Opposition to the recently form ed Interior Protective and Develop ment Association, of which C. Y. Early of Brownwood was elected a director at a meeting of representatives at Waco a few weeks ago, is seen in a communication received by Hilton Burks, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The letter is from Texas Motor Transporta-tion Association at Austin, signed by Walter Beck, vice-president and

The letter urges that the local Chamber of Commerce sign no reso-lutions "so designed that motor transportation may be made practically impossible."

"Texas Motor Transportation Astunate that forces opposed to the uses and development of highways and their adaptation to the needs of agriculture and industry of the ate should go to the extreme in npting to arouse sectional an-re that all Texas should work in quire that all Texas should work in harmony and in a constructive manner," the communication says.

This letter will be referred to the board of directors by Mr. Burks.

One of the purposes of the Interior Protective and Development Association is to prevent uncompressed cotton being taken by truck to the port cities. Railroads cannot carry uncompressed by a compress incompressed by a compress interior without having the compressed, it is said.
