We ran across a new word the other day ... "demographer." That's a research man who studies statistics on births, deaths, populations.

Well, it seems the United States will have 20 million more people aboard by 1960, or thereabouts. Logical encuga. We gained 20 million people in the forties.

Bigger pies are the order of the day. In the electrical industry, for instance, men with sharp pencils have figured that demand for electric power will have doubled during the decade ending in 1960. More power equipment is therefore needed. More electrical machinery for industry.

And better pies. Americans insist on better products. year by year. Somebody has to pioneer things. Looking ahead for five, ten, fifteen years-creating new and better products and improving old ones-that is the business of General Electric. For seventy-five years progress has been our most important product.

The babies who come into the world today won't want smaller slices of the world's goods and opportunities. Or even the same slice. They'll want more. Wait and see. Nothing less is worth planning for by the people who must organize for the future. It's no job for pessimists.
