RAINS DELAY CUTTING AND THRESHING

Grain Unharmed But Expect Shattering as Result of Over-ripeness

Farmers who have been looking forward to "winding up" their harvesting season this week have been consistently disappointed by constantly recurring showers since last week. Offsetting the favorable weather that prevailed during early cutting, the past week's weather permitted very little progress.

Thursday night, June 3, a light shower fell and delayed harvesting until late Friday. Rain again at the beginning of the week followed by a heavy rain Tuesday kept farmers out of the fields Wednesday and few of them expect to resume work until Friday.

This week's rains also caused a slight change in plans for some threshermen who were expecting to get their rigs in condition to begin threshing full blast next week. Because of the general delay in cutting, none of the threshers are now expected to be in full swing until the middle of next week or later.

The general consensus of opinion is that little if any harm has come to grain as a result of the rain. Very little wind accompanied it, and the rain itself was not hard enough to beat down the grain. What losses are sustained will probably be caused by shattering because of over-ripeness in some fields.

A late report reveals that people in the Linn, Hood, and Era communities suffered considerable losses as a result of a hailstorm that missed Muenster. It is said that unharvested oats cannot be cut profitably, and very little of the wheat can be recovered. Cotton crops were so badly damaged that they will have to be replanted, and leaves were almost completely stripped from corn and cane crops. Not even poultry was spared from the fury of the storm. Thirty-five half grown turkeys were found dead on Arthur Hellman's place after the elements had calmed down.

GIRLS BEGIN BALL SEASON WITH 12-8 WIN OVER MYRA

The Muenster girls got off to a flying start in the opening game of their softball season when, without any previous workouts, they defeated Myra's lassies 12 to 8 at Muenster last Friday afternoon.

Since that time the girls have had a few practice sessions when the weather permitted and are now looking forward to their second encounter with their Myra rivals Saturday night.

A few rumors about a girls' softball team for Muenster were being spread before school closed but no definite action was taken until the Myra girls requested a game. Now the girls are planning on hours of practice and a schedule of games with girls' teams of all surrounding communities.

Girls on the Muenster team are as follows: Marjorie Ackley, Bertha Jane Hoehn, Ella Mae McDonald, Mildred and Evelyn Patrick, Virginia and Alvina Gehrig, Catherine and Rita Swirczynski, Louise Schmitz, Josephine Wilde, and Joyce Bentley.

City Appoints Board of Equalization; Approves Reservoir Equipment

The annual appointment of an equalization board for the city of Muenster took place in the regular city council meeting Monday night, June 7, the appointments favoring Ben Hellman, I. A. Schoeck, and J. P. Kleiss. The time set for their work is from June 14 to June 28.

At the suggestion of J. M. Luke, who has spent considerable time lately in the erection of a new master meter at the city reservoir, the council voted in favor of securing an automatic float switch by means of which the level of water in the reservoir can be controlled. In the past the city has lost a considerable volume of water by overflow and the new control was approved as a means of preventing future losses.

Attend Nocona Celebration
Frank Hoedebeck and J. C. Trachta attended the pioneer homecoming celebration at Nocona last Monday.

Two Muenster Persons Struck By Lightning

Several persons of Muenster felt lucky to escape with their lives when lightning accompanying a thunder storm last Monday struck in the east end of town.

Mrs. John Tempel is reported to have suffered the most painful effects. Standing in the back yard at her home she felt the electrical shock strike her shoulder and travel down her side to the ground. The lightning left a burnt streak the entire length of her body.

Other members of the family were also dangerously near and members of the Luke Tempel and H. A. Walterscheid families, who live in neighboring houses, reported that the lightning struck several objects almost within their reach.

From Henry Trachta comes a report that his son, Richard, at Stamford had a similar experience last Saturday. According to his letter, Richard was standing beside an open window when the bolt knocked him over. He had no definite idea how long he lay on the floor but from his dazed feeling he felt that it must have been for several minutes.

PHONE COMPANY ADOPTS NEW PLAN TO MAINTAIN LINES

In the future all responsibility of maintaining telephone lines in the Muenster area will be assumed by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Horn, it was decided in a special meeting of the Muenster Telephone Company last Wednesday afternoon at the city hall.

Under previous arrangements the task of keeping lines in repair was delegated to a foreman on each line but because of the fact that trouble occurred sometimes miles from the foreman's home, or he was occupied with other work, or did not have equipment necessary for a job, service was often suspended for several days. Now Mr. and Mrs. Horn, who have charge of the central office, are expected to arrange for repair service as soon as it is found to be necessary.

The Muenster Telephone Company is a co-operatively owned company with all earnings being returned to consumers in the form of lower service charges. The simpler method of maintaining lines was formerly in effect so that the company could keep its rates at a lower figure, but since the arrangement was unsatisfactory as regards service, the new plan was adopted on trial until January 1, 1938.

Miss Weinzapfel Arranges To Enter Victory College

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Weinzapfel and their daughter, Miss Agnes, were in Fort Worth Tuesday arranging for Agnes' entrance in Victory College next September.

Two weeks ago Miss Weinzapfel graduated with honors from the academic department of the same institution. In a class of 25 she ranked as one of the four leaders, and except for the fact that she had not spent her entire high school course in the school, she would have qualified for the distinction of class valedictorian.

League Officials Declare Softball Recess During Threshing Season; Muenster to Play Back Games

Muenster chalked up a grand total of 12 errors to miss its chance of replacing the Leo team for league lead in a close contest, which was anybody's game after the third inning, at Myra last Thursday night.

The inexperience and lack of practice in several of the local players stand out as principal weaknesses in the team, however, according to the more optimistic fans, the boys should be hard to stop once they get their fielding under control. To offset their dozen errors Muenster delivered a dozen hits to score a total of nine runs whereas Leo brought in 11 tallies on six hits.

It was encouraging to note also that Muenster handled the ball considerably better and permitted fewer scores in the late innings. Doubtless the costly mistakes early in the game gave them a few constructive ideas, and the fellows feel that they will be able to turn the trick in their next encounter with the loop leaders.

Fair Dramatizes Freeing of Americas

America's history, from date of discovery by Columbus from the deck of the Santa Maria (pictured above) is told in vivid pageantry in the Cavalcade of the Americas at the Pan American Exposition, in Dallas, June 12-October 31.

Liberation of the Americas is the theme of this spectacle, told in Patrick Henry's stirring "Liberty or Death" speech.

Leadership of his country's cause rested on George Washington, shown in this Cavalcade scene with Martha Washington.

Marching across the pages of history in drama are liberators of South America—San Martin and Bolivar.

Down to date with the good neighbor policy, Cavalcade is climaxed with the Buenos Aires peace address of President Roosevelt.

4 Crashes in 6 Days Is New Accident Record

Two automobile accidents during the latter part of last week raised the week's accident record to a total of four. Following Richard Wilde's crash of June 1 and Ben Seyler's of June 2, Buster Evans turned his car over and Walter Richter had the front of his car badly damaged when it was struck by another machine driven by Wm. Wolf.

The Wolf-Richter collision occurred Sunday night as Richter's car was parked on the driveway at John Bezner's place between Gainesville and Lindsay. After coming from Gainesville Mr. Richter had stopped on the driveway to leave out two companions. Coming from the opposite direction was Will Wolf, and his companions, who apparently watched only the headlights and thought the Richter car was on the road. Accordingly he kept to the right and, though going far out of the road, failed to miss the parked automobile.

The damage to Mr. Wolf's car was only slight, but the left wheel and fender of Mr. Richter's car was demolished and other parts were badly damaged. No one in either car, however, was injured.

Mr. Evans' accident occurred in Oklahoma. While returning to Muenster on a poor road the car skidded out of control and tumbled over several times. Only minor injuries were sustained by the occupants and the car was still in condition to be driven to Muenster under its own power.

A 7,000-pound truck load of cheese was shipped to Fort Worth by the Muenster Cheese Factory last Wednesday.

Attendance of Bugs at Softball Game Reaches Astronomical Numbers

736,987,429,534 — According to Shorty Herr this figure represents his conservative estimate on the number of bugs attending the softball game at Myra last Thursday night.

Biblical stories about the plague of locusts and a few more recent yarns about the density of grasshoppers in Kansas can now meet with some credence here since people saw that bugs can actually get thick enough in the air to cast a general shadow.

The air was dense with the pests. People were pulling them out of their hair and their pockets, squirming about to get them off their backs or kicking them off their legs. Hands were continuously in motion to brush the insects off of faces and very few had the courage to venture a shout or yawn.

Beginning last Monday a two weeks' recess in the schedule became effective so that the softball games would not conflict with the threshing season. Reasons given for the breathing spell, according to Ray Hudson and Roy Townsley are that many players would not be able to participate after a strenuous day in the field and also that fans, also engaged in the harvest, would not find time to attend the games. Furthermore, if the regular schedule prevailed games would be delayed more than an hour and would probably last until after midnight, a decidedly unsatisfactory hour for those who are working hard at sun-up.

When the regular schedule is resumed, on June 21, the official league standing will be slightly changed. In a recent confab of officials it was decided that all games played by the Bulcher Oilers before they withdrew from the league will be cancelled. By that arrangement Myra and Hays each have one defeat scratched from their records and the Bulcher Pumpers, henceforth known as Bulcher, may cancel two defeats.

On the other hand, the Muenster team, which took the Oilers' place in the schedule, must play each of the above mentioned teams in order to have its regular number of games. A game with Leo is also included because the opening game of the season between Leo and the Oilers was postponed because of rain. Muenster is expected to play

Mrs. Ben Seyler Shows Signs of Recovery from Effects of Auto Crash

Rain Prevents View of Eclipse
The total eclipse of the sun at 1:04 p.m. Tuesday passed unnoticed by Muentser people. At that time rain was falling in torrents and visibility was decreased to a mere few hundred yards. Very few were disappointed, however, for, judging from the amount of interest shown in the occurrence, hardly anyone would have been out to see it if conditions had been favorable.

Hemorrhages Now Believed to Be Stopped After Five Blood Transfusions; to Return Home Soon.

The latest report on Mrs. Ben Seyler, given by Dr. T. S. Myrick and Mrs. Herbert Meurer on their return from Denton late Wednesday afternoon, is decidedly favorable. She is now given more than an even chance to recover from injuries sustained in an automobile accident Wednesday, June 2.

From Saturday afternoon until Monday afternoon she was in an extremely critical condition and hospital attendants as well as members of her family feared several times that she would not survive the frequent hemorrhages that sapped her strength.

Mrs. Seyler received five blood transfusions. Two of them were given by her brother, Steve Fette, one by her father, John Fette, and one by her cousin, Gilbert Lehnertz. When requests were first made for donations of blood no less than a dozen took tests for the type and several more besides those who actually gave stood ready for transfusions if more blood should be needed.

It is thought that Mrs. Seyler's most narrow escape occurred Monday when for a short time some thought she had actually passed. A serious hemorrhage followed a transfusion but was successfully withstood with the newly received nourishment and the indomitable will to live that Mrs. Seyler showed during her entire illness.

Because she has had no hemorrhage since Monday afternoon her friends and attendants are confident that her greatest source of danger is eliminated. Other evidence of her greatly improved condition is her greater display of vitality and her comments about the pain in her broken right leg. For several days she was so critically sick that she was not aware of the fracture. In the event that Mrs. Seyler's progress continues at the same rate that it has from Monday to Wednesday she will probably be removed

HIGHWAY WORKERS CONTINUE PROGRESS BETWEEN SHOWERS

Progress on the new highway continues at a steady pace at times when the intermittent showers that have been visiting this area during the past week permit workers to carry on with their tasks.

Since last Thursday the few miles of dirt between Muenster and the pavement have been barricaded and grading work as well as cutting down some of the hills has been carried on. At the same time shovel work is being done on the road west of Muenster.

For those who must travel between Muenster and Gainesville the recent barricade of the highway caused a distinct hardship. It transferred traffic back to the detour road one mile north of the highway, a narrow road that becomes especially disagreeable after a rain.

Heavy traffic has already cut the road into an almost impassable condition. Ruts are rough and deep and almost impossible to get out of when wet. Finally, when a driver leaves the rut in order to get past another car, he is dangerously near a ditch.

To overcome the grief of traveling the detour many drivers have been choosing the roundabout gravel road that leads into Myra from the south in spite of its being about five miles longer.

Nick Miller Wins $100 Award in Bank Night Drawing at Majestic

Nick Miller goes down on record as being the first Muenster resident to collect an award at a theater bank night. At the Majestic in Gainesville last Thursday night Nick was on hand when his name was called as the lucky person in the $100 drawing. He received his money Monday, less the 20 per cent tax imposed by the State on bank night awards.

In the past at least a dozen Muenster persons have had their names called for bank night awards but none of them were present to collect. Only a few weeks ago Mrs. Miller's name was announced, and her disappointment was so great that both resolved to be present if and when either name was drawn again. Their persistence was rewarded Thursday.

Society Delegates of Local Parish Attend Dallas Youth Meeting

The Catholic Youth Union of the Diocese of Dallas was formally organized in its first meeting held Sunday at the St. Paul's Sanitarium Nurses' Home in Dallas with Msgr. Augustine Danglmayr presiding. The purpose of the union, as explained at the meeting, is to form a larger general society for the unification of the many parish societies in the diocese. Thirty-two such groups were present at the meeting and pledged their co-operation with the central group.

In addition to the routine election of officers and adoption of a constitution and by-laws, the newly formed organization concerned itself chiefly with discussions on the summer school of Catholic Action to be conducted in New Orleans in August. Tentative plans were made for chartering a special train and securing special rates in the event a sufficient number of members can be assembled for the trip.

Muenster people attending the meeting were Father Francis Zimmerer, Misses Irene Walterscheid, Rita Swirczynski, and Alvina Fette, and Jie Voth and M. J. Endres, Jr.

Pastor Visits in Wichita Falls
Father Frowin spent from Monday to Thursday of this week visiting with friends in Wichita Falls, Windthorst, and Scotland.

SUMMER ORDER OF CHURCH SERVICES EFFECTIVE SUNDAY

Beginning next Sunday, June 13, the summer schedule of Divine Services in the Muenster parish will be in effect.

The new schedule, as announced last Sunday by the Rev. Father Frowin, is as follows:

- 6 a.m.—Low Mass, sermon, and communion.
- 7:45 a.m.—High Mass, sermon, and communion.
- 9:45 a.m.—Low Mass, sermon, and instructions for children.
- 7:30 p.m.—Benediction.

Confessions will be heard on Saturday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and again from 7 to 8, and on Sundays from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

During the week confessions will be heard from 6 to 6:30 a.m. and Masses will be read at 6:30.

Muenster Wins Close Margin Contest from Myra Softball Team

Playing the first of its series of back games the Muenster softball club eked out a close margin victory in its encounter with Myra Wednesday night. The score was 4 to 3.

As usual the game was marred by a flock of fumbles, but for once the Muenster boys succeeded in keeping theirs at a lower figure than the opponents. However, with hitting on almost even terms and a fairly good brand of ball in effect generally, fans were treated to a close, interesting contest. Furthermore, the game was snappy. It was played in 40 minutes, probably a new record for speed in the local softball loop.

Quite a number of rookies had a chance to break into the lineup as a result of the failure of several regulars to appear, and most of them played the kind of game that merits for them a place on the regular squad.

Threatening clouds on all sides were held responsible for a decidedly small crowd of fans.

SAFETY COURSES

ANOTHER forward step in the problem of traffic safety is being taken this summer by Texas A. & M. College and Texas Technological College in their introduction of traffic safety courses for summer school teachers.

In other sections of the country special courses have been offered for several years and their effect has become noticeable in the record of decreased automobile accidents. The courses are now being introduced to Texas teachers with the hope that they will pass on to their next year's classes a few of the ideas they have gathered.

The more one considers unsafe driving nowadays the more he feels the need of special safety courses. It seems as though youngsters now learning to drive cars learn only the fundamentals of getting a car in motion. They learn how to shift from one speed to another and how to maneuver a right or left turn, but there their knowledge ends.

How many of them are impressed with the importance of judging their own speed and that of other drivers, of knowing when they are in danger, of estimating a stopping distance, or of carrying out the numerous courtesies that distinguish good from bad drivers.

Almost every pupil in school is destined to do thousands upon thousands of miles of driving in his lifetime. Because driving is destined to be so much a part of his future, it seems only reasonable to assume that he should receive training for it just as he does to prepare for other activities.

Driving safety must eventually become a national habit. Before we can hope to stop our traffic slaughter drivers must be made to understand just what they are doing and the importance of doing it correctly.

More power to the two schools that are introducing the safety courses. May the good work they have begun spread over all the State and result in a new generation of more careful drivers!

HITLER vs. ROME

Last Sunday priests in the Berlin diocese were instructed to read from their pulpits a general letter answering Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels' assertion that Catholic immorality trials, now being conducted in Germany, are the worst in history. The diocesan letter is the result of a deluge of propaganda released by Goebbels following Cardinal Mundelein's criticism of Nazi persecutions directed against the church.

Der Fuehrer, Adolph Hitler, and his minister are still hopeful that somehow they will be able to convince the world of their innocence, little thinking, apparently, that the world has formed an opinion long ago. The time is past when they can achieve anything by protest and propaganda. The world knows that the German government has violated the Reich-Vatican concordat limiting the church and government to separate fields. Their next step, if they wish to regain a portion of their lost favor, is to withdraw their meddling fingers from ecclesiastical affairs. They must realize that their authority is confined to civil affairs that mankind is expected to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's."

Hitler is a typical example of a man drunk with power. Once upon a time he was an Austrian paperhanger with a good idea. Because Germany was confused and down-trodden his nationalistic ideas were eagerly accepted and when a strong unified Germany developed out of the struggle Hitler and his party became powerful. But success went to his head. Like all little men of history who have had great power, Hitler overstepped his bounds. He insisted on being the political big shot and managed to have his enemies removed as traitors. He insisted on extending his authority over religion but there he encountered the Rock of Rome.

On several occasions the Pope found it necessary to remind Hitler that he was dealing in problems beyond his field. Such rebuke of course galled Der Fuehrer and he accordingly set out to discredit the church before Germany and the world. The trumped-up charge of immorality filed against German clergy are a part of his scheme.

Through all this controversy it seems especially significant that the "Minister of Propaganda" should take such a prominent part. Considering a little farther, one wonders why Germany should have a minister of propaganda at all unless she intends to give out propaganda rather than truthful information. From the mere fact that a statement is made by Goebbels thinking people are prompted to question its veracity.

Hitler's greatest difficulty is his fear that someone will find out too much about him and what has actually been going on in Germany. That is why he attempts to stifle the voice of the church and at the same time employs another voice to shout his propaganda.

"The name doesn't seem to sit very well with you," observed Jane crustily.
McCrosen looked disgruntled.
"That bird's name doesn't sit very well with anyone at Gunlock."
Jane seemed willing to pursue the subject. "Why not?" she asked languidly as she sipped her coffee.
"Why not? There's more reasons than one. Denison is a rustler — if you know what that means." He paused.
"What else?" she asked in the same fatigued manner.
It nettled her foreman. "He's the worst enemy your father ever had in this whole country. He's probably stole more Gunlock cattle than all the rustlers in the hills."

"You Must Have Been Trying Not to Find Me," Said Jane Coldly.

"I don't believe it."
"All right, don't," exclaimed McCrosen, nettled. "Just ask any of the boys around the ranch."

Jane rode into Sleepy Cat next morning with Bull Page, and when she had dispatched her business at the bank, she walked up the street to Carpy's hotel.

She asked for Doctor Carpy, whom she remembered from her visit two years before. The doctor had a private office, entered both from the hotel lobby and the street.

The doctor was somewhat surprised at the sight of this trim, erect girl, 18 or 19 years of age, and seemingly a stranger, facing him. Obviously she was a newcomer to Sleepy Cat; the doctor did not at once place her. But his glance swept everything about her like a flash — her cowboy hat, her red, open-neck blouse with its dark flowing tie; her sloping feminine shoulders; delicate, pleasing bosom and slender, rounded hips; her short brown riding skirt and her soft, tight-fitting tan boots. The rig seemed right for her brown hair and blue eyes. "Doctor Carpy?" her voice was clear and her manner possessed.

Carpy nodded. Despite his years, the sight of trim, girlish womanhood always stirred the blunt old surgeon to graciousness. The doctor doffed his hat and set his bag down on the desk with an air of satisfaction. "I'm Doctor Carpy. But I'm glad to see you don't need me or any other doctor."

"Why, Doctor!" exclaimed Jane demurely. There was a sophistication in the delicate droop of her eyelids, as she protested, that did not escape the doctor. It deceived him only as to her age. "That's hardly complimentary, Doctor Carpy," she ran on. "Have you forgotten Frontier Day two years ago when we sat here on the porch together and in the rickety grandstand to see the riding?" Her eyes were laughing. Doctor Carpy was flustered.
"What is your name?"
"Not a very popular one in this country. I'm Jane Van Tammel." He knit his brows. "Why, that's maybe two years ago, and it was a little girl that I talked to here on the porch and took to the races. I'll be hanged! Two years! And you're sprung into full bloom. Full bloom!" repeated Carpy in undisguised admiration. "Where've you been ever since?"

"In Chicago. You look exactly the same, Doctor."

"Can't say I feel exactly the same, Jane," he said. His eyes still rested on her. "How long were you out last time?"

"Only two months or so. But I'm out now to stay, perlaps."

"I heard something lately about some women folks over to Gunlock, but I didn't hear of you being over there. If I had, I'd have been over there myself. So you're Gus' daughter," he mused.

"I'm his only child, Doctor."

"Never knew he had a child till you came out the first time. You threw your bracelet out on the track, didn't you?"

"That was partly your fault, Doctor."

"Was it? Well, you got it back."

"I did, but I never learned the name of the man that picked it up. All I could find out, when I asked, was that he was a rustler. You don't remember him, do you?"

"Of course I do. Who the hell said he was a rustler?"

"Why, that's what they told me at the ranch after we got home."

"Well, you've got some able-bodied liars at Gunlock—one in particular."

"Who's that?"

"No need to specify."

"Well, what's the name of the wonderful rider who picked up the bracelet? And the cigarette?"

"It was Bill Denison."

Jane started imperceptibly.

"He's living here now on his brother's hill ranch—brother's dead. Well, Jane, what in the world brought you out here?"

"Why, because Father's so ill," Doctor Carpy nodded. "You took care of him, Doctor, and recommended his going to Medicine Bend—"

"It was pretty high for him here."

"—so he telegraphed for me to come out to look after the ranch—"

"Small girl for big job, as the Indians would say."

Jane laughed. "That's what Father said when he saw me. You know two years ago was the first time in his life he's ever seen me."

"I never knew till then—your father had a family."

"Father was peculiar, you know. A little while after I was born he just disappeared. It was years before we even knew where he was. Then he began sending money back to Mother sometimes, but he never wrote a line. Then Mother died, and I went to live with my Aunt Lou."

"How old are you, Jane?"
"Almost 19."
"Well, well!" mused Doctor Carpy, still regarding his caller benevolently. "So you're Van Tammel's daughter. I guess you take after your mother." The doctor spoke evenly, but the implication did not pass unnoticed.

"Aunt Lou says I do," she returned with composure. "So Father said, too, when I went to see him at the hospital in Medicine Bend last month. And he told me, Doctor, to come to see you about his bill. I couldn't find one from you among the bills at the ranch. Did you ever send one?"

"Hell, Jane, I never sent a bill to anybody in my life."

"Doctor!" exclaimed his caller, startled both at the expletive and the statement. "I never heard of a doctor who didn't send out bills!"

Carpy laughed uproariously. "Why, that's nothing."
"But," she went on, "you took care of Father quite a while. He thinks you're the best doctor he ever had."

The sardonic note in the doctor's slight laugh as he suppressed an exclamation did not escape the girl. "But everyone out here says that or something just like it, so you must be used to it," she added.

THE STORY THUS FAR

CHAPTER 1.—Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tammel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tammel, hated owner of Gunlock Ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot Ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrosen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrosen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him with Harry Boland, saloonkeeper and crony of McCrosen. Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champion horseman. McCrosen and the young stranger tie in the various events. They are then asked to propose their own stunts. McCrosen, winning the toss, picks up a handkerchief from the ground riding full speed, facing backward. Denison easily follows suit. Now it is his turn. He drops a cigarette carelessly, and it is proposed that he try to pick it up riding full tilt.

CHAPTER 2.—Racing down the track, Denison picks up the cigarette. Boland and the Gunlock ranch followers protest to Bill Pardaloe, ex-sheriff and one of the judges, but the verdict goes to Denison when McCrosen refuses to attempt the stunt. Entreated by the crowd, Denison agrees to perform another trick. Jane Van Tammel is asked for her bracelet and throws it on the track. Just as Denison rides to pick it up, a yell from Barney Rebstock, a Mc-

Crosen henchman, scares the pony, nearly costing the rider his life. Gun play is prevented by the intervention of Doctor Carpy. The young stranger returns the bracelet to Jane.

CHAPTER 3.—Back on Gunlock ranch after two years in Chicago, because of her father's illness, Jane gets lost riding in the hills and meets Denison, now a neighbor, who guides her home. Not knowing her identity, he speaks bitterly of Van Tammel.

There were lights everywhere when Jane knocked, very late, at the ranchhouse door. Kindly old Bull Page, one of the ranch hands, greeted her in the kitchen.

The girl was faded to death. "Where's everybody, Bull?" she asked, dropping into a chair.

"Why, Miss Jane, they're all out lookin' for you."

"Looking for me!" exclaimed Jane scornfully. "Well, they must be loafing on the job. Where's Quong?"

"Quong's gone to bed, but I'll get some bacon and fried potatoes for you in no time," declared Bull. "Coffee?"

"Yes, and strong."

"Same as I take it. Well, well, how'd you manage to find your way home?"

"I didn't find it. I found a man and a cabin about a hundred miles from nowhere, and he brought me home. That coffee smells grand, Bull," sighed Jane. "Hurry up with the bacon!"

As she said the words, in stalked the ranch foreman, Dave McCrosen.

At the sight of the missing girl he struck an attitude of resentful astonishment. "Hell's bells, Jane!" he exclaimed. "Here you are home and we've been ridin' all over creation for you!"

"You must have been trying not to find me," said Jane coldly. Without much reason she resented the fact that she had got lost and not been promptly found.

"Where were you?" asked the foreman, sitting down.

"In the hills. You've always been telling me to ride where I pleased and that there was no danger because you'd pick me up. I guess your formula didn't work."

"I missed this time. There's never been any trouble locatin' you before. But it won't happen again. So you just wandered away and wandered home again?"

"I did not wander home. I was brought home."

"Who brought you?"

"Bill Denison."

If a cannon cracker had been exploded under McCrosen, it could not have been more sensational than her answer. He caught his breath with a gulp. "That fellow! Well, some things do beat the devil! Bull," he said, recollecting himself, "go out and tell the boys Jane is home. Bill Denison, was it?" he resumed, looking keenly at Jane.

Lindsay Girl Honored
By Farewell Party on Departure for Convent

Lindsay, June 9.—Miss Helen Krebs was honored with a shower party last Sunday afternoon, May 30, when her mother, Mrs. Albert Krebs, entertained a number of her daughter's classmates in her home at Lindsay.

The party came in the form of a farewell to Miss Krebs who will leave soon for Jonesboro, Ark., where she will enter the convent of the nuns of the Benedictine Order.

A recreational program featuring games, songs, and musical numbers constituted the afternoon's entertainment.

At the conclusion the hostess, assisted by Miss Lucille Neu, served a lovely refreshment plate to the honoree and the following guests: Louise Hermes, Anna Mae Kuntz, Lorie Alice Geray, Lena Mae Schmitz, Margaret Streng, Margaret Gruber, Alma Sandman, Mary Fuhrmann, Ottilia Fuhrmann, Elsie Louise Bezner, Marjorie Mosser, and Helen Brummette.

"Please tell me now, Doctor, what the bill is; I want to pay you."

The doctor waved Jane off. When he sidestepped, she kept after him. He dodged, and she persisted. At last she drew from her purse two $100 bills and laid them on the table in front of him. Carpy looked at them in astonishment. "Your father hasn't gone out of his mind, has he?"

"No," Jane retorted. "Why? That is not enough, is it?" she added shamefacedly. "I didn't know."

"It's at least twice too much. Did Gus send this?" Jane had to fib a bit. She had added a hundred dollars herself to what her father had told her would be about right, if Carpy refused to name the bill. "He told me he wanted you well paid," she answered evasively.

Carpy pushed one bill back to Jane. "That's plenty."

"Doctor," she exclaimed, "I wish you'd take this other bill."

He shook his head. "Put it back in your purse. How are things out at the ranch?"

"You know how it is when the cat's way," laughed Jane.

"You must mean the wildcat," suggested Carpy, grinning half amiably.

"Everyone doing things his own way," she continued, ignoring the thrust. "Or not doing them at all."

"Mostly that, I guess."

"Mostly that," agreed Jane. "I can see I have plenty of work ahead."

"And you going on 19. And I'll bet, never did a day's work in your life."

She straightened up. "I've worked every day of my life since I left high school at 15."

"What for?"

"Helping support Mother."

Carpy flashed with anger. "Do you mean to tell me that old curmudgeon father of yours didn't support you and your mother?"

Jane's eyes fell. She crimsoned. Then collecting herself, she said, "I didn't mean to tell you, Doctor. It slipped out. We've nearly always had to look out for ourselves—but I hate to talk about it, Doctor. Father says he's sorry. When I telegraphed him about Mother's death, he was all broken up and sent me so much money for the expenses that I didn't know what to do with it—though it was too late to do poor Mother any good. I know Father's eccentric, Doctor," Jane continued gravely.

"But that doesn't explain to me, why everybody out here hates him. And that's what I've wanted to ask somebody like you, Doctor, somebody who would tell me the truth. Why is Father so disliked? Is it because he is so rich?"

Dr. Carpy was taken aback. Here was an innocent and charming girl budding into a lovely womanhood, the daughter of an unscrupulous criminal and thoroughly detested cattle king, asking him to tell her why her father was so hated along the Spanish Sinks.

"Well, Jane," he said at length slowly, "many a rich man is hated without good reason."

But if he thought he could get off with such a general observation he was mistaken. Jane pursued him. "Was that the case with Father?" she asked bluntly.

"Other rich men are hated," continued Carpy, unmoved, "not because they're rich, but because of the way they got rich!"

The force of his words was not lost on his listener.

"And if a man does get rich here or anywhere else, they don't lose any time hatching up lies about him, do they?" she said indignantly. "Father warned me when I saw him at the hospital that I'd hear stories about him. But there are always two sides to stories."

She spoke with a fire that surprised even her listener, who was seasoned to surprises. "There's a chip of the old block," he said to himself. He regretted he had insinuated so much. But while he tried to soften the impact of his words, he would not entirely retreat.

"I probably ought to say, Jane, that I myself didn't get on well with your father. So my verdict might not be a fair one. Another man might give a more favorable opinion."

"What other man, Doctor?" she asked so coolly that she upset the doctor again.

"Why, offhand, I couldn't say right now, Jane."

"Doctor," said Van Tammel's daughter, rising suddenly; he thought her still angry, but she really wasn't—"may I come again, just to talk with you, perhaps get a little advice—come without excuse at

THE OLIVER ROW-CROP '70'

YOU CAN SEE WHAT YOU'RE DOING WITH THIS NEW SPEEDIER TRACTOR

Here's the sensational new Row Crop '70'—the six-cylinder, streamlined tractor everybody's talking about.

Due to its famous Tip Toe wheels there's unusually great clearance under the tractor so that planting and cultivating equipment can be mounted amidships—always in full view of the operator. You can see what you're doing. The work's easier!

Here's great power, too, with light weight—only 3,000 lbs. And, under ordinary soil conditions, you can plow with two 14-inch bases at over 4 miles an hour! That's great speed that gets the work done sooner—and gives the operator more spare time for other things.

There are two '70's'. Come in and see them. One for 70 octane gasoline—the other for kerosene or distillate—each setting new standards of fuel economy. There is, of course, a complete line of mounted listing, busting, planting and cultivating equipment.

all to see you—just plain come?" she asked, stiffly but impulsively.

"Why, of course you may, Jane. Why not? Come any time, all times—my latchstring's always out for you," declared Carpy, swayed by an admiration he could not resist.

"And you won't harbor any feelings against me just because you don't like my father?"

"How could I?" Doctor Carpy almost gasped with surprise at her poise. "Jane," he said, taking her hand, "just feel I'm your friend—I mean it. Sick or well, I'll be with you. I don't care a damn who your father is or was—that that plain, girl?"

"I'm awfully grateful, Doctor," she said collectedly. "If I get into a tight place, or into trouble, I'll know where I'll have a friend to turn to."

"Don't be afraid!" exclaimed Carpy emphatically. "You'll find you'll make plenty of friends out here just as soon as you get acquainted—don't be afraid!" he repeated.

Jane was at the door. She turned. "And Doctor," she said, with seeming innocence, "try to think of the name of the man who will give that more favorable opinion."

OIL DRILLER GOES DOWN 75 FEET IN 15-INCH HOLE TO RETRIEVE LOST BIT

Douglas, Wyo., June 5.—Charles (Shorty) Williams, who has been drilling oil wells in Wyoming for 20 years, is an impatient chap and not even a 75-foot hole 15 1/2 inches wide is going to stop him when he wants to drill.

The company for which Williams works dropped its bit in a hole, and fishing operations to retrieve the lost tool were unsuccessful.

Shorty became restless, had a rope tied around himself and was lowered into the deep, narrow shaft. He found the bit, attached a chain to it and had himself and the tool hauled out.

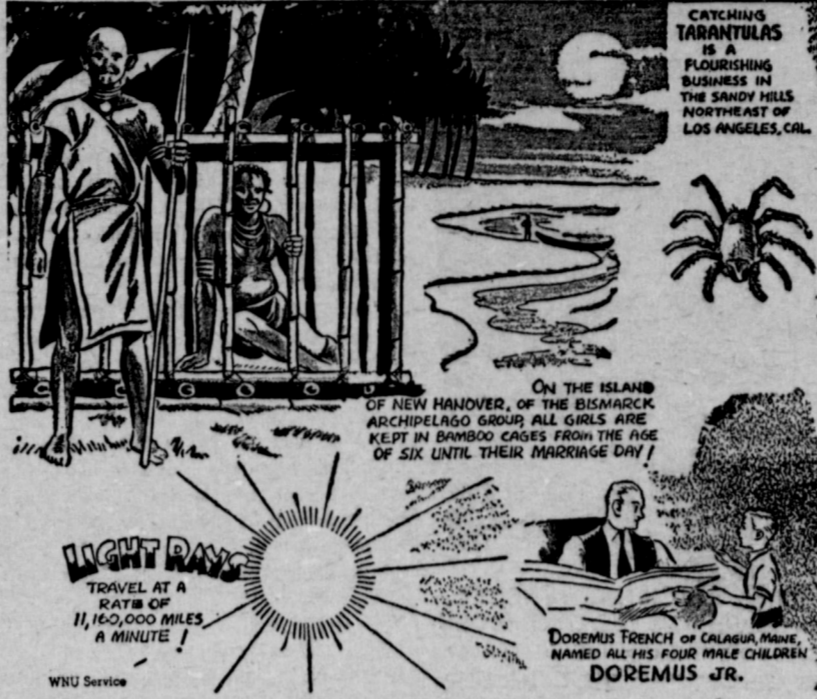

Williams weighs 130 pounds.

Prompt Action Urged In Case of Snake Bite

Austin, June 7.—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State health officer, urges every one to be careful when in the country to prevent snake bite. In Texas the chief offender is the rattlesnake, and, contrary to common belief, it does not always rattle before it strikes.

About 75 per cent of all bites occur on the lower extremities and could be prevented to a large extent, by wearing high top boots and leggings. About 20 per cent occur on the hands and arms.

If one is bitten, prompt action is necessary and a physician should be obtained as soon as possible. No time should be lost in removing the poison by suction; this can be done by mouth or a suction cup. First a tourniquet should be applied above the wound, so as to increase congestion and assist in washing out the poison.

The High Cost of Low Checking Balances...

What difference does it make whether a depositor carries a large or a small balance in his checking account?

It may mean just the difference between profit and loss for the bank.

The bank goes to great expense in serving its customers and usually makes no charge for its service. Its profit, if any, must come from what it is able to earn from loaning out a very small part of the money that is left with it for safekeeping.

But if its depositors keep nearly all of their money drawn out on checks it makes it very hard for the bank to make its earnings equal its expenses.

The "golden rule" for depositors, therefore, is: "Keep a fair balance in your account so as to give the bank a fair chance to break even."
