NUMBER 30

While cheering for President Reagan in his effort to follow the mandates of last year's election, we are becoming increasingly aware that his undertaking is tougher than expected. At the same time we are seeing that the majority of people in congress do not really represent their constituents back home.

We have seen that he needed the help of conservative Democrats in the House to pass the budget cutting legislation, and now it appears he will need those same supporters to get the proposed tax cuts. Incidentally, we Texans have something to be proud of in this. Of the 47 members making up the Conservative Democratic Forum—people who choose to vote with their people and the state—eight are from Texas, including our man, Charles Stenholm.

However there's also a disappointment. A number of Republicans, mostly from the north and east, are ignoring the voter mandate and joining the Democrats in fighting tax cuts. They are liberals of the GOP who actually fit better in the other party, who not only snub the big majority of people but stubbornly hang on to the big spending theory that has caused the trouble in the first place. One would think that after their system has failed for more than 40 years they ought to feel guilty in bucking a change.

But that's not half of the story. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker is now proposing that the Senate should delay until next year the so-called "social issues" on the legislative agenda. By this he refers to forced busing, voluntary school prayer, abortion, etc.

Baker says these things should wait because the economic program should have preference, and he has tried to make this the official policy of the party. Others however recognize the maneuver as exactly what it is, an attempt to sidetrack the wishes of voters and go on with the same old evils that have been corroding American life for decades. Senator Laxalt says that social issues such as right-to-life, busing, capital punishment, family protection, prayer in school, tuition tax credit and the like ought to be vigorously pursued. "That's what the election was all about. It is part of the Reagan mandate."

A similar message comes from Senator Jesse Helms: "There will be a proper mix of issues this year. The Senate won't spend all its time on the economy."

As may be expected, the Baker suggestion has stirred up a hornets' nest among grass-roots New Right conservatives. These are the folks who made a landslide of the election and claim the right to expect the proposed reforms in American life. While fully supporting the President's program of economic recovery, they maintain that it should not be the only congressional business of the year.

They point to a statement by Baker himself shortly after the election, saying a substantial number of people would be bitterly disappointed if they voted for a fundamental change in public policies that didn't occur.

"Though Baker's policy has changed his earlier statement still makes good sense. It is unconscionable to suggest that this sizeable segment of the American electorate be ignored for the remainder of this year, and it is shocking that Senator Baker would ask the many members of Congress who

Local swim classes will start Monday

Muenster's annual Red Cross swimming program will begin next week, according to an announcement Monday by Jeannine Flusche, director.

The first stage is a course in Basic Rescue and Water Safety starting next Monday, the 22nd, with Kathy Hartman, JoAnn Pagel and Joe Bartush as instructors. All have the Red Cross rating of water safety instructor.

Enrollment requirements are 11 years or older, sound physical condition and passing a preliminary swimming test. This is a one week course and class time is 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday through Friday.

Another stage of the program also starts next Monday, class time will also be from 9 a.m. to noon daily, and the same trio will be instructors. However, it is a two week course. Requirement for entry is 15 years of age, sound physical condition and passing of a preliminary swimming test.

Registration for both courses will precede the first class. The courses have a double purpose. Besides improving swimming skill the intention is to train capable swimmers to assist with the beginners swim classes which will start on July 6.

A parent's permission is needed to admit a student to either of these classes. An application form to be filled out and signed by a parent is available on page 3.

Sister Mary John named Prioress at Holy Angels

Friends and relatives of Muenster were delighted last week at the announcement that Sister Mary John Seyler, O.S.B. is the newly elected Prioress of Holy Angels Convent and president of the governing board of St. Bernard's Regional Medical Center at Jonesboro, Ark. Along with the new position, she has a new title as Mother Mary John, superior of the Olivetan Benedictine Sisters of Holy Angels Convent.

Mother Mary John is a native of Muenster, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Seyler and a student of Sacred Heart School before entering the novitiate of Holy Angels Convent on June 24, 1947. She took vows as a member of the order on August 15, 1949.

Mother Mary John has a B.A. degree from Avila College, Arkansas, and a master of religious education from St. Mary's University, San Antonio.

Her latest assignment was as principal of St. Paul's High School in Pocahontas, Ark., for two years and before that she was at Muenster's Sacred Heart High for nine years, five as a teacher and four as the principal.

She has taught elementary education at Holy Souls School, Little Rock and Blessed Sacrament School, Jonesboro, and has taught religious education in Our Lady of the Lake Parish, Erath, La., St. Paul High School, Pocahontas, and Goretti High School, Lake Arthur, La.

Stephen Beyer, new principal at SHS

Looking forward enthusiastically to the coming school year Stephen Beyer is busy getting established in his position as the new principal of Sacred Heart School. His priority concern now is to complete the faculty, which he expects to announce in one or two weeks.

At the same time he is giving extensive thought to administrative matters, such as curriculum and policy. His first concern, he said, is to develop a fine program available to all who want a superior education in college prep as well as vocational subjects.

"Our intention is to impart a solid foundation with attention to the specialty areas. It's not so much a change of ideas or methods as improving on what we already have." Beyer believes that ethnic and religious background will be a strong factor favoring progress of the Muenster students.

A native of Houston, he spent most of his childhood and youth in Dallas, graduating from Jesuit High School in 1968. He next spent two years at Stephen F. Austin University and a year at El Centro, Dallas, and four years in the Army before going to North Texas State University for his last year of college study. He graduated in 1976 with majors in English and science and minors in speech, drama and music.

Assignments since then include teaching speech and drama at Kingsville and science at Carrollton. During the next year, at Our Lady of Sorrows in McAllen, he was assistant principal, taught government, and studied at Pan-American University where he received a master degree in educational administration in 1979. He taught at St. Ignatius, Austin, last year while working on his doctorate at the University of Texas. He will continue his doctoral study at NTSU for the remainder of this summer and the coming school year.

Since coming here the Beyers have checked for a possible relationship with the Beyers here or the Beyers of Lindsay, and found that all they have in common is a German Catholic ancestry. His grandparents settled at Moulton, South Texas, when they came from Germany.

The Beyers have four children, three of school age.

Harvest proceeds slowly

With only 40 to 50 percent of the year's grain crop harvested after it has been waiting in the field for three to four weeks, Muenster farmers got a break this week when they were spared by widespread rains. Combines kept running here while downpours flooded some areas of the state and some of the moisture got into the county.

The result was a few more days of combining and escaping another setback. But the job ahead is still enormous. The area needs at least two weeks of favorable weather to clear the uncut fields, and it has other problems too. The wetter ground is slow in drying and some of it may not be harvested. At the same time weeds and grass are thriving. As they reach cutting height more of them will go through the threshing process with the grain and yield increasing volumes of moisture, requiring grain to be dried before storing. At the same time grain quality is deteriorating. Top test now is 58 and 59 and the average is nearer 55.

As regards yield, most farmers still have nothing to report. Unable to harvest the wet spots they don't have a definite acreage as a basis of estimating bushels per acre. However guesses are still 40 to 50.

Prices are slightly down this week: $3.90 for hard wheat and $3.20 for soft wheat. Moisture, while much of the state was being soaked, amounted to only .46 inch in three readings during the week. Steve Moster's record shows .01, .07 and .38 for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Added to .64 earlier, this makes 1.10 for June and 19.44 to date this year. After a dry beginning the community is ahead of normal for the year.

At the same time temperature records have been mild, especially by comparison with last year's heat wave. Up to now June has had only 4 days in the 90s, the hottest being 97 on the 8th. Last year June has 11 days over 100, the hottest being 113 and 114 on the 27th and the 28th.

Low and high readings of the week were recorded as follows by Steve Moster, June 11, 71 and 85; June 12, 72 and 85; June 13, 74 and 87; June 14, 76 and 86; June 15, 77 and 92; June 16, 62 and 80; June 17, 57 and 85.

Monte Endres joins Cooke County Lions

Monte Endres, 6'4" forward of the Sacred Heart Tigers was named this week as the first signed for the Cooke County College Lions of the 1981-82 basketball season.

Endres had great credentials at Sacred Heart. He averaged nearly 18 points and 13 rebounds per game along with an average of three steals and five assists. He was named the most valuable player of his district, all-area, TCIL all-tournament and all-state, and also received recognition on McDonald's high school All-American team.

"We are delighted to have Monte join our program," said Head Coach Jim Voight. "He has outstanding statistics and we hope he can match them for us. With only three players returning from our Texas state junior college championships, he will have a good opportunity to step in and play."

SH Parish sponsors Fathers' Day picnic

Everything's ready for the annual big homecoming dinner and picnic sponsored by Sacred Heart Parish next Sunday in the Community Center. Coinciding with Fathers Day, the event is an added inducement for many former residents to come home for a visit.

It will start at 11:30 and continue into the night with attractions for kids and adults. First of those is dinner with fried chicken, German sausage, vegetables, pie and drinks. Tickets are priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.00 for children under 12.

During the afternoon there will be beer, soft drinks, sandwiches, snacks, pie, cake, games, stores and kids' amusements.

The traditional big auction will start at 6 p.m. and go on until stock is cleared.

Items to be sold include livestock, furniture, appliances, auto parts, feed, hardware, antiques, etc. and proceeds of the sale go to the Community Center's debt reduction fund.

Applications invited for nominees to academies

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm reminds young persons that he is presently receiving applications from young persons interested in competing for nominations to the service academies, for the classes entering July 1982. Stenholm advises that he will be using the competitive method of selection, so that all young persons meeting the necessary requirements may be considered. The service academies are the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland; the Military Academy at West Point, New York; the Air Force Academy near Colorado Springs, Colorado; the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, New York; and the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut. These institutions offer an excellent education and a great opportunity for young persons wishing to serve their country through a military career. In order for Congressman Stenholm to consider applicants, a candidate must meet these requirements: (1) Must be a U.S. citizen; (2) must be over 17 and under 22 years of age on July 1, 1982; (3) must be a legal resident of the 17th Congressional District; (4) must never have been married; (5) must be physically fit, including excellent eyesight; (6) must have a good overall high school record. Stenholm stresses that political influence is not a factor in his nominations to the Academies. He is looking for bright, active, well-rounded individuals to offer as nominations.

Interested young persons who meet the above requirements should write to Congressman Charles W. Stenholm, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. by August 31. Upon receipt of a letter of interest, the Congressman will provide information as to further steps which should be taken. Young persons should make arrangements on their own to take ACT or SAT examinations.

The competition for these nominations is keen, but Congressman Stenholm wants to assure all young persons interested in a military career that they will be given an equal opportunity to compete for nomination.

ran on the "social issues" to do nothing now and violate their promises to their constituencies."

Also opposing Baker, Paul A. Brown of the Life Amendment Political Action Committee said Baker is incapable of being the Senate Majority Leader and calls on the newly elected Republican senators to create a "New Right Majority" in the Senate so that they can "work around" Baker.

He says that the Senator's proposal reeks of petty tyranny. "No social or emotional issues would mean that the federal government will continue to divert nearly $1 billion of Social Security funding for sex instruction programs, distribution of contraceptives to minors without parental knowledge or consent, phony family planning programs, abortion counseling—and yes, even for abortions!"

"If I were a person on a social security pension," Brown continued, "I'd be sending a message to Baker loud and clear: cut out the petty tyranny and deal with important social issues—get the Social Security Administration out of the anti-family, anti-life programs and give me a decent social security check."

President Reagan was given a mandate last November by the American people to carry out a social program, an economic program, a national defense program and a foreign policy program. The President has re-affirmed that this mandate does not mean four separate baskets or four separate programs—it means one big package and one total program."

Conservation is part of the answer, so...

let's save all we can.

We Americans have traditionally been pretty good savers, and lately we've made some progress in saving energy. We've slowed our energy consumption and actually reduced our imports of petroleum.

But in 1980 we still imported more than 40 percent of the oil we used in the United States, at a cost of about $70 billion. We must save more, and we can.

Most of our savings so far have come from driving slower in more efficient cars. We can also improve around our homes by increasing the insulation in our houses, and by choosing the most energy-efficient appliances when we shop for new ones. American industry is making appliances more efficient and labeling large ones with their energy-efficiency ratings to help us compare.

At your electric company, we believe that conservation is important. But it's not the whole answer to our energy problems. We need to use more of our abundant domestic supplies of coal and nuclear fuels to make electricity. And support efforts to develop other sources of energy and make them economically practical.

Conservation is part of the answer, so... let's save all we can.

TAXING and SPENDING

by LEWIS K. UHLER

"LET'S HEAR IT FOR AMERICA"

WHEN IS A TAX CUT
NOT A TAX CUT?

It's strange but true: over the past 15 years, even though official rates of taxation went down, actual tax rates went up. Here is how it happened.

A great many citizens, hard pressed by inflation, started urging cuts in federal income tax rates back in the early sixties. As prices started going up, their wages and salaries went up, which pushed them into higher tax brackets. As a result, their after-tax income often was less than before they got their raises.

Congress responded to their pleas for relief with cuts in federal income tax rates in 1964 and 1965. The reduced rates during those two years averaged about 25%. For example, in 1964, the top-bracket rate, for those with the highest incomes, was trimmed from a huge 91% to 77%. Uncle Sam, instead of taking away nine out of every ten dollars of a top earner's income, was willing to accept a little less than eight.

On the other hand, the bottom-bracket rate was cut from 20% to 16%. In the case of a person in modest circumstances, Uncle Sam, who had been taking two dollars out of every ten earned, was willing to settle for $1.60.

In 1965, the top rate was trimmed again — from 77% to 70%. And the bottom rate was cut from 16% to 14%. Then in 1979, for most taxpayers, there was in effect still another rate cut. Personal exemptions were increased from $750 to $1000, and various tax brackets were widened, which meant that many people were not pushed into the higher brackets they would have been otherwise.

At first glance, all the "tax cutting" looks as if it should have brought a great big smile to the average taxpayer's face, and left a bigger bulge in his wallet. But the fact is, cuts in the tax rate have not been big enough to keep up with inflation.

On the average, taxpayers in 1964 paid out just over 12% of their earnings in federal taxes. Now it's almost 18%. Here's the explanation.

Over the past 15 years, wages and salaries have gone up about as fast as the consumer price index. For example, a typical family in 1964 had an income of $8,132, and it's grown today to $18,815 — just about enough to match inflation. But because that family is in a higher tax bracket than it was in 1964, and pays more for Social Security, its purchasing power is now actually $1,056 less — in terms of the dollar's 1979 value.

What's the answer? The best answer, of course, is to significantly curb federal spending, and thus stop inflation. But short of that, economists are urging a reduction in federal tax rates each year — to offset inflation's erosion of the average family's purchasing power.

SOUND PREMISES
LEAD TO SOUND
CONCLUSIONS

The importance of the premise from which one reasons is probably nowhere more important than when one is dealing with the communists and the Soviet Union. The late, great Director of the F.B.I., J. Edgar Hoover, had developed such a premise.

Back in 1963, in an address to the Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, the F.B.I. Director said, "We are at war with Communism, and the sooner every red-blooded American realizes this the safer we will be."

Mr. Hoover had stressed this theme in various statements and speeches on many occasions, both before and after this Washington speech.

We are certain this was the basic premise from which Mr. Hoover reasoned. It was a sound conclusion based on years of study and examination of communist and Soviet doctrine.

For the very same reasons this has been our basic premise when reasoning about communism. We are reasonably certain similar understandings undergird the "refreshing realism" which has been illustrated by recent announcements emanating from Reagan administration spokesmen, and from the President himself, with respect to the Soviet Union.

When one accepts the sound premise, "We are at war with Communism," correct policies for dealing with the communists become quite obvious. For example, take a basic issue such as recognition of a government as being representative of a people and establishment of diplomatic relations with that government.

When we were at war with Germany, Italy and Japan, did we have diplomatic relations with those countries? Obviously not! Then, being at war with communism, by what stretch of logic can it be argued that we should have diplomatic relations with any communist country?

Quite properly we did not recognize the Soviet Union from 1919 until 1933 when Roosevelt committed the ill-advised blunder. Quite properly we did not recognize Communist China from 1949 until 1979, and quite properly we do not recognize Communist Cuba today.

When you are at war with an ideology, you are at war with its national adherents. When you are at war you do not exchange cultural delegations with your enemy. When you are at war you do not permit your enemy to have access to your patent files in the nation's capitol.

When you are at war you do not provide high technology or strategically important products to your enemy. When you are at war you do not enter into disadvantageous disarmament agreements with your enemy.

When you are at war you do not tolerate activities by your citizens which give aid and comfort to your enemy. When you are at war you do not permit large contingents of enemy citizens to roam freely about your land. Similar obvious conclusions number in the hundreds.

We are at war with Communism — and the sooner we recognize this fact and start acting on the basis of it, the safer our nation and its people will be. The premise from which we reason in foreign affairs is all-important and can mean the difference between freedom and slavery — between life and death!

ANOTHER VIETNAM?

By Edwin Feulner

A variety of has-beens and never-weres, calling themselves the People's Anti-War Mobilization, marched around a park here recently, protesting U.S. "involvement" in El Salvador. Their posters bore numerous inflammatory slogans, including warnings that El Salvador can become "another Vietnam."

Unfortunately, even people with clearer heads than those of the People's Anti-War Mobilization seem to be confused about the situation in El Salvador. These are the folks who argue against sending military aid to El Salvador, on the grounds that we should be trying instead to bring about a "peaceful solution" through diplomatic means.

The problem with the "peaceful solution" plan is that it's impossible. The sticking point isn't the present Salvadorean regime of Napoleon Duarte, either — it's the Marxist guerrillas and their political allies.

The Duarte government has scheduled parliamentary elections for 1982, and presidential elections for the following year. It has invited the Marxist parties to participate — an invitation the Marxists have refused, preferring to hold their "elections" at the end of a Cuban-supplied Soviet gun barrel.

So it is that Latin American expert Alexander Kruger argues that there is only one route to peace in El Salvador: military defeat of the Marxist guerrillas. "Only after the military struggle with the Salvadorean Marxist-dominated guerrillas resolved, will the Salvadorean government be able to initiate a process leading toward democratization," Kruger says.

Note the use of the term "Marxist-dominated." Kruger concedes that not all of the leftist opponents of the Duarte government are Marxists. But, he explains, "As with the Nicaraguan Sandinistas, the Salvadorean Revolutionary Movement has developed a decoy... made up of an overt leadership of non-Marxist leftists. Their purpose is to give the insurgents international credibility despite the fact that these leaders have no significant power base independent of the Marxists."

And the Marxists, Kruger says, are committed to continuing armed struggle with the pro-Western forces in El Salvador. He bases this argument on the explicit statements of the guerrillas themselves.

Why should the U.S. get involved?

Kruger's answer is that it is not the U.S. that has made El Salvador a focus for international conflict; it is the Communist bloc. "With fully documented evidence collected during the Carter Administration, the Reagan Administration has shown that El Salvador has become the object of an international campaign by Communist governments to destabilize the Central American region."

This evidence, consisting largely of captured PCS (Communist Party of El Salvador) documents, reveals the Communist bloc's involvement in supplying El Salvador's insurgency with arms and training. The aid includes a promised 800 tons of military equipment for the guerrillas, with 200 tons already delivered.

Thus, according to Kruger, American aid is necessary to offset massive assistance from the Communist bloc nations. And what is our interest in preventing the accession by force of a Communist government in El Salvador? In reply, I'd like to recall the warning often made which sees the danger of El Salvador becoming "another Vietnam." I agree. Look at the Vietnams of today. Then consider whether we would like to have such a regime as a near neighbor in Central America. That's our interest in maintaining a pro-Western government in El Salvador — a government under which democracy has at least a fighting chance.

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

Rose Felderhoff and John Henscheid exchange vows

The wedding of Rose Felderhoff and John Henscheid was held in Sacred Heart Church in Muenster in a late afternoon nuptial Mass with double-ring ceremony on Saturday, June 13, with Father Stephen Eckart officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Felderhoff of Rt. 4, Gainesville and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Henscheid of Muenster.

Before an altar banked with arrangements of blue gladioli, blue carnations, white roses, and lighted candles, the bride was presented by her father. For her wedding she chose a formal white gown of peau de soie, with silk venise appliques highlighting a modified V neckline; with a delicate accordion pleated overlay at the shoulder line over the sleeveless molded bodice, which extended low in back. Silk venise appliques and an accordion pleated flounce also surrounded the edge of the A line skirt and chapel length train. Silk venise lace, in a rose pattern, formed the headband to which was attached a brief blusher and the waltz length veil, also edged in matching lace.

Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses, blue tipped carnations, white babies-breath, and touches of tiny pastel wedding flowers with a removable white orchid in the center, which the bride wore, for going-away.

Her special jewelry was a diamond heart-shaped pendant, gift from the groom. Her mother's wedding rosary was entwined in the bridal bouquet. Her traditional birth-date penny was a gift from her grandmother. Mrs. Hubert Felderhoff.

Attendants
Bridal attendants were maid-of-honor Susan Felderhoff, her sister; and bridesmaids Sharon Henscheid, groom's sister, Kim Walterscheid a friend, Kathy Felderhoff the bride's sister-in-law, and Janet Hess groom's sister. They wore full length blue dresses designed with a flounce at the hemline, and a ruffle at the neckline giving an off-shoulder effect. The maid of honor carried long stemmed roses, in shades of blue, yellow and pink. The bridesmaids carried white roses tied with blue ribbons. Kenny R. Felderhoff, a friend of the groom was best man, and Tommy and Billy Felderhoff, bride's brothers, Gary Henscheid the groom's brother and Ronnie Hess brother-in-law were groomsmen.

and Margie York, bride's sister of Lewisville presided at the guest book. Guests of honor were an uncle, Bishop Dangelmayr, the grandparents of the couple, Mrs. Hubert Felderhoff and Theo Miller, Mrs. Mary Bierschenk and Mrs. Anna Henscheid, also the god-parents of the bride, Mrs. Ervin Henscheid and Norbert Felderhoff. God-parents of the groom were Mrs. Bierschenk and the late Henry Henscheid.

The three tiered wedding cake stood over a lighted fountain. A bouquet of spring flowers graced the top layer. It was iced in white, with touches of blue and was baked by Betty Rose Walterscheid and served by Loretta Felderhoff.

The bride's table held white tapers, two floral arrangements of pastels carrying out the bride's chosen colors and an arrangement of white wedding bells. Guest tables held lighted votive candles and pastel spring garden flowers. All decorations were made by the bride's aunt Mrs. Nich Miller.

The bride is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School and is dental assistant employed by Drs. Dickson and Powell. The groom, also a graduate of Sacred Heart High, attended North Texas State University and is employed at Muenster Building Center. When they return from a wedding trip they will be at home in Muenster.

Rehearsal Dinner

Summer care for elderly is advised

Because of last year's heat wave, 1,265 people died nationwide, most of them old and poor.

The old and poor are the most unfortunate because the elderly are more susceptible to heat and it is the poor who cannot afford air conditioning. But there are preventions, even for these groups.

Dr. Cheri Quincy, a geriatrician on the faculty of Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, has several suggestions. "The most important thing is not to get dehydrated," she said. "Drink plenty of fluids— any kind except alcohol and coffee. Those stimulate the kidneys. Water is best."

If your home is without air conditioning, Dr. Quincy advises going to a cool public building if the heat gets unbearable. "Or take a cool bath or shower—draw a tub of cool water and just sit in it," she said. "When you get out, don't dry off but sit in front of a fan. Water conducts heat away from the body better than air."

A plastic bag filled with ice feels good on "pulse points," too, she added, such as the top of the head or back of the neck.

Signs that the elderly need to watch for, according to the TCOM faculty member, are a decrease in urination, dark urine, muscle cramps, shortness of breath or panting, and severe headache brought on by heat.

"One real problem," Dr. Quincy warned, "is that as they get hotter and hotter, the elderly tend to get drowsy and not feel like getting up. With any of these signs, however, they need to be at a hospital emergency room."

Traditional wedding music was given by Patsy Henry who played the organ and accompanied vocalists Gayle Miller, Vickie Fisher, Debbie Hess and Diane Grewing on the guitar.

The Unity candle, surrounded by fern, was placed in the center of the altar and blue carnations with fern were tied with white satin ribbon to mark pews for family members. A floral tribute of clustered rosebuds was placed on the Blessed Virgin's altar and yellow rosebuds were presented by the bride to her mother and to the groom's mother.

Reception
A reception hosted by parents of the bride and groom, was held in the Community Center, and included dinner at 7 p.m. and a dance at 9 p.m. Providing dance music were "Hard Times" and Roger Endres, a classmate of the groom. Becky Felderhoff, bride's sister-in-law of Muenster

Texas Prickly-Poppy (Argemone albiflora)

Cooke County Blooms!

By Gary Rainwater, District Conservationist

Texas Prickly-poppy is an annual or biennial herb with branched prickly stems 1 1/2 to 4 feet high. The plant is extremely prickly with a deep taproot and red-orange sap. The leaves are alternate, bluish green, wavy-edged and lobed. There are spines on the edge of the leaves. The flowers are solitary, large, up to 4 inches across. Prickly-poppy has 6 fragile white petals with numerous yellow or reddish stamens. The plant blooms from March through June. The fruit is a spiny capsule.

Texas Prickly-poppy is found growing on Limestone hills and Blackland Prairies of Texas. These are striking components of our spring roadside flora. But to those who attempt to gather the flowers the spiny stems, buds, and leaves are discouraging. It is just as well, for when picked the flowers quickly wilt beyond any use.

The poppy is the floral emblem of August and means oblivious and forgetfulness.

The plant is poisonous to livestock but usually they don't eat it because of the prickliness. The seeds and oil are the toxic part.

World's largest telescope planned

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — The University of Texas hopes to build the world's largest ground-based, single-mirror telescope.

UT will seek outside funding for the $45-million project, which calls for a 300-inch telescope to be located atop Mount Fowlkes in the Davis Mountains, near UT's existing McDonald Observatory on Mount Locke.

The proposed 300-inch primary mirror will embody a revolutionary design, resulting in a thickness of only four or five inches compared with a thickness of four or five feet if designed according to "classical" telescope methods.

Katharine McCrimmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCrimmon of Littleton, Colo. was honored twice on her first birthday, first by the arrival of her grandmother, Mrs. Bruno Fleitman of Muenster, and an aunt and cousins, Mrs. Janie Cox and Kelly, Kevin and Kris of Houston who flew to Denver to help celebrate.

The birthday party was the second honor, the evening of June 11. Other guests were the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed McCrimmon, also of Littleton, and a group of neighbors and friends.

A Holly Hobbie theme was used in decor. A barbecue cookout, birthday cake and homemade icecream added to the party.

Junior Baseball Teams are Idle

As the junior baseball league takes a break for summer camp vacation, Dairy Inn remains at the top with a 2-0 standing, Budweiser is next with 2-2 and the Rangers are 0-2. Results of the week were Dairy Inn over Bud 5-4 and Bud over Rangers 8-6.

During the lull in schedule the kids remaining at home will have regular practice, intending to be ready when action resumes on July 1.

Senior leagues were rained out last Monday and expects to have a make up game at the first opportunity. Their next regular game is next Monday.

Correction:

In last week's listing of the all-district baseball team, the Enterprise named David Winn instead of his brother Ricky. Sorry!

A Service of Underwriters Laboratories

Water sports, such as skiing, sailing, fishing and boating, are all great summer fun, but you can get yourself in trouble over your head if you cast off unprepared.

You are required by Federal Regulations to have at least one Coast Guard approved Personal Flotation Device (PFD) for each person in your recreational boat. You may not use your recreational boat unless all your PFD's are in serviceable condition, are readily accessible, are legibly marked with the Coast Guard approval number, and are of an appropriate size (within the weight range and chest sizes marked on the PFD) for each person on board.

Underwriters Laboratories

Inc. (UL), an independent not-for-profit organization that has tested products for public safety since 1894, cautions that the time for equipping your boat with the proper Personal Flotation Devices is now — before you set sail for the summer months.

Personal Flotation Devices (life jackets and preservers) come in various designs and sizes and should be purchased with your particular needs in mind. You should check the U.S. Coast Guard requirements for your size boat before buying. Those PFD designs that bear the UL Mark have been subjected to rigid tests and comply with stringent U.S. Coast Guard

There are three types of PFD's which are designed for recreational boating.

There are PFD's (Type II) which are designed to maintain an unconscious person face up in the water. They are designed to turn the wearer to a vertical and slightly backward position.

On the other hand, some PFD's (Type III) are designed so that the wearer can place himself or herself in a vertical and slightly backward position, and the device will maintain the wearer in that position and have no tendency to turn the wearer face down. A Type III can be the most comfortable, and comes in a variety of styles which should be matched for individual use. A Type III PFD is usually the best choice for water sports, such as skiing, hunting, fishing, canoeing, and kayaking.

Buoyant cushions and ring life buoys (TYPE IV) are designed to be grasped and held by the user until rescued, as well as to be thrown to a person who has fallen overboard. While the Type IV is acceptable in place of a wearable device in certain instances, this type is suitable only where there is a probability of quick rescue, such as in areas where it is common for other persons to be engaged in boating, fishing, and other water activities. It is not recommended for nonswimmers and children.

There are specific PFD's designed for every size person. A child's PFD does not have enough buoyancy for an adult, and a child could slip out of an adult's PFD. Always use the proper size for you.

Once you have your PFD's, their care and storage is also important.

Be sure that they are dry and stored in a well-ventilated place — not in the bottom of lockers or deck storage boxes where moisture may accumulate.

- Keep the PFD's away from excessive heat.
- Avoid abusing the devices by using them as boat fenders or kneeling pads.
- Torn, ripped, or otherwise defective PFD's should be destroyed so that others will not use them.

UL advises that PFD's be worn at all times when someone is in or near the water. They are an essential part of your water safety wardrobe.

Cool-Down Exercises As Important As Warm-Up

Much has been written on the importance of amateur athletes warming up to get their bodies prepared for physical exertion.

Little attention has been paid, however, to the necessity of cooling down after such exertion.

Professional athletes are taught to warm-up, exercise, then cool-down. For example, running expert Jim Fixx says:

"When your run is over, don't stop suddenly. Take time for a cool-down. This should consist of a brief walk and stretching of the same kind you did before you ran. Try to devote 8 or 10 minutes to cooling down. By the time you stop, your pulse should be within 20 beats of what it is when you aren't exercising."

To replace vitamins and minerals lost by the body during athletic activity or exercise, researchers at Wagner Thirst Quencher recommend drinking liquids with sufficient amounts of potassium and sodium. Glucose and high fructose corn syrup are also necessary ingredients to maintain body energy levels during cool-down.

If you abruptly stop exercising after a vigorous workout, you could experience dizziness, faintness, extra heart beats or even nausea, according to Wagner Thirst Quencher researchers. The reason for this, they state, is because the blood is trapped in the suddenly non-moving muscles. The cool-down gives the blood a chance to return to its normal circulation levels and the heart rate to its average level.

Following are seven cool-down exercises recommended by Wagner Thirst Quencher researchers. It isn't necessary to do every exercise, but be sure to cool-down for 8 to 10 minutes.

1. Arm Circles: Stand with feet spread shoulder-width apart. Rotate both arms at the shoulder joints in a forward-to-backward direction.

2. Wing Stretches: Stand erect with feet 2 to 3 inches apart, hands in front and elbows raised to the side. Keep head up. Pull elbows back.

3. Waist Bend: Stand with feet apart and hands on hips. Bend forward, head up, and try to put upper part of body parallel to the floor.

4. Sitting Toe Touch: Sit on floor with legs extended in front of you, feet spread 6 to 8 inches apart. Stretch arms and hands out in front. Bend trunk forward and extend hands as far as possible. Keep legs straight when reaching forward.

5. Side Leg Raises: Lie full length with right side of body on floor. Lift leg up and down rapidly at least 12 inches from the floor. Turn on left side and repeat with right leg.

6. Standing Knee Press: Stand on one foot and pull the knee of opposite leg up into chest. As you pull knee into chest, raise up on toes of supporting foot.

7. Trunk Circles: Stand with feet spread shoulder width apart and hands on hips. Rotate trunk in a complete circle, bending as far as possible in every direction.

UP THE CREEK

C. L. Yarbrough
Pinemelons and $3 Chili

One dry year Booger Barnes was farming out on the Sabannah River. This was way back before anybody knew about tractors, and it was one of those hot, sultry springs when you knew that even if anything came up, it would soon wither and die.

Rube Berry was trading cows, but mostly it was him and Jake Hickey and Possum Norton trading back and forth with one another, and there wasn't a whole lot of profit in it.

This was back before Booger and Rube fell out with one another, and they struck up a conversation one day that turned to money and how to get some of it easy, and Rube said that the storekeepers in town were making all the money there was. Booger said that was right, and the thing about it was, that those storekeepers weren't a bit smarter than anybody else. He said he knew for a fact that Tom Mooney had paid a Yankee peddler a flat hundred dollars for a one-eyed, wind-broke mare, and look how much money Tom Mooney had made selling hardware.

Booger and Rube went on like that until by and by they decided they could be in business themselves.

They thought for awhile about what kind of business they could get into for about $40, and decided that a cafe was what was needed.

Rent didn't amount to a whole lot in those days, and they got set up over by the Katy railroad tracks in a little shack of a building, with enough supplies to get them through a day or two. They figured to restock out of profits.

The specialty of the house was chili, and they were not long in gaining a few regular lunch customers.

One of these regulars was a big loud-mouthed fellow who always had something insulting to say about the food or the flies or some such. He also had a habit of using an extraordinary amount of ketchup on his chili. When he saw that Booger didn't like it much, he began making a point of using a whole bottle at every sitting. Pretty soon Booger was wanting to whip this blowhard quite a bit worse than he wanted to run a business, but he thought he ought to try and keep from doing it.

Business was reasonably good, but they weren't exactly making money.

One evening when Rube had gone off somewhere for a few minutes, a farmer came past the cafe with a load of pinemelons.

Now, pinemelons grow all over the sand country and they look like watermelons. Only thing is, they are gourds, and never ripen the way a watermelon does. People used to feed them to hogs, which was what this farmer had on his mind.

This was an extra big bunch of striped pinemelons, and, from a distance, booger mistook them for yellow-meated watermelons. Possum Norton had wandered in to drink an RC Cola and poke fun, and Booger told him it was a load of watermelons, and that he was going to buy the whole load to peddle slice at a time through the cafe. When he got up close, of course, Booger saw that it was pinemelons, but Possum was making fun of him, and Booger never was known to admit that he was wrong about anything. He set his teeth and asked the farmer how much for the watermelons. The farmer wasn't exactly what you'd call a good ole boy, and, besides that, he knew how Booger was, so he sold his hog feed pinemelons for just about the total profit the cafe had turned up to then.

When Rube came back and learned what Booger had done, he threw a wall-eyed hissy, but there wasn't anything he could do about it but admit that his days as a businessman were just about over.

They opened for business as usual the day after the pinemelon deal, and old Ketchup User strolled in at dinner time and used up a bottle, with his customary insults.

When he started to check out, Booger told him the bill would be $3.15.

"For a bowl of chili?" he howled.

"Just 15¢ for the chili," replied Booger, "the $3 is for the Ketchup."

The irate customer promptly set in to start a fight over the ketchup price, which was a mistake; he didn't fit through the door just right, what with his arms and legs sticking out in all directions, but with a little help he managed to make an exit.

There was nothing left to do then but lock what remained of the door and walk away.

And that's why you can't buy a bowl of chili anywhere near the Katy tracks in Hogtown right to this very day.

Rube threw a wall-eyed hissy.

Cubs gather for day camp

"The Wonderful World of Scouting" was the theme of the Cooke County Cub Scout Day Camp. It consisted of a full week of activities with representatives from Cooke and Montague counties.

As of Wednesday, 89 boys had been participating with approximately 145 people in all, including staff, helpers, and papooses, according to Lupe Evans, Cubmaster.

Different crafts were planned each day. Monday the boys did Denmark weaving; Tuesday, Copper art from Colombia; Wednesday, Japan tissue kites and Thursday, Mexican woodenman game. Other activities included in the week's activities included archery, swimming, obstacle course, nature trails, and games.

Noon time activities were very special with Monday's being a muzzle loading rifle demonstration by David Fette. Tuesday Harvey Schmitt, fire chief and Chris Sicking, assistant fire chief, of the Muenster Volunteer Fire Department brought fire trucks. As they were leaving they gave the boys a "squirt!" Wednesday's noon time activity was a songfest led by camp director Donna Killen of Denton and Linda Odom, district executive, of Fort Worth. Thursday, helicopter pilot Pete Mangum was scheduled to fly over the vacant lot north of the park and drop a package of raw eggs that the boys had wrapped and prepared. Those whose eggs did not break received prizes.

Morning and afternoon flag ceremonies were directed by Boy Scout Ronnie Fisher and the cubs followed his direction. Lupe Evans praised Ronnie saying, "He has been doing a terrific job with the boys. They listen to him, mind him, and I'm so proud of him."

Thirteen Boy Scouts helped with the day camp. They were Clinton Barker, Mike Fette, Ronnie Trubenbach, Ronnie Fisher, Buddy Head, Greg Newman, Allen Stewart, Sean Shaw, James Van Beber, Gary Van Beber, Chris Ward, Leroy Voth, and Michael Harendt.

Debbie Endres was in charge of the papooses, the younger kids of mothers who were there to help with the cubs' activities. She was assisted by Carrie Russell, Angela Endres, Meredith McDaniel, Donna Wolf, Dana Wimmer, and Shauna Kerr.

Nurses on duty at the camp site during the week were Patricia Wimmer on Monday and Tuesday; Ann Walterscheid, Wednesday; and Betty Kralicke on Thursday.

Friday night is "family night" beginning at 7:00 p.m. Each family brings its own picnic supper. Campfire activities begin at 8:00 as the 1981 day camp comes to a close.

Texas Department of Agriculture
Reagan V. Brown, Commissioner

Brown Calls For More Funds In Ag. Research

AUSTIN—"With the widespread conversion of farm land, soil erosion, and other problems depleting the natural resources required in agriculture, now is the time to increase funding for agricultural research in all institutions of higher learning." Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown stated in recent testimony sent to Washington.

Brown supports the passage of H.R. 1309, a Federal bill which would help land grant colleges established under an 1890 law to upgrade their facilities for agricultural and nutritional research. The bill is sponsored by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Rep. E. (Kika) de la Garza of Texas.

Prairie View A&M University is specified as a recipient for research funds in the bill.

"There are still far too many laboratories in the black land grant universities that remain unequipped, and too many important projects that remain shelved for lack of adequate research facilities," he said.

The International Dairy Goat Research Center at Prairie View A&M is just one example of Federal research funds being put to good use by this university. Brown pointed out that with increased funding, other problems unique to the small farm could be tackled by researches there.

"For over 30 years, I have been associated with the Texas A&M University System," Brown said. "I know what changes research can bring about in agriculture."

"I believe that funding for all research should be increased, but I feel that there is a very special need for 'catch-up' programs for institutions such as Prairie View.

"H.R. 1309 would help black state colleges to become full partners with other institutions in a balanced attack on the research needs of their respective states.

"Passage of this legislation, which I cannot urge strongly enough, would show that we are truly dedicated to the full participation of all of our people in a cooperative effort to restore agricultural research as a top priority item."

of interest to VETERANS

The U.S. Labor Department's Veterans Employment Service representative at your state employment office is there to see that veterans get priority in referral to job openings and training programs. Disabled vets are entitled to preferential treatment.

Honorably discharged veterans who are in prison, on probation or parole may still be eligible for VA benefits. Some, like VA medical care, are not offered to otherwise eligible veterans while they are in prison. Likewise, VA pension payments are terminated 61 days after imprisonment. However, VA may apportion to a spouse or children the pension the imprisoned veteran would receive.

Veterans or dependents eligible for education benefits in the United States can use them abroad, provided the program of study at the foreign institution is approved by VA. The program must lead to a degree equivalent to one granted by a public university in the foreign country, and its entrance requirements must also be the same.

Hundreds of schools in some 60 countries have already received VA approval for one or more programs. If a veteran wishes to attend a school that is not approved, he or she should ask the school to contact the nearest U.S. Foreign Service post to make application.

Since VA hospitals may not be able to furnish the care or services required by women veterans, they may be entitled in certain cases for treatment at VA expense in private hospitals. The exception is normal pregnancy, which is not covered by VA benefits.

Some women may be veterans without knowing it. About 25 percent of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps chose to remain civilians when the Women's Army Corps was set up in 1943. However, a few years ago Congress gave the former WAACs veteran status, just like WACs. To establish their eligibility, they must first apply to the Army for an honorable discharge.

of interest to VETERANS

According to available estimates - 1980 Census data is still tied up in the courts - there are nearly 680,000 women veterans in the U.S., about 2 percent of the veteran population. They are entitled to the same benefits as other veterans.

At last count two years ago, more than 152,000 women veterans had availed themselves of the post-Korean GI Bill, nearly 80 percent of them to attend college.

At that time, there were 23,760 women vets receiving compensation payments from the Veterans Administration for service-connected disabilities and 11,782 receiving VA pensions (based on total disability and financial need).

Salt tablets bad, med school warns

Salt tablets can be dangerous, says a specialist in the effects of exercise at Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"The idea behind salt tablets was that you had to replace the salt you lost through heavy perspiring," said Dr. Bob Kaman, associate director of the medical school's Institute for Human Fitness. "We now know that notion is clearly wrong."

While it is true that you lose a certain amount of salt in perspiration, the concentration of salt is lower than that of salt in the blood, the biochemist added. The net effect of heavy perspiring is loss of water, not salt.

"If you replace the lost salt with salt tablets," Dr. Kaman said, "you will concentrate the salt in the body even more. That's bad."

"Our bodies have to keep the salt in them dissolved and that takes water. If there is too much salt, the body has to retain water. That slows the sweating process, the body's heat-regulating system. The danger is that your core temperature then soars and you can go into heat shock."

Because almost all of us get enough salt in a reasonably well-balanced diet, the water is the important thing to replace, he said.

"Drink more than you feel you need," Dr. Kaman suggested. "When you're thirsty, you've already lost too much water. And when your thirst is satisfied, you still haven't drunk enough."

Scientists search for bait

Fire ants infest Texas

COLLEGE STATION — The relentless march of fire ants across the southern United States continues unchecked and scientists say there may be no way to stop them from reaching the Pacific coast.

"The high temperatures and lack of moisture in the West Texas desert should halt the natural spread of fire ants in that direction," said Dr. Brad Vinson, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Experiment Station researcher, "but if they are transported by man, the ants may be able to establish in watered lawns or irrigated areas all the way to California."

Already the insects, which produce a violent sting and attack in massive numbers when disturbed, have pushed as far west as Corpus Christi, San Antonio and Dallas, Texas, leaving behind thousands of new colonies.

The ants were accidentally imported to the United States in 1920 from a South American cargo ship bringing coconuts to Alabama. Since then they have spread throughout the South, infesting 190 million acres in Texas, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North and South Carolina.

"Fortunately, they haven't spread as much during the last couple of years because of the drought conditions in much of the South," said Vinson, an entomologist working with a team of Texas A&M researchers looking for alternatives to control the ants. The research is conducted for the Texas Department of Agriculture through the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Vinson said insecticides are already on the market that are capable of controlling the ants on a limited scale. These include Diazinon, Imidan (which is not approved by the Environmental Protection Agency for use by Texas homeowners) and Mirex, formerly used as a bait to attract and kill the female workers, but later banned because of some undesirable effects it had on many non-target animals and birds.

There was also some indication that the bait killed native ants, providing fertile ground for future fire ant infestation. Research to develop a biodegradable bait targeted for fire ants is continuing and may result in a product that will reach the market, Vinson said.

"We're trying to identify chemicals that attract the ants or that could be used along with a protein bait that would be picked up by the workers, taken back to the colonies and fed to the queens," he continued. "We used to think that colonies only had one queen, but now we know differently, which makes the problem more difficult."

Queen ants are the primary target of the research, since they reproduce.

Fire ants do not appear any different from many of the other ants in the United States, Vinson says. The difference is in their sting, one of the most potent in the insect world for their size. Fire ants can inflict repeated painful stings that will within 24 hours form a pustule or small white sore where the sting occurred.

When the ants are disturbed, victims receive hundreds of stings in a matter of seconds, the Texas A&M scientist cautions. They have also been known to destroy crops and harm livestock. In addition, their mounds have caused concern among agriculturalists because of damage to machinery.

The question of saccharin

HOUSTON, TX. — Should saccharin be banned because it might cause cancer? The controversy surrounding the artificial sweetener continues.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, director of cancer prevention programs at The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, says, "Laboratory tests have shown that saccharin does not uniformly cause cancer in all animal species studied."

He says that one wise approach to the human consumption of saccharin would be to remove the product from widespread use as a food additive. However, he says, it could be retained as an over-the-counter product for those people who want to use it.

"As a good measure, children should not take saccharin or any potential cancer-causing agent during early developmental years, and pregnant women should avoid its use as they should any non-essential drug," Dr. Newell adds.

Mexical Lunch entertains club

A Mexican food luncheon was a special treat for members of the Muenster Extension Homemakers Club, during the June meeting.

Mrs. Bertha Pick, hostess, arranged a table in her shaded back yard. A variety of Mexican foods, brought by club members, was served buffet style.

The business meeting, held indoors, was led by Club President Lucille Lutkenhaus. The hostess read the inspiration: Steadfast Heart, and Members recited the club prayer in unison.

Mrs. Alice Hellman gave the council delegate's report, noting that the state convention will be held in Austin on Sept. 8-10. Members answered roll call with suggestions for programs in next year's yearbook. Mrs. Lutkenhaus led a discussion about the standing rules adopted by the Cooke County Extension Homemakers Clubs.

Mrs. Rose Rohmer and Mrs. Irene Klement added an entertaining and informative touch by distributing swatches of various colors of fabrics, for members who chose most complimentary colors for themselves and then asked each other for constructive criticism. They found it interesting to note that they were not in 100 percent agreement!

Following the meeting, the hostess served praline sundaes to 15 members and one guest, Mrs. Florence Williams.

Clinics scheduled Wednesday

energy answers
from the Texas Energy Extension Service

The roof of our residence is black composition in good condition after ten years. Because the color absorbs heat and we wish to cool the house more efficiently, it has been suggested that we change the color of the roof. Is there anything available to coat the existing roof to lighten the color so that it might reflect heat away from the house? Also, what thermal-guard material do you suggest for use on large patio doors to repel heat from the sun? Where can these products be purchased? M. B. Vidor.

A light colored roof is definitely more energy efficient than a dark roof because it reflects rather than absorbs the sun's rays. Thus, the color of your roof can have an impact on your cooling bill.

There are products available to coating the existing roof a lighter color. These materials range from coal tar mastic with alumina to elastomeric coatings. These products are available from paint dealers and roofing suppliers.

To shield large patio doors from the sun's rays, exterior awnings, sun screens or reflective films may be used. If the patio door is a double pane sliding door, the film should be applied on the outside. It should have ultra violet resistance or be rated for exterior use.

4-H tells how chuck box is made

For overnight bikepacking, or camping trips, picnics or tailgaters, an insulated box or container is necessary for safe storage and transportation of food.

Young people in the national 4-H food conservation and safety program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by Reynolds Metals Company, have learned to make their own insulated boxes for such purposes. The "chuck box," they say, keeps hot foods hot and cold foods cold.

Materials needed to make a chuck box are: two cardboard cartons or boxes with covers (a small one which fits inside the large one); newspapers; string; aluminum foil; and ice box or frozen gel (for cold foods).

Directions:
-place one inch of newspapers in bottom of larger box
-place the smaller box in the larger one and stuff crumpled newspapers tightly between the boxes
-small box should have solid cover attached to one edge
-tie several layers of newspaper (approximately 1/2 inch) over the cover of the inside box, then wrap cover with foil
-line the bottom and sides of the inside box with foil, shiny side down to reflect cold into the box
-place frozen containers of ice or tubes of liquid ice in chuck box to keep food chilled
-the outside of the box may be finished with a flat wall or water base paint, contact paper, oil cloth or plastic cloth.

When planning for picnics or overnight trips, choose foods which keep well for long periods of time. Take special care when handling and storing perishable foods. 4-H members suggest that cold foods be thoroughly chilled prior to going into the box, and hot foods be heated before transporting to the site. If this is not possible, they should be thoroughly cooled after cooking and served cold or reheated at picnic site for serving hot.
