The T & P Railroad Company will give their immediate attention to colonizing their large tracts of land in Mitchell and Nolan Counties directly north of the eastern end of Tom Green County.

Leopold Fries has been appointed agent of the scheme, at Hamburg, Germany.

There are now but about two hundred miles intervening between the S.P.R.R. and the Atchison and Topeka roads and it is calculated the rails can be laid to connect, by both companies, in about seventy-five working days. It is time for those who contemplate taking the first train east by the souther route to pack their valises. The revolution of transit is upon us. Los Angeles Journal. We have been fortunate enough to see a new map of the state issued by the Land Commission of the T & P Railway, upon which is drawn a correct line of the T & P Railway westwardly, from our city with staking as follows: Wilton, Parker, Weatherford, LeRoy, Millsap, Brazos, Cresco, Gordon, Strawn, Ranger, Eastland, Red Gap, Brenam, Baird, Elmdale, Tebo, Sweetwater, Mitchell, Mustang, Lost Creek, Deivide, Aroyo, Pecos, El Paso. Baird is five miles north of Belle Plain. Callahan County; Elmdale and Tebo are in Taylor County; Sweetwater is in Nolan County; Mitchell is located on the Colorado River in Mitchell County and is so near the center of the county that it may be the county seat at some future time.

New grocery store in town.

A roundup at Merchant & McCoy's ranch next Tuesday. Dr. George Pearle, surgeon dentist from San Antonio is in town. Messrs. Coutts and Simpson have started their herd of 900 beeves to Kansas. Mr. Woodard has sold out his stock of groceries to M.M. Terry of Callahan County. Mr. Lark Hearne left yesterday morning for Jim Ned where he is gathering cattle to make up his herd of beeves, which he will probably drive to Gainesville.

We call special attention this week, to the new advertisement of Mr. T.W. May, who has just come among us with a stock of groceries and has more coming. Give him a call.

Fred Green, who has just been employed at the livery stable, left last Sunday in company with Brown Seay, to join the rangers at Blanco Canyon. Our good wishes are with both of the boys.

Some new books at the library are Second Opinion, a medical thriller by Michael Palmer, Cemetery Dance*, 9th in the Aloysius Pendergast series by Douglas Preston and Lincoln Child, Whispers of the Dead, 3rd in a series featuring forensic anthropologist David Hunter by Simon Beckett, Scarecrow* by Michael Connelly and the first of a new series by Jude Deveraux, Lavender Morning*.

Mr. Lark Hearne arrived last Saturday. He did not take his beeves to Kansas as he had intended, but sold them just beyond Henrietta, realizing a handsome profit therefore and thus avoiding a long and tedious trip. He is now buying up another herd.

Callahan City News

Callahan City, Sept. 23, 1880

Editor Clarendon-Since our last, the hog law question has been discussed pretty freely, and I find that there will be hard feelings if not hard words about it, and for my part, before I will displease my neighbors I will submit to inconveniences myself, so will take back a part of what I have written, and will oppose a hog law rather than have a neighborhood disturbance. We Grangers have a hard enough time at best and we should work together, but we cannot do that unless we are on good terms, and we cannot have unity of action and the hog law too, so I am in favor of dropping it. We have had fine rains this week and farmers and stockmen are in fine spirits. The farmers will plow the ground as soon as the weather will permit. We are all enjoying the rain, but the freighters and they are grumbling considerably.

Corn is selling at .75 cts, wheat $1.15, millet $20.00 per ton.

Candidates scarce this week.

We were permitted by the kindness of friend Bell, our candidates for County Attorney, to read a letter from Capt. G.W. Arrington, of Company "C" Rangers, dated at Fort Griffin, Sept. 20, in which he expresses himself in very warm terms in favor of John Bowyer for District Attorney. He says "if we had more officers like John Bowyer has proven himself to be, the country would be better off." This, coming as it does from a man of Capt. Arrington's good standing, both as a citizen and an officer, and from one of our guardians of peace and property-one who knows what kind of material is required to make a first-class officer is, we think, quite significant and a very high compliment to Mr. Bowyer.

Texas shoppers get a break from state and local sales taxes on August 21, 22 and 23 - the state's annual tax holiday. As in previous years, the law exempts most clothing and footwear priced under $100 from sales and use taxes, which could save shoppers about $8 on every $100 they spend. Backpacks under $100 and used by elementary and secondary students are also exempt. A backpack is a pack with straps one wears on the back. The exemption during the sales tax holiday includes backpacks with wheels, provided they can also be worn on the back like a traditional backpack, and messenger bags. The exemption does not include items that are reasonably defined as luggage, briefcases, athletic/duffle/gym bags, computer bags, purses or framed backpacks. Ten or fewer backpacks can be purchased hosting the show at the Baird High School Auditorium. Chamber President Rick McElmurray said, "We are extremely fortunate to have entertainment of his caliber."

Concert goers are amazed at Parker's uncanny likeness to Presley's look, vocal style and charisma. A Chamber spokesperson said the best evidence of Parker's popularity is seen in the number of people from around the area who have seen one of his performances and are buying tickets for the Baird concert.

Tickets are $20 per person for the 7 p.m. performance. There are no reserved seats. For tickets and information call Baird Chamber of Commerce at (325) 854-2003.

The Grand Ole Oplin is located at the intersection of FM 604 So. and FM 2926. The dances start each Friday at 7:30 p.m. and end at 10:30 a.m. Admission is $4.00 per person.

Everyone is invited to bring a snack to be enjoyed by all during the band's break. Alcohol and smoking is not allowed at any of the functions.

School Supplies - New in 2009! The 81st Texas Legislature recently passed HB 1801 (2009) expanding the list of items qualifying for exemption from Texas state and local sales and use taxes during the annual sales tax holiday in August. Effective this year, in addition to clothes, footwear and some backpacks, Texas families also get a sales tax break on most school supplies priced at less than $100 purchased for use by a student in an elementary or secondary school.

American Life In Poetry

BY TED KOOSER, U.S. POET LAUREATE, 2004-2006

It's been sixty-odd years since I was in the elementary grades, but I clearly remember those first school days in early autumn, when summer was suddenly over and we were all perched in our little desks facing into the future. Here Ron Koertge of California gives us a glimpse of a day like that.

First Grade

Until then, every forest
had wolves in it, we thought it would be fun to wear snowshoes
all the time, and we could talk to water.

So why is this woman with the gray breath calling out names and pointing to the little desks we will occupy for the rest of our lives?

American Life in Poetry is made possible by The Poetry Foundation (www.poetryfoundation.org), publisher of Poetry magazine. Confelicity: A state of being happy, because someone else is happy.

Evulgate: This verb describes the action of making something known to a large group of people. It is the act of making something famous or infamous.

Kunacube: Here is a descriptive word for things that have to do with slugs.

I hear you clarions note from curtained past
Who broke from shackled crib of yore
To be met as primitive face, madly shouting to gain thy place

Though mocking and lewd the projected forecast
Those private hurts ye bravely bore.

Your skillful inventions surmounted the blame
Though none would tamper nor erase
Or none to quiet troubled breast, though moans dull ear would soon attest

To the existence of such absorbing strains
Which mirrored fame yet left no trace.

Such anthems did surely call such bawdy head
To being by your shameful birth
Wearing thy souls sullen breath, with anticipation of death

Denying thirst with apologies instead
Of nudging the blindness of earth.

Graceful swan who from ugly duckling did spring
Ascended from such wounds compiled
Your battered horn sang sweetest note, whose lines appeared though Angels wrote
The rustic notes which surge forth for King and Queen
'Til firma dubs thee reconciled.

Beauty Clear and Fair

Beauty clear and fair,
Where the air
Rather like a perfume dwells;
Where the violet and the rose
Their blue veins and blush disclose,
And come to honour nothing else:

Where to live near
And planted there
Is to live, and still live new;
Where to gain a favour is
More than light, perpetual bliss--
Make me live by serving you!

Dear, again back recall
To this light,
A stranger to himself and all!
Both the wonder and the story
Shall be, the glory:
I am your servant, and your thrall.

DEADPAN DISASTERS

William Logan reviews Arda Collins's debut poetry collection It Is Daylight, winner of the 2008 Yale Series of Younger Poets Prize.

By William Logan
Poetry Media Service

It Is Daylight, by Arda Collins. Yale University Press, $16.00. Arda Collins comes to her first book fully formed, and it's a little scary. The title may be It Is Daylight, but the cover is black, and the title page is black—the Goths have at last taken over Yale University Press. Louise Glück, who chose the book for the Yale Series of Younger Poets, provides an intimate, bemused introduction that finds a blood-tie from Collins to Berryman and Dickinson, those poets of airless self-dramatization. It might be more accurate to say that she's a grown-up version of Wednesday Addams, the sort of girl happiest raising spiders or trying to electrocute her younger brother.

These poems take place in the happy, happy suburbs, so of course the unnamed speaker is miserable—if the Welcome Wagon were a hearse, she'd be overjoyed.

At last, terror has arrived.

Next door, the house has gone up in flames.

A woman runs from the burning wreck, her face smeared with blood and ashes. She screams that her children are kidnapped.

It's truly exciting, and what more would anyone ask?

The blood and ashes, those manifest signs of mourning and penitence, suggest an attention almost religious. In these affectless monologues, even the disasters are deadpan. (Collins has perhaps learned something from Anne Carson, our master of Keatonesque delivery.) The paranoia and numbness that infuse the poems create a world where the speaker doesn't know how to respond to the terrible things that happen. Normality looks odd to her—"Nearby, a gathering of // wives are seated at a bamboo // table. They wear suits and dainty shoes // and little anguish veils across their faces. // They have expensive, sharp silverware." Such portrayals of the lifelessness of the living (the dead, to her, are not dead—they're just tanning) are delicious. When Collins goes too far, it's a devastatingly funny too far—the ladies above "have handmade White House // and Pentagon salt-and-pepper shakers."

Collins is a Nietzschean fatalist, yet the world is a mystery to her, a cipher that can never quite be decoded. It's peculiar when a book's tone and manner are riveting, but its content banal, though even banalities can have irresistible fascination.

I thought how god loves this place;
the grass was coming in, and the crocuses.
What if someone died, or got fired,
or vomited alone in the middle of the night?
The apartments were wood on the outside,
stained red like the color of a picnic table.
I was so ugly, I wasn't sure I'd even be able to drive.

At first I thought she'd written, "It was so ugly," but her wording is more telling. This flat deposition (for a lawsuit never to be concluded) shows Marianne Moore's love for the minutiae of being. If Collins has none of Moore's élan or her enchanted gift for description, the younger poet sees the world through strange eyes, and in them the old world is made new again. Our younger poets were born a hundred years after the moderns; no wonder: the lessons of Pound and Eliot and Moore and Stevens seem antediluvian, they've been so often absorbed and re-absorbed. (When you teach "In a Station of the Metro" now, you have to explain a lot about the Métro of 1914.) Collins, whatever her debts, has learned how to make the ordinary bear the sorrows of hell.

This poet is only dimly aware of her virtues. The book is far too long (though most first books would be stronger at half the length), and the poems become too comfortable with their stark monotone, their theatrical double-spacing, their fiercely prosaic line (Collins has a wicked sense of the demotic—"You go to your piano lesson. You // stink"). More is the enemy of better here. The occasional touch of run-of-the-mill surrealism makes some poems seem to lie on a spur line from the Ashbery factory. Sometimes the poems leave me baffled. (I don't get the point of a long poem about a serial killer or a dreary prose poem about God and microwave ovens.) After ninety pages, even lack of affect becomes affectation.

Still, this creepy, irresistible book is a masterful debut. It's impossible to know what Collins will do next, but more of the same would be tedious rather than unbearable. Louise Glück, comparing her to other poets, has apparently forgotten that the abrupt manner, the goggle-eyed guilelessness, and the bloodless tone (like that of a high-functioning victim of Asperger's syndrome) were long ago patented by Glück herself. If the vampires of Twilight wrote poetry, it would be this sort of poetry—they long to fit in, too.

William Logan's most recent book of criticism is Our Savage Art: Poetry and the Civil Tongue. His new poetry collection, Strange Flesh, appeared last fall. This review first appeared in The New Criterion. Distributed by the Poetry Foundation at www.poetryfoundation.org.

AEP Texas North Company Applies For Federal Stimulus Funds

AEP Texas North Company (TNC) has submitted an application to the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) for stimulus funding to accelerate the installation of "smart meters" throughout its service territory in west Texas and provide in-home energy monitors for disadvantaged electricity consumers.

The DOE is anticipated to award $4.5 billion in smart grid grants nationwide as part of the economic stimulus and infrastructure bill passed by Congress and signed into law by President Obama earlier this year. The federal agency has indicated that it will consider applications for funding of up to one-half the anticipated cost for advanced metering programs and issue a decision on the awarding of grants by Nov. 1.

TNC currently has an application before the Public Utility Commission of Texas for approval to install approximately 196,000 residential and commercial advanced meters over a four-year period at an estimated cost of $65 million. A final decision in that proceeding is anticipated within the next several months.

If approved as submitted, TNC's application to the DOE envisions the following scope of activities:

-Accelerate from four years to three years the deployment of advanced meters throughout TNC's 53,000-square mile service territory.

-Provide more than 8,700 in-home energy monitors to economically disadvantaged customers to more fully leverage the capabilities of the advanced meters.

-Provide on-site operating instructions and energy education for customers receiving energy monitors.

-Build systems for collecting, analyzing and reporting operating and usage data.

-Establish a Cyber Security Operation Center (CSOC) in partnership with a nationally known third-party.

The application envisions that the stimulus funding award would be used first to defray the purchase and installation costs of the in-home energy monitors for the economically disadvantaged residential consumers, and then to reduce the surcharge for the meters recovered from the Retail Electric Providers (REPs) and ultimately passed on to the end-use consumer. The size of the grant approved by the DOE will determine by the size of the grant approved by the DOE the use of funds.

Deployment of the advanced meters and the in-home energy monitors, also known as the Advanced Metering Infrastructure systems (AMI) program, is expected to offer both environmental and economic benefits, according to David Hooper, AEP Texas director of customer services. "AMI will enable electric consumers to better understand their personal energy consumption," Hooper said. "Ultimately, consumers should be able to save money by taking advantage of time-of-use rates, demand-response programs and other energy efficiency information that the REPs are likely to offer as a result of the advanced meter installation.

"The advanced meters also provide the capability to digitally diagnose AEP Texas equipment and can quickly convey information about outages and operating conditions," Hooper continued. "It also facilitates a customer's ability to achieve the full array of benefits that can be realized through certain customer-owned advanced technologies and appliances. AMI also should make it possible to significantly lower the fees charged for activities such as connections and disconnections." AEP Texas serves more than 900,000 electric consumers in the deregulated Texas marketplace. As an energy delivery (wires) company, AEP Texas delivers electricity safely and reliably to homes, businesses and industry across its nearly 100,000 square mile service territory in south and west Texas. AEP Texas also builds new power lines, restores service following outages and reads the meters for REPs throughout its service territory. The company also connects or disconnects service upon the orders of the REPs.

AEP Texas is part of the American Electric Power (AEP) system. AEP is one of the largest electric utilities in the United States, delivering electricity to more than 5 million customers in 11 states. AEP ranks among the nation's largest generators of electricity, owning nearly 38,000 megawatts of generating capacity in the U.S. AEP also owns the nation's largest electricity transmission system, a nearly 39,000-mile network that includes more 765-kilovolt extra-high voltage transmission lines than all other U.S. transmission systems combined.
