

MYRA RESIDENT 64, FOUND DEAD THURSDAY A.M.

Burial Of J. G. Snuggs Held Friday At Hood

Active and Apparently in Good Health on Preceding Day. Heart Ailment Named Cause of Death

Myra.—Funeral services for J. G. Snuggs, 64, were held Friday afternoon from George J. Carroll and Son Funeral Home at Gainesville at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. Alexander Hubbard, pastor of the Myra Methodist church, officiating. Burial was in the cemetery at Hood. Pallbearers were F. S. Platt, E. F. Biffle, R. C. Hudson, A. E. Barnes, Jake Biffle and LeRoy Porter.

Mr. Snuggs, for many years a resident of Cooke county, was found dead in his bed Thursday morning. His death was wholly unexpected as he had been in apparent good health and the day before his death had transacted business in Gainesville. He had at one time suffered from a heart ailment, and it is believed that a heart attack caused his death.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Fred, of Myra; two grandchildren, Fredda and Buddy Snuggs, of Myra; two sisters, Mrs. Jack Cummings and Mrs. Lucy Foster, Tloga; and a brother, Burney Snuggs, Tloga.

Mr. Snuggs was born November 26, 1875, in Georgia, a son of the late Richard and Nettie Snuggs, and was brought to Texas by his parents when he was three years of age. He was married to Miss Clara Blevins at Van Slyke in 1896 and had since lived at Hood and Myra. He was engaged in real estate and oil leasing business.

CARLOAD SHIPMENTS GIVE INDICATION OF BOOMING BUSINESS

Calculated on the basis of carload freight shipments, business has been booming here during the past two months. Shipments for September up to Wednesday total 75, and August had a total of 55.

Most of the sharp increase is accounted for by heavy shipments from the refinery. That business alone sent out 47 cars in August and 59 to date this month. The shipments consist principally of fuel oil and gas oil and a limited amount of crude.

Nine cars this month were made up of 276 bales of cotton.

Other carload shipments, consisting principally of building materials, oil well supplies, and gasoline remain fairly consistent. On the average seven or eight of them come in every month.

Railroad shipments, however, constitute considerably less than half of the tonnage moving to and from Muenster. Almost 100 per cent of the refinery's gasoline is hauled in trucks. Other trucks deliver the greater part of major company gasoline coming into town. More trucks come in almost daily with building materials.

Trucks are also used exclusively to haul livestock to market and to deliver the total output of the cheese factory.

CONSTRUCTION OF ELECTRIC EXTENSION BEGINS ABOUT NOV. 1

Construction on about ninety miles of extension line for the Cooke County Electric Cooperative Association should be under way about November 1, in the opinion of J. H. Flood, resident engineer. Maps and specifications will be completed some time next week and submitted to the Rural Electrification Administration at Washington.

Assuming that the project is acceptable, it should be open for contracting bids near October 15, and two weeks later a contractor can be on the job.

Two sections of the line, one northeast of Gainesville and the other south of Gainesville, are surveyed and staked and waiting for the construction crew. The distance, about 40 miles, was finished Monday after three weeks of uninterrupted work.

Staking the next extension, in North Montague county, will begin this Friday or Saturday. At the present time W. W. Kirk, chief surveyor, is engaged in routing a line over the project.

GERMANS AND RUSSIANS SPLIT UP POLAND

Moscow and Berlin announced last week the demarcation line between the Russian and Poland armies in Poland. The boundary is indicated on the map by the heavy black line running roughly north and south through the center of Poland. Warsaw (1), which goes to Germany under the agreement, surrendered Wed. to German forces. (2) In the Pripet Marshes the Red Army reported that it had captured Pinsk and was "mopping up" scattered Polish forces. The shaded part of Poland shows an area that belonged to Germany and Austria before 1914; the white part was Russian in 1914.

ASSASSINATED?

BUCHAREST, RUMANIA.—Premier Armand Calinescu, was reported assassinated last week, according to a brief radio flash from Berlin. He led the Government's campaign to suppress the Fascist-like Iron Guard in Rumania since his appointment to the Premiership last March by King Carol. Calinescu was 46 years old, and was a member of the powerful National Peasant Party. He lost an eye in childhood and wore a black monocle.

REFINERY WILL BEGIN SOON ON CRACKING UNIT

Expects To Double Present Gas Production

Preliminary Plant Changes Will be Under Way Next Week, Construction to Follow Promptly

Continuing their rapid march of progress during the past six months, G. A. Mattson and A. G. Hutton, owners of the Muenster Refining Company, are completing plans for their most important improvement, a cracking plant. Mattson disclosed this week that preliminary changes at the refinery to make ready for the addition will be under way next week.

A vast increase in the refinery's business is expected to follow completion of the new unit, Mattson said. Through a more complete distillation process it will convert heavier products, which are less in demand, to gasoline, which has not been able to keep up with the demand.

By the present method of distillation crude oil yields less than 30 per cent gasoline. By the cracking process it will yield more than 60 per cent.

The unit will not, however, increase the refinery's capacity for crude, Mattson explained. Oil will first have gasoline, kerosene and distillate removed in the present stills. The remainder, consisting of gas oil and fuel oil, will then be sent to the cracking unit, where a large percentage of it is converted into gasoline by a process of molecular breakdown. The daily capacity of the cracking plant will be about 500 barrels.

One direct result of the improvement is a sharp decline in shipments of the heavier petroleum products. At the present time the refinery is shipping out an average of fifteen tank cars a week.

Construction of the unit will be a considerable project providing labor for a good sized crew of local men. However, it is probable that work will not be under way for several weeks. Plant changes, which begin next week, will be handled by the plant's regular employees.

An increase in the number of refinery employees will be another direct result of the improvement. Mattson estimates that ten more men will be added to the production crew, increasing the plant personnel from 20 to 30.

TISHOMINGO TEAM WINS 11-10 THRILLER FROM MUENSTER BOYS

In a thrilling game that almost re-enacted that of the preceding Sunday, the Tishomingo ball team won another one point victory over Muenster last Sunday. It was their second win out of three one point contests and served to add more enthusiasm to the rivalry that has become increasingly keener during the past two summers. The score was 11 to 10.

In its inning by inning progress the game was an almost direct reversal of Muenster's victory here. Tishomingo got a substantial lead in an early slugfest but saw its margin steadily decreased by Muenster's consistent playing for the rest of the game. In the latter part of the eighth, with Muenster leading 10 to 9, the home club pushed in the two runs needed to win and held the visitors through the first of the final inning. The teams were evenly matched in hits and errors.

Handicapped by the absence of some of its players, Muenster had to borrow reserves from Tishomingo to complete its lineup.

The Oklahoma club will be here for a return game on Sunday, Oct. 8.

MATERIAL FROM MYRA BANK TO BE USED IN NEW BANK BUILDING

Materials from the old Myra bank are being moved to Muenster this week for use in the new bank building. A crew of six men is working at the job.

Bank directors have requested contract bids on the structure, J. W. Meurer stated Wednesday, and expect to complete arrangements next week. Thereafter construction will go forward as soon as the contractor can get on the job.

FAVORED

CHICAGO, Ill.—It appeared Wednesday that Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, Michigan, will probably be elected National Commander. Kelly, 45 years old, lawyer and native of Michigan, has been Corporation Counsel of Detroit for six years. He attended Notre Dame college and graduated from University of Detroit. Kelly is married and father of six children, three boys and three girls.

NO BASKETBALL AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL, NOT ENOUGH PLAYERS

For the first time since Muenster High School began participating in interschool athletics, it will not be represented this year in the Cooke County basketball race. Virgil Lee Welch, superintendent, advised this week that only five boys are enrolled, and he does not consider that number sufficient to develop a team. Even though each of those proved to be a competent player, the team would still be without reserves.

Dorothy Fette has more encouraging prospects for volleyball. With an enrollment of fifteen girls, some of them veterans from last year's team, she has a chance to develop a better team than the school had last year.

The total enrollment at the public school on Wednesday was 44, an increase of 5 over the opening day enrollment. An outstanding reason for the limited number is the transfer of pupils to other schools. A bus that was started to Saint Jo last year now carries about 20 pupils out of the district. A dozen more are going to Gainesville or distant academies, and more than 40 attend the parochial high school.

HERR FAMILY SHOWS PROGRESS IN RECOVERY FROM CAR ACCIDENT

Miss Catherine Herr, who has been in the Gainesville hospital since she was hurt in an automobile accident on September 9, was able to be moved Friday to the home of her father, Fred Herr, where she is resting easy and doing as well as can be expected. Her broken arm is still in a cast and her broken leg, in a cast, is still held in position with weights.

Fred is still thoroughly taped and remains in bed while his fractured pelvis is knitting. The little girl, Anna Grace, was found to have a broken left arm in an examination several days after it was thought that no bones were fractured. The arm is said to be knitting nicely and the child is up and about, as active as usual.

GARDEN CLUB BEGINS ACTIVE CAREER WITH LIVELY MEETING

Enthusiastic interest marked the meeting of the garden club department of the Civic League and Garden Club when a business session was held in the home of Mrs. T. S. Myrick Tuesday evening. Eighteen women were present.

The meeting opened with Miss Olivia Stock giving a paper on "History of the Garden Club Movement." As cited by the speaker, the first garden club was formed in Athens, Georgia, 47 years ago and has made great progress. It has been stated by men of authority that garden clubs are equal in value to Chambers of Commerce.

Miss Ruth Scott, president of the Saint Jo garden club, was the guest speaker at the meeting and started a round table discussion on subjects suitable for the first year book of the club, and the remainder of the evening was spent in planning the book.

Miss Olivia Stock, program and year book committee chairman, appointed as her assistants Mrs. T. S. Myrick, Mrs. Joe Luke and Mrs. Jake Pagel. They will meet next Tuesday evening at the Stock home to complete their work.

It was announced that a school for flower show judges will be held at Wichita Falls on November 1 and 2, and Mrs. Myrick stated that she will attend it. Others expressed their intention of joining her.

The secretary was instructed to write to the Garden Club of the Air which is a feature over radio station KPRC, Houston, and enroll the local members. Literature will be sent to each member weekly, free of charge. This is a feature made possible through the cooperation of Gulf Service Stations.

At the close of business Mrs. Myrick served dainty refreshments.

The following were present: Mesdames M. J. Endres, Ben Luke, Joe Swirczynski, Andy Hofbauer, Nick Miller, Herbert Meurer, John Fisher, J. B. Wilde, Jake Pagel, John Kathman, Joe Luke, John Wieler, Tony Gremminger, and Myrick, Misses Mary Becker, Anna Hellman, Olivia Stock and Elfreda Luke and Miss Scott.

Other members who were unable to attend the meeting are Mesdames J. M. Weinzapfel, Rudy Hellman, Walter Richter and Rosa Driever and Misses Dorothy Fette and Mary Barker.

DROUGHT IS CHIEF CAUSE OF DECLINE IN CHEESE PRODUCTION

Much of the concern over this community's extended drought may be a result of dwindling milk checks. Receipts at the cheese factory have fallen off almost 40 per cent since August, Rudy Hellman, plant manager, disclosed this week.

The total cheese production for August was 121,000 pounds, the total for September will be about 75,000.

A part of the decrease can be explained by the natural tendency of herds to begin going dry at this time of the year. But the scarcity of pasture is responsible for most of it.

Mr. and Mrs. John Eberhart, Sr., returned home last Friday evening from a four weeks' vacation visit with relatives and friends at Illinois and Kentucky. In Louisville they were guests of Mr. Eberhart's brother whom he had not seen in 30 years.

TRUBENBACH WELL SUPPORTS THEORY OF EXTENSIVE OIL POOL

A popular belief that the new Voth field and the old Muenster townsite field both draw from the same oil pool was fairly well substantiated Monday when W. G. Kent, drilling for J. C. Roberts et al. on W. M. Trubenbach's, hit a good looking formation. The hole has been cased and cemented and will probably be drilled in Saturday.

The new discovery opens the way for even more extensive development south of town. A four mile strip from the city limits to the Linn community is now accepted as fairly reliable and awaits only a favorable trend in the oil business to develop into a small boom.

Toward the south end of the field drilling continues in a steady, leisurely way. Barney Voth got another good well and Mrs. Linn got her first producer as an offset to the TCU-Stark well.

Another offset to the TCU-Stark well, on C. J. Fette's, is going down for a 1700 foot formation. When first drilled it looked good at 1100 feet, but through a miscalculation in setting casing cement was forced into the oil sand rather than above it. Having lost their production, the operators are trying to save the hole by reaching production at another level.

George Gehrig's No. 1 is also going down to the lower formation. Like the Staley well at Voth's, it indicated a small output from the shallow sand, but operators were not satisfied and continued in the hope of finding more production.

GAINESVILLE'S NEW HOSPITAL VISITED BY 3,000 ON OPENING DAY

Approximately 3,000 people of Cooke County, including a number from this city, attended the open house reception at the new Gainesville Medical-Surgical hospital which opened formally Sunday.

The beautiful 23-room structure, completed recently at the corner of O'Neal and Ritchie streets in northwest Gainesville, was decorated on the inside with floral displays, which together with new and modern hospital equipment, attracted the many visitors.

The reception line, composed of Gainesville physicians and their wives, J. B. Ferguson, superintendent of the hospital, Mrs. Ferguson and Clifford McMahon, greeted the visitors from 1 to 6 p. m. and throughout the afternoon the institution was open for inspection. The nurses' cottage on the grounds was also viewed by the visitors.

The hospital has eleven private rooms and two wards equipped with the latest type hospital furniture, operating, obstetrical and x-ray rooms completely equipped and a kitchen and dinette also well furnished.

OBSERVING OUR JUBILEE

Possibilities for some sort of public celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of this community have become more encouraging during the past few weeks. Thanks to the usual initiative of Father Frowin, it is definitely decided that there will at least be an official observance by the parish.

In view of the fact that a vast majority in this community is included in the parish, the church sponsored program is fairly representative of the community. Still it is not complete. It cannot be complete unless local farming and commercial interests join in to represent a more complete growth. The church has no monopoly on the credit for Muenster's half century of progress. It has done a splendid job, but the same can be said for business and civic activity.

A year or two ago, when it was easy to talk about elaborate celebration, Muenster had a lively interest. But now the time has come to substitute action for talk. Unfortunately, everybody seems to be evading the subject.

Here and there a public spirited citizen still shows a willingness to do something about the jubilee, but finds that he is mostly in a fog. There is no plan, no supervisor, no source of funds to foot the bill, no anything.

Can this circumstance mean anything to our currently inactive Chamber of Commerce? There is not the slightest doubt in anyone's mind that it will be left to that group to sponsor whatever program Muenster will have. Members themselves have to admit that if they don't do something about this they can offer little excuse for the existence of their organization.

Considering the record of this community, a pageant of some sort becomes almost a duty. We cannot afford to hide our light under a bushel when it means so much to community prestige and civic pride. Other places with a far less glorious record than ours have observed jubilees in a fitting manner. Muenster has a choice of doing something or simply letting down its people.

We are proud to boast that this town is one of the comparative few that has advanced steadily the past three decades, that it has no names on public relief rolls, that it has a record of co-operation probably not equalled anywhere else in the state. Still we seem to lack the initiative and co-operation to provide a fitting observance of the one event which more than any other deserves our attention. Strange, isn't it?

YOUR TAX BURDEN

Official figures published recently by the United States Treasury Department reveal that the total tax paid by the American public last year to local, state and federal agencies was almost 15 billion dollars. From that one figure can be derived a wealth of information that usually escapes the notice of Mr. and Mrs. Normal Citizen.

For instance: dividing the total tax over the total population, it means that the average tax per person during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938 was more than $114. Of course this does not mean that each person paid that exact amount. Men in higher earning brackets paid more, in the lower brackets paid less. Obviously the vast majority of women and children have no incomes, and their shares must be paid by those who earn. So, the entire burden paid by the average family breadwinner mounts to $479 (the average family, according to official figures, has 4.2 persons.)

Texans are a little more fortunate, however. Their annual tax bill is $312 per family. They come under the national average partly because local and state taxes are lower but also because they have the misfortune of being in a lower earning bracket.

But take even that $312. Think what it means! After a year of hard work and frugal spending the average family has given $312 to the tax collectors. But can it show a net earning of $312 in its own fund? After the cost of living is deducted does a person get as much out of his earning as the government does?

The person who cares to figure his own tax can simply estimate 21.8 per cent of his income. That is the proportion taken by taxes out of last year's national income. Out of every $100, $21.80 goes to the cost of government, and 59 per cent of that $21.80 is paid in the form of hidden tax.

Most people are not aware of the tremendous burden they carry nor of the handicap they endure because of that burden. They do not realize that much of the unemployment and business or agricultural failure is a direct result of the heavy tax toll. Neither do they realize that the continuation of government subsidies will continue to increase taxes to the crushing point.

To bring this tax information to the attention of Texans is the task undertaken last week by Peter Molyneaux and Booth Mooney, both widely known as editors and economists on the "Texas Weekly." They are editors of the "Taxpayer's Digest," a new semi-monthly publication of the Taxpayers' Research Bureau of Dallas.

For the future of American liberty and economic security, let us hope that the influence of this new publication will spread far. Only when the average citizen reaches a realization that the cost of government is excessive and that he himself will have to show the way to economy can anyone hope for frugality in official positions.

More power to Mooney and Molyneaux. They are real soldiers fighting hard to defend a strategic post in the front line of American democracy—the post of economic security.

What Others Say

NEEDED: A BUMP ON THE NOSE

A successful businessman who is also a university trustee, widely read, cultured, thoughtful, and a good judge of human nature, was discussing a certain young man. "I have known him," he said, "since he was 5 years old. He has a fine mind, and in school has used it to advantage, at least to the extent of getting good grades. He was home last week from college; he is taking graduate work for a Ph. D. degree in English. He is 23 years old, and the thing that impressed me most about him was his complete unconcern about earning his living. He is satisfied that somehow, in due time, it will be arranged, by somebody—somebody else. Things have been arranged for him by others ever since he was born."

An increasing number of people, including some educators who have their feet squarely on the ground, believe that the cause of this young man is far too typical today. They say it represents the severest indictment of the present so-called higher education.

Employment officials assembling not long ago at a regional gathering of personnel associations brought out the fact that a principal reason why jobs often are not given to youngsters just out of college is because their attitude toward employment is such a curious one. They expect to be given fairly large salaries and congenial work, yet they have been on the receiving end of things. They have been fed, clothed, and cared for, and have not had to turn a hand to help their families or themselves. To many of them it is a shock to learn that as adults they are expected to stand up and fight and give value for what they get. Increasing numbers of employers, these personnel officials declared, prefer to wait a year or two before they hire these fresh products of the colleges—"at least until they have had their noses bumped a bit."

Probably some of the fault lies with the home, and urban living. Cash allowances are given to city children, many of whom never do a lick of work to earn the money. Probably part of the fault lies with school and college teachers; too many of them turn their faces to theories about life, rather than to the actualities of living. "There is some good evidence," said Dr. Henry C. Link, discussing what he called "the vice of education" in his provocative book "The Return to Religion," that the prolongation of formal education results in a deterioration of personality."

The "gimme" attitude is the negation of the service ideal. True education, whether in home or in school, insists that a primary quality of adulthood is ability to take care of oneself; which means to give, more than it means to get. The youngsters will be swarming in and out of the house for another month yet. Perhaps this is exactly the felicitous season subtly to suggest to the young bloods some of the things they will be expected to give—if you can do it in between their tennis matches and picnics.—Rotarian.

DO WE WANT DEMOCRACY?

"If we want democracy we cannot dispose of our responsibilities by marching to the polls once in a while and giving lip service to the Bill of Rights," writes Carl Dreher in Harper's. "If we want democracy we have to work at it. We have to accept the idea of politics as every citizen's primary and unremitting concern, as our business in a very concrete and personal sense."

We have left politics to the politicians—and what a mess has resulted! We have regarded government as something in which we have no direct interest, and the consequence has been a steady extension of bureaucratic power at the expense of us all. We've worked on the principle of "Let George do it"—and George has done us in, good and plenty!

Not until we all realize that government is our business, will we have the fair, efficient and economical government that is essential to democracy.—Exchange.

Confetti
By CON FETTE

It has been remarked lots of times that we ought to give this country back to the Indians. For the sake of wildlife that's not such a bad idea. The column bases its suggestion on an observation of recent dove hunting.

The way some of these fellows hang away at birds is little less than criminal. It's the same old story every season. Some have to be hoggish and get all the law allows or, if they feel they can get away with it, more than their quota. And they go not once or twice a season but a dozen times. No matter what anyone says, he just has no right to that many birds. An even worse offender is the fellow who shoots them for the fun of it. A fascinating sport, he calls it, a real test of marksmanship. But how can anyone see sportsmanship in the deliberate destruction of an unsuspecting bird?

Suppose the Indians did have a chance to take over for a few generations. We might expect first of all that no person would just kill for the fun of it. Birds and animals were something useful to them, a source of food, not mere targets. The Indian took what he needed and no more.

Another thing: Did anyone ever hear of a plague of grasshoppers in pioneer days — while birds were plentiful? Were people bothered with any other insect pests the way they are today? Birds must have been put here for a nobler purpose than to test marksmanship and tickle palates.

Some hint of that is seen in a game warden's report on how a flock of birds literally cleaned out a horde of hoppers. They were so thorough in their job that they even ate the egg pods. Of course, we've heard the contention that birds eat a lot of grain. Well, what of it? If they keep down insects and permit better crops the farmers can well afford to spare a little grain for them. After all they are more desirable boarders than grasshoppers.

Farmers themselves, who should be the birds' protectors, are their worst enemies. If they don't shoot the birds they invite friends to their places to do it. Then they complain about bugs in their crops. Plain folly — what else can you call it?

Second only to the shotgun as a bird exterminator is the stray cat. That is the opinion of some men who have made comprehensive study of wild life. They say that once a cat leaves the premises he merits a death sentence. He'll never be worth a hoot again as a mouse or rat catcher but he can be depended upon to kill plenty of birds.

Someone was wondering the other day what Thanksgiving will be observed here, the traditional or the Roosevelt day? The answer is "both." Father Frowin has already expressed his intention of having a jubilee program on Thursday, Nov. 23, but he hastened to explain it will not be like the usual parish picnic—a strictly commemorative event dedicated to the pioneers. When reminded that such a program would not net the usual contribution to the church fund he stated that it will have nothing to do with the regular money making party the following week.

Please Patronize Our Advertisers

On each of those two days the service in church will be practically the only reminder of Thanksgiving. A solemn mass on the 23 will be offered in thanksgiving for a half century of Divine favor. The mass on the 30 will give thanks for the past year.

The most unusual thing about the jubilee celebration is that it does not fall on the jubilee date. From all we have been able to hear December 8, the day of the first mass in this community, has been accepted as the anniversary date of the parish. But that day happens to fall in Advent, and the Church says "No celebrating during Advent." So the padre decides on some other convenient date.

Those guys and gals hinting for a house warming party in the new Enterprise building have reached some success in their endeavor. The Enterprise itself is in favor of such a party—as one of the details in this community's golden jubilee program. Yes, that's just how it stands. We're passing the buck back to the public. When it comes through with a big party we'll come through with a little party.

We'll even go so far as to state that the FMA and the bank will probably make the same offer in for their new buildings. We didn't consult them before making this statement but we're offering to print a correction in case we're wrong. Betcha we won't have to print the correction.

As this is being written (Monday) we believe we still hold a slight advantage over the FMA in the little contest of getting into the new building first. To begin with we had all the advantage but when we encountered delays and they kept going at their snappy pace we began to wonder whether they would not finish ahead of us. Well, this week we're on the home stretch, we hope. If calculations are correct we'll be moving Friday and Saturday. It is possible for the FMA to do likewise but not probable. However, you can expect to buy groceries there before another week passes.

There was a time when old fashioned heating methods blistered your face while your back thickened.

But now...

with natural gas service, winter can be just another pleasant, healthful season in the modern home.

A timely reminder

The tag end of summer warns that treacherous days of winter are on the way.

Do you remember the old days? Old-fashioned methods of heating... children wore heavy underwear and long stockings in order to keep warm... members of the family "huddled" in one or two rooms during cold weather... mother went shivering about the house with a shawl around her shoulders... someone was always "catching cold" — Remember?

Sudden changes of temperature during the treacherous months of cold weather are dangerous. If you follow the old-fashioned practice of "huddling" in one or two rooms while the rest of the house remains unheated — YOU ARE TAKING CHANCES WITH

YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH. Plan now to have adequate heat and healthful temperatures in every room in the home this winter. It's the modern way to fight the "common cold."

The cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year. Don't give a "common cold" an even break!
