

BUILDING BOOM CONTINUES AT LIVELY PACE

Improvements At Parish Hall Now Heading List

Several Homes and Other Buildings Under Way,
City Joins Movement
By Repairing Street

Building and rebuilding continues to share the spotlight of local interest with jubilee celebration plans.

As preparations for the golden jubilee increase momentum, the already abnormal building boom receives additional impetus from a growing sense of community pride, a desire to have everything in the best possible condition for a large group of visitors.

A general improvement program for the parish hall is the outstanding development of this week. The idea grew out of plans for decorating the place. Temporary decorations had been approved but the price was found to be rather high. "Why not spend a little more and improve it permanently?" one of the parish committee suggested. The others liked the idea.

As a result a crew of workmen is busy now covering the exposed framework of basement walls and ceiling with finishing material. Celotex is being put on the ceiling and panel board on the walls. Several other touch up jobs are also in progress and wire connections are being made to provide ample illumination for the grounds.

The city's part in the fix up trend is to repair Main Street in several dozen places where the pavement was breaking through.

Other building of the community continues at the same pace that has been in progress for several weeks.

After considerable delay Mrs. Katie Roberg succeeded in securing labor to start her new home in the east part of town.

Will Sicking also started since last week on a new 5 room house.

Three houses rapidly moving toward completion are the Fuhrbach place, Hubert Felderhoff's and the Dangelmayr house northeast of Muenster. Houses moved the past two weeks by Adolph Herr and J. B. Wilde will be ready for use within a few days.

Building other than homes is showing a similar upward trend. A power house is under construction on the Stanforth lease at Voth's and a tool house on the Wiesman lease. Barney Voth and C. J. Fette are building barns, Al Vogel a poultry house, and W. T. Richter a combined barn-garage-granary-poultry house. Mr. Richter's building is going up at his place in the city limits, where he will live within a few months. He recently quit farming and sold his farm and equipment.

DIES COMMITTEE PRAISED BY K-C'S IN DISTRICT SESSION

The current activity of Martin Dies and his committee on un-American Activities in exposing subversive tendencies of Communist and Nazi groups in United States received whole hearted approval at a special district meeting of K of C officers in Sherman last Sunday. A letter has since been sent to the congressman advising him of the group's resolution.

"Godless Communism has been condemned by the Knights of Columbus as a National body for many years," the letter states, "and much has been done by the Order to oppose this movement within the United States and bring to the attention of the public the methods and means used by Communism."

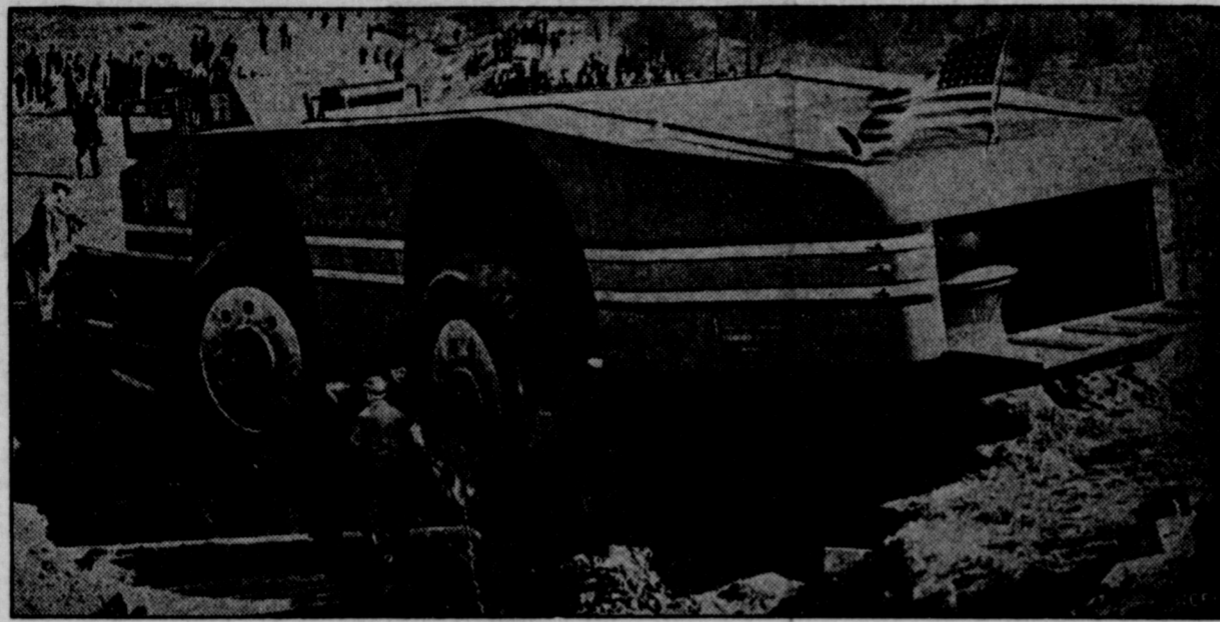

Approval is based on the Dies Committee's service to democracy and religion.

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETS SATURDAY TO PLAN DECORATIONS

That the jubilee spirit may bring new life to Muenster's inactive Chamber of Commerce seemed a possibility this week. At the suggestion of Leo Henschel, president, and J. M. Weinzapfel, secretary, a meeting will be held Saturday night at the city hall to plan a jubilee decorative scheme for the city.

Every business man who has any desire to see the city decorated, whether or not he was ever a member of the Chamber of Commerce, is requested to attend that meeting.

SNOW CRUISER GETS STUCK IN CREEK

LIMA OHIO.—The famous $150,000 snow cruiser built for Byrd's Antarctic Expedition was imbedded in a creek bed after striking a bridge barrier which caused it to skid. Because of this accident, its Chicago to Boston run will probably be delayed about a week. It will be raised and the necessary repairs will have to be made before it can continue on its way to Boston where it will be shipped to the Antarctic. The accident occurred ten miles of this city. Photo shows the 35 ton snow cruiser as efforts were being made to place planks beneath its huge wheels.

MISS VOTH WINS BY WIDE MARGIN IN QUEEN CONTEST

By an overwhelming majority Miss Gertrude Voth won the race for the title of Miss Muenster, queen of the golden jubilee. A final count of campaign "run-off" votes Tuesday afternoon found her with almost fifteen thousand ahead of her rival, Miss Louise Felderhoff. With slightly more than 19,000 she had almost half the combined total of the primary and run-off campaigns.

Directly after the contest closed Miss Voth named Miss Felderhoff as her choice for maid of honor at the ceremonies.

All other original entries in the contest will also participate in festivities honoring Miss Muenster, it was revealed this week by the Benedictine Sisters, who have charge of that part of jubilee proceedings.

Rehearsals are in progress now for the ceremony of crowning at the pageant Wednesday night, Nov. 22, and for the formal procession and attendance at the jubilee pontifical mass.

In the latter event a bugler and a flag bearer, carrying the Stars and Stripes, will take the lead. Twenty-two flower girls, two for each maid, and the maids, nine in white and two in blue will precede the queen. She will be attired in a floor length, gold dress.

Twenty-five boys and twenty-five girls with gold candles, following the royal party, will lead the clerical party consisting of acolytes and priests in their vestments. Visiting clergymen not participating in the mass will complete the procession.

Immediately before the procession begins school children will march from school to the hall and greet the queen with a special song.

CITY GETS ONE NEW BUSINESS IN SERIES OF MOVES THIS WEEK

Two changes of business location and the installation of one new business became effective this week.

After spending two weeks installing counters and other furnishings the Cooke County Electric Co-operative Association moved Monday to the west wing of the Enterprise building.

At the same time A. C. Stelzer moved his cafe equipment from the south part of his building to the portion previously used by the electric co-op.

A helpy-selfy laundry in the room vacated by the Stelzer cafe is still being set up. S. W. Cain, proprietor, stated Tuesday that he would be delayed several days installing a boiler making pipe connections, electrical connections, etc. He expects to begin business early next week.

HALLOWE'EN SPOKS GOING SISSY, LACK OLD TIME AMBITION

Claims that Hallowe'en ain't what it used to be were unchallenged Wednesday morning. According to evidence within the city limits, Hallowe'en pranksters were even less active than during the quiet years of the recent past.

Children in masks ringing doorbells, marking windows with soap, scattering tin cans, and other such tame amusements occupied this year's spook night. Idle were the older gangs of yesteryear who turned over outhouses, put wreck burdens on buildings and piled loads of junk in front of homes or business houses.

SHERMAN IS HOST COUNCIL FOR K-C INITIATION NOV. 12

Sherman will be the host city for the Sixth District major degree initiation on November 12. That decision along with other plans for the event was approved Sunday afternoon in a special meeting of officers of the district at Sherman.

The group of candidates, consisting of about 35 persons, will be named the Pope Plus class in honor of the Supreme Pontiff's intention for peace of the world.

According to District Deputy Herbert Meurer, no definite program has been announced by the host council, but it is probable that the affair will begin at 9 a. m. with the assembly of members and candidates at the Sherman K of C hall, from whence they will march to the church and attend at mass and a special sermon.

Sherman is preparing for a large attendance on that day. It has sent general invitations to all councils of North Texas and special invitations to officers of the State and Supreme councils.

REFINERY EMPLOYEE HAS NARROW ESCAPE AS TANK CRASHES

B. E. Yelton, an employe at the Muenster Refining Company escaped instant death by inches and emerged with only a cracked rib when he was caught under a falling storage tank Tuesday morning.

With several other workmen he had just completed setting up the 250 barrel tank and was testing the bottom of it for leaks. The tank, resting on temporary sills, a convenient distance from the ground, had about a foot of water in it and Yelton was crawling about underneath looking for leaks. Suddenly one of the sills gave way and that side of the tank crashed to the ground.

The falling sill missed Yelton about six inches. Had it struck him it would have crushed him. As the one end came to rest on the ground the bottom, at the point where Yelton lay, came down just far enough to pin him against the ground and he managed to work himself loose in the soft dirt. His arm, crushed down as he lay on his side, caused the cracked rib.

Annual Turkey Packing Program Begins Thursday Wilson Co. In Charge

ELECTRIC SHOW WILL FEATURE VARIED USE OF CURRENT ON FARM

How electricity can profitably be put to work on the farm to cut production costs and chore drudgery and to bring ease and economy to household tasks, will make up the central demonstrations of a big REA farm electric equipment show for rural electric projects of North Texas. It is sponsored through the cooperation of electric co-operatives in Cooke, Denton, Wise, Grayson, Collins and Parker counties, the Rural Extension Service and the State Electrification Administration.

The big tent will be set up on the J. M. Cahastain farm three and a half miles northwest of Denton on December 11 and 12. The course will begin at 7:30 p. m. on the twelfth and continue through the following day.

A wide variety of electrically powered farm machinery such as pumps, mills, motors, dairy equipment, and several convenient home appliances will be shown in use. Especially featured will be small shellers and grinders appropriate for use on the normal farm.

Electricity in relation to poultry profits will also receive much attention. Those appliances will show how labor and cost can both be decreased while larger, healthier birds and more eggs are produced through greater cleanliness and automatic control of light and proper temperatures.

Mr. J. R. Cobb of REA and a representative of the extension service will manage the power and poultry demonstrations.

During the afternoon of the second day Miss Kathryn Harris, REA home economist, will conduct a kitchen demonstration, featuring especially the convenience of electric ranges. She proposes to show also that electric cooking, when done properly is far from as expensive as most people think.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, beans and coffee will be available all day and evening at an all-electric lunch stand in the tent.

FIRE CLAIMS HOME AND ALL CONTENTS AT JOHN CORCORAN'S

Relatives and friends here were distressed to learn that the John "Mutt" Corcoran family lost its home and all personal belongings in a fire last Saturday. Mrs. Corcoran is well known here as the former Miss Catherine Herr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Herr. Their home was located about a half mile west of the old Empire Refinery north of Gainesville.

An explosion while a gasoline iron was being lit was named as the cause of the fire. In the excitement a small container with a supply of gasoline was dropped. The spilled gasoline then ignited and the fire promptly got out of control. Only a few inconsequential items were saved and nothing was insured. Corcoran's insurance had expired a short time before and he had neglected to renew it promptly.

The only injury sustained was that to the oldest daughter. She burned her hands badly when the gasoline exploded.

Until the Corcorans can make arrangements for another home they will live in the Joe Sicking home.

GAINESVILLE OFFERS TO LEND HELPING HAND FOR JUBILEE

Any help that Muenster may need in presenting an impressive jubilee program can be had for asking at Gainesville. Wednesday, J. M. Weinzapfel, jubilee secretary, received a letter from Claude Jones, president of the First State Bank of Gainesville, offering his help to arrange for a band, pep squad, caravan of visitors, or to give any other assistance he could.

A similar co-operative spirit had been shown previously by Clifford McMahon, secretary of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce. Either his personal service or the assistance of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce is at Muenster's disposal, he said.

"As yet we do not know whether we will wish to take advantage of offers," Weinzapfel stated. "Nevertheless we are deeply grateful for the generous, neighborly spirit in which they are offered."

Mike and Carl Schilling spent Sunday at Pilot Point with their sister, Mrs. Joe Pelzel, and family.

Hope To Beat Record Of 1938, Five Carloads

Market Officially Opens
Friday, FMA Members
Deliver Early Subject
To Later Prices

Another Thanksgiving turkey marketing and packing program got under way at the Farmers Marketing Association Thursday.

As during the recent past years, the entire program is supervised by Wilson and Company of Oklahoma City, the local firm's part being confined to leasing space and refrigerating facilities. Roy Callahan and "Spot" Minter again represent Wilson and Company and have complete charge of buying, hiring help, etc.

Though the turkey market does not open until Friday, when the Company's official price is sent by wire from Eastern headquarters, picking and packing began Thursday. Previous plans to open on Wednesday were abandoned because of a conflict with a church holiday.

Birds arriving Thursday were almost all supplied by the FMA membership, in accordance with a special provision that FMA members be permitted to deliver early subject to a later market. By that method the company expects to dispose of a large number of turkeys promptly, thus eliminating possible delay when the rush comes later.

Rudy Hellman, FMA manager and assistant to Callahan and Minter in the turkey program, expected a thousand or more birds to arrive Thursday. He also stated that the starting crew of pickers would be restricted to about 50 persons.

In spite of generally lighter turkeys this year the local packers are setting out to break their last year's record, when they shipped more than 10,000 birds, a total weight of 115,000 pounds, in five carloads. The volume in the Muenster area is expected to be about normal, but an increase of business is anticipated from distant communities as a result of recent efforts to extend the trade territory.

MODEL T AND TRUCK COLLIDE HEAD-ON, NO SERIOUS INJURY

Only superficial scratches and bruises resulted from the collision of a Model T Ford and a large trailer type truck on Highway 82 four miles east of Muenster last Thursday night.

According to reports here the next morning, the open Model T, with two negroes in it, was coming west without lights and the truck was headed east. Apparently blinded by the light the negro driver permitted his machine to wander too far to the left. The left front wheel of the two machines met.

The impact threw both negroes clear of the wreckage and, after several flips in the air they tumbled into the ditch. The truck and trailer considerably battered from rolling over, finally came to rest on its side in a field beside the road. The broken Model T lay nearby.

The negroes abandoned their car and caught a ride to Gainesville. The truck drivers stayed with their wreck until help arrived the next morning.

WEATHER COOLER BUT MISSES FREEZING BY SINGLE POINT

Almost, but not quite! According to local thermometer readers, Muenster missed its first freeze by a single point Tuesday morning. Reports from other parts of the country also show a fall of the mercury to 33, and a few are said to have found thin sheets of ice in the vicinity of Gainesville.

Except for the general fall in temperature the weather has been disappointing. An encouraging prospect for rain the early part of last week spent itself last Thursday in a brief shower of less than a half inch of rain. It was ineffective in breaking the extended drought.

8,602 BALES

1939 Cotton in Cooke county continued to run slightly ahead of the 1938 crop, a report from the census bureau of the Department of Commerce reveals. On October 18, 8,602 bales of 1939 cotton were ginned. On the corresponding date last year the number was 8,582.

RIGHT OR WRONG?

What is America going to do about the European war? That problem becomes more pressing every day, especially in the wake of Senate approval of the administration's embargo repeal measure. As this is being written the nation is holding its breath, wondering whether the House also will approve the shipment of arms to belligerents.

Ask the average man for his opinion on the matter and he will probably admit that he doesn't know what attitude he wants the nation to take. He can only say that he wants peace. But after being so completely misled by the conflicting statements of politicians he cannot guess which is the course of neutrality and peace.

The administration group contends that the safest procedure is to repeal the arms embargo. Others say keep it. And millions are wondering whether some congressmen aren't actually trying to involve this country.

In plain words, aren't some of our official representatives betraying their trust? It seems incredible that, after so long a time of debating this problem, congressmen are unagreed on the means of preserving peace. They must be divided rather in their desire for peace.

Looking at the subject squarely, a person would think the safest course is to sever trade with belligerents, to cut off completely any possibility of a clash. The Senate, however, has endorsed the opposite method. America hopes that course is correct, though it has its doubts.

LIFE—AND HOPE

Just now the love of peace is very feeble. But, while there is life there is hope. Even though it is exposed to a dangerous maldy it has a chance of recovering if diligently attended by a competent staff.

Let people say what they will about the inevitability of war. What if an indescreeet American in the danger zone should lose his life! What if a reckless shipper should have his vessel and cargo sent to the bottom! What if a gambling merchant should lose his socks on bum foreign credit! What of it! Is it fair for this nation to penalize innocent citizens for the sake of a few who are motivated only by their chance for private gain?

Supposing even that such an attitude on the part of the government were fair. One can hardly say that it is prudent. When a person deliberately insults another he invites a punch on the nose. Common sense dictates that he should let it go at that, he got what he asked for. But he's more likely to begin fighting and, win or lose, get himself thoroughly bruised and mused. By the time he recovers from injuries and repairs his clothing the fracas has cost him plenty. He may enjoy the delusion that he upheld his pride in not backing down. He should remember also that the original insult was inexcusable.

Applied to nations the comparison holds true all the way. If America decides to play favorites it insults some nation, and it should expect a retaliation such as a sunken ship or a blown up factory. Anger may flare to the extent of war, and the net result is dead or crippled soldiers, broken hearts, tremendous financial losses.

Even though certain unpleasant incidents should strain international relations our leaders can, by looking to prudence, public welfare and public opinion, prevent our entry into the war.

While congress carries the brunt of the burden in maintaining peace, it must have the solid backing of all agencies that mould public sentiment. If American newspapers and magazines and radio commentators will refrain from bias or propoganda, America's dove of peace can go on living.

TAXPAYERS, NOTICE

Seemingly as a reminder that war it not the only important problem of this nation, Peter Molyneaux and Booth Mooney issued this week their Volume 1, Number 1 of "The Taxpayers Digest." Similar to a preliminary issue published several weeks ago, it presents convincing evidence that our nation's greatest danger today lies in its system of burdensome taxation.

We totter on the brink of economic chaos. We are no more secure than private industry, which is on the point of breaking under its load. Many a private enterprise has already gone on the rocks and the government has simply forced other enterprises, already severely burdened to take on their additional load.

Alarmed by that condition, the editors of the Taxpayers Digest have analyzed the problem and determined that the only remedy is to make the public tax conscious. They seek to convince the farmer, small business man, wage earner, everyone, that government gets more money out of their net earnings each year than they do themselves; that continued reckless public spending will eventually end in general bankruptcy. When the public realizes this it will make fewer demands for political handouts. It will demand greater frugality in its public servants.

It is shocking to think what can happen if the present trend continues. Thousands of individuals who spent their lives building their present business will lose everything. Savings funds and insurance policies will be lost. Personal and bank loans will also be lost. In fact, if the national debt reaches its breaking point the government has only one of two courses, default or confiscate. The result would be the kind of chaos that Germany knew during the early days of Hitler. People in a panic are not capable of self government. A dictator would rise. American democracy and liberty would end.

For the future of America, the gospel of the Taxpayers Digest should be carried to every citizen of the nation. Every metropolitan daily, every country weekly should help extend the message. Every person who really wants to know about tax burdens and their possible consequence should subscribe to the paper.

What Others Say

YOUR NEWSPAPER—YOUR COMMUNITY'S MIRROR

Booth Mooney, associate editor of the Texas Weekly, and formerly of the News-Record, comments on the value of a weekly newspaper to its community:

"Publishing a weekly newspaper never has been a sure-and-certain, quick-and-easy way to acquire wealth. As a matter of fact, a good many of the country editors of Texas could make more money in some other business. But they like the newspaper business. They find a deep satisfaction in their work. That one fact goes far toward explaining why Texas has so many good weekly newspapers.

"Good newspapers and good towns go together. That is proved again and again here in Texas. It is no mere coincidence that the good towns have good newspapers, that the best newspapers are published in the best towns. A live newspaper does more to make a live town than is generally realized. And The Texas Weekly would like to take this opportunity to assure the business men among its readers that they've been misled if they have come to believe that the small town newspapers are on the downgrade. Any publication that is as closely read as the average weekly newspaper deserves the respect of a business man with something to sell." — Whitesboro News-Record.

"The government has tried every scheme except the right one to revive business. Business does not want to get further in debt; it looks forward to the day when there will be renewed confidence in the future and particularly the government's fiscal policy, and freedom from persecution. Any other attempts to appease business are superficial aids which only prolong the day of reckoning."—Esterville, Iowa, News.

when he asked the supreme court for an injunction to stop the work. He was merely giving way to justifiable wrath.

Thinking it over calmly a person has to agree that the Denison dam is rather wrong. It adds nothing to public safety because the Red River doesn't overflow anyway, that is, not in these parts. So it is nothing but a power project, a government subsidized, tax exempt enterprise that will compete with existing, tax paying companies. It is another step forward in the American trend toward socialism and bankruptcy.

Not only that. The artificial lake will break up communities and friendships of long standing. People will be compensated for their loss of property, they say. Well, how will they be compensated for the loss of their personal contacts that were so much a part of their lives? Hard boiled guys will regard the idea as ridiculous. But ordinary people know there are values not measured in money.

And what is gained by building the Denison dam? Employment for a year or two, a boom in near-by Texas towns. A sorry exchange for broken friendships, increased public debt, and sure fire wreckage of private business.

Thanks to the Dallas News for publishing a dandy story on Muenster's coming golden jubilee celebration. Given the benefit of that paper's extensive circulation, the article did more for boosting the old home town than all the bragging we little fellows can do in a year.

And thanks to Olivia Stock for preparing the item. She worked on it, you can take our word for that. Gathering all that data and writing it is a job.

More than a little comment resulted the past week-end from an open letter in one of the county papers on the Muenster turkey packing program. Some of the comment, in fact, sizzled a little. Because the publication has a rather limited circulation in our rural area and because the question under fire concerns quite a number of people here, we will reproduce the greater part of it:

Now as we hear that there is a firm in the west part of Cooke county that is going to open up the first of next week and start to buy turkeys, my dear readers, I would like to give you some information about this buying of turkeys as early as they do. You may realize that never in history before the turkey market opened until Nov. 8th and that is still the time to wait for the markets. These turkey buyers go around, telling their neighbors and customers the value of the turkey market has opened by some turkey business plant. This is not true and they are buying your turkeys before the market opens on a low-price scale. They don't know any more about the prices than we do. These prices should be quoted by Chicago and New York turkey markets and not by some small packing plant such as we have far and near around us. The Chicago and New York markets do not and have never given markets for the turkey season before November 10th and December 10th each year. These little packing plants that buy for the big markets buy your turkeys two weeks before time and buy these birds at rock bottom prices so they have all to gain and nothing to lose. You are the whole loser. I have had three years experience. I have learned their tricks in many ways. So Mr. Farmer and Turkey-raiser, don't let some one come along with a lot of lies and buy your crop of turkeys before the regular turkey market opens. I lost $55 hard earned money last year on such business. If I had waited 8 more days I could have made $50 and my turkeys would have weighed more. Most turkeys this year are light and will be in very good condition by Christmas market only. So dear turkey raisers don't let these early markets be your downfall. They are only playing with your hard-earned money. If you have a radio you can find out when the market opens from it. The farmers should take his own boys, who really don't know how to grade turkeys, buy and swindle them out of half of their hard-earned wages, as some of them are doing.

Boy, talk about your lone voice in the wilderness, that is it. Except for the facts that it plainly attacks the honesty of local turkey dealers and that it might find a few unthinking converts, we would prefer to ignore it.

In the first place it would be well to understand that the "little packing plant" referred to is Wilson and Company, which has nation wide distribution and happens to be one of the large packers of the nation. The only activity of the local concern is to provide working facilities and refrigeration for a small sum per bird.

This is the company, the writer says, that has no better information on the turkey market than she does. Well, what do you think?

Besides the accuser happens to be a little out of line when she figures the value of her birds on quotations from New York and Chicago. Any livestock man knows that prices are better in the north—transportation has to be figured in. Most turkey men know that Texas birds are inferior to those of the north, so there is naturally a penalty in price. Or doesn't the writer know that? She can be convinced by writing to the A. & M. Extension Service. Furthermore, with Thanksgiving coming a week early, isn't it likely that eastern markets will open a little earlier?

As for the turkey buyer's early activity, well, that's sound business. He has to start when other dealers start or be left with the short end of business. But that doesn't compel turkey raisers to sell early. If they gamble on the future market they have the privilege. Supply and demand will determine then whether they acted wisely.

Of course, if birds are not matured they do not bring top price. Anybody knows that. That condition and a person's gambling instinct are the only factors to determine when birds ought to be sold. Sometimes the Thanksgiving market is better, sometimes the Christmas market is.

What irritates most of all about the letter is the implication that people get gypped at the Muenster plant. Apparently the lady would favor selling to some other dealer, little thinking that dealers for miles around are connected with the Muenster plant, simply because that arrangement enables them to offer better prices and get more business.

These remarks are offered especially for home people who might have been impressed by the lady's tirade. As a final remark we say, figure it out for yourself. Don't take her opinion or ours on blind faith. But if the local packing business was not built on better price and fair dealing, how did it get as far as it is today?

They say Governor Phillips of Oklahoma was just having his little joke when he proposed a swap of three West Texas counties for that portion of the Bow and Arrow country to be inundated by the Denison dam project. If Texas is so pepped up about the dam it ought to be tickled pink with such an offer, he reasons.

Not to be outdone by his proposal, one of the governor's worthy citizens suggests that Texas and Oklahoma swap governors too. Well, what are we waiting for? There's a deal that, if it could be put over, would suit many a Texan just right. In fact we like the idea much better than Phillips' land and water exchange.

Not all the governor has to say about the dam project is offered in a humorous vein. He wasn't kidding

WORLD'S RECORD

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa.—These four men, husking in the Grundy county Iowa corn husking contest, all four cracked the world's corn husking record. Left, Eugene Crouse, Conrad, Iowa, farmhand won the contest by picking 3,288 pounds or 46.97 bushels in 80 minutes, bettering by more than 5 bushels the world's record established by Elmer Carlson, Audubon, Iowa, who husked 41 bushels in 80 minutes at the national corn husking contest near Newton, Indiana in 1935. The others in the picture and their records are: Francis Connel, Conrad, Iowa 43.6 bushels; Ray Pruisner, Parkersburg, Iowa, 41.8 bushels; Harm Sanders, Wellsburg, Iowa, 41.7 bushels. Crouse will go to the district contest and Grundy county officials predict that if he can keep up his pace he will be a keen competitor for the national title this year.

Your Health

BURNING THE CANDLE AT BOTH ENDS

A generation ago living conditions were less forced than they are today. Clock-consciousness was defined by hours rather than by minutes. And while there was less actual leisure than now, the tempo of daily existence was moderate. Today, transportation, manufacturing, business, recreation and life in general, to a great extent, seem to be under time's driving influence. While this new speed has definitely contributed to the amazing progress that has made this country great, and is reflected in the high living conditions now enjoyed in the average home, it has not been without its drawbacks. One of the most important of these is its possible effect upon health.

Of course no one would revert to former days, but it cannot be denied that misdirected, high-tension living overtaxes the nervous system and may undermine the general health of the individual. Recently, an outstanding neurologist, after making allowances for disease conditions due to syphilis, drug addiction, alcoholism, congenital defects, and old age, claimed that many cases of mental collapse and less marked conditions of the nervous system could be traced to a too-rapid pace both in work and play, and to an accompanying habitual disregard of basic health requirements. He emphasized, however, that the fault does not lie so much in the high-pressure system of life as in over-application.

A sustained, fast living pace can be somewhat neutralized by the wise expenditure of leisure time. Indeed, it can be said that it is not one's occupation, however exacting it may be, which usually does the damage to nerves and health, but the combination of high-speed work and disregard of nature's fundamental laws.

Those who are burning the candle at both ends could well stop to consider that the excessive use of stimulants, consistent loss of sleep, and the nerve-shattering practices in general are the real allies of nervous breakdowns, neurotic conditions, and more serious mental manifestations.

High-speed-day-and-night life is not advisable for present satisfaction, health or ultimate peace of mind. The wise person will, therefore, avoid it and let moderation rule.

SOUNDS CRAZY AND IS CRAZY, BUT HAS LOTS OF SUPPORT

California is going to vote again next month on the "ham-and-eggs," thirty-dollar-every-Thursday pension scheme which was defeated at the 1938 general election. The proposition comes before the voters in the form of a constitutional amendment substantially the same as the one defeated a year ago, when 1,143,670 men and women recorded approval of the scheme. Seasoned politicians are quoted in dispatches from California as saying the proposed amendment may be adopted this time.

And if it is? The idea is that every citizen over fifty years of age, who agrees to retire from productive work, will receive thirty one-dollar warrants every week. A two cent "redemption stamp," purchased from the state with real money, must be affixed to each warrant once a week by whoever happens to be holding it. Thus in fifty-two weeks, argue those pushing the plan, the warrant will be paid for in full, and there will be a four-cent surplus for overhead. And the amendment dangerously sets up a "credit clearings bank" in which all public monies would have to be deposited, and calls for a $20,000,000 bond issue to start the bank and for an appropriation of $700,000 from the state's funds. It imposes a 3 per cent gross income tax on business carried on with money, a provision not applying to business carried on with the warrants.

Sounds crazy, doesn't it? Well, it is crazy. Nevertheless, the proposition received more than a million votes in 1938. It may be adopted this year. But that's no sign it will work any better than other unsound, if not quite so wild, pension schemes have worked in other states.—Booth Mooney in Texas Weekly.

HERMAN FLEITMAN, MAGDALENE BLOCK MARRY AT LINDSAY

The marriage of Miss Magdalene Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Block of Lindsay, and Herman Fleitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fleitman of Muenster, was solemnized at Saint Peter's church at Lindsay Monday morning at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Conrad Herda, pastor, officiated.

The bride wore a floor-length frock of white satin made princess style. Her finger-tip veil fell from a rhinestone band and she carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and fern, tied with tulle.

Miss Elizabeth Fleitman, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. She was attired in a frock of pale blue taffeta and wore a matching head-dress. Her flowers were arranged in a shoulder corsage.

Joseph Pels, cousin of the bridegroom, of Estella, Okla., was best man.

Miss Regina Fuhrmann, organist, assisted by members of the church choir, rendered the nuptial music.

A wedding breakfast and reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the church services. A blue and white theme was stressed in decorations and the bride's table was centered with an attractive wedding cake. In the evening a dance honored the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleitman are making their home north of Muenster on a farm. She attended the Lindsay school and is a former pupil of Mary Immaculate Academy at Wichita Falls. He received his education at Sacred Heart school.

bach of Muenster and Miss Anne Blair of Gainesville, who portrayed Spanish dancers. Jimmy Lehmetz, as a typical cowboy, and Miss Marie Lutkenhaus, as a very old little lady, received the awards for the best individuals. The decision was made by Judges from this city and from Lindsay.

Gordon Shay and his orchestra from Wichita Falls provided the dance music.
