

COOKE COUNTY FAIR OPENS TUESDAY NOON

Engagement of Community Circus Extended One Day After Rains

The eleventh annual Cooke County Fair opened its doors Tuesday morning as a warm sun beamed its approval after three days of heavy rainfall. Hundreds of people were on the grounds by noon inspecting the various exhibits and attractions, and the festivities started in a big way Tuesday night when the Gainesville Community Circus gave its first performance at 8:15 o'clock. The Bill H. Hames carnival midway opened its engagement on the fair grounds at the same time.

All exhibits were in place Tuesday, and judging in the various departments began immediately.

Because of losing Monday night, the circus' engagement was extended through Thursday night, permitting three performances.

Claude Jones, secretary of the fair, announced Tuesday that the rodeo would be dispensed with this year. This action was taken because of the inability to obtain good rodeo stock and the high price of cattle at this time.

The annual reunion of the Half Century Club, Confederate Veterans, and old settlers of Cooke County was the principal event on the fair grounds Wednesday. The event closed at noon with a barbecue lunch.

Muenster and Leo To Play 3 Games Starting Sept. 5th

As far as the North Texas Softball League is concerned the schedule for this year is over, but Muenster fans will have the opportunity of witnessing at least two more classics when the Leo and Muenster teams clash in a two out of three series on successive Sundays beginning September 5. John Fisher and Herman Swirczynski stated Wednesday after completing arrangements with officials of the Leo club. Their original intention was to begin the series September 29, but Leo declined because of its three-game series at the Cooke County Fair this week-end to determine the championship of the county.

Softball enthusiasts are looking forward to real ball games—when these two clubs meet. Leo holds the league championship which includes two victories over Muenster but their boys are still smarting from the 7 to 5 defeat handed out by Muenster in the closing game of the season—the game that marred their perfect record.

Muenster, on the other hand, is determined to show its rival of the South that a champion is not too good to be licked. And the boys are hopeful that at least after their first game their lineup will be strengthened by the return of Toney Burger on third base.

More spice for the program is the fact that gate receipts will be split after the series on a 60-40 basis and each club is anxious to walk off with the lion's share of booty.

Old Pulte Home Being Removed; to Begin on New Fisher Homes Soon

Destruction of the old Pulte home is now in full swing as a preparatory step in the construction of new homes for John and Joe Fisher. Joe's home will be built on the site of the old house and John's will be north of the K. of C. Hall.

Al Walterscheid has already laid a water line to John's new home and preparations are now in progress to put down the concrete foundation. Work on Joe's home will begin as soon as old lumber is cleared away.

The houses are being built simultaneously by Wright Stevens, Gainesville contractor, who is also in charge of the new Gulf service station building here. All lumber that can be salvaged from the old building will be used in the construction of the two new ones. Except for smaller details the houses will be identical. Both are bungalows finished with asbestos sheet siding and similar fireproof roofs.

THE ONE AND ONLY

Harley Sadler, West Texas' own showman, will be here with his big tent theatre stage show for one night only, Sunday, September 12.

LINDSAY PROGRAMS TO COMMEMORATE OUR CONSTITUTION

Lindsay, Aug. 25.—In compliance with the wishes of President F. D. Roosevelt, who designated the period from September 17, 1937, to April 30, 1939, as one of commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the signing and ratification of the Constitution and of the inauguration of the first president under that constitution, the parish of St. Peter at Lindsay has formed a Church Constitution Committee, according to word received from the Rev. Father John, Monday.

This nationwide historical and educational celebration, of which Sol Bloom of New York is director general, has for its objective the "thinking afresh of the founding of our Government under the Constitution, how it has served us in the past and how in days to come its principles will guide the Nation ever forward."

Suggested forms of celebrations as set forth by Mr. Bloom include banquets, musicales, special sermons, etc., to be featured by an appropriate constitution background.

Members of the local committee as announced by Father John, are Paul Arendt, chairman; Jake Beizer, Mesdames Emilia Hundt and Anna Luebber, Ray Kupper and Vincent Zimmerer and Misses Lonla Gibb and Rose Sandman.

Thackerville Power Co. Gets REA Contract

The Rural Electrification Administration at Washington has approved a contract for the supplying of wholesale power between sponsors of the Red River Valley Rural Electric Company and the Thackerville Light and Power Company at rates which will average 1.31c per kwh, according to a bulletin issued by REA headquarters under date of August 18.

Farmers of this area will remember that the Red River Valley Rural Electric Company is the co-operative company that introduced the rural electrification project there in the hope of securing additional subscribers to their venture, and the power company mentioned is the same that assisted the Red River Valley Company in conducting its Cooke County survey.

Plans and specifications for line construction are now being checked in the office of E. T. Archer & Co., Kansas City, Mo., engineers for the project. Upon approval the sponsors can issue invitations to bid. This should take place in the very near future.

Adherence to the REA normal schedule of progress will enable farmers of the Thackerville area to begin using electricity late this fall. Mr. and Mrs. Tony Treubenbach, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Treubenbach, Jr., left last Friday for a week's tour of the West. Carlsbad Cavern was named as the principal point of interest along their route.

PASTOR ON VACATION

Father Frowin left Monday morning for a three weeks' vacation trip to New Mexico. Principal stopping places mentioned by the Rev. Pastor before his departure were the new Mexican Seminary at Las Vegas, and Santa Fe, where he will visit with Archbishop Gerken, who was a close friend of Father Frowin's during his stay at Windthorst.

Rains Helpful to Fields, Pastures In Muenster Area

Following a week of lowered temperature that seemed more like late October weather than the dreaded heat of August, the elements were consistent during the past week-end in favoring this locality with a typical fall rain. Showers beginning last Friday and falling intermittently until Tuesday morning deposited what is variously estimated from nine to 11 inches of rainfall.

Almost all the moisture soaked into the soil. Newly plowed fields on all sides absorbed the slow rains as they fell and permitted very little to reach the creeks. Only after the heavier showers was there any evidence of a rise in the creeks' levels.

Farmers of this community look upon the rain as a godsend. It is expected to sprout all weed and volunteer grain seeds, after which farmers can again go over their land and prepare it perfectly for fall sowing. Pasture grasses likewise will show the rain's benefit and result in increased production in the many dairy herds of this area.

One bad feature of the rain was its disastrous effect on the opening day of the Cooke County fair. Activity picked up, however, after the rain stopped on Tuesday.

CHECK ARTIST

Hoedebeck Arrests Man Suspected of Forging Check Here Two Years Ago

A man who gave his name as J. W. Johnson was arrested here Friday morning by Constable Frank Hoedebeck after W. L. Stock, proprietor of the local cotton gin, identified him as a forger who had been active here about two years ago.

At the time the man made his appearance, Mr. Stock said, he suspected him of being the person who had passed bad checks here before, and when he saw that the suspect used the same old tactics he summoned Officer Hoedebeck.

On the pretext of finding someone who had seen wheat for sale the man requested his victims to write their name and address, which, it is thought was to be used later as a pattern for forging a check.

Mr. Hoedebeck placed his suspect in the custody of Sheriff Luther McCollum at Gainesville who took the man's fingerprints and placed him in the county jail. The fingerprints were referred to Washington for identification.

Parish Picnic in Hall Next Sunday Sponsored By St. Joseph's Society

Members of the St. Joseph's Society will sponsor a parish picnic next Sunday afternoon at the Parish Hall, Henry Fleitman, president of the society, advised Wednesday. Arrangements have been made with Father Francis to hold the regular Sunday afternoon services at 2:30 instead of 3 o'clock and the festivities will begin immediately thereafter.

The entertainment program, according to Mr. Fleitman, will be featured by card and domino games, and lunches along with a good supply of cold drinks will be available for refreshments. The picnic is expected to end about 11 o'clock.

Frank Dankesreiter of Pilot Point Loses Eye While Splitting Wood

Word has been received that Frank Dankesreiter of Pilot Point, son of George Dankesreiter, was seriously injured last Wednesday while splitting kindling. A piece of the wood which flew up hit him directly in the eye and split the eye ball.

He was rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital at Sherman, where his eye ball was removed.

Fred Herr, Jr., who visited him Sunday, reported that he was making normal progress.

AFTER REVENGE

GEORGE HALAS

The broad smile this fellow is wearing is only a mask concealing his real thoughts of sweet revenge he hopes to harvest in the Cotton Bowl football stadium at the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition the night of September 6. Halas is president-coach of the powerful Chicago Bears, famous National Professional Football League juggernaut that last year suffered humiliation by being the only major pro eleven in history to lose to a group of college gridders.

HIGHWAY PROGRESS DELAYED ONE WEEK BECAUSE OF RAINS

Construction work on Highway 5 has been at a standstill during the past week because of the rain. It was stated, however, by members of the road crew that activity will again be going at full blast at the beginning of next week and it is possible that some work will be begun this week.

It is estimated that grade work east of Muenster will be completed in about one more week. The piles of rock that were blasted out just outside the city limits have been removed to the side of the road for future use and other similar blasting work has prepared the rock hill near I. A. Schoech's farm for removal. A few more shots and a week's work should prepare the entire road east for the sub base of gravel.

Workmen are of the opinion that gravel hauling will begin in about one month unless more rains continue to delay their activity. They estimate that the balance of sub-grading work west of Muenster can be finished in about three weeks.

Pupils of Texas Get Holiday to See Exposition

Dallas, Aug. 26.—Statewide movement of school children to the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition has won the endorsement of Dr. N. R. Crozier, Dallas school superintendent and outstanding Texas educator. The school movement starts September 9.

"Governor Allred is to be congratulated on proclaiming holidays for every Texas school so that students may visit this great international show," Dr. Crozier said.

"Since the opening dates of the school movement include the city of Dallas and Dallas County, I am sure we will set a mark for the rest of the State. Included in this visit on September 9 and 10 will be the children of Ellis, Kaufman, Navarro and Rockwall counties. Scheduled dates will include every county in Texas later.

"I appeal to the teachers of Texas to interest themselves immediately in this movement. Beyond question two days at the Exposition, which visit can be made at a nominal cost, is of far greater value than the same time in the class room. The Cavalcade of the Americas, the Texas Hall of State, the Museum of Texas History, the Pan American Building, all free, are alone well worth the trip.

"Since the railroads have granted the extra low rate of half a cent a mile, and the Exposition management has made every arrangement to entertain visitors at nominal prices, I feel that every Texas school child should be given this opportunity for education and amusement."

Miss Ann Huchtons, who spent a week here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Huchtons, and sister, Mrs. Clarence Hellman, returned to her duties in Sherman Wednesday.

Communism Denounced By Knights of Columbus At National Convention

ROMAN TRACHTA ESCAPES INJURY IN TRUCK CRASH

Roman Trachta narrowly escaped serious injury last Friday afternoon when the truck in which he was riding collided with another truck on Highway 5 one and one-half miles east of Gainesville. He was driving Joe Trachta's Dodge truck at the time of the accident.

Roman stated that the accident was caused by a defect in the steering gear. The cabs of the two machines missed one another and the truck beds collided, the greater damage being done to the other machine, which was a produce truck from Lewisville. Neither of the drivers was injured.

Laymen's Retreat For Diocese Will Begin on Sept. 24

Word has been received here from the Most Rev. Joseph P. Lynch, Bishop of Dallas, that the first annual layman's retreat for the Diocese of Dallas will open on Friday, September 24, and extend through the following Sunday.

Arrangements have been made, the Bishop's letter advises, where by accommodations for board and lodging can be secured at St. Joseph's Orphanage for a flat rate of $10. In view of the fact that this charge is reasonable, that the location is convenient—all services will be held in the same building—and that the ground has ample space for parking, the arrangement is regarded as highly satisfactory. The Passionist Father Barry of St. Louis, a well known and competent retreat master, will be in charge of the retreat.

The retreat, since it is the first conducted by the diocese, is expected to determine to a great extent whether the movement will be continued in the future. Judging, however, from the success of retreat movements in other localities, leaders of the Dallas Diocese are hopeful that the attendance will become greater each year. Arrangements made for this year will accommodate 60 participants, a number that is expected to be reached with little difficulty.

Local men who are interested in the retreat and those who wish to make reservations are requested to inquire at the office of this paper.

Rain Fails to Delay Progress in Building Gulf Filling Station

In spite of the heavy rains that caused several days' delay, work on the new Gulf station is progressing at a good speed that gives promise of finding the building completed at very nearly the scheduled date. When starting the building, Wright Stevens, contractor of the job, stated that it would take about five weeks. At the present time more than half the brick work is finished. The station is being built by Frank Treubenbach according to specifications of the Gulf Company, at a total cost of $5000. Upon completion it will be leased to Gulf until the total cost has been paid out in leases, at which time Mr. Treubenbach will be free to renew the contract or make other arrangements.

Fort Worth Kiwanians Get Air Minded After Speech by Miss Fette

A report from Kiwanian Bert Fisch states that Miss Lillian Fette, formerly of this city and now a hostess with American Airways, took a prominent part in the dinner and entertainment program given the Fort Worth Kiwanis Club in the new airport building last week.

Presenting interesting information about flying, Mr. Fisch stated, "Lillian made a tremendous hit with the club. Following her speech there was every indication of a dozen or more new passengers for American Airlines."

Miss Bernadine Roberg spent several days last week at Wichita Falls.

Hundreds of Visitors and 284 Delegates Attend Gala Event Sponsored by Alamo City Council

A renewal of their fight against Communism was the outstanding activity of the Knights of Columbus in their 55th International Supreme convention at San Antonio last week. To that end a motion was carried whereby all councils of the order endeavor to collect a minimum of 25 cents from each member in order to raise funds for combating the evil which was described as a threat to all religion and personal freedom.

It is hoped that the order will collect a fund of $100,000 from its 400,000 members during this campaign. The sum would result in a very noticeable increase in its activity through lectures and the spread of anti-communistic literature.

The convention, which was described by some as the most impressive gathering ever to assemble in the Alamo City, was made up of 284 delegates from all States and provinces of the Nation and hundreds of visiting members. All of them were honored with elaborate programs that had been prepared at enormous costs by the San Antonio council along with C. K. Walsh, William Galligan, John Philip, and the Rev. George Carnes.

Between five and six thousand persons were present at the "Night in Old Mexico" banquet on the grounds of Incarnate Word College. Lending color to the occasion were the complete Mexican menu, a genuine Mexican orchestra, and all waiters in Mexican costume. It was at this event that Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody was presented with an elaborate hand-made Mexican serape and sombrero.

Another impressive program was the States dinner in which all attendants were grouped around tables of their respective States. As an orchestra played the State songs each group sang a verse of its own song. Fifteen hundred persons attended the banquet and heard speeches by such men as Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Supreme Knight Carmody, and members of the Texas delegation. That event was followed by the States Ball.

War on Syphilis Is Discussed at Holy Name Meet

Joining in the nationwide movement to stamp out syphilis, public enemy No. 1 to the nation's health, the Rev. Francis Zimmerer, sponsor of the Holy Name Society, read to that group a forceful article taken from a prominent magazine, in its regular meeting Tuesday night, September 24.

High points of the article, as presented by Father Francis is that syphilis is a serious threat to the health of our nation, which ranks highest among leading nations in prevalence of the disease. In order to avoid tragic consequences it is necessary for us Americans as individuals or as a group to fight the scourge, a task which can be successfully accomplished by a general practice of taking tests for the disease followed by regular treatments for those found to be infected. Whether this practice became voluntary in certain communities or a compulsory state law was considered secondary in importance so long as the affliction is stamped out.

Scandinavian countries were cited as examples in which syphilis is being successfully fought, and following that fact was the statement that America also can stamp out the disease if the public so decides.

During the business session of the meeting members of the committee collecting for a society banner announced that they were approaching their quota in individual collections, but several members still had not remitted. All of them were urged by the Rev. Sponsor to submit their payments as soon as possible so that the banner can be made and delivered prior to the Feast of the Holy Name on January 3.

Forty-three members of the society were present at the meeting.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL HAPPENINGS

BACHELORS ENTERTAIN WITH CHICKEN FEAST

The bachelor quarters of Paul Hellman and Eugene Lehnertz was the scene of a delightful chicken and watermelon party last Sunday night, honoring M. J. Endres, Jr., on his 17th birthday. Feasting and dancing headed the evening's program.

Those attending were Misses Catherine Seyler, Joyce Bentley, Catherine Swirczynski, Gladys Richter, Pauline Schoech, Frances Wiesman, Agnes Weinzapfel and Paul Hellman, Eugene Lehnertz, Buster Herr, Richard Fette, Herman Fette, Joe Treubenbach and M. J. Endres, Jr.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ENTERTAIN WITH SOCIAL

Greeted by the largest turnout that has attended for several months, the Knights of Columbus held a pleasant and highly successful social in their hall Wednesday night, September 25.

The evening's program was divided into two parts, the first consisting of a card party which ended when a lunch of sandwiches and soda water was served at about 10 o'clock. After that Theo Walterseid and his associates provided music for an informal dance until 12 o'clock.

During the dance a number of the older guests continued their card and billiard games in the basement.

WILDE GIRLS HONOR GUESTS WITH PARTY

Mrs. Joe Wilde and her daughters, Laura Lee and Gladys, entertained with a party in their home Wednesday honoring Maxine Thoele of Windthorst, who is visiting here.

Bingo was the principal game of the afternoon and a number of prizes were won by the little guests. Laura Lee Wilde won the door prize and Maxine Thoele was presented with a guest prize.

The young hostesses and their mothers served a delicious luncheon consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and punch.

Those who attended were Dorothy Yosten, Anselma Pagel, Daphne Speer, Alma Marie Luke, Dolly Endres, Florence Haverkamp, Juanita Weinzapfel, Dorothy, Isabell, and Doris Lee Eberhart, Marian and Geneva Gremminger, Edna Lee Carter, Laura Ruth and Amelda Felderhoff, Rose and Mary Nell Hennigan, Marie Swingler and Margie Ann Endres.

FLEITMANS ENTERTAIN WITH SUPPER PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fleitman were hosts at a supper party honoring members of their family last Sunday night. Following a delightful meal the guests spent the rest of their evening at card games and German songs.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hoenig, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bindel, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fleitman, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hermes, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Roewe and their families and Mr. and Mrs. John Weiler, Mrs. Elizabeth Wieler and John, Bruno, Albert, Bill, Al, and Alphonse Fleitman.

C. D. OF A. HAVE SOCIAL IN WEINZAPFEL HOME

The Catholic Daughters were entertained with a social in the home of Mrs. Joe Weinzapfel Tuesday night. Twelve of the members were present and the three guests, Mrs. Henry Fleitman, Mrs. Charles Meurer and Mrs. Henry Thoele.

A series of forty-two games were played during the evening. Mrs. Henry Fleitman won the prize for high score and Miss Teresa Luke won the consolation prize.

The hostess then served a delicious luncheon consisting of sandwiches, olives, pickles, cookies, jello with whipped cream, and punch.

VISITORS HONORED BY PARTY IN PELS HOME

Honoring their relatives from California, Iowa, and Minnesota, a party was given last Sunday night in the Henry Pels home. Younger persons of the group spent the evening at dancing, the music being furnished by Felix Yosten, Frankie Treubenbach, and Henry Walterseid. Cards and dominoes provided entertainment for the oldsters.

Mrs. Henry Pels, as hostess, served refreshments to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelsea and daughter, Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelsea, Jr., and child, Mr. and Mrs. John Pels, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pels and son, Robert, Mr. and Mrs. George Gehrig, Misses Josephine Yosten, Bernice Miller, Isabell and Hilda Treubenbach, Alleen Hoehn, Ann Schneiderjon and Juanita Miller and Robert and Arnold Swirczynski, Otto Schneiderjon, Tony Nehib, Arnold Miller, Al and Leonard Yosten, and the Henry Pels family.

H. S. Wilde was in Dallas on business last Tuesday.

Nick Miller made a business trip to Dallas Wednesday.

R. J. Hellman and Herman Swirczynski spent Tuesday making business calls in Dallas.

M. J. Endres spent the past weekend at Brenham as the guest of his son, Leonard, and family.

Al Eberhart bought a new Plymouth two-door business sedan from Ben Seyler early this week.

Sid Otto, now employed at Gainesville, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Otto, last Sunday.

LeeRoy Stelzer of Henrietta was here Saturday and Sunday visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stelzer.

John Fuhrbach, who visited here several days with Mrs. Fuhrbach and son, Johnnie, returned to Amarillo Friday.

The Muenster Cheese Factory shipped two loads to Waco and one to Midland during the latter part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler of Gainesville were the house guests of Miss Geraldine Neathery from Thursday until Tuesday.

Alfred Walter, who was confined to St. Vincent's Hospital, Sherman, for about 10 days following an appendicitis operation, returned to his home here last Saturday.

G. E. W. Adams and son, Jack, of San Antonio arrived Wednesday to spend several days here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kathman and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bergman.

Mrs. John Miesch of San Antonio spent the day here Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fleitman and family. She is visiting relatives in Lindsay and is the aunt of Mrs. Wm. Fleitman.

Misses Evelyn and Mildred Patrick returned to Caw City, Okla., Friday with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Patrick, who had been visiting here with the O. L. Patrick family for a week.

Earl Fisher's return from Fort Worth last Sunday night was anything but pleasant. With a few miles of home he first got stuck in the mud and then ran out of gas—and reached home about 9 a. m. Monday. He and Robert Weinzapfel had spent the week-end at Cowtown after attending a K. of C. barbecue Saturday night.

LABOR DAY SPEAKER

The Pan American Exposition in Dallas will be the center of labor celebrations in the Southwest on Labor Day, September 6. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will speak at the Exposition grounds. It is expected that he will be rallying his Southwestern membership to fight C. I. O. encroachment.

A COSTLY SERVICE . . . COSTING DEPOSITORS
NOTHING WHEN A COMPENSATING
BALANCE IS CARRIED . . .

NEARLY everybody appreciates the conveniences of paying by check. But very few people appreciate how much service this demands of the bank.

The bank serves its depositors as secretary, treasurer, expert bookkeeper, messenger, bill-collector and financial adviser—and doesn't charge a cent for it when the balance justifies.

All of this costs the bank a great deal, but costs its depositors—nothing. This expense varies of course, but generally speaking, it has been found that for the average bank the country over any account with an average balance of less than $50.00 which has three or more checks drawn in one month, is carried by the bank at a loss.

The bank thinks of service first and always but it must be careful also not to lose while it serves.

CHAPTER 12.—Determined to leave her father's home, Jane accuses him of instigating the plot against Denison. In an insane rage he threatens her with violence. Against his orders, Bull Page, a cowboy, allows Jane to take a horse and depart. In uncontrollable fury Van Tumbel almost murders the luckless cowboy, then, stricken himself, staggers back to the ranch house and dies suddenly of a heart attack.

CHAPTER 13

Bull Page was only a broken cowboy, but Bull was loved in Sleepy Cat.

Yet even resentment at the name of Van Tumbel in Sleepy Cat was softened somewhat when men heard of Jane's unremitting attention at Bull's side in the hospital. Van Tumbel was buried. McCrossen took charge.

To Jane's infinite relief, Bull recovered and went back to Gunlock.

At the ranch there was an air of cheer when Jane was installed; everybody on tiptoe to render service. McCrossen was especially eager to please.

"Well, Jane, I guess you know whatever I can do to take care of things is goin' to be done, 24 hours a day if need be," he said. "All you have to do is to leave it to me."

"I shall depend on you for everything," she returned.

"Everything, Jane?" he echoed, smiling as if to invite a confidence. Jane was not caught. "Everything connected with running the ranch," she said evenly.

But it became increasingly evident as the days went by that the energetic foreman still regarded himself as a suitor.

For a fortnight nothing further occurred to break the routine of ranch work, and McCrossen said no more. The general impression in town was that Denison, as far as Jane was concerned, was out of the running. Jane, it was argued, would never marry a blind man, and the consensus of gossip was that Bill's sight was gone.

No excitement occurred in Sleepy Cat until one day John Lefever was reported arrived at Thief River with a herd of cattle for the reservation. Sawdy, who had gone to work at Gunlock when Lefever left for Texas, rode down to Thief River to help Lefever check the herd in at Gunlock Agency and to give him the big Sleepy Cat news.

But Lefever, too, brought news. The two cronies sat down to compare notes and celebrate the end of a long drive.

"I want to tell you somethin' I ran into nearin' Thief River," said Lefever. "There's a little slaughterin' ranch a mile south of town run by our friend, Clubfoot, the butcher—remember how he skinned us on the horse race? While our herd was headin' for the river, I stopped for a few minutes where a couple of his boys were loadin' a wagon with hides for shipping. I happened to know one of the boys. He wrangled for us, comin' up once. And I noticed all the hides I saw him tyin' up had a Gunlock brand. 'How's this?' I says. 'Does Van Tumbel peddle his steers down this way?' He winked at me an' laughed. 'This bunch,' says he 'was poker steers.'"

"It looks like McCrossen is runnin' off Gunlock cattle to pay his poker debts," said Sawdy.

When Lefever had made his delivery, he marched with Sawdy up to the hospital to call on their disabled side partner, Denison.

Bill had been promoted from a dark room to a shaded one.

"If I knew I was going to lose my eyes, boys," said he, "that would be one thing. I could end it all or settle down to making baskets for a living. But Doc keeps telling me he's going to save my eyes; and that keeps me hopin'—so the days and weeks hang on. All the same, it's tough, when you never were laid up before in your life. What's the news with you fellows?"

The visitors talked about the discovery Lefever had made of the hides at Thief River.

The half-blind ranchman listened intently, not with any noticeable excitement. But Sawdy imagined he could see Denison lighting up.

"Seem' you're not fixed up just right yet, is there anything you'd like us to do about it?" Sawdy asked.

"Why, yes, there is—just do one thing."

"What's that?"

"Keep your mouths shut till I get out of here. I guess you both know I've got a long score to settle with that bird. He was mixed up in burning up my ranch house and burning me up. I'll attend to McCrossen myself some day," he repeated slowly, "in my own way."

The two men left the hospital somewhat uneasy. They laid their story before Carpy.

The doctor heard it unmoved. "Well," he commented, "that's not the first bunch of steers McCrossen has stolen—and it won't be the last."

"Not the first," interjected Lefever. "But it's the closest anybody ever came to nailin' it on him."

"Anyway, I don't think he should be left there to rob the girl right along," added Carpy.

"Are you goin' to tell her?" asked Lefever.

"I am today. She's coming to town and will be in to see me."

They told him of their talk with Denison. "It left us leery, Doc," said Sawdy. "If Bill gets worked up too strong over McCrossen, he's liable to bust out on McCrossen before his eyes are in shape to give him an even break."

Doctor Carpy wayed his hand. "Keep your worry for something else, Sawdy. His eyes got scorched; but when I let go of the boy, keep away from the small end of his gun."

"Jane, you'll think I don't bring you anything but troublesome news," the doctor began. "But this isn't really news. I've known for months—two or three years, in fact—that McCrossen was stealing Gunlock steers. But this is what John Lefever brought up from Thief River today . . ."

"Now, there's nothing to get excited about," observed Carpy, after he had finished the story, "for it's nothing new. But if I were you I would get rid of McCrossen."

The expression on Jane's face reflected her perplexity. "That's easy to say, doctor, but it's going to be awfully hard to do. I want to be rid of McCrossen, heaven knows—for more reasons than one. But I'll need all my courage when I try the job."

She was glad, when she got home that night, that her foreman was away it gave her a night to think it over. In the morning he was over early with a report from the pastures and much pep in his manner.

Calmly she told him she would have to dispense with his services. With a face as black as Gunlock Knob, McCrossen rose slowly from the chair in which he had been facing Jane.

"So you're firin' me?" Looking at her coldly and searchingly, he spoke tensely and harshly.

"I've got to cut down expenses, Dave," she said. "I—"

Before she could speak, he ran on: "Folks don't naturally fire an old hand like me, your father's friend, without giving a reason, do they? What are you turnin' me out for?"

"Dave," she said suddenly, "you have been paid well—where does all your money go? Why do you have to run steers off the ranch at night to pay your debts?"

"So," he exclaimed savagely, "a few head of steers that belonged to me by rights anyway are stickin' in your crop, eh? Do you know your own dad was the biggest cattle thief in this whole country?"

Jane stamped her foot. "It's not so!"

"Did you know he made a thief out of me? The first calves I ever stole in my life, I stole for Gus Van Tumbel. Doesn't look very nice for you to talk to me about stealin' cattle," he exclaimed scornfully, "the daughter of a man that stole all he's got."

"Dave," she protested, angrily, "stop that talk. If my father owed you anything, I'll pay it."

He laughed. "All right, kiss an' make up." He stepped toward her. She sprang to her feet. "Dave, I—"

"Why, girl, don't you know I love you?" He spoke with a queer laugh and, darting forward, caught her. While she struggled, he rained kisses on her face and neck and arms.

Jane, frantic, fought to repel him. "Dave McCrossen, if you don't let me go, I'll scream across to the bunk house," she cried.

He jeered at her. "Go ahead, there's nobody there. I'll let you go after you kiss me and not before."

Just when she was afraid she would lose consciousness, the kitchen door opened behind McCrossen's back and Quong, half hiding a long knife in his loose sleeve, burst into the room.

Jane saw the China boy first. "Kill him, Quong, kill him!" she cried, beside herself.

"Drop that knife!" thundered McCrossen. Quong, his face livid, paid no attention whatever—he meant to kill or get killed. With fresh fear seizing her, Jane jerked from the foreman's grasp and flung herself between the two men. "No, no, Quong!" she cried. "Just stand by me. Now, get out of his house, Dave McCrossen. Never enter it again. Go!" she screamed.

McCrossen recovered himself. He laughed. "What's all the row about?" he demanded. "Just a little fun, Quong, that's all. The boss is tryin' to fire me, but I ain't gone yet. Get out, eh? All right, I'll get out—for now."

And laughing grotesquely, McCrossen strode to the front door, threw it open, walked out, and slammed it shut behind him.

Thoroughly shaken by the scene, Jane, without waiting for anything to eat, rode into town to seek Carpy for help.

He discounted her alarms. "No danger at all, Jane, of McCrossen's shooting Quong now. If all the threats in this country were put into action, there wouldn't be enough live men left to bury the dead men.

"Henry Sawdy will be in here for dinner. He's the man for your foreman. Talk to him after dinner."

"I'm afraid McCrossen will quarrel with whomever I put in and kill him."

"Kill Sawdy?" mused Carpy approvingly. "Sawdy's not so fast a man as McCrossen. He's not had to shoot his way out of as many scrapes as McCrossen has; but Henry's nobody's meat to serve raw—you needn't worry about him."

"If Bill were only well," explained Jane wistfully.

"I'm glad Bill isn't," returned Carpy quickly. "I wouldn't want to see him out and in trim while McCrossen is raging around. Then you might have something to worry about. To tell you the truth, girl, I'm holding Bill Denison back right now. He's coming on fine, but let's let well enough alone. After you talk to Sawdy, you'll see Bill. For heaven's sake, don't say one word about your roundup with McCrossen. Bill would jump the hospital fence."

When she saw Denison at the hospital, it was hard for Jane to repress the excitement that the morning's struggle had left upon her.

Even without Carpy's warning, she well knew that if Denison learned what had happened he would tear loose from all restraint.

"What's the news today, dearie?" he asked.

"Why, nothing special, Bill."

"You don't act that way."

Jane laughed, evaded, and said the real news was that soon the bandages were to come off his eyes. Sawdy accepted the ranch arrangement without a qualm, though Sleepy Cat knew even before he rode out to assume his post that McCrossen was vowing vengeance.

The day after Sawdy took charge, he was in town to do some ordering. In Rubio's store he ran into McCrossen. Sawdy shook hands with him, and McCrossen told him he would be out next day to pack up his things.

"I'll be glad to see you an' help any way I can. Ought not to be no hard feelin's, Dave. What do you say to a drink?"

The two, talking things over, sauntered down the street. Sawdy halted before Spott's place. McCrossen shook his head. "Not in there. I don't train with that butcher. Come along to the Red Front."

"No," said McCrossen, as he and Sawdy poured their glasses, "I don't carry no hard feelin's against you, Henry—not a bit. Jane treated me pretty rough, I must say that. But she ain't to blame, neither. She's been against me. It's Bill Denison that's behind all this. He's fair enough to my face, but he's double-faced."

"Dave," said Sawdy, impatiently, "don't talk like a blamed fool."

McCrossen bridled. "What do you mean, Sawdy?"

"Why, everybody knows Denison ain't two-faced. A man may like Bill or not like him. He's got his enemies, I'll admit."

"You're damned right he has."

"But so's every man. Well, here's luck, Dave."

"Luck to you, Henry—not to that—"

"Cut it out, Dave. If you an' Bill can't get along, that's your business. He an' I get along fine. Well, I've got to be startin' for the ranch."

"An' for my old job! An' my old home," muttered McCrossen. "Do you blame me for bein' sore?"

"Not a bit, Dave."

"Then fill up again an' be damned to all enemies."

It was some time, however, before Sawdy could break away. Even after he left, the ex-foreman loitered at the bar, pouring his grievance into the ears of Harry Boland, the low-voiced, mischief-making saloon keeper. "He's got my girl," complained McCrossen doggedly. "You know that, Harry."

Boland, leaning over the bar, listened sympathetically and nodded.

"It's pretty hard, Harry," McCrossen

The Cold Germ will

"bite you"

if you don't watch out

Too much praise cannot be given the formula of medical science that "it is better to keep well than to get well." Every effort should be made to prevent illness particularly during the treacherous months of winter.

Soon the common cold germ will wage its relentless attack to pave the way for such serious illnesses as bronchitis, sinus infections, tuberculosis and other health-wrecking diseases. Watch for that first "sniffle" . . . it's a warning that should not be overlooked.

For your health's sake, fight colds this winter with comfortable temperatures and adequate ventilation in every room of your home.

The cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year. Any sudden change in temperature as you go from a warm room to a cold one makes you susceptible to "catching cold."

Common colds are dangerous. Don't gamble with them. If you should catch cold during the coming winter months, consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

OUT OF THE DARK

As the time approaches for the opening of another school year dozens of parents begin to wonder about the advisability of sending their children back to school. In many of the homes young boys and girls will argue that they don't like school work, they don't see how Latin, English, history, algebra, and those other studies will help them in later life, and they can't see any sense in going to school any more.

They are correct in every respect—they do not understand how additional school work will profit them. But the very fact that they do not understand these things is one of the most powerful arguments for their going on to school some more. It has been said that the first mark of wisdom is a realization of how pitifully little one actually knows.

That is the reason it becomes all important for parents to insist on their children's continued education. Constant encouragement and sometimes a little prodding is necessary to keep youngsters at their school work but it is the only means when children "can't see any sense in it."

At one time in every person's life he is completely surrounded by a wilderness of ignorance; as he progresses he finally reaches a point where he can look out to a lighter world. From that time on he strives to get nearer and nearer to the light; he discovers that his success in life is measured by the distance he has traveled in the right direction.

Some people never get out of the deep shadows. They spend their lives in a blissful ignorance that does not permit them to know what is beyond their limited sight. Just as a savage knows nothing of plumbing, electricity, gasoline motors and the many other things we take for granted, ignorant people fail to appreciate that a world of wonders lies beyond their knowledge.

Some will retort that many of our great men reached the peak of success without an education. That statement is totally false. Some prominent men did not have the opportunity of going to school but they did have the ambition and grit to dig out an education for themselves. Those men had to take the hardest road to success. School life is the easy start on that road, and it can be taken for granted that the boy or girl who lacks the ambition to take the easy way certainly will not take the hard one.

Successful people are those who spend a lifetime improving themselves. Persons who pass up the opportunity of an education pass up the first and most important step in self-improvement. They begin their careers under a severe handicap.

OUR EDUCATIONAL NEED

Another school term will be under way in our public school within a few weeks. As in the past 10 years four teachers will face 11 grades of children with a full knowledge that they are taking on an abnormally big job, that they will have to spend a world of time in overtime work and still will not be able to give each grade the attention it deserves.

Harping on the school situation is getting to be such a commonplace topic that people are beginning to expect it at regular intervals. Almost without exception they agree that the improvement is necessary and important and then dismiss the subject with a shrug and a remark to the effect that people here will not vote the necessary tax burden on themselves.

Such statements are easy to make and constitute an easy way of dismissing an important problem. But unfortunately problems are not solved by dismissing them. We are still faced with the necessity of providing adequate educational facilities for the children of Muenster, for those who will be entrusted with this entire community in the next generation and who, we must make sure, are given an educational background that will enable them to compete with a fast moving civilization.

Can we conscientiously dismiss a problem such as this with little concern? Can we offhandedly remark that THEY won't consider the expense of bringing about an improvement? Here in Muenster we have decided to outlaw the expression "they." The entire community is one single group of which every one of us is a part, and the correct expression, therefore, is "we." It is true that we are divided in opinion but that fact does not excuse neglect of a project so important as a better school system!

Those of us who understand the practicability of getting a better school have a public duty of spreading our gospel to our disagreeing friends. As a service to our future citizens we must work unceasingly until everyone favors a complete first class high school for Muenster.

All of us must be aware of the actual cost of a first class high school here. All of us must be aware of the money that is spent away from here by high school students. And more important still, all of us must be aware of how many children are deprived of a high school course because we can not offer the facilities here.

COURAGE AND FORESIGHT

This is a short account of a trans-continental airplane race. On the day of the takeoff all contestants are nervous with the excitement of the momentous event. They have drawn numbers to indicate their places in the takeoff schedule and are busily engaged in final preliminaries.

Three of the contestants will have our attention. The first is an impulsive youngster who thinks only of the end of the race. With courage and self-confidence he hops into the machine and roars off, determined to set a new record. Just as he is taking off a mechanic rushes out to advise that the spare fuel tank has not been filled. But our young hero either does not understand the warning or does not pay any attention to it. Several hours later the world is informed that Entry No 1 cracked up in the mountains. His plane was wrecked and his personal injuries will probably wreck the rest of his life.

Number Two began making a fastidious inspection of his machine and found one fault after another. He requested the last place in the take off schedule and finally was disqualified because he wasted too much time with his imaginary troubles. As a matter of fact he was glad to be out of the race, he feared the possible consequences when the going was difficult.

The third man made a thorough, systematic check and, once confident that all was in order, set out to overcome other obstacles if and when he came to them. He finished his flight.

We at Muenster also have a flight to make. We want to pass over the barrier that divides an unsightly, primitive community from a modern one that offers greater opportunities and is more attractive as well as more comfortable.

The flight is set for the very near future. Natural circumstances have made most of the preliminary preparations, and we are getting set for the take off. Will we be like No. 1 who had courage but no foresight? Will we be like No. 2 who prepared and then gave up? Or will we be like No. 3 who had both the foresight and the courage to end his venture successfully?

Before us is a goal well worth striving for and the third pilot has shown us how to reach it.

National child safety education began in 1922. Since then, the traffic death rate for children in the 5 to 14 years age group has dropped 6 per cent to 13.2 deaths per 100,000.

What Others Have to Say--

GEESE AS FARMERS

MUENSTER ENTERPRISE: In circulation nowadays is a rumor to the effect that this community will soon have the opportunity of witnessing some really simplified cotton farming. A man who is supposed to have rented a farm for next year states that he will have a flock of 80 geese to clean out all the grass while he leisurely sits in the shade and whittles. We laughed it off as a fairly good yarn, but after hearing that the scheme has been successful elsewhere we are wondering whether we will have to laugh out of the other side of our faces. To say the least the idea, if it works, should be a dandy. Besides saving a lot of work it would provide additional income from the sale of cheaply fed geese. Nevertheless we are still wondering how the geese can be trained to plant and pick the cotton.

State Press in Dallas News: Now we seem to be getting somewhere on the cotton problem. The only complaint we ever had against farming was the work involved. With well-trained geese to plant and pick as well as chop our cotton, we are ready to return to the farm and begin leading the life of Riley. Geese won't worry about such low matters as their share of the produce or the price of cotton, and they can be counted on to turn out enough of the white staple to restore American supremacy in the world market, even if they have to throw in some of their own tail feathers to fill out the bales. But still there may be some hidden hitch to this grand scheme. Dandy ideas don't always pan out just like they are supposed to. Perpetual motion machines, for example. There have been at least three wise guys in every generation since Adam that thought they had solved this something-for-nothing problem. Last year in the Ford building at the Texas Centennial there was a museum filled with models of so-called perpetual motion machines. Hidden wires and pulleys actually made them move and a large sign confessed they were phonies. Yet one old boy from out in New Mexico was overheard to say, "Well, I'll be. I always knowed Henry Ford would invent one of them machines before anybody else got around to it."

THE TAX SPECIAL SESSION

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM: Reports from Austin indicate the existence of considerable recalcitrancy among legislators in the matter of a special session to be called for the single purpose of adjusting the State taxes—upward. The opposition generally rests on the improved conditions of all manner of business within the legislative districts.

If the proposed special session were called for the broad purpose of readjustment of the entire State tax process and made to include some provision for settlement of the huge volume of unpaid taxes, variously estimated between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000, the tax paying public might feel that the special session expense would be justified. It being generally taken for granted, however, that the sole incentive for the session is a program of separate tax increases, the objections being voiced by numerous legislators are wholly valid.

It is true that some measure of prosperity is returning to most Texas industries and that such a condition betokens a corresponding increase in tax payments. It is a mere guess at the volume. It would seem very much better gubernatorial judgment to hope for the best instead of expensively registering fear of the worst. Taxpayers are entitled to the "break" they indubitably have earned during the recent seven years of burden-carrying that has been theirs. It is true that a deficit exists in the State treasury, but when has one not existed.

It would be interesting to know the figure of a referendum majority against another special session.

MUST KEEP AWAKE

SAN MARCOS DAILY NEWS: A community or town which does not go forward must inevitably go backward. The community that goes to sleep cannot expect to attract business or make friends. Folks just don't care much about a sleepy or dead town. That is why it is so necessary to keep everlastingly hammering on the problem of progress and enterprise. Nothing succeeds like success. A turning wheel is easier to keep in motion than it is to start in motion.

We did the Cutting for You!

YOUR home service rates on electric energy have been cut 3 times since 1928 . . . and we did the cutting! Voluntarily! For you! So you could enjoy the many uses of a more efficient electric service.

Perhaps you may say, "Well, you should cut your rates." Certainly! We accept that responsibility along with all the other obligations of honest-to-goodness public service. And, we meet that responsibility.

Your home service rates are lower than those in many much larger cities located in more thickly settled sections of America!

They're lower because of the good management and the efficiencies of the transmission line power service of this Company. They're lower in spite of the fact that our taxes, our materials costs are higher, and our payroll larger.

Your taxes are higher . . . your living costs generally are higher . . . but, your home service rates are cut 49% . . . and we did the cutting!

Frank Cole and Mrs. W. R. Cole left Sunday for Carlsbad, N. M., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole.

MISS ENDRES IMPROVES

Miss Mary Elizabeth Endres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Endres, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Gainesville hospital Sunday night. Her condition Wednesday was pronounced as normal.

Wait till he gets out. Then tell him what you think of him." The following day it was known up and down River Street that McCrossen was spoiling for a fight. McAlpin took alarm at the rumors that spread so rapidly. He ambled up the street to lay the reports before Carpy. "McAlpin," said the doctor, "don't worry. There can't be any fight as long as one man's laid up in the hospital. I'm going to keep him there till McCrossen cools off."

"Why, for that boy to face McCrossen, half blind like he is now—it'd be plain murder," McAlpin burst out indignantly. "Bill Denison ought to be kept under cover for six months, till he can see straight." Carpy refused to get excited. "See?" he echoed scornfully. "McAlpin, that boy could see right now to thread a needle in the dark. He doesn't know that. You keep your mouth shut, understand!"

As the doctor spoke, Jake Spotts stuck his head in at the office door. "Hello, Doc," he called out without any preliminary greeting. "I got a message for you from Sister Angela."

"Sister Angela!" exclaimed Carpy in surprise. "When did you see Sister Angela?"

"'Bout five minutes ago—been up to the hospital shavin' a man. Bill Denison's gone."

"Carpy jumped to his feet. "What d'you mean, Jake?"

"Just what I say. That's English, ain't it? Bill Denison's gone." "Where's he gone?"

"How the hell should I know?" demanded the irascible barber. "Nobody knows. Sister said to tell you Bill is gone."

"What—?" Spotts waved his hand. "That's all I know, and I've got to get back to the shop."

McAlpin sat with ears cocked, but had no time to speak. "Run for your life, McAlpin, and hitch up for me," exclaimed Carpy. "I'll follow you right down."

The liveryman drove Dr. Carpy up to the hospital. Sister Angela in the office met the doctor. "What's this I hear, Sister?" asked Carpy. "Where's Denison?"

"He's gone. He was in his room and ate his supper at 5 o'clock. When the nurse went into his room again, the bed was empty. His clothes are gone from the closet. We've looked everywhere. What can we do?"

Carpy's vexed face reflected his uneasiness. "There's nothing you can do, Sister. We'll hear from him before we want to, I'm afraid." He turned from the counter and whirled around again to it. "Sister," he asked suddenly, "was there anybody here to see him this afternoon?"

"Nobody but an Indian."

"Did you get his name?"

"It was John Frying Pan."

Carpy grunted. "Thanks, Sister," he said and hurried out.

"Where now, Doc?" asked McAlpin as Carpy, silent and perplexed, got into the buggy beside him.

"Back to the office, McAlpin. The bird's flown. Hell's loose, in spite of my fine schemes."

"Did you get any explanation?"

"Plenty," rejoined Carpy grimly. "Plenty!"

EVERY NOW AND THEN we get to hear the remark that Muenster will be really bone-dry in the near future . . . that anyone selling beer in a dry territory is subject to a fine ranging from $100 to $1,000 in addition to a forced vacation at Huntsville. Whether or not such drastic penalties are ever imposed remains to be seen. But we do hope that the law will become so disagreeable that the general public, and not just the beer sellers, will make some effort at having it changed. As it is anyone who wants a drink gets it and the few who provide the drinks are in constant dread of a raid. We favor a law so drastic that some of our friends who vote dry and drink wet will be disgusted with their votes. After a few months of that condition another local option election would go over with a bang!

In years to come psychologists will be thankful to Felix Yosten for bringing to light an interesting psychological fact—that the desires of childhood can be suppressed but not extinguished. According to accounts from his friends Felix, who now approaches manhood, had the time of his life the other day flying a kite. Felix explained that he's always wanted to fly a kite but until his big brother outgrew the urge he never had the chance. Now it's his turn to take the kite away from another younger brother.

When Knighthood Was In Flower it was all in a day's work to batter down heavy doors to rescue the lady fair. In modern times we miss the adventurers in black, bat-infested castles and the clank of the hero's mail, but the knight's gallant spirit marches on . . . we still have knights who tear down doors for the sake of a lady in distress. For further details we refer you to Earl Fisher.

Newspapers this week carried a pitiful story about a six-year-old boy who was actually killed by a swarm of angry bees. Two thousand stingers in his face gave him a bewhiskered appearance and another 5000 were found on his head. Almost all of us are aware of the pain caused by a bee's sting and the attendant swelling is ample evidence that the insect injects a small portion of some poison. Whether the child broke down under intense pain or from excessive poison is a matter of guesswork, but this case proves that bees can kill a person. And it is probable that considerably fewer than 7000 are necessary to do the job.

Business men who have a hard time making collections can get a good idea from the man who sent his slow pay customers bills for more than twice the amount of their account. In many cases the people came in to protest the bills and point out the exact indebtedness whereupon the credit man humbly apologized and offered to accept payment for the corrected figure—and received it.

Before long we hope to print an inspiring story about a certain small town girl who took over the big city in a big way. And the source of our inspiration will be the fair miss who, like the rest of us, got her start amongst the untrodden weeds and soared to the heights of Personality Girl and Ambassador of Good Will for an air transport company. To date she has greeted foreign officials, escorted a Texas Sweetheart on a publicity tour, appeared on radio programs and addressed groups of business men in behalf of her patrons. Muenster basks in the reflected glory of her success.

Driving new cars back from Detroit continues to be an adventure. This time Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Frost, Ray Swirczynski, and Shorty Herr had the big experience. To begin the confusion Shorty rushed away with the big end of the group's expense money, leaving three others in financial embarrassment. Percy got big-hearted and loaned Ray a big part of his money only to find that the big city people would not cash a large enough check to give him

JOHNNY AND GENE LEAD BALL CLUB IN FIELDING, HITTING

During his one game in the North Texas Softball League Toney Burger stepped out with records in both batting and fielding that place him head and shoulders above other players on the Muenstetr team. Figuring the regular season's club, however, Gene Lehnertz stands out as the leading hitter with .426, and John Fleitman as the leading fielder with .933.

Statistics on the Muenstetr team as compiled by Paul Nieball and Leo Henscheld are as follows:

at the convention were a donation of $5000 to Archbishop Ruiz y Flores, Apostolic Delegate to Mexico, to be used for training priests in his recently established seminary at Las Vegas, N. M. The group also went on record as protesting against the atheistic government of Mexico and renewed their appeal to the American Government to remonstrate against violations of civil and religious rights of our Christian neighbors across the Rio Grande.

Muenster people who attended the convention were Rev. Francis Zimmerer, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hennigan and two children, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Weinzapfel, Joe Fisher, Sr., and Alphonse Luke.

any substantial help. And to top it all off Percy lost his wife somewhere in Oklahoma. All of which reminds us of the time Ben Seyler made the wrong turn coming out of Chicago and led his two companions back to the loop, then lost them. The next time those fellows saw Ben was two days later in Muenster.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sicking and daughter, Theresa, of Gainesville left this week for a trip through Northern and Western States. They will be gone about one month.

Relatives here advise that Mrs. Al Flusche is back at her home in Decatur after spending nine days in a hospital following an appendicitis operation. Last Saturday she was cheered by a visit from Mrs. Joseph Flusche of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zipperer and daughter, Virginia, and son, Jerry, of Dallas drove to Muenster Monday to get Juanita Zipperer, who had spent the summer vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson. They returned to Dallas Tuesday.

Mrs. Ed Eberhart served supper Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Tempel of Shurburn, Minn. The honorees' father, Mr. Joe Tempel, who has been confined to his home for some time, and Mrs. Joe Tempel, were among those present.

Though still confined to a bed and wheel chair, Mrs. Ben Seyler is slowly recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident early in June. Her pain has eased considerably and she expects to have the cast removed from her right leg in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Russell and three children, Rosalee, Jimmy and T. J., took Mrs. Phoebe Carlew, mother of Mrs. Russell, to her home in Lee's Summit, Mo. They left Tuesday and will return in a few days. Mrs. Carlew had been visiting here for the past three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fette returned Sunday from a two weeks' vacation tour to the West Coast. Principal points of interest along their route were the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, and a several-days' stop with Mrs. Len Morris at Yucaipa, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Luke returned last Saturday from New Orleans where they attended the National convention of rural carriers. During their trip they visited briefly with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herr at Gladewater and with the Schoppe family at Port Arthur.

wreck near Turner Falls, Okla., while on his return from a week-end visit with his family here. The accident occurred Tuesday morning. Particulars about the accident have not been received here to date but members of Vincent's family were told that none of the occupants of the car that figured in the head-on collision were seriously injured. Both cars, however, were badly demolished.

Deserted Car Near Hood Believed to Be Stolen

Gainesville officers were summoned to Hood Tuesday to investigate a 1935 Chevrolet sedan bearing an Oklahoma license plate. After the driver abandoned the machine and struck out through a corn field in what seemed like an attempt to escape people became suspicious that the car had been stolen.

The man ran into a ditch and asked a passing farmer to return with a tractor to pull him out but was gone when the tractor arrived. At this writing it has not been revealed whether the man was caught or the car had actually been stolen.

Wildes Visit Old Timers While on Oklahoma Trip

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wilde spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week visiting with relatives and old time friends in Oklahoma. At Cordell and Elk City they were guests of the Pfeffer families, all of them relatives of Mrs. Wilde. At Canute they saw several sons of Frank Flies who is remembered by old timers here as one of Muenster's farmers during pioneer days. The Wildes also saw a church and magnificent grove donated to the parish of Canute by Mr. Flies. On either side of the grotto are places for graves. One of them has been occupied by Mr. Flies for the past six years; the other reserved for the pastor who assisted him in the work.

Heart Disease Fatal To Katherine Bradley

Word was received by Mrs. Wm. Stelzer that her cousin, Katherine Bradley, of Denver, Colo., died Sunday, August 22 of leakage of the heart. She was 23 years of age. Several of the young people here met her last year when she visited with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stelzer.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Little Theresa Winstead of the Hays community underwent a major operation for intestinal disorders early this week at the Gainesville Sanitarium. Dr. T. S. Myrick, her physician, performed the operation. No late report of her progress has been received but first reports were favorable.

Vincent Trachta of Oklahoma City was in Muenster Sunday and Monday as the guest of his mother, Mrs. Frank Trachta.
