Among important resolutions adopted at the recent convention of Young Democrats of West Texas...

A New Constitution

Dale Miller, brilliant young editorial writer of The Texas Weekly points out that public-spirited leaders...

Significance also is attached to the fact that the resolution emanated from a West Texas body...

Scarcely a regular session of the Legislature passes without the submission of a number of amendments...

The history of Constitutional amendments, however, does not indicate such interest. For a few years there will be a wave of sentiment against all amendments...

Life has become so complex since 1876 that numerous changes in the Constitutional structures are inevitable...

If the Young Democrats do nothing else, they will have justified their organization if they sponsor and carry through to a successful conclusion a reform of Government in Texas.

The Banner does not subscribe to the popular editorial opinion that President Roosevelt has dealt aviation a death-blow through cancellation of the air-mail contracts.

The Air-Mail Contracts

Conceding that many will suffer unjustly through the President's order, we believe that the disclosures of the Senate investigating committee justified the drastic action taken by the administration.

The most distressing feature of the cancellation is the possibility, in no wise a certainty, that many men will be thrown out of employment temporarily.

The greatest loss through cancellation of contracts will be to holders of air stocks. And since the President has made plain that there will be no cancellation of those contracts honestly entered into, the inflated value of stocks, built up through dishonest milking of taxpayers money, should suffer.

It is debatable whether government subsidy of aviation, or of merchant marine for that matter, is a sound economic policy. It is evident that subsidy leaves avenues open for graft and plunder, and any industry built through extravagance and willful waste of government money would be better left undeveloped for the present.

Nor is it accurate to state, as Will Rogers has implied, that Army fliers are untrained for service as mail pilots. Almost without exception air-mail fliers in the Southwest are reserve Army officers. We may presume the situation is somewhat similar in other sections of the country.

The cancellation order may work a temporary hardship on some airways and individuals. But the corrupt system of granting mail subsidies has been the rankest sort of unfair competition to commercial lines unable to gain the official ear, and no doubt has caused greater losses than will the present policy.

Wiping the slate clean and starting anew, renewing contracts honestly secured and weeding out those where collusion is indicated, is the best policy. In the end, it will save the taxpayers millions of dollars, and will go a long way toward advancing aviation.

The annexation of Texas brought to an end a dream of a great new government in the Southwest, that might have impeded the western progress of the United States.

The consummate wisdom of the campaign in 1836 and the determined valor of the men who fought for Texas are equally fearless of criticism and worthy of praise.

Born on the frontier of Iowa in 1854, Tilghman left home at the age of sixteen to seek adventure in southwest Kansas.

In 1889, when Oklahoma was opened to settlement, he joined the land rush and won a fine farm for himself. He was ready to settle down to a peaceful existence, as a farmer, but the new territory was becoming overrun with bad men of all kinds and again Tilghman was enlisted on the side of law and order, this time as a deputy United States marshal.

As deputy marshal he performed one of the greatest feats of his career—the singlehanded capture of the notorious outlaw, Bill Doolin, whom he "brought back alive" when it would have been much easier to have killed him.

He has been called "the greatest man hunter the Southwest ever knew," "the only frontiersman who was constantly on the job for a generation and still lived" and "the last of that bulldog breed of old-time field marshals who risked and gave their lives to push back the borders of a wilderness."

THE BANNER'S SCRAP BOOK

HERE'S a model letter of recommendation, written by Benjamin Franklin when he was in Paris as an envoy from this government, in 1777.

Sir—The bearer of this, who is going to America, presses me to give him a letter of recommendation, though I know nothing of him, not even his name.

This may seem extraordinary, but I assure you it is not uncommon here. Sometimes, indeed, one unknown person brings another equally unknown to recommend him; and sometimes they recommend one another.

As to this gentleman, I must refer to merits, with which he is certainly better acquainted than I can possibly be. I recommend him, however, to those civilities which every stranger, of whom one knows no harm, has a right to; and I request you will do him all the favor that, on further acquaintance, you shall find him to deserve.

AND another famous letter, that of Abraham Lincoln to Mrs. Bixby:

Dear Madam: I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle.

I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I can not refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save.

I pray that our heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

County's "Lost" Child of Forty Years Ago Found in Person of Mrs. W. E. Crocker

The county's "lost" child of forty years ago has been re-found in the person of Mrs. W. E. Crocker, of Melvin. This incident came to light as a result of the article written by O. R. Right of Wonder, Ore., published in last Friday's issue of The Banner.

The Oregonian is J. T. Roberson, old-time local citizen and early-day settler, who some forty or fifty years ago resided in the Fredonia area. Mrs. Roberson is well known to many of the older citizens of Melvin, and upon occasion of a visit back here some years ago, enjoyed meeting her old friends and acquaintances, and in recounting the story of the great all-night search for her child, she had wandered a distance of 2 1/2 miles and it was a man named Mart Rose who found her. Mrs. Crocker says she was too little to remember any details of the episode or whether or not she was frightened. In fact, the one incident that has held fast in her memory all thru these years is that as she walked home between her rejoicing parents, she wanted to carry the lantern that her father had used in the search.

Mrs. Crocker also recalled the matter of the second lost child as mentioned by Mr. Roberson, but not certain as to the name.

Mrs. Crocker has long been a subscriber to and reader of The Banner Standard, and she says she reads every line, including the advertisements, in each issue of the paper. And when she read the remarkable story of her own self being lost and found, she could not help but come to The Standard office and identify herself as the little tot who caused such great excitement away back in the long ago.

MAKING Smart CLOTHES

Here's a bridge frock that has just what it needs to pick your wardrobe out of the Winter doldrums. We suggest that you make it in a bright colored silk, or one of the new "cruise pastel" wools.

"There was the warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis victims and the remarkable story of President Roosevelt's recovery to give him hope. But again the money spectre stared him in the face. Although the foundation is non-profit making, certain expenses must be shouldered, and the average would be $200 monthly, or $2400 a year. At four years the cost would be $9600, aside from another $1000 for wheel chair, crutches and equipment, an additional $200 for clothing, laundry, and the like. Counting also the $1000 needed for the first six weeks' treatment, his recovery would cost $14,100.

"Small wonder that a boy like Jack, with parents in ordinary circumstances or even less, faced a tremendous financial burden as well as physical handicap.

"If, however, the $14,100 could be provided for Jack—by an interested individual or by society—what would be the gain?"

"If Jack could go to work for years later, reasonably sure at 22 of making his way, the saving would be somewhere between $76,000 and $190,000. Independent and no longer a drain on society, he could start life anew and look forward with confidence to years of normal livelihood and self-support—even the support of a family.

"And even though he should make only $2000 a year, his life during those 28 redeemed years begun at 22 would be worth the minimum of $76,000.

"So the whole productive period of Jack's life, towards which he had looked as his birthright, is saved; society is saved the expense of caring for a helpless cripple; and if he is not rehabilitated society has lost the thousands of dollars it cost to rear him.

So there is the story of Jack, one of the 150,000 infantile paralysis victims in the United States. Only a handful of that number has the $14,100 necessary for treatment at Warm Springs, the nation's only center for such victims.

"It was for that great army, handicapped by the pinch of poverty as well as the horror of twisted bones, that America presented the $10,000,000 birthday gift to President Roosevelt, Tuesday, on his 52nd birthday."

Beauty Brevities

In one respect, fate is kind to woman. The sisters don't have to worry about getting bald headed, it simply doesn't happen to them.

If a woman were to be afflicted with a hairless pate and there were no wigs or transformations obtainable she would retire to a dark cellar and remain there to the end of her days. To cavort about, be pleased with herself after the fashion of skittish old-fashioned boys, would be impossible. One wonders how the poor male creatures endure their shining domes with fortitude.

Hair specialists say the reason women escape this sad fate is that they take better care of their hair. Certainly they give more attention to combs and brushes, wash them oftener. Something in that, maybe.

When grandma was a gay gazelle complexion troubles weren't what they are in this machine age. In the air was clean dust, it didn't stick. Now, soot chugged out by chimneys carries not only dirt but grease which settles in the pores of the skin, creates all kinds of havoc—as the modern city girl realizes well enough.

There are various cleansing agents that serve to keep the complexion in tiptop form; it is wisdom to use all of them. Nothing quite takes the place of soap suds, so ply that once a day, preferably at bedtime. If soap proves irritating—it does in rare cases—substitute oatmeal or almond meal.

Oily preparations seep into the pores, bring forth grime. Don't overlook the good effects of friction. And a complexion brush is worth its price, no matter what the price may be.

Something different to serve at bridge or church luncheon is something that the housewife and home maker is constantly looking for.

Parties and meetings come, one after the other. With this in mind, why not use cheese tarts? They will top off a meal or, when served with a fruit salad (especially cranberry salad), make a delightful dessert preparation. To make them, blend one-half cup of cream into one cup of cream cheese. Then combine one-half cup of sugar with one tablespoon of flour, one-eighth teaspoon of salt and the grated rind of one orange. Stir this into the cheese mixture and add two egg yolks which have been well beaten. Next, add one-half cup of crisp blanched almonds, chopped fine, and fold in the two stiffly beaten egg whites.

Line muffin tins with rich pastry and brush with a bit of egg white. (This prevents crust from soaking.) Pour the cheese mixture into the shells, sprinkle lightly with cinnamon and bake in a slow oven (350 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes, or until firm.

ARK OF FOUNDATION AT WARM SPRINGS, GEORGIA, EXPLAINED

There is a great deal of interest in the Ark of Foundation, due to the fact that it is held in Brownwood throughout the nation, as known by local citizens work of the foundation, the following reprinted from the Statesman, will be of interest to everyone:

Ark of Foundation is spending millions of dollars for a $76,000,000 project. Seventy-six thousand of the nation reasoned, is the least value one can place on a human life. If enough human beings at that much each can be salvaged out of the wreckage wrought by a lightning-swift disease, the millions will be well invested.

"Take for example, the case of Jack, who might be any boy. A youth of promise and ability, popular in his class, possibly an athlete, at 18 he was reduced to physical helplessness by infantile paralysis.

"The first agonizing six weeks cost his family $1,000, counting doctors, nurses, and hospital care.

Woman Saves Home With Paint

This may be of interest to you. About two months ago there was a family trying to arrange a new financing for their home to save it from foreclosure. Upon receiving appraisal report they were told that because of the looks of the house they would be unable to receive enough loan on the house to take care of the present indebtedness. This family had only sixty days in which to redeem their home from foreclosure. The man did everything he knew to save the home, but failed. The wife went to the Sherwin-Williams Paint Headquarters and asked what it would take to repaint and repaper her home and how much more the home would be worth when the work was done. She found that the material and labor would cost $150.00 and the property then would be worth $750.00 more in the eyes of the loan company, when finished. She had the work done and the loan company granted the loan, saving the home from foreclosure. See us now about your repainting and repapering.

Junior Partner (To pretty stenographer): "Are you doing anything on Sunday evening, Miss Dale?" Steno (Hopefully): "No, not a thing." Junior Partner: "Then try to be at work earlier Monday morning, will you?"

You will find that Sherwin-Williams Paint will cost you less per job, because it covers more square feet per gallon. It wears longer, looks better, the best paint you can use will cost you less.

INDIAN DAYS ARE RECALLED BY OLD TIME TEXAS FARMER

CRANFILLS GAP, Texas—Hardships of pioneering in Texas in the sixties when wild Comanche and Kiowa Indians roamed the country and oxen were the motive power of transportation, still are a vivid recollection of B. B. Swenson, an octogenarian of Cranfills Gap, one of the few old timers still living.

Swenson was brought to America from Norway, by his parents on a sailing vessel at the age of 18 months. The trip took 11 weeks. Three weeks were spent on the Island of San Domingo because of a calm and there the sun was so hot the pitch melted on the ship and ran down the sides.

On December 25, 1851, the family landed at New Orleans, and after much delay, made their way by ox wagon to Brownsboro, Henderson county, where the father split rails at 50 cents a hundred.

When Swenson was 7, his parents moved to a farm near Nell's creek, Bosque county, 50 miles northwest of Waco. Two years later they moved to a farm five miles east of Cranfills Gap where Mr. Swenson has lived for 45 years.

Boy Captured
While living here in 1867 the Indians captured Ole T. Nystel, then a boy of 14, who had gone with Carl Quedstedt, a neighbor, to gather cedar poles.

Nystel was captured after he had been wounded in the leg with an arrow when he tried to run. Quedstedt narrowly escaped by jumping off a pile of cedar left by woodcutters, and then sprinting four miles to the nearest farm house.

When the people at home learned of young Nystel's capture, Swenson joined a group of men in search for the boy, but they were unsuccessful and three months later he was sold at a trading post in Kansas for $250 worth of merchandise.

Nystel, now deceased, often told of the cruel treatment he received from the Indians, said Swenson, and of how at any moment he expected to be scalped. It was believed his life was spared because of his youth. Quedstedt probably would not have escaped had not the Indians been chasing the boy.

Oxen Used
Swenson also recalls early experiences in breaking land and traveling long distances with oxen.

"One fall one of my brothers and I broke 50 acres of land with oxen hitched to walking plows and sowed it in wheat.

"We had to travel long distances for building material. Once a neighbor and I with an ox wagon went to East Texas to get 3000 feet of lumber. The trip took a month, and not a drop of rain fell on us. In returning, we stopped at Corsicana to water the oxen in a mud tank. Some of them mired and we had to throw a rope around their necks and hitch to the other oxen to pull them out. Some times as many as five yoke of oxen were used to a wagon."

CORN-HOG CONTRACT OFFERS ADVANTAGES COUNTY AGENT SAYS

To the cotton farmer who has already reduced his cotton acreage by diversifying with other crops and livestock in previous years, and who feels the Government cotton program is unfair to him, the corn-hog contract may offer interesting possibilities, says C. W. Lehmburg, county agent.

Suppose a farmer changed from an all-cotton farm system to half cotton and half feed a few years ago. He milks cows and feeds hogs and raises chickens for a steady year 'round living, and takes his cotton money in the fall for paying the bigger bills. He makes the same percentage reduction in his 1934 cotton crop as the neighbor who still plants nearly the whole farm to cotton, but he will receive only half as much in the way of a Government cotton benefit check.

In many such instances it works out that the diversified farmer may sign a corn-hog contract to reduce corn acreage or hog production or both, and receive Government benefit checks that will total just as much or ever more than these received by the all-cotton farmer. In addition the diversified farmer is in a better position than the all-cotton farmer to use the extra feed which the farm can grow under the terms of the cotton and corn-hog contracts.

The corn-hog contract is open to every farmer in the county who produces a surplus of either corn or hogs and who can otherwise qualify, the county agent points out. The rush of the cotton campaign makes a farm-to-farm canvas of farmers in the interest of the corn-hog program an impossibility, but men who may be eligible to sign these contracts should investigate the plan, he suggests.

When our daughter tells us that everybody is doing a certain thing we know she really means that all the worst people are doing it—Claude Cailan in Star-Telegram.

December demands for terracing from farmers in Red River county broke all records for that month, says the county agent. Six men trained by the county agent to run lines spent 60 per cent of their time helping out, and the agent conducted 25 demonstrations. The cost of terracing using county grading machinery is running from 30 cents to $1 per acre.

SENATE CANDIDATE VISITS BROWNWOOD

Weaver H. Baker, of Junction, district attorney of the 112th judicial district, and a candidate for State Senator from the 25th senatorial district, was a visitor in Brownwood last week-end.

Mr. Baker is a law partner of Coke Stevenson, speaker of the house of representatives, and frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for governor or for congress from this district. Mr. Baker prophesied that the speaker would seek re-election to the legislature and would not enter the contest for congress or governor.

Mr. Baker's judicial district includes Kimble, Sutton, Crockett, Upton and Pecos counties, one of the largest districts in point of area in Texas. He feels that his experience will enable him to sponsor some important legislation tending to simplify court procedure in Texas state courts to the end that trials can be speeded up and the expense of litigation lightened. He also will advocate more economical operation of a number of state departments, including the highway department.

Mr. Baker stated that he would be a frequent visitor to Brown and adjacent counties during the campaign, and that he would make

Only You and Apes catch Cold BUT APES CAN'T GARGLE!

It is a curious truth that only man and apes suffer from the common cold. But unlike an ape, man can do something about it. He can gargle with Listerine. And tests have shown that regular users of Listerine catch fewer colds and milder colds than non-users. Why not use Listerine every morning and night? The moment it enters the mouth it begins to kill the dangerous germs associated with colds and sore throat.

Funeral Services For E. T. Renfro Held In Ft. Worth

Funeral services were held Thursday morning in Fort Worth for E. T. Renfro, prominent drug store owner and former resident of Brown county, who died suddenly at Dallas Tuesday while attending a druggists convention.

Mr. Renfro is a brother of Joe P. Renfro, Arthur P. Renfro, Mrs. B. R. Mason, Mrs. E. B. Henley and Mrs. Earl Looney of Brownwood, all of whom were in Fort Worth Thursday for funeral services. Others attending from Brownwood included Mrs. Arthur Renfro, E. B. Henley, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Henley, Jr., James Henley, Miss Nancy Renfro, Taylor Hanna, Porter McMinn, B. M. Bennett and A. C. Bratton.

Mr. Renfro was born in Shelby county, Texas, but was brought to this section by his parents, the late Captain D. K. Renfro and Mrs. Alet Renfro, at an early age and spent his boyhood and youth in San Saba and Brown counties. His father died here several years ago and his mother died here several weeks ago.

In Fort Worth Since 1905

Mr. Renfro went from this section to Marlin where he engaged in the drug business. He moved from there to Fort Worth in 1905 where he purchased a drug store. He extended the business into one of the largest of its kind in the county and was the first to introduce in Fort Worth the wide variety of merchandise carried by drug stores of today.

Mr. Renfro served on the city council of Fort Worth from the time the city manager form of government was inaugurated there until last year. He was a director in the Continental National Bank and the United Drug Company of Boston. He was a member of the Fort Worth Masonic Lodge, Fort Worth Elks Lodge, Fort Worth Club and Knights of Pythias, and was a leader in the Chamber of Commerce.

MAYES—Mrs. Ethel Hayes, 41, wife of the late Fred L. Hayes, Brownwood hotel owner and civic leader, died Friday, February 9, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Lillian Broad, 717 Coggin avenue. She had been seriously ill for some time.

The resolutions follow: "Whereas, our beloved pastor, Dr. A. E. Prince, who has served our church faithfully and well for nearly seven years, has been called to the broader field of usefulness in the state, and

"Whereas, he has, after prayerful consideration accepted such call and tendered his resignation as pastor of this church, and

"Whereas, such resignation has been reluctantly accepted at the urgent request and solicitation of Dr. Prince;

"Therefore, be it resolved by the First Baptist Church of Brownwood in conference assembled that he has so endeared himself to us by his consecrated, consistent Christian life and work that our prayers and love will go with him into
