of the Valley Students have "Stardom" in their futures!

During the week, students wore red ribbons and were given stickers to stress the theme "Drug-Free Begins With Me." It is hoped that all students realized that You Can Have a Lot of Fun and Be Drug Free!!!

Flood-Damaged Cars On Market

With flood waters subsided in Southeast Texas, flood-damaged used cars and trucks will soon enter the used vehicle market, the Texas Automobile Dealers Association warned today. Although such vehicles may show few signs of flood damage, they may have serious problems even after they are cleaned.

To detect flood damage, TADA suggests the following precautions:

1. Carefully examine the vehicle's interior and engine for any evidence of water and grit from suspected immersion.
2. Check under the dashboard and car seats for dried mud and residue.
3. Check upholstery, carpeting and the trunk for any unusual traces of mildew, mold or musty odors.
4. Under the hood, examine the engine closely for residue in crevices on the alternator, starter motor, power steering pump, relays and behind the wiring harness.
5. Look for unusually heavy or widespread rust.

Vehicles with only minor damage might be reasonably restored but for most flood damaged vehicle, such restoration can be time-consuming and expensive. TADA advises consumers to check the vehicle, its title and have a qualified service technician check it, too.

To restore a flood-damaged vehicle, all systems must be dried, cleaned, and resealed or lubricated to remove contamination and to prevent rust and system failure.

It is always a mistake not to close one's eyes, whether to forgive or to look better into oneself.

Retirement Plans Are Important

By Social Security Manager
 The concept of retirement is undergoing a radical change. A person approaching age 65 today has a life expectancy of 85. At the turn of the century, the average life expectancy was 47. Healthier lifestyles and medical advances are making it possible for older people to continue to be productive far longer.
 One result is that retirement planning is becoming more important than ever if for no other reason than you have to plan for a longer period of time. It is becoming increasingly clear that the basis for a successful retirement is most often found in the level of planning that goes into the retirement decision. This means that the young worker needs to understand the role that Social Security, the company pension, and his own private initiatives should play in providing for retirement.

Since the Social Security program was launched in 1935, social planners have viewed retirement income as a three legged stool consisting of Social Security as one leg, private pensions as another, and savings and investments, including insurance, as a third. Social Security provides the anchor leg, the source of income guaranteed by government to everyone who works and pays Social Security taxes. The worker is supposed to use the other two to build up a level of income consistent with his or her lifestyle.
 Most experts agree that people need about 80 percent of their pre-retirement earnings to maintain their lifestyle in retirement. Social Security replaces about 42 percent
