Knights of Columbus Have Social Wednesday Night

About 40 members of the Knights of Columbus with their wives and girl friends were at the K. of C. Hall to enjoy the council's regular monthly social Wednesday night.

The majority entertained themselves with old-fashioned party dances such as the Paul Jones, square dance and the broom dance while a few of the older persons enjoyed card and domino games in the basement. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Hogan string orchestra.

About 10 o'clock the entire party gathered in the basement for a round of refreshments.

Josephine Yosten Honored By Picnic on Birthday

On her 17th birthday Josephine Yosten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yosten, was the honoree at a delightful "weenie roast" picnic last Sunday night in a grove on the Yosten farm.

HELPFUL HINTS

Ink spilled on hardwood floors should be wiped up immediately with steel wool moistened with warm water. Wax the spot when dry.

Scorches can sometimes be removed by moistening a white cloth with peroxide, rubbing it on the scorched place and then rinsing in clear water.

White paint washed with water in which a few onions have been boiled leaves the paint clean, white and glossy.

Moths can be kept from blankets by first washing the blankets, then sprinkling them with borax and laying them away for the summer.

Road oil spots can be removed from clothing by rubbing the spot in lard and then washing with soap and water.

Blondes can preserve the natural golden sheen of their hair by always washing it in lemon soap and rinsing in water with lemon juice added.

After picking chickens, ducks or geese rub them with a damp cloth dipped in cornmeal and see how well it cleans them. The same thing can be done after scaling fish.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

THE MUESTER OF TOMORROW

During this week Muenster has been favored by a concerted effort to draw up an improvement program. Civic minded residents assisted by a representative of a well known civic planning organization have been studying conditions of the town as well as those of the outlying trade territory in an effort to devise a program for the general welfare of the entire community.

Many are already familiar with one or more phases of the general program. The soil conservation program, for instance, is regarded as the very backbone of future prosperity and as such it has received considerable attention from many farmers. Other phases of the general program are rural electrification, an improved school system, better roads, facilities for better marketing and merchandising, sewerage, city and home beautification campaigns, and any other projects that make of Muenster a better place to live as well as a better place to make a living.

To appreciate fully the significance of the program now under consideration it is necessary to look into the future. The really important results will not be visible within the next month or the next year. They constitute a goal to be reached by sound and constructive activity over a period of several years.

While the present generation is expected to participate in a march of progress and enjoy some of the fruits thereof, the most important consideration is that the present generation will create greater opportunities as a heritage for their children. Even today we can cite instances by the dozens of farmers who are buying additional land so that their children will be assured of a good start. Needless to say, however, some of the children will inherit worn out farms unless those same farmers take steps to conserve and increase the value of their land.

Other children who are not so fortunate have no definite outlook at the present time. All of them know that unless Muenster adds more business opportunities at least some will have to seek elsewhere for their life's work.

The present program has as its purpose to provide opportunities at home as a heritage to Muenster's children. It includes industrial as well as social progress so that the citizens of tomorrow will find Muenster a better place to live as well as a better place to make a living.

Everyone who considers that as a worthwhile goal is urged to get behind the present improvement program.

WAGONS ON THE HIGHWAYS

A report reaches this office that one of the local truck drivers had a really narrow escape last week because of a wagon on the highway. Only about six weeks before another wagon was the cause of Ben Seyler's accident at Sanger.

In both cases the circumstances were identical. A wagon without any sort of warning light whatever was being approached by two machines at the same time and because of headlight glares by both machines was not visible to either until too late to permit a stop. In the Seyler accident, unfortunately, the two machines collided when the one attempted to avoid hitting the wagon. In the second case the local driver happened to see the impending danger and left the road completely so that an on-coming bus had room to pass. Except for his alertness there would have been a head-on collision of a loaded truck and a loaded bus—the number of possible deaths can be left to the imagination.

Here are two incidents within a very few weeks that serve as eloquent explanations of the danger caused by wagons on the road. Why doesn't the State do something about them?

Legislators at Austin have gone to no end of trouble in passing laws to regulate trucks. Lights must be installed on all sides to warn other drivers and in the event a truck stops on the highway it must be protected by signal flares a few dozen paces to the front and rear.

But trucks, even without warning lights, do not constitute half the menace of wagons. A truck can be seen but a wagon, as most drivers will agree, is practically invisible when the glare of an on-coming headlight hinders visibility.

Until the State passes a law requiring wagons to use warning signals they will continue to be a menace to the welfare of all automobile drivers.

OUR CEMETERY

Deep down in his heart there is not a person in the Muenster community who is not ashamed of the local cemetery. With its rank growth of weeds and wild grasses and general appearance of neglect it has long been an eyesore to those who have the slightest regard for the memory of their deceased loved ones.

Some few do take the trouble to give a bit of attention to the graves of their immediate relatives. But that attention must necessarily be limited and the result is that our best kept graves show some signs of neglect but at the same time they call attention to the much greater neglect of other graves.

Other cities solve this problem by providing a special fund for the upkeep of the cemetery. Why can't Muenster do likewise? If all people of the local parish would decide to place a small amount of money in the cemetery fund each year it would be possible to engage a salaried caretaker and add a few shrubs and trees each year besides keeping vegetation under control and keeping sidewalks, curbs, etc., in repair.

The method of securing the results are far less important than the results themselves. During years past many people have expressed the wish that some system were adopted to provide for this dire need. A few of those people are now resting in that cemetery. Out of respect for them and loved ones of our immediate families and out of pride for the appearance of sacred ground left to our care, won't some person do something about this cemetery situation?

ARE YOU INDIFFERENT TO SLAUGHTER?

Automobile accidents can be reduced. Death on the highways can be stopped.

Last year, traffic fatalities reached an all-time high of 38,500. Yet 18 States and the District of Columbia showed an average decrease of 7 per cent in deaths—even though gasoline consumption, best barometer of traffic conditions, increased 10 per cent.

These States weren't just lucky. Chance didn't save the lives of their citizens. According to the National Safety Council, all but two of the States carry on aggressive programs of safety engineering, law enforcement, education, legislation, etc. The same authority reports that in half of the remaining 30 States next to nothing is done to prevent the Grim Reaper's grisly harvest.

There are two prime causes of automobile accidents. One is the reckless, incompetent and dangerous driver. He can be curbed to some extent by up-to-date traffic laws that are honestly and rigidly enforced.

The other cause is dangerous, accident prone locations—bad intersections, narrow highways with vivid areas, etc. Here the highway engineer must be called in to eliminate such needless hazards and thus make it virtually impossible to have an accident.

Make our town safe should be a community motto. It's high time that we shook off our comparative national indifference to this man-made evil—and begin safety campaigns in earnest. —Crane County (Tex.) News.

It's BETTER to Buy from Stores that ADVERTISE!

Here's Why:

Merchants who advertise can sell for less because they get more volume. It's a matter of simple arithmetic.

If a merchant must have $1,000 gross profit a week to pay his rent, clerks, utility bills and himself a profit, then it all depends upon how much business he gets as to how much he must mark up his merchandise to make that $1,000.

If he does $5,000 per month, then 20% out of every dollar must be marked up—that is, he must sell items that cost him 80c for $1.00. But if he can sell $10,000 per month, then he can give you items that cost him 90c for your dollar and still have his $1,000 per month.

And everyone knows that stores which advertise do more business than those which do not. That's why you get more for your money from them.

Then, too, their stocks turn faster, making their merchandise fresher, and more wholesome.

Also, the fact that they advertise their merchandise and prices puts their place on an "above-board" basis. No merchant whose merchandise prices, or policies, are not right can long stand the spotlight of publicity on his store—for the more such a merchant advertises the quicker the public learns that his place is all wrong; just as they learn that the right merchant's place is all right, the more he advertises.

IT'S BETTER TO TRADE WITH MERCHANTS THAT ADVERTISE!

Francis Schad Honored With Farewell Party

Lindsay, July 21.—Francis Schad, who has spent the past six months here with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Loerwald, returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Schad, in Plainview, Minn., Thursday. Prior to his leaving, a farewell party was given in his honor in the Lindsay hall. Guests at the party included relatives and friends of the honoree and of the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Loerwald.

When the Depositor's Gain Becomes the Bank's Loss

NOT ALL of the accounts on a bank's books are profitable. In fact, many of them are carried at a loss. Yet the bank tries to render the same good service to every one of its depositors.

Oftentimes the bank may carry accounts at an actual loss rather than say anything which might be misunderstood and cause offense. For it is just as anxious to make friends as it is to make money.

But frankness between friends may be for the good of both. Therefore, we believe that this little series of talks giving the "bank's side" of the matter will be received in the proper spirit. And we believe they will help to put our relations on a stronger footing of mutual fairness and good-will than ever before.

BALD?
try X-ER-VAC

THE SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT FOR HAIR RESTORATION

DON'T be discouraged if you are one of the millions of men who have lost or are losing their hair—baldness is no longer a hopeless affliction. Science has discovered in the X-ER-VAC a sound therapeutic method for hair revitalization.

The X-ER-VAC, employing the same therapeutic principle of pressure-and-vacuum that has proved so successful in the treatment of vascular diseases of the extremities, actually grows new hair in all except the rare cases where the hair cells are entirely dead.

If you are now bald or if falling hair makes baldness eventually certain, come in at your first opportunity and find out how X-ER-VAC treatments can restore normal, healthy hair.

schedule. Both teams are undefeated to date and both teams have been stealing the show from less fortunate contenders. Fans from all other clubs are anxious to see either or both defeated.

Some indication of the general interest in the games is the report that supporters of both clubs were prepared to go to the game loaded for bets. As the date now stands those fans can hold their money quite a while longer unless the game is played some off-schedule night soon. The next scheduled meeting of the clubs is set for Friday, August 13.

Interest in the all-star game on August 4 seems to increase as it goes along. It is being discussed in every club and preparations are now under way to distribute lots of circulars.

Contestants in that game will be Leo, Hood, Era, and Myra players on one side and Muenster, Marysville, Bulcher, and Hays players on the other.

a line exists or, if a cock or burner is left open and unlighted. The company has advised its customers to call a plumber if repairs are necessary. It was pointed out that odorization will not create a hazard, but will warn consumers if a leak occurs in a line or connection.

The Lone Star System is proceeding with its odorization plans now in order to avoid the possibility of waiting until the fall and winter demand starts.

der how many of our local wild drivers have that opinion of their bodies!

From Joe Trachta comes the report that a new alliance has just been drawn up under the name of "Trachter & Gamble." It has been said that the former feudists have decided to bury the hatchet and renew the truce with periodic handshakes, but somehow the whole incident sounds like a lot of soap to us.

No one could have blamed the Muenster ball fans if they had started cheering for the other team last Thursday night. A poorer exhibition of ball playing has seldom been seen in these parts. They won, eventually, but only after the opposition weakened and began to play their style of ball.

In case you didn't know: Joe Trachta isn't bothered by such a trifle as a huge slit in his trousers, but he does fail to realize that there is such a thing as excessive exposure of epidermis. . . . Paul Hellman did not run into a door to get that black eye, he was kicked by a fish. . . . A lot of the old-timers are expected to cover their shiny domes with a nice new crop of fuzz since Lou and Ray have installed hair growing machines. . . . A stick in an ant-bed near the mill was an effective barometer last Monday. On the theory that an ant will crawl to the top of the stick in clear weather and crawl just a little way up in cloudy weather some of the fellows discovered at least 10 minutes before the shower that it looked like rain. . . . Slim Wheelless really went through a snake dance Sunday evening when a snake that had some how crawled above the screen door fell on him as he was entering the Ben Hellman home. . . . Some of the mechanics at Ben's flashed a streak of ingenuity in constructing a fan out of an old washing machine motor and a radiator fan blade; they set the fan at various angles by clamping it in different positions in a vise. . . . Lillian Fette is still a novice at radio broadcast work as was revealed by her very apparent uneasiness in a broadcast over WBAP on July 15. . . . Doc Myrick's family wasn't sick Tuesday night when they slept in the hospital; they were just getting out of the rain.

better rural and city homes, sanitation, and recreation. At this time the school program committee has not met.

All programs are the outgrowth of suggestions made by citizens themselves. All of them are intimately related to the extent that they anticipate for Muenster a more pleasant living and a more effective means of making a living. As such they are to be connected into one general program following the final committee meeting Thursday and presented to the community at a general gathering Friday night. Visitors from Dallas and communities of Cooke and neighboring counties have been invited to attend the gathering.

Neighbors of surrounding areas are invited to Muenster because of their mutual interests with Muenster people and also as an encouragement to pursue similar programs in their own localities.

Dallas people are invited because of their vital interest in Muenster. As explained by Mr. Surratt, Dallas is a wholesale center and her prosperity necessarily depends upon the prosperity of counties in her trade area. "In spite of the fact that rural population in almost all counties surrounding Dallas has been slipping steadily in the past 40 years Dallas has continued to grow, but the time is at hand," Mr. Surratt continued, "when Dallas, too, must begin slipping unless some means is devised to support the area that supports her."

Another reason for Dallas' interest in western Cooke County is that her water supply, Lake Dallas, drains from this area. Every year that lake receives an additional deposit of silt from farms in her watershed with the resulting threat that a new lake will have to be built within a few years unless soil can be kept on the farms. Dallas is interested in protecting her several million dollar investment. In addition she is interested in having soil remain where it can create more wealth for her trade territory.

Two outstanding reasons were presented by Mr. Surratt for the decline of rural and small town populations. One is that soil was permitted to lose its productivity through erosion and unscientific farming. The other is that living conditions in rural and small town areas did not keep pace with general progress, and more ambitious youngsters sought the greater attractions of cities. Such are the conditions Muenster seeks to avoid through here five-year program.

The farm program meeting, which was first in the series of meetings, was featured especially by suggestions of County Agent C. H. Clark. Outstanding in the projects adopted were soil conservation, saving manure, growing green manure crops, building trench silos, encouraging better seed and better livestock, improving marketing facilities, co-operating with 4-H Club movements, and sponsoring free community fairs.

The road program aims at providing good all-weather roads between the following points: Muenster to Leo to the Butterfield Trail; Linn to Freemound; Muenster to Forestburg, Era to Hood to Linn; Freemound to Gainesville, Hays to Highway 5; Muenster to Wilson and Leon, Okla.; Illinois Bend to Bulcher; Sivals Bend to Gainesville; Sivals Bend to Muenster. County Commissioners Joe Bezner and Babe Felker were both present and were both influential in drawing up the road program.

A modern sewage disposal system was the most important goal set by a committee on sanitation. Other vital considerations were the elimination of dust by topping streets, control of weeds and grasses, and discouragement of promiscuous roaming of livestock.

To keep pace with contemplated progress in other projects a better business district committee resolved to make interiors and exteriors of business houses attractive. In this connection Mr. Surratt stated that experience has proven the attractive business house to be more successful, and Muenster, if it wishes to draw trade must become attractive.

A program for organized recreation is looked upon as the most important factor in keeping young people interested in their home town. To this end a committee formed a program including such recreational facilities as a gymnasium, a lighted ball park, a swimming pool, a park.

TEXAS MARBLE

Dallas, July 14.—While the problems of what to do about "marble boards" is bothering Texas and many of its cities, the question of doing something about Texas native marble may soon prove a more important one—and its solution far more profitable!

Quarrying and marketing one of the world's richest, most varied, and most easily accessible deposits of high grade marble could be made one of the biggest new industries of the Lone Star State, according to a report to the All-South Development Council by Dr. H. M. Law, Dallas geologist who has made a first-hand study of the State's limestone and marble resources.

The eye-filling display of scores of handsome marbles Dr. Law has assembled for the new Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition, an expansion of the 1936 Centennial exhibit, has brought potentialities of a Texas marble industry dramatically to the attention of thousands, among them many influential Texas business men who have expressed interest in developing it, said Judge John M. Spellman, director of the Natural Resources Committee.

Interesting skilled merchandisers and investable capital in converting these possibilities into real "merchandise," thereby creating profitable employment for hundreds and new wealth for the State, is one of the aims of the committee. Adoption by the State of a more reassuring policy with regard to natural resource taxation would, the council's report points out, greatly simplify the problems of attracting capital and enterprise to the development of this, as of many others of the State's more than 100 yet undeveloped resources.

and a movie theater. With Herbert Meurer as chairman and Earl Fisher as secretary, the Muenster Recreational Association was formed to carry on promptly and systematically. Members were instructed to gather pertinent data on each project and have it available at a meeting on August 18.

City and rural women were summoned to a meeting with County Home Demonstration Agent Miss Nette Schultz and Mr. Surratt on Thursday morning. At this writing results of the meeting had not been made known.

time we could have supplied, from our own Texas deposits, the counterparts and equals of all the fancy marbles from Italy, Spain, France, Tennessee and Vermont that have made the State of Texas building an outstanding architectural triumph," Dr. Law said.

Texas buildings annually use more than $2,000,000 worth of marble imported from other States which have done a better merchandising job with no better materials, and have presented an inviting front to resource-conversion industries, the council's report concluded.

The Texas Unemployment Compensation Act provides that wilful refusal to pay contributions to the unemployment trust fund, or make reports to the commission, can be punished by a fine of as much as $200 or imprisonment for as much as 60 days, or both, for each offense. This penalty is in addition to the interest charge.

NOTICE

TO GAS CUSTOMERS

In compliance with a law passed at the last session of the Legislature, Community Natural Gas Company will begin to odorize the gas supplied to its customers within the next few days.

If you should notice an unusual odor about your premises, your gas piping and connections should be checked for leaks. For this purpose we advise that you call your plumber in order that any necessary repairs can be made.

Odorization of gas does not affect your gas service, but it may enable you to determine whether your gas piping needs attention.

Caution:

DO NOT LOOK FOR LEAKS WITH MATCHES OR AN OPEN FLAME OF ANY KIND!
