Grand Jury Investigating Zephyr Bank Robbery

Large Number of Witnesses On Hand Ready to Testify

WITH about thirty witnesses on hand and ready to testify, the Brown County Grand Jury this morning took up the task of investigating the recent robbery of the Zephyr State Bank in which about $1,085 was taken by the robbers. Thirteen hundred dollars, a thousand dollars of which was in currency, was overlooked by the bandits who entered the bank when D. A. Johnston, assistant cashier, quickly hid the money behind books and papers.

WATER PROJECT ENDORSED BY C. OF C. BOARD

At the meeting at Cisco Monday of the newly chosen board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, a sweeping water conservation resolution was adopted which asked the State Board of Water Engineers to grant the Brownwood petition for impounding waters on the Colorado river and to re-open the San Saba project.

FIVE BROWNWOOD MEN NAMED TO SERVE ON C. OF C. COMMITTEES

Five Brownwood men, one Coleman and one Santa Anna man have been included in the 129 outstanding West Texas business leaders and professional men who have been named by President R. W. Haynie of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to serve as committee members on the eleven active bureaus of the organization for this year, according to information received here.

SAYS CITY IS TO FIGHT FOR WATER RIGHTS

"Brownwood is pleading for her rights, praying for her rights and if necessary will fight for her rights," Fred S. Abney, presiding at the called session of the board of directors of the Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1, told the two members of the State Board of Water Engineers here Monday night.

CREW WORKS ON BRIDGE OVER BAYOU

A crew of 25 men from the Austin Bridge Company of Abilene started repair work on the Pecan Bayou Bridge this morning. The bridge is scheduled to be closed three days, opening again Sunday morning. The work will be done day and night, the crew working in shifts. Material is on the ground. New floor timbers and new steel runners and rails are to be placed in the bridge.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF CLUB GIRLS AND WOMEN IS POSTPONED

Miss Mayesie Malone, Brown County Home Demonstration Agent, announced today that the annual encampment for the Brown County club girls and women, which was scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday of this week, has been indefinitely postponed. Two reasons were given for this action: The principal one being that the camp ground is too muddy since the good rains that fell Monday afternoon and night; and the fact that many of the farmers of the county are in the midst of the threshing season, was another factor that made it necessary at the present time to postpone the annual encampment.

BETTER AND MORE SUBSTANTIAL HOMES BEING BUILT HERE

C. A. McCutchan, secretary manager of the Brownwood Brick & Tile Company, stated when interviewed today that his business had felt the effect of the buy, build, and improve campaign, that is now being conducted in Brownwood, and he is also of the opinion that the present rate of development will continue for a good while to come.

YOUTHFUL SLAYER OF SOVIET MINISTER IS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

WARSAW, Poland, June 16.—(AP)—Life imprisonment with the loss of civil rights is the sentence pronounced on Boris Kowloff for the assassination of Peter Volkoff, Soviet minister at Warsaw. The court decided, however, to petition the president to commute the sentence to fifteen years' servitude.

GLVES FOUND

A pair of gloves were found in the pasture near the abandoned car and where the overalls worn by the bandits were found. The gloves have been identified as a pair belonging to Jim Garvin, one of the two men held in jail here Tuesday afternoon. The gloves had stains of mercurychrome, or "monkey blood," inside the thumb on the right hand, officers say. Garvin has a landaged right thumb that has been sore for some time and the doctor who has been treating the sore thumb with "monkey blood" has been located by officers.

SHOTS MOTHER OF HIS WIFE THEN SHOTS HIMSELF

HENDERSON, Tex., June 16.—(AP)—After shooting and fatally wounding Mrs. James English, his mother-in-law, George Everett, 30, farmer living 16 miles north of here, last night turned a rifle upon himself, ending his own life.

GRAND JURY IS SUMMONED FOR INVESTIGATION

JUDGE J. O. Woodward has recalled the Brown county grand jury in special session to investigate the Zephyr bank robbery Tuesday morning.

Chalmers Jasper and Jim Garvin, who were arrested Tuesday afternoon, were quizzed by the District and County Attorneys during the afternoon, and then lodged in the Brown county jail pending further investigation.

No charges were filed against the two men.

As Adams Tells of Arrest City Detective Adams related to The Bulletin this afternoon the details of the arrest of the two suspects held in jail here.

Business is exceptionally good in Brownwood for this season of the year. With the approach of Fall it will be much better. If oil goes up in price Brownwood will grow very rapidly. Buy or build NOW if you would PROFIT

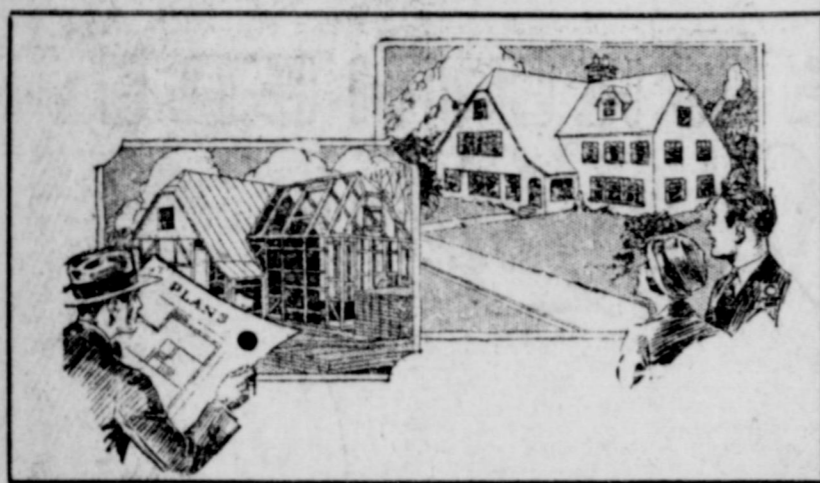

Daily reports from Texas oil fields repeatedly show Brown county fields in the lead.

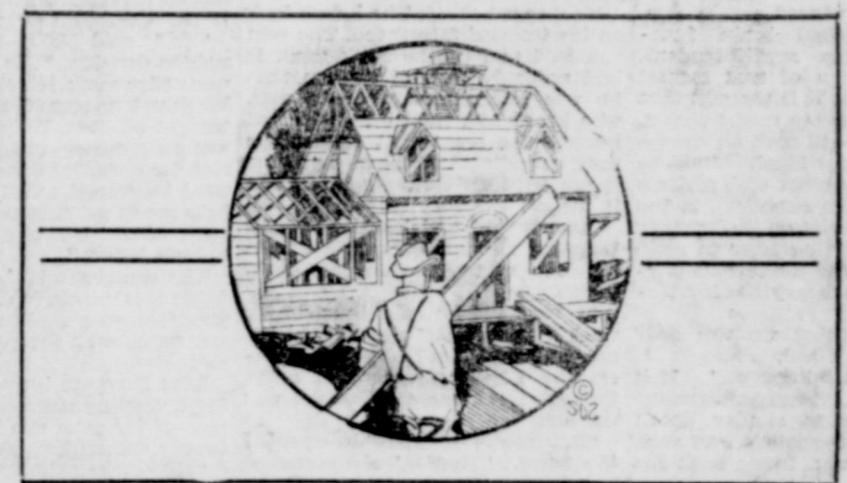

The quality of our oil is better, the wells are shallow, which means more profit here than in other fields.

BROWNWOOD!

Mr. H. H. Barrett, manager of the Brownwood Gas Company, says: "Our business is steadily growing, more people are coming to Brownwood all the time and there is every reason to believe that we will continue to grow."

G. L. Bowden, of the G. L. Bowden Furniture Co., said: "Our business is better now than it ever was at this season of the year before. Brownwood is growing. It has good reasons for growing, in my opinion it will grow steadily for a good while to come."

Z. R. Mills, of Mills, McHorse & Peck Plumbing Co., says: "I certainly believe that now is a good time to buy or build in Brownwood — our town is growing — new people are coming in almost daily — our oil fields produce a better quality oil at a shallow depth, in good quantities — thereby showing better profits than other Texas fields. We are going to have continued growth."

J. H. McKee, an official of the West Texas Telephone Co., and head of the Brownwood Building and Loan Association, says that there is much development going on in Brownwood with an unprecedented outlook for more and bigger development. Both the Telephone company and the Building and Loan company have shown marked increase in volume of business.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
To the home of Prof and Mollie Elwell in Camdentville, Indiana, one night in October, 1898, comes a nurse, hearing a woman who had fainted on the train.

Elwell is an artist. He has a son, Jim, aged 5. Late that night the woman bears twin girls and died without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been adopted and named Margaret and Elizabeth. They are called Rusty and Betty.

Jim enlists in the World War. He then discovers one of the twins is alive and in a New York hospital, and their grief is turned to joy.

While they are on their way to New York the story goes back to the point where Mike Hennegan, ex-soldier, is taken by nurse Nellie Downing to the hospital where Jim is.

There they are told about his strange case.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

"WHAT he has been taught so far," the superintendent continued, "consists in getting into his coat and trousers, drawing on his socks and shoes and walking and eating in the way I've described. Those things he now performs of his own volition, poor fellow. You will find him very tractable and an easy patient to handle."

"As for any understanding of what is said to him, a fox terriser is a marvel of intellect in comparison," Nellie Downing stated.

"Only his physical brain functions," said the superintendent. "There is no sign of real mental activity whatever. It is thought that an operation possibly might restore him to normal, but such an operation, on the other hand, would be exceedingly dangerous and perhaps fatal. The trouble doubtless is the result of a blood clot on the brain or else some connecting fiber in some way was broken by the terrific physical shock of a heavy shell explosion."

"Is there nothing we can do?" Nellie Downing asked.

"Nothing that I know of," if it was a blood clot, the superintendent told her, another similar shock might, so the specialists had said, shake it loose and bring back his memory.

"But it would be purely accidental if it did. Now, if you wish, I will have him brought in here, but there isn't a chance in a million that he will know you or would know any person he had ever seen before. In my opinion and in the opinion of two specialists who have examined him, he might far better have been killed outright."

He called an orderly and instructed him to bring John Doe Number 2 into the reception room. The orderly went out and Nellie Downing's eyes met those of Mike Hennegan.

The orderly returned in a few minutes and Nellie Downing rose with an impulsive little cry as her gaze rested on the man she had seen carried out of the hospital in Metz, a shaken wreck.

She started forward but before she had taken a step her ear drums were almost split by a whoop in her ear.

Mike Hennegan had been sitting in his chair when the patient was brought in and had glanced up with only casual interest. But suddenly a great change came over him. He started up, his face wrinkled in surprise and his mouth fell open. Then he gave vent to his war whoop and, rushed past, Nellie Downing like a huge projectile hurled from a catapult.

"For the love of Saint Paul!" the nurse heard him yelp in a raucous bleat as he grabbed the shell-shocked soldier's hand in a pump-handle shake. "If it ain't me old buddy, Jim Elwell! Who in hell would ever have dreamed of this? Me old sidekick, Jim, put 'er there, old top, put 'er there!"

The heart of Nellie Downing rose up in a quick, thrilling leap as she heard the words of recognition. But it sank again the next instant as she noted the total lack of any aroused memory in the eyes of the man Mike had called Jim Elwell.

Those eyes looked at Mike Hennegan and merely stared. His hand had gone out mechanically into Mike's grasp. He was unsmiling, unmoving, like some pale wooden soldier.

Mike had not yet noticed all this. His heart was sounding the bugle call of reveille in his excited brain which at that moment held nothing but the glad knowledge that his old buddy stood before him.

"Well, I'm a son of a gun!" he went on, his grin still stretching from ear to ear, still pumping the starting soldier's hand. "Now, what do you know about this? Don't you remember me, Jim—yer old pal Mike, that fought the cootes with yuh half way across France an then got gassed at the foot of Belleau Wood? Don't you remember me—and the French quartet what used to sing all those crazy dam—don't you remember Jim?"

He stopped short. The happy look on his freckled face faded. The grin vanished and the mouth sagged. It had suddenly dawned on him that he was jabbering away to a man who heard him not, or, if he had heard, the brain that caught the words registered nothing but the sound with no conception of what it meant.

Mike turned and looked at Nellie Downing and his eyes were almost blinded with tears. He ripped out a horrible oath.

"I forgot," he said in a husky voice that was half a sob, "but it's my old buddy, Jim Elwell, the squarrest guy I ever met, and I never thought for a minute that he was the man you."

"But who is he, Mike?" interrupted the nurse. "That is," she corrected herself, "who are his people? That's what we want to know. Where is he from? Oh, I don't know whatever made me think of bringing you here with me, but thank the Lord I did!"

"Where's he from?" Mike repeated vaguely, his glance shifting back to his old buddy who still stood there looking at them but with eyes that showed nothing but that horrible vacuous stare, "he's from some place, some place out in the sticks. Let's see now, what's the name of the place he came from—Indiana? Yes, that's it, that's it—Indiana."

He kept looking at Jim Elwell, fascinated, unbelieving.

Nellie Downing, with a trace of impatience edging her voice, asked, "But what place in Indiana, Mike? Indiana, she said sharply, "is a big state and there's probably a hundred or more Elwell families living there. Don't you know anything about his people—what town or city they live in?"

"Yes," put in the superintendent, who had been an amazed witness to all this, "try to think of it. If we can locate his parents, it might help to—"

"I don't think I ever heard him mention the name of the town," said Mike Hennegan, stroking his chin thoughtfully, "except that it was a small burg of four or five thousand, I think."

"But," he went on quickly, his face brightening, "I remember now he called his old man Prof and his mother Mollie—funny thing, to call your mother by her first name and your father by a nickname—and he used to tell me about a couple kid pals of his—girls they were—twins, his folks adopted when they were born, for their mother had died."

Jim Elwell, said Mike, had called them Rusty and Betty. "And he had a picture of them taken with his mother and the old man and himself. They were both mighty pretty girls with a lot of hair. They were eighteen, he said, and even if they were twins, and his mother was nice looking, too, and so was his old man. But I don't think he ever said where they lived—that is, the name of the town."

"That's all I know," he said, and "Oh, hell!" he burst out. "I can't believe I'm standing here in front of Jim Elwell, n-talking about him like this and him standing there taking it all in and not knowing a thing I am saying. I can't believe it. It ain't right, somehow."

Nellie Downing turned to the superintendent, "Is there some way in which we could learn where he is from?"

"That ought not to be difficult, he assured her. "His name is recorded in Washington and the records will show his place of residence and the name of his parents. I'll take time, of course, to look them up, but they can be obtained. I'll dictate a letter to the war office at once."

"No," said Nellie Downing with sudden decision. "The wheels in the war office move too slow. I'll go to Washington myself and I'll leave tonight on the midnight train. That will get me there in the morning. I met the president once, just before I went to France and I know he will help me to get this matter straightened out. We won't waste time writing letters."

The superintendent smiled at her impetuous words. Getting to the president on a matter like this was not easy, even for people who had met him.

Miss Downing turned and studied for a fleeting moment the freckled face of the man she had staked to twenty dollars that morning.

"Mike," she said, speaking slowly, thoughtfully, "you have earned your keep today and that is more than you have done for some time. I'm afraid. You need a job. You need it for no better reason than to keep you out of mischief. How would you like to remain here and look after your friend Jim until I return from Washington? Perhaps if you show yourself useful enough, Mr. Burton here might give you a regular job around the hospital."

The superintendent was not slow to grasp suggestions. "We need an elevator man," said he, and a broad smile spread across his features as he surveyed the big Irishman. "It's eight hours a day, sixty dollars a month, room and board. How would you like it, Mike?"

"I'm hired," said Mike, his grin again threatening the lobes of his ears. "When do I eat?"

Mr. Burton laughed and looked up at the clock on the wall.

"You eat in forty-five minutes," he declared. "The song will sound off for you. In the meantime, he added, "you might take Jim Elwell out for a walk. We'll wait till Miss Downing's return before you go to work."

"Didja hear that, Jim, of 'topper?" yipped Hennegan as he grabbed his old buddy by the hand again. "It's me and you for a little stroll. And then we eat. The last time we sat down together it was a mulligan stew of salt horse. Maybe it'll be pork chops this time. Mouth there played a small, uncertain smile. At sight of it an agonized cry broke from Nellie Downing, for though his lips smiled, his eyes—those staring eyes—were devoid of recognition or interest. They just looked out in front of him—windows that opened out on a dead world.

NORWOOD'S STORE

AVIATION FROM WRIGHT TO LINDBERGH Only 24 Years After First Airplane Flight Came New York to Paris Hop

A QUEER contrivance of wood and varnished silk, carrying a cumbersome gasoline engine and attended by the shaking of many gray-headed heads in which there presided a secure conviction that "it wouldn't work," slid along the ground and then flutered through the air for a few hundred feet one day 24 years ago.

Orville and Wilbur Wright, bicycle makers and mechanics, had made the world's first airplane flight.

This was the start of man's conquest of the air—the region that had been closed to him from the dawn of time.

Two Decades of Progress
Twenty-four years have passed since that day. And now a sandy-haired young captain in the Missouri national guard has made a non-stop flight from New York to Paris, covering 3600 miles in a little over 33 hours of continuous flight.

The outlandish machine that the Wright brothers took aloft has undergone several improvements.

All over Europe and America men began to experiment with airplanes after that first flight of the Wright brothers. There were many, many fatalities—no aviator was ever sure when he went up for a ten-minute ride, that he would come down alive—but the development of the airplane went on without a lull.

By 1908 the Wrights and others had flown distances as great as a score of miles. The London Daily Mail offered 1000 pounds to the aviator who should first fly over the English channel.

This feat, a mere commonplace nowadays, was first accomplished in July, 1909, by the Frenchman, Louis Bleriot. His odd-looking monoplane flew from Calais to Dover, in 23 minutes, and the press of the world hailed his stunt with wild acclaim. It proved a huge spur to further achievement.

May 21-22, 1927, Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh made non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Doubted Aviation's Future
"There were not lacking, however, 'level-headed' men who agreed that aviation would never be anything more than a costly and dangerous toy. Dr. Simon Newcomb, a noted astronomer, wrote in 1909: "With the metals we actually have, there is a limit to the weight of an engine with a given driving power, and it may be fairly assumed that this limit is nearly reached in the motors now in use. . . I disclaim any positive prediction that men will never fly from place to place at will. The claim I make is that they will not do this until some epoch-making discovery is made of which we now have no conception."

And a cartoon appeared in an American newspaper, showing airplanes buzzing around a flaming paper, scorching their wings and falling. It called attention to the fact that more than 200 aviators had been killed, and asked gravely, "Is the game worth the candle?"

Despite these croaks, aviation went on. In the fall of 1910 came the first attempt to cross the Atlantic. Walter Wellman, in a non-rigid dirigible which carried a car made like a boat, took off from Atlantic City, New Jersey, with a crew of five men to fly to France. Adverse winds forced the ship down 1000 miles out, and Wellman and his men were rescued.

at daybreak and arriving in San Francisco just before dark.

Breaks Altitude Record
Two years later Lieutenant John C. Macready got farther away from the earth than any other man that ever lived by attaining an altitude of 39,586 feet at Dayton, Ohio. This record, incidentally, was later eclipsed by French army flyers.

In 1925 the globe was girdled by air for the first time. Four United States army planes took off from San Diego to make the flight; one plane was wrecked in Alaska, and another was forced down in mid-Atlantic, but two planes made the entire trip, and the plane that came down in the ocean was repaired and resumed the flight in New England. The trip took from April to September.

A year ago came another epic feat when Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, United States Navy—flew a big Fokker monoplane from Epizuzergen to the North Pole, being the first man to fly a plane over the hub of the earth. He was followed a few days later by Roald Amundsen in a dirigible. Amundsen, instead of flying back to Spitzbergen, flew on to Alaska, going completely across the top of the world.

And then came Lindbergh's flight—the most spectacular, and probably the most dangerous, of them all.

What Will Be the Next?
What the next stunt will be can only be guessed. Already there is talk of a trans-Pacific flight. Lindbergh himself forecasts commercial airplane flights across the Atlantic in the near future. Henry Ford hints that he may build giant planes to carry 100 passengers on such trips. A German firm is building a big dirigible for regular service to South America. At Akron, Ohio, two dirigibles larger than any ever built are under construction for the government. Byrd, hero of the polar flight, plans to duplicate Lindbergh's feat.

One thing is certain; those who predicted, a decade and a half ago, that "aviation would never be practical" must be trying now to forget that they ever said it!

RAISE HOTEL BONUS
SANTA ANNA, June 10.—The business men of Santa Anna have raised a $10,000 cash bonus and have donated a site in the heart of the business section of town for a new hotel. Several propositions are now under consideration, and one of which will be accepted within a few days, it is believed, construction to start immediately thereafter.

The hotel has long been needed here. A number of oil companies use this place for headquarters for development in this country, and the town does not afford adequate hotel facilities.

"MARION, Ills., April 20.—(P)—A few hours after the ballots had been counted in the municipal election here showing the election of three members of the First Baptist church as city commissioners early today, a bomb thrown on the front steps of that downtown church wrecked the church vestibule and broke windows in the neighboring buildings. The blast occurred at four forty o'clock, a minute after a high powered car was heard passing the church at high speed. The attack on the church is believed to have been excited by motives of revenge among friends of defeated candidates in yesterday's election.

THE VALUE OF A MONUMENT

The Value of a Monument, Like Other Works of Art, Is Largely Dependent Upon Who Made It

Has the Designer and Producer a reputation for knowing the rules of Architecture and Ornamentation?

Does he know the best materials for the Design that is being created?

Does he know Craftmanship; does he employ the best methods of finishing?

Does his name stand for Honor and Integrity? Consider the name before you buy.

These words tell the story of the Brownwood Marble & Granite Works, founded by Mr. Roy Anderson in 1891, and reveal the secret of its success. Mr. Anderson has grown up in the Monument business. Inspired by the desire to do something worthwhile, he established this business in 1891. His high ideals have dominated the policy of the firm from that day to this.

COMANCHE COUNTY BREAKING AWAY FROM COTTON, FINDS DIVERSIFIED FARMING PAYS

Comanche county is achieving industrial independence by diversifying its crops. The largest berry crop in the history of the county has just been marketed, the daily receipts in Comanche averaging more than $200, and the acreage in berries will be greatly increased next year.

The coming rural generation is slowly but firmly developing for the future. Boys and girls' H-Clubs are springing into existence throughout the county, and remarkable results are being achieved by the members.

Better Roads Planned Comanche county, in the near future, hopes to have about as fine a system of graded and graveled roads to be found in this section.

Pecan Trees Planted It was not until several years ago that it was found pecans would thrive in this county. The generally accepted idea, that the nuts would not prosper except in low lands was dispelled when trees planted on the sandy benches in various parts of the county developed wonderfully.

In the creation of Lake Eanes, named after Mayor James R. Eanes, through whose instrumentality largely the project was put over to insure the county seat a larger and permanent water supply, the city acquired a 12-acre tract below the dam.

Grape Acreage Increased Farmers are also planting pecan trees, looking to the future for another source of income, the finer varieties of the Texas nut always commanding a good price on Eastern and Northern markets.

The dairy industry of the county has been developed so rapidly the last couple of years that Comanche is now shipping about 250 cans of sour cream every week. The Chamber of Commerce has about completed arrangements for a sweet cream market for Comanche.

Last Saturday afternoon from four to six the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Dossey was the scene of much merriment. The occasion being the celebration of their daughter, Mrs. Roger Boler's birthday. The party was all planned as a surprise to Mrs. Boler and she knew nothing about what they were doing till quite a while after she had come to her mother's to go to Brownwood shopping with some other ladies, who were going from there. Some time was spent in jolly games and conversation, then a delicious refreshment plate consisting of sandwiches and lemonade was passed to the following ladies: Mesdames S. E. Lacy, John Strickland, Mollie Faulkner, Oscar Sides, Roger Boler, M. F. Dossey, Jim Long, Misses Novella Richmond, Irene Falls, Thelma and Nina Dossey.

Mrs. McQueen, who recently bought the Neeley Dabney home is having inside painting done. J. C. Hicks is doing the work.

Wednesday, June 9, Uncle Clifford Smith celebrated his 74th birthday. Their daughter, Mrs. Lane and Miss Zuba Sutherland of Pioneer came over and spent the day with them. He received some very nice and much appreciated gifts also a telegram of congratulations from Rev. Paige and family, a former pastor of the Methodist church here, but now of Oglesby. The many friends of Uncle Clifford hope he will live to pass many more milestones on the highway of life.

Rev. Z. T. Blanton has received a letter from Rev. Huie, the former pastor of the S. A. Presbyterian church here and no doubt his many friends in Blanket will be interested to hear from him and Mrs. Huie. They have bought four and one-half acres of land near the town of Elene on the San Jacinto river and they have a new modern residence just completed. He will have a chicken ranch and truck garden. He has 150 hens to start with. His son, L. L. Huie is in business at Goose Creek, a thriving little town near Elene and both towns are near Houston. Rev. Huie will do religious work in the town where he lives. He organized the first U. S. A. Presbyterian church in Goose Creek and was pastor of the church for a number of years. Rev. and Mrs. Huie won the hearts of a host of people, while they lived here and they will all be glad to know their whereabouts.

Mr. and Mrs. Rochester formerly lived in Blanket and have a host of friends here who wish for them the best of success in their new home.

W. J. Irby, familiarly known as Uncle Bill Irby died at his home on North Main street last Monday afternoon. He had been in bad health for a long time and had been confined to his bed about six weeks, but when the news went out that he had passed away it cast a gloom of sadness over this community for he had lived here a number of years and numbers his friends by his acquaintance. Uncle Bill leaves a wife and several children and grandchildren. His death was a great loss to the stricken ones we offer sympathy.

A fine rain fell here Monday afternoon. The corn will be greatly benefited, and the thrasher hands will get a few hours rest. There were nine threshers going within a radius of seven miles of Blanket last week. At that rate the grain will soon be all threshed and the farmers seem to be putting it on the market as fast as it is threshed.

Herman Bettis made a business trip to Goldthwaite a few days ago.

JUDGMENT AWARDED PLAINTIFF IN SUIT FOR LIFE INSURANCE

Judgment was given to the plaintiff in the suit of B. H. Bettis, administrator, versus the International Travelers Association, for the collection of a life insurance policy on the life of Zach M. Bettis. The case went to trial early Thursday morning, going to the jury about 2:30 yesterday afternoon, and when the jury returned with their findings in the case, Judge Woodward gave judgment in favor of the plaintiffs. It is expected that an appeal will be taken but unless one is filed the full amount of the policy, $500, will be paid to the plaintiff.

The suit of M. E. Wakefield vs. Ed Little et al, which was taken up Thursday afternoon, was continued by the court. This suit was brought to try title and for damages. Plaintiff attorneys were allowed to file a trial amendment more specifically setting up question of fraud, which they claimed had already been included in their pleas, and the defendant was unwilling to proceed further on account of lack of time in which to secure necessary proof in refutation of the allegation. Following this controversy Judge Woodward continued the trial until the next term of court.

Jury recessed.

After this case had been continued Judge Woodward excused the petit jury for the remainder of the week. The non-jury and appearance docket was taken up this morning. Various attorneys were called in this morning and after going over the docket it was found that no cases were ready for trial this week, so the court adjourned until Monday morning at nine o'clock.

Judge Woodward will take up the non-jury appearance docket again Monday morning. The suit of Marion M. Cox versus John D. Windham et al is set for Monday afternoon at 1:30. This case is expected to last through Tuesday if not longer.

Grand Jury Recessed

The Brown county grand jury asked to be excused until Monday morning and this request was granted by Judge Woodward. They will resume their work at that time. No returns have been made by the grand jury this week, although it is understood that they have found a number of true bills during the week.

A man arrested by local officers early Monday morning upon the request of Goldthwaite officers, who wanted him on a charge of taking mortgaged property, was returned to Goldthwaite Monday afternoon in custody of a deputy sheriff from that city.

The Brown county commissioners met in regular session Monday afternoon about three o'clock and sat as a board of equalization during the remainder of the afternoon. A large number of Brownwood citizens have been summoned to appear before the court to give reasons why the rendition on their property in and near the city should not be raised over former renditions.

MILK NECESSARY IN A GOOD RATION

For some time it has been generally accepted that milk is a wonderful feed for all kinds of poultry. Just recently Prof. T. B. Charles and H. C. Knaedel of the Pennsylvania State College demonstrated in an experiment just concluded, the effect of various sources of animal protein on egg production. Here are their conclusions, when milk products such as dried buttermilk in proper combination with meat scraps are used, the feed cost will be increased, resulting in a greater egg production, with a resulting greater net profit. Other conclusions reached are, that milk products in the ration will help maintain the body weight of fowls in the most efficient manner, that they increase size of eggs, reduced tendency towards early moulting, and that they maintain a more uniform production throughout the year.

CROPS MUCH HELPED IN THIS SECTION AS STEADY RAINS FALL

Slow, steady rains which fell Monday afternoon and night and threatened to continue today greatly benefited growing crops throughout the state, although it will interfere with threshing here which began last week. Cotton is much helped.

A total of one and one quarter inches fell in Brownwood Monday, according to government gauge.

Ranges in West Texas were also greatly aided by the heavy rains. Abilene, San Saba, Winters, San Angelo, Waco, Fort Worth, Dallas and this entire section received good rains. Brown county points reports from fair to good rains. Coleman and Runnels counties report good rains.

Rain fell intermittently during the day here and over most of this section, according to reports coming to West Texas Telephone Company.

Good rains Monday and today are reported at Ballinger, Brady, Rising Star, Menard, Talpa, Valera, May and to the north. Light rains fell at Abilene, Blanket, Byrds, Coleman, Eden, Indian Creek and Bangs.

ATTEND REUNION AT Old Ellis County Church on Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bynum, accompanied by Mr. Bynum's father, W. H. Bynum, attended a reunion Sunday at what is known as the Oak Branch Camp ground, a small rural Methodist church, located near Waxahachie in Ellis county, the party returning to Brownwood about midnight Sunday night.

W. H. Bynum and his wife, who died recently, joined this church 51 years ago and although not a charter member, Mr. Bynum is one of the oldest former members of the church living today. Mrs. Bell Hagmark and Mrs. S. A. Hollingsworth of Zephyr, made the trip with Mr. and Mrs. Bynum.

Mr. Bynum stated today that many old timers were there to attend the reunion of the famous church and camp ground and that a very pleasant trip was had by all.

FUNERAL TOO COSTLY

CHICAGO — A $10,000 casket and $1,175 for funeral flowers is a bit extravagant in any instance, the Cook county probate court believes. It has under advisement the allowance of such a sum from the estate of a late Chicago labor leader.
