BAIRD LIONS ELECT OFFICERS

Last week the program period of the Lions Club Luncheon hour was taken up with the election of new officers for the coming year. Even though the Lions Club is a non-political organization it developed at this meeting that there several shrewd politicians members of the organization. This was demonstrated when Lion Cal Wright made a very sensational nominating speech for a proposed candidate for the official position, "Lion Taitwister" and ended up being unanimously elected himself, Lion Earnest Settle was elected to guide the destiny of the organization when the official position of "Lion President" was conferred upon him.

The election was conferred upon him. Lion Ben F. Russell Jr. was elected, Vice-President and owing to the fact, it was explained that he would have nothing to do, he cheerfully accepted the honor, as did Ace Hickman when nominated for 2nd Vice-President. Lion Lewis, who has served an unexpired term as secretary was re-elected without opposition. The official office of the "Lion Tamer" was filled by the efficient Lion, J. E. Robert and that's the way the situation stands. Next meeting the "Work of the Boy Scouts" will be the business.

NORTH AND SOUTH HIGHWAY PROPOSED

Some months ago a move was started by the Chamber of Commerce to obtain a north and south Highway through Callahan County and a system of first class all-weather lateral roads throughout the county. Several meetings were held at Baird, Clyde, Putnam and Cross Plains but the first plans had to be changed in order to obtain the necessary state highway designation. On April 5th, a part of the Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Judge B. L. Russell, W. S. Hinds, T. E. Powell, L. L. Blackburn, B. L. Boydston and James Asbury met with Commissioner Geo. Clifton and a number of representative citizens of Cross Plains and vicinity to discuss the Good Road Program. At this meeting it was decided to call a meeting inviting several citizens from each voting precinct to be present for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the county in general before attempting to work out a definite road program. The general county meet was held April 11th, at the Chamber of Commerce Building and the following towns and communities were represented: Baird, Belle Plain, Cottonwood, Clyde, Cross Plains, Admiral Putnam, Eula, Caddo Peak Dudley, Dressy, Rowden and Denton. These present only voiced the personal opinions, however, they believed that if the people of the different communities were shown that they would get good all-weather roads in the main parts of the county which would enable them to get to and from their trading centers and to the main highways, the majority of the voters would favor the road bond issue.

At this meeting, as well as all others that have been held in the past, the Baird delegation stated that they had no desire, in any way, dictate the program to be carried out or as to the location of the roads and that they had nothing to cover up. A county wide system of good roads with a north and south Highway was the plan in general and to work in harmony with a fair deal for all parts of the county was their suggestion.

At the meeting Thursday night, April 11th, four committees were appointed, (one for each Commissioner's Precinct) the committees composed of two men from each voting box in the precinct. Their duty was to work out a system of lateral roads that would meet with the approval of majority of the voters if possible in their territory. A General County Steering Committee was also appointed consisting of five from each precinct. This committee will be called together when the Precinct committees are ready to report and will assist in working out the General Road Program for the County. If a satisfactory program can be agreed upon and election will be called immediately.

The following Committees were appointed at the meeting Thursday night:
Precinct No. 1, L. L. Blackburn, Chairman, Baird;
W. E. Melton, Baird; R. B. Stephenson, Eula; R. L. Jolly, Eula; R. H. Morrissett, Lanham; R. E. Clemer, Lanham; D. B. Hollis, Clyde; W. E. Slater, Clyde.

SPRING SHOWING OF GENERAL MOTORS ARS

A nationwide exhibition of all General Motors passenger cars, to take place during the week beginning April 20th and ending April 27th, was an innovation announced today by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President, General Motors. The exhibition is to be known as the General Motors Spring Showing, and from the plans already outlined promises to be the largest and most comprehensive showing in the history of the automotive industry.

Twenty-three thousand General Motors dealers, are to participate in the event, each acting as an individual exhibitor of the line of cars the merchandises in his particular location. Allotting a minimum of five display cars for each dealer, his will mean that during the week more than 125,000 General Motors cars will be on view simultaneously. The event will be suitably announced by nationwide magazine, newspaper and outdoor advertising. The operation's Motor car divisions—Caddillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Oakland and Chevrolet are co-operating to make this Spring Showing a memorable event.

For two years past General Motors has sponsored special showings at the time of the National Automobile Shows in New York and Chicago in which its entire line of products has been represented. These events have produced a great impression and have attracted an attendance comparable with that of the National Shows themselves. Recognizing the public's interest in these undertakings, it is decided that the various communities all over the country would appreciate similar showings in their own locations. Thus the idea of Spring Week was conceived and by means of it General Motors will in effect bring a miniature automobile show to every community, thereby emphasizing the fact that within its own organization there is a car for every purpose.

In commenting upon this program, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President, General Motors, said:

"I am sure that General Motors has every reason to feel proud of the accomplishment of our organization as evidenced by the products which we are exhibiting in every community of the country as a part of our 'Spring Showing Week.' Our organization has worked industriously and conscientiously and with every facility at its command, in the development of the products presented. They have not been the result of a month's or year's effort. On the contrary they represent accumulated experience of a large staff who have been intensively studying each individual part of the problem for a great many years. It is only through such accumulated experience or actual contact with the problem that the present result is possible. Every time I look at the modern motor car and consider the value that the public receives, I am always impressed with what this great industry has accomplished during the relatively few years of its existence. Irrespective, however, of how General Motors products may be appraised today, our organization has constantly before it the General Motors policy of offering increasing value, through evolution, as circumstances make possible. By striving always for something better something better will surely result. As a matter of fact, I think that this spirit has a great deal to do with the tremendous prosperity that this country is enjoying."

COMPLETES FIRST NEW MODEL REFRIGERATOR

The W. B. Williams Planing Mills in Cross Plains has completed, this week and have on display at their factory, the first of the new model grocery and vegetable display refrigerators, a description of which was given in our last issue. Material and parts are fast being assembled in completion of others. In our last week's mention of the new invention, not being supplied with full information, we failed to state that W. B. Stringer, manager of the local Atlantic & Pacific grocery, was the inventor and patentee of the new system. The Williams Planing Mills will manufacture them and otherwise be interested in advancement of the enterprise.

The endorsement of the merits of this refrigerator by many traveling grocery salesmen who have inspected it may lead to its immediate popular demand, and will result in a bog factory being maintained in Cross Plains to handle the production.—Cross Plains Review.

Knockout Ended Duel Between Rival Hares

An English naturalist describes a duel which he witnessed in the moonlight between two hares, the cause of their dissension being a third, which was a female that went on nibbling grass during the encounter without paying the least attention to the contest. The battlers were facing each other in a real fighting attitude, their forepaws held in front looking like human fists. Standing on their haunches these two fighters went all out. They boxed in fine style, their little "fists" darting in and out like flashes. Some blows were cleverly parried, others went well home, and as they fought footwork was not absent, for they circled round, but always faced each other. One lost his balance and sprang lightly aside, to be instantly followed up, and the punching was renewed. Apart from the soft noise of the blows going home there was no sound. The end came quickly. It was almost a knockout, but I am afraid our rules would have put it down as a foul. One hare slipped down, landing on all four feet, and quick as lightning his opponent turned and gave him a kick that landed him many yards away.

Black Cats and Evil Linked in All Ages

That verdict rendered against a Lynn (Mass.) woman charged, among other things, with having undertaken by her formulas "to still crying babies and fighting cats with equal ease," calls up a chapter in the lore of popular beliefs to which every age contributes new material. And for sheer interest it is the pugilistic felines, not the lachrymose infants, which take the cake. That black cats portend evil is a delusion that goes back to the most ancient times; so, white or black, they have everywhere been the material for all sorts of superstitions. In the Orient cats have knowledge of the future ascribed to them, along with a sensitiveness which can penetrate into things dark for the eye of man. When the cat tears at cushions or carpets it is believed to be raising the wind. There is sure to be changing weather if it sneezes, and a frost may be looked for when the animal sits with its back to the fire.

Stern Colonial Laws Barred All "Frippery"

Many laws that seem queer to us now were passed in Colonial times, among them the following, issued by the general court of Massachusetts in 1639:

"Whereas, there is much complaint of the excessive wearing of lace and other superfluities tending to little use or benefit, but to the nourishment of pride and the exhausting of men's estates, and also of evil examples to others; 'tis therefore ordered by the court, and decreed, that henceforth no person whatsoever shall presume to buy or sell within this jurisdiction any manner of lace to be worn or used within our limits. And that no taller, or any other person whatsoever, shall hereafter set any lace or points upon any garment, either linen, woolen, or any other wearing clothes whatsoever, and that no person hereafter shall be employed in making any manner of lace, but such as shall and will transport the same out of this jurisdiction, who in such case shall have the liberty to buy the same.

"And that hereafter no garment shall be made with short sleeves, whereby the nakedness of their arms may be discovered in the wearing thereof, and such as already have garments made with short sleeves shall not, hereafter, wear the same, unless they cover the arms to the wrist with linen or otherwise. And that hereafter no person shall make any garment for women with sleeves more than half an ell wide in the widest place thereof, and so proportionable for larger or smaller persons."—Kansas City Star.

Vegetable and Animal Life in Death Valley

Death valley, in California, long reputed to be one of the most lifeless areas on the face of the earth, is not so barren as scientists believed. A group of plant and animal life recently returned from having made the first comprehensive survey of the plant and animal life inhabiting the floor of Death valley. And their report upsets much tradition long firmly rooted in the public mind.

A summary of Death valley's plant and animal resources now scientifically and officially recorded includes 135 different species of plants, trees and shrubs; 24 different kinds of birds, 12 reptiles, 1 fish, 233 varieties of insects, and numerous mammals.

The sole representative of the fish group recorded upon the floor of North America's greatest sub-sea level depression is a small minnow scientifically designated as Cyprinodon Macularius. This creature inhabits the salt marshes and salt water springs of Death valley. The mammals represented range in size from the bighorn sheep (Ovis Nelsoni), which come down upon the floor of the valley from their natural habitat in the neighboring Panamint and Funeral mountains; on down to coyotes, rabbits, moles, mice and shrews.

Narrowing Gulf

The gulf of California, the narrow arm of the sea just south of our southwestern border, seems to be gradually disappearing from the map. Recent surveys show that the peninsula of Lower California is widening and that the gulf is growing more shallow each year.

The phenomenon was first noted more than 200 years ago by the Jesuit priests who were the earliest colonizers of the peninsula. About thirty years ago a scientifically inclined inhabitant planted a number of palm trees about ten feet from the shore of the sea. His trees are now more than one hundred yards inland. Twenty years ago there was considerable crossing with large boats is somewhat dangerous.

Mrs. Goldman had recently engaged a new maid. She was a thoroughly good girl, truthful, honest, very willing and obliging, but she lacked tact.

One evening, when her mistress was going out to dinner and the theater afterwards, the maid noticed that a rope of pearls was missing.

"Oh, madam," she cried, "where are your lovely pearls tonight?" "I'm not wearing them, Winnie," replied Mrs. Goldman. "I don't fancy them tonight."

"Oh, what a pity, ma'am!" exclaimed the new maid wistfully. "Ah!" they make you look like a real lady!"

Beware of Toadstools

Toadstools are the same as mushrooms, though in popular use the name "toadstool" is applied to those kinds that are poisonous or supposed to be poisonous, and the name "mushroom" to those that are edible. There is no general rule for distinguishing poisonous from edible mushrooms. The best plan is to make a thorough study of the essential characteristics of a few of the most deadly, like the Amanitas, and the most common edible, like the Agarics. Only when you have thoroughly mastered this should you attempt mushroom picking.

We Can't Have Everything

A few days ago, Ruth, age four, was having her hair curled, as she was preparing to "go visiting." Ruth enjoys the process, but, of course, it was rather monotonous for her mother, who had to do all the work.

"Ruth, I wish your hair had a few natural curls in it," said the mother beginning to lose patience. "Well, mother, I guess I can't have everything," sighed Ruth. "You see, I have a pretty face."

Great Artist's Pipes Prized as Art Relics

One does not often hear of a smoker's pipes being ranked among art relics. The date of the introduction of tobacco precludes them from boasting of remote antiquity of origin, though your smoker who makes the coloring of a pipe a solemn ritual may have very pronounced views on its artistic claims. Nor is his point of view ignored by the fine arts authorities, for, adjacent to a rich collection of snuff boxes, there may be seen at the museum of decorative arts, in the Louvre, a number of well-seasoned pipes, most of which must have belonged to hearty smokers. Perhaps the most noteworthy are a couple of briars which belonged to the painter Corot. It is said that he smoked these pipes while painting several of his greatest works, and if so they have a legitimate claim to distinction. Pipes attributed to illustrious men are not uncommonly met with elsewhere in Paris, usually in cafes which were frequented by the great, but they are sometimes of doubtful authenticity. Verilaine, for instance, would appear to have left a pipe in almost every cafe he frequented, and these were many.—From the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

Pleasure and Profit in Scorpion Hunting

One of the most peculiar hunting expeditions on record is that which takes place at more or less regular intervals in the town of Mardine, in Asia Minor. The town is surrounded by ancient walls built to protect it from invaders, and hidden in various places in these walls are hordes of scorpions which often become a menace to the population. In order to keep down the number of these pests, said to be death-dealing, a bonus is offered by the municipality and regular hunts are organized. The hunters take place at night when the hunters, armed with lanterns, poke around the walls and dislodge the scorpions. The next day they carry them to the town officials and collect the money due them as a reward. It frequently happens that they must wait upon the pleasure of that official, when they while away the time by making their ferocious captives engage in combat. Bets are made on the results, and it often happens that members of the waiting party have lost their money before they receive it.

The newcomers are confined in a glass case, two feet high, yet, when first put in, their horny heads were constantly tapping on the roof. Unlike other grasshoppers, they are carnivorous, feeding on meat and dead insects; instead of living amongst grass haunts damp caves. This species has never before been seen at the menagerie.

One Adequate Reason
"I'm gonna leave Saturday night," the cook announced. "Mrs. Curtis threw up her hands. "Gracious! But surely you won't leave on such short notice!" "Yes'm. I'm gonna leave Saturday night," the cook repeated. "But I don't understand. Why are you leaving?" "Just wantta leave." "But there must be some reason," Mrs. Curtis insisted. "Perhaps if you tell me we can fix it up and you can stay. Don't you like the work here?" "No'm," the cook confessed. "I don't like no work nowhere!"

In Bridal Attire

The rectory of a certain church is the scene of an unusual number of weddings due perhaps to the popularity of the rector and the beautiful service he reads, which impresses the couple being married with the solemnity of the vows being taken.

On a recent occasion the minister saw an amused look on the face of the bride, one almost bordering on a titter. He did not know the cause of it until the service ended when, on looking around, he saw his baby granddaughter Ann arrayed in a hat and other requisites of the bridal party.—Indianapolis News.

College Bills in 1835

Old documents brought to light at Brunswick, Maine, reveal extraordinary economic changes in undergraduate life at Bowdoin college. In 1835 the tuition for an entire year was placed at $24. A year's room rent cost only $10. board in the commons amounted to $49 a year, incidental charges on college bills totaled another $10. Miscellaneous small expenses incurred, such as those for wood, lights, washing, stationery, use of books and furniture, was rated at $30. The entire expense list for a year at Bowdoin came to less than $200.

Keep Ideals High

A famous artist strictly resolved not to look at silly or funny picture simply because when he himself wished to paint, all these funny pictures crossed his thoughts, and consequently they were interwoven in his work. Hence he made it a rule to look only at great masterpieces. By doing this he ever kept his mind full of great conceptions, and thus he found it much easier to paint great pictures himself. If people would only make it a rule to observe only that which is great and good, they would find it much easier to live a great and pure life.

Old Time Legal Date

Lady day was originally the name for all the days in the church calendar marking any event in the Virgin Mary's life, but now restricted to the feast of the annunciation, held on the twenty-fifth of March each year. Lady day was in medieval and later times the beginning of the legal year in England. In 1752 this was altered to the first of January, but the twenty-fifth of March remains one of the quarter days; though in some parts old Lady day, on the sixth of April, is still the date for rent paying.

Onions Always Popular

From the earliest times of which there are authentic records the onion has been highly esteemed as an article of food. In desert regions it was used also as a preventive of thirst by travelers and soldiers on the march. The original home of the plant of which there are many varieties, was probably southern Asia or the borders of the Mediterranean sea. Egyptians cultivated the onion at the dawn of history.—Detroit News.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To attain success, look back. This may appear to a large class of observers as the wrong kind of advice. Ordinarily, those who go forward must look forward. There is a certain kind of back-trailing, however, that is absolutely necessary to all progress, especially in the development of the community.

We sometimes hear the criticism that Santa Anna does not have this and that, and should have this and that, all of which may be sound reasoning because referring to the things that are highly desirable or thought highly desirable. Those who inject such lamentations into conversations concerning community betterment are not wholly to be censured for so doing. It is the wish or desire, coupled with cooperative action, that brings about the useful, the beautiful, the efficient and the distinctive things. These build a city. But those who engage in expressions of bare wishes are identical with those who fail to take note of the accomplishments already existing. They fail because likely they had no part in bringing such accomplishments about.

The past achievements of Santa Anna and vicinity in a public way represent the hard work and intensive study on the problems that confronted those who have gone before. Shall we discount the attainments of our predecessors, or shall we be glad that they left us this rich heritage of foundational achievements?

To carry out the idea just a little further, suppose that all of those who laid out and first built Santa Anna suddenly could walk among us and view our community in comparison with the only community they knew before. Would not their amazement be great? Out of gratitude for the developments and institutions of today they indeed would be slow to assume an attitude of indifference toward what we now have. On the other hand, they would be appreciative of the growth of the community up to this point, in happy comparison and contrast with that which they started.

Taking stock of what we have today and yesterday lends encouragement for greater community building tomorrow. Apathy manifested toward what-ever services our business, educational religious, industrial and agricultural systems can and do render at the present time tends to prevent the exercise of our highest abilities for the needs of the future.—Santa Anna News.

At Wills Point he founded the Wills Point Chronicle and later the Van Zandt. In 1900 he acquired the Athens Review and for more than seventeen years was editor and publisher of it.

WILD FLOWER CONTEST

Austin, Texas, April 15.—For the benefit of visitors attending the State meet of the Texas Interscholastic League at Austin May 3 and 4, the botany department of the University of Texas will arrange an exhibit of approximately 250 different kinds of fresh wild flowers native to Central Texas, according to Dr. B. C. Tharp, professor of botany and director of the League Wild Flower Contest.

This exhibit is being held to stimulate interest in Texas wild flower and to create in the school children of the State a desire to learn more about their native wild flowers. It is with this same end in view that the staff members of the department of botany are working with the University Interscholastic League Bureau to promote interest in the Texas Wild Flower Contest.

The Wild Flower Contest has been held a number of times prior to this year, but beginning in 1930 the rules applying to the contest will be changed to facilitate the carrying on of the work, according to Dr. Tharp; Until this year, the specimens have been gathered throughout the year, thus causing many contestants to lose their eligibility through lack of interest during hot summer months when school is not in session. This spring, however, the rules governing the contest were changed to include only flowers that blossom in the spring and early summer, so that each school may complete its exhibit for the following year by the time its session is over. No knowledge of botany is necessary either for the school children or for the teacher who is sponsoring the local contest, Dr. Tharp pointed out.

RED HEADED GIRLS ATHLETICALLY INCLINED

Red haired girls are more athletically inclined than their sister blondes and brunettes. At least this is the experience of Mrs. Helen Walker Murphy, director of physical training for girls at Texas Christian University here.

"I cannot think of a single instance in which a red haired girl is not an all around good sport, and loves to play at games as hard as she can."

A recent survey showed some 50 red haired students at T. C. U. Some of them enjoy being "sorrel-topped" and others think it is somewhat of a disadvantage.

"I think red hair is a disadvantage because it makes one conspicuous," says one student. Another observes: "I am satisfied with my red hair, but it is hard to keep freckles off and to get colors to match my complexion and hair."

"More girls seem to like hair than do men," one girl complains. About a quick temper going with red hair, one who possesses it says: "do not know that a red headed person has more temper than anyone else, but they have always been told that they do, so the decide that because of the color of their hair they have a special privilege to display temper."

"Ordinarily red headed people are rather individual," says Mrs. Sadie Beckham, supervisor of women at T. C. U. "Some of the red-heads are the sweetest girls I have."

My brother, if your business is bad, keep struggling a little harder; when it gets to its worst, give a shout of joy and buckle down to it with all your might, you will have the happy thought that it can't get worse than worst and if there is any change, it will be found to be for the better. We gleaned this thought from a magazine article we read this week. It is consoling. When things are at their worst they will get no "worse"—they have reached their limit, and that could be made a time for rejoicing.—Woodson Record.

Roman Bridges Excite Wonder of Engineers

Among the notable bridge-building achievements of history are those constructed in the days of the Roman empire, says a writer in the Detroit News. Some of them still are in use, to the amazement of engineers, while others stand in broken majesty, the results of earthquakes or of imposed human destruction, for the delight and wonder of all beholders.

The two bridges, which lead from the Forum side of Rome to the island in the Tiber and on to the Trastevere, or St. Peter's side, were built in the Second century, B. C. They have been used very much more than the Apian Way viaduct. They have stood there against frequent floods and constant usage these 2,000 years and they bid fair to keep on standing. The fine bridge across the Tiber, north of Rome, built to carry the Flaminian way northward, is another good example of a bridge more than 2,000 years old, which has seen steady and hard use and still appears as good as ever.

Diet for Sailors

The serving of proper food at sea has always presented great difficulty. People not familiar with naval service often wonder what the sailorman eats while away from port. In 1794 each man got one pound of bread, one pound of pork, one-half pint of beans or peas, four ounces of cheese and one-half pint of distilled spirits a day. As late as 1887 the diet was built around bread, salt, or pickled beef or pork, peas or beans, potatoes, cheese, sugar, coffee and tea. A typical breakfast of the up-to-date man-of-war consists of chilled grapefruit, french toast, soft-boiled eggs, bread, butter, coffee. Dinner brings vegetable soup, pot roast, gravy, creamed corn, combination salad, pie, bread, butter and coffee.

Uncertainty of Life

Ah, fool! why dost thou think to live long, when thou art not sure of one day? How many have been deceived and have been unexpectedly snatched from the body? How often hast thou heard it related such an one was slain by the sword, another was drowned, another falling from on high broke his neck, this man grew stark in chewing his food, that other came to his end when he was at play? Some have perished by fire, some by steel, some by pestilence, and some by robbers. This death is the end of all; and man's life passes suddenly like a shadow. Who will remember thee after death, and who will pray for thee?—Kansas City Times.

Local Firm awarded Valuable Franchise

Never before in the history of the world has the progress of Medical Science been so rapid. One important discovery after another has been made which will have a far-reaching effect upon the health and well-being of mankind. Some of these discoveries are startling in the extreme and absolutely disprove many of the beliefs, practices and theories we have known for a lifetime.

As scientific investigators learn more and more about the human anatomy, the practice of medicine changes—the old is discarded for new.

As a result of this world-wide medical research, Science has discovered that good health is largely governed and maintained by three vital organs and fluids of the body. These are the liver, the blood and the endocrine glands.

What is more important, we have learned that these organs and fluids can be stimulated and invigorated by certain basic elements.

Having knowledge of these important discoveries, one of America's leading bio-chemists, succeeded, after two and one-half years of laboratory research, in combining these basic elements in one formula—which may well be considered one of the greatest health-giving remedies of the age.

It is called Sargon. This formula and the formula for Sargon Laboratories and can be obtained by no other firm or individual in the world.

This new scientific treatment, which represents much of our latest knowledge on modern therapy, has been acclaimed by druggists throughout America as a triumph in the field of medicine.

With the needs of their customers druggists everywhere have been eager to be among the first to supply it to their trade.

Although introduced in the South west only a few months ago, Sargon has already become a household word. In Dallas and Ft. Worth alone, over 98,000 bottles of Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills have been sold and distributed by local firms. Nothing like it has ever been seen before.

The agency for Sargon and Sargon Soft Pills for this city and section has been awarded to the City Pharmacy. In anticipation of the enormous demand, this well-known firm has just received a large shipment of these celebrated medicines.

SANITARY RUNWAY
QUITE VALUABLE

Brooding Platform May Be Used With Fair Success.

(By G. T. Klein, Extension Poultryman, K. S. A.)

By making use of the "sanitary runway," the permanent brooder house that has for years been the menace of the poultry industry may be used with a fair degree of success.

The runway is merely a brooding platform that is placed in front of the brooder house. It has a floor of one-half inch half screen or hardware cloth. The wire floor, which is about 15 inches from the ground, allows all droppings and filth to fall through. Wire sides and top of one inch poultry netting confines the chicks to the runway and protects them from enemies.

The sanitary runway accomplishes everything that turning the chicks outside will accomplish, giving them exercise and sunlight and keeping them from contaminated soil. Diseases are less likely to spread when chicks are running on the wire floor, for they have less opportunity of infection.

The runway may be ten feet wide and the entire length of the brooder house. The framework may be constructed of 1 by 4 inch material. These boards are placed on edge to support the floor. Boards may be spaced two feet apart. The wire may be either 24 or 48 inch widths. The 48-inch material makes a slightly stronger floor. Sides should be two feet high. Sections of the top should be hinged for ease in filing the feeders and care for the chicks.

Sufficient Number of Nests Properly Placed

The number of nests in relation to the size of the laying flock during the heavy laying season is important. With a sufficient number of nests properly placed there is less danger of eggs being deposited in the litter and becoming lost, stepped on, or otherwise broken. Nests should be darkened; it is easy for one to see and remove eggs. If nests are too large eggs may be broken by two or more hens crowding into them. Twelve by fourteen inches is suggested for the smaller breeds. Nests should be easy to remove to facilitate cleaning.

Chilling Kills Chicks

More little chicks die from diarrhea caused directly by chilling than die from all other diseases. A chick that gets chilled quickly develops bowel trouble, which is hard to distinguish from white diarrhea. Soon the entire flock is affected. Just keeping the floor of the brooder at the right temperature will solve half the problems of bringing the chick through the crucial first three weeks. Remember that you can't always tell the temperature of a brooder by feel.

Care of Young Turkeys

The young turkeys, when first hatched, require good attention. First, look for lice and be sure to get rid of every one or they will get the young turkeys. Use any good insect powder, dusting it on them, then put them in a paper sack and shake them up. Second, be sure to keep them dry and warm—not too closely confined. Place the mother in a coop with a little pen in front so the little turkeys cannot run away, for, at first they are very shy.

POULTRY NOTES

Clean ground enables poultrymen to carry more pullets to maturity.

Sanitation and brooding are both essential in eliminating poultry diseases.

Any flock that will average better than 120 eggs per bird is a profitable flock.

Gluten feed is a by-product obtained in the manufacture of glucose and cornstarch. It is used in the mash as a source of protein.

Remember, a start in turkeys costs no more than a start of any good breed of chickens; there is always a good market for your turkeys.

It is now a common custom to feed the scratch grain in hoppers. Dry whole corn will not rot in the hoppers either in the house or on a range.

Early hatching of chickens this spring and proper handling of the pullets will bring them into laying condition next fall during the months of high-priced eggs.

Wheat is another valuable poultry feed, being very palatable. It is generally always included in the scratch feed, and its by-products, wheat bran and wheat middlings, are used in the mash. Red-dog flour and wheat shorts are also mash feeds.

A moist mash, when fed regularly, furnishes a desirable means of feeding cod-liver oil to poultry. One-fourth pint of cod-liver oil may be added to the moist mash daily for each 100 birds. This plan of feeding cod-liver oil eliminates the mixing of the oil with the dry mash and also helps to prevent deterioration of the oil after the mash is mixed.

SELECTING EGGS FOR HATCHING

Quality of Chickens Hatched
Depends on Care Used.

Considerable care should be taken in the selection of eggs for hatching, for the quality of eggs used will determine to a large extent the quality of the chickens hatched from them.

This caution is urged by O. C. Ufford, poultry specialist for the extension service of the Colorado Agricultural college.

Eggs used for hatching should never be over ten to fourteen days old, and the fresher the better, the poultry specialist declares.

The size, shape and color of an egg is an inherited quality, and if one uses small or mis-shaped eggs for hatching, the pullets that hatch from such eggs are liable to be undersized and have a tendency to lay the kind of eggs from which they are hatched.

The standard weight of an egg is two ounces. It is best to set eggs as near this weight as possible. A hatching egg should not be long and narrow or illformed in any way. Eggs that are ridged, rough-shelled or thin-shelled in spots are undesirable for hatching purposes.

White eggs should be uniformly chalk white in color; a tint of brown is objectionable. There are many shades of brown, but if one will select for a certain shade one may build up a strain of birds that will lay very uniform colored eggs. This is particularly desirable when one is marketing a particularly high-quality egg.

When one is saving eggs for hatching one should keep them in a cool place, with a temperature of between 45 and 65 degrees. When saving eggs longer than three or four days they should be turned daily.

Gravelly Soil Is Most Desirable for Sites

Poultry yards and the sites for poultry houses should be selected with a view to dryness and shelter. A sandy, gravelly soil is most desirable for this purpose, while the lay of the ground should be such as to provide a free natural drainage.

If the topography is of such a nature as to render the latter difficult or impossible, recourse must be had to some artificial means of securing dryness. Excessive moisture of the environment is always objectionable from the standpoint of poultry production, while, furthermore, the presence of surface water, which birds are apt to drink, must be regarded as a very serious source of mischief. For this reason, pools and puddles, filled wagon ruts or open drains should never be tolerated in yards used for poultry.

Devastating Diseases Contracted in Yards

It should always be kept in mind that usually the most devastating poultry diseases such as tuberculosis, typhoid, cholera, blackhead and coccidiosis are but rarely contracted in the houses. The yards, that is the place where the birds find their food and water, are just as important in connection with disease transmission as the houses.

The soil of the poultry yards presents a hygienic aspect of a tremendous importance because on it are deposited the body wastes of the fowls and those constitute for the diseases mentioned the most common, if not the usual vehicle for their transmission.

Turkey Raising Given Earnest Consideration

Turkey raising has attracted considerable attention in late years due to the possibility of raising the turkey in confinement. A majority are of the opinion that turkeys must be given the entire range of the farm, and where this is done it is impossible to keep them away from infected grounds.

The confinement plan which is being successfully used confines the turkeys to areas which are not infested with blackhead, and keeps the turkeys away from chickens. So far as care of turkeys is concerned they may be brooded and fed the same way as baby chicks. All feeds should be hopper fed.

Making Plans Now for Improvement of Flock

As the returns from the flock depend largely upon the number of eggs laid, we must first get better stock. This means stock with the ability to lay more eggs bred into them. In the case of farm flocks, this may be brought about by improving the present flock or by the purchase of new foundation stock. The method that appeals to the true poultryman is the former. Starting with what you have, provided it is of a standard breed, it is possible to see a marked change in a few years. This may be brought about without the use of the trapnest, although exact records will hasten the process of improvement.

Grains for Chicks

A comparison of common grains as the sole source of feed for day-old chicks showed that wheat gave slightly better results in connection with weight than those obtained from corn, kafir, or oats, according to the 1929 Kansas experiment station report. The use of cabbage gives fairly good results as a vitamin source, ranking in this regard above carrots. The use of commercial chick feeds made up partly of weed seeds was found undesirable.

THE SWEET POTATO IS A BOON TO HOUSEWIVES

By CAROLINE E. KING
Culinary Expert and Lecturer on Domestic Sciences.

The sweet potato stands very close to the top of the list when it comes to vegetables that can be prepared for the table in a wide variety of ways, and that blend well with practically all meats, fish and fowl.

To the housewife, therefore, this tasty tuber is a boon and a blessing when she is at her wits' end for a dish that will go with the roast, steak or cutlets, and that will escape scathing comments from the family regarding her alleged habit of feeding them on the same old things on an unvarying schedule. So far as food value is concerned, the sweet potato excels the white variety, due to its sugar content.

Sweet Potato Volcano is pretty nearly guaranteed to elicit a compliment from both friend and husband and the children. Boil the sweet potatoes, and peel and mash while hot. Beat until creamy, mixing in cream or rich milk to moisten well. Add butter, salt, pepper, and one tablespoon of sugar. Then form into a mound on a dish that will bear the heat. Make a deep indentation in the top and fill with a sauce made by creaming together two tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon of chili sauce, a dash each of salt and pepper. Sprinkle the mound generously with granulated sugar and place in the top of a very hot oven to glaze and brown.

Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple—Parboil and peel the potatoes. If very large, cut in one inch slices and place each slice on a slice of pineapple. If the potatoes are small or of medium size, cut them in half and place each half on a slice of pineapple. Place the slices in a shallow baking pan, dot with butter, sprinkle generously with brown sugar, and bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

Glazed Sweet Potatoes—Cook six medium-size sweet potatoes. When cool, peel and cut in halves lengthwise. Place in a buttered baking dish and pour over them a syrup made of one-fourth cup of water, one-half cup of sugar, and two tablespoons of butter. Baste frequently with the syrup while baking, and bake until the sweet potatoes are tender and a golden brown.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes and Apples—Parboil four medium-size sweet potatoes. Cool, peel and cut in slices. Peel and slice four sour apples. Place the sweet potatoes and apples in alternate layers in buttered baking dish. Dot each layer with butter and sprinkle plentifully with brown sugar. Add one-fourth cup of water. Place bread crumbs over the top layer and bake until the apples and sweet potatoes are tender.

Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of these cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

So that you may have this work done economically and satisfactorily, the Ford Motor Company is still devoting a considerable section of its plants to the manufacture of Model T parts. It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford:—

Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	$3.75 to 4.00

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.
