NUMBER 40

Anyone not familiar with the complexities of politics must have a hard time trying to understand our government last week. President Reagan got credit for his biggest victory since election. Ironically, that was for supporting a policy which he previously opposed. A considerable part of Reagan's appeal as a candidate was his claim that big tax was strangling the economy and had to be reduced so that business and individuals could keep a larger portion of income for their own use.

Congress accepted the idea and voted for a tax cut, but the country's sick economy made little or no progress toward improvement. Decreased income along with a long list of fixed obligations led to budget problems. With its limited revenue, government had to increase income by taxing or borrowing. But borrowing threatened to wipe out recent interest reduction by creating government competition with the private sector for the limited money supply.

A suggested solution to the money shortage was to increase revenue by tax rather than by borrowing. A number of congressional leaders proposed it and the administration supported it in spite of its previous opposition to more tax. Apparently the thinking was that a higher tax was acceptable as long as interest and inflation raises could be avoided.

Whatever the theories, the proposal led to the strangest alignments of congressional support ever seen in Washington. Many conservatives who backed the president during his campaign and since refused to go along with him. Likewise Democrats who bolted their party before to help Reagan (the Bollweevils) also split into opposing factions. And the greatest surprise of all was the switch to the president's side by several dedicated liberals (like Tip O'Neil and Jim Wright). There was no pattern whatever to the alignment. It just seemed that congressmen were on their own.

Of course, the choice of O'Neil and Wright seems understandable. Historically they like lots of money available for their liberal spending. Also Stenholm and Collins were probably as consistent in opposing the tax hike. They always try to hold the tax down.

Whatever the reasons behind the tax increase, our big interest now is how it will affect the country. Will government cut out the deficits and start reducing the national debt? Will business recover from the slump? Will employment increase? Will interest rates decline? Will inflation be stopped or even reversed?

Encouraging signs came from Wall Street immediately after the tax hike. It was as if America is recovering its old time confidence and heading for better days. At this time it may still be too early to bet that way, but maybe not too early to start feeling optimistic. At any rate we have a program now. Let's hope official Washington will make it work as its supporters planned, increasing their revenue sufficiently to meet budget needs, thereby reducing inflation and interest rates, thereby giving the American economy an opportunity to do its thing.

Of course a major precaution must be taken to make

Convenience for elderly announced by TP&L

Texas Power & Light Company has announced a new program that will provide a convenient payment plan for those persons 65 years of age and older who receive Social Security or other pension benefits.

Mike C. Murphy, TP&L manager in Gainesville, said the program calls for special handling of the billing for qualifying residential customers. The program allows for payment of a bill on a designated date regardless of when the statement is received.

Murphy noted that those on Social Security normally receive their checks on or about the 3rd of each month. Many find it most convenient to pay household bills at the time they receive that check. A good number of customers have experienced interruption of their routine because a customer is billed shortly after his or her meter is read and meters are being read throughout the month.

The new program provides for a qualifying customer to be able to pay the bill at the most convenient time.

Murphy said that customers interested in the program should go to the TP&L office to establish their qualifications.

Ray Hess dies in farm accident

Raymond Hess, 58, a lifelong resident of Muenster, died Thursday, August 19, about 7:30 in a tractor accident on his farm a mile south of Muenster.

According to a report by Justice of the Peace Royce Martin, the victim was mowing weeds with a Brush Hog mower behind the tractor. The tractor apparently hit an object throwing him off the vehicle and in front of the mower, causing his instant death.

Funeral service for Ray Hess was held Sunday at 2 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church with Father Denis Soerries officiating at the Mass of Christian Burial and six priests concelebrating. They were Fathers Victor Gillespie, Placidus Eckart, Cletus Post, Bruno Fuhrmann, Nicholas Fuhrmann and David Flusche. Also present in the sanctuary were Brothers Louis and Henry Fuhrmann.

Father Victor in his funeral homily referred to the family's sadness at the loss but also the consolation in God's promise of everlasting life and happiness to those who love Him. He added that the thought of heaven implies a reunion of loved ones in eternity, a joy to which Ray and his family can look forward with pleasure.

Another speaker was Ray's son, Tom Hess of North Carolina, who said people are called from this life to serve God's purpose, that it was the Divine Will to bring Ray to his eternal reward, that "death is victory in Christ." Another thought is that the suffering of loved ones draws them nearer to God, assisting them in reaching their eternal destiny.

Others participating in the service were the entire congregation singing "I Am the Resurrection and the Life" at the entrance and "Amazing Grace" at the recessional; also Emily Klement, Christi Klement and Daniel Rippey as vocalists and Ruth Felderhoff as organist. Persons with a part in the liturgy were Danny Nortman and Brother Louis Fuhrmann in scriptural readings, Barbie Hess in petitions, and Godchildren Deana Nortman, JoAnn Fuhrmann, and Carol Ann and Laurie Coffey in offertory presentations.

Burial was in Sacred Heart Cemetery directed by Nick Miller Funeral Home. The pallbearers were John Louis Hess, Henry Hess Jr., Timmy Ray Hess, James Hess, Terry Hess, Virgil Evans, Don Hess and Brent Hess, all nephews.

Earlier services were a rosary at 4 p.m. and a wake service at 8 Saturday in the funeral home chapel.

Ray Hess was born in Muenster on November 9, 1923, a son of community pioneers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hess. He was married on April 27, 1949 to Lucille Fuhrmann of Lindsay and the couple has lived here since then. He was owner-operator of the Ray Hess Well Service.

Survivors are his wife, Lucille; three sons, Tom of Havelock, N.C., and Ronnie and Kenny both of Muenster; two daughters, Barbie and Darlene Hess, both of Dallas; one grandchild; five brothers, Albert, Ed, Gary and Arthur of Muenster and John of Lindsay; and one sister, Clara Evans of Pilot Point.

Forestburg is set for Watermelon Festival

Final preparations are at full speed this week for the second annual watermelon festival at Forestburg with special emphasis on its extra special attraction, which is an opportunity for folks to see themselves and their celebration on TV.

PM Magazine of Channel 8 will be there recording the event on film. Time of the appearance has not been mentioned, perhaps an official scheme to keep as many people as possible on hand for as long as possible.

Beginning with a Friday night pageant to determine three age groups of queens to reign at the formalities, the celebration will continue most of the day Saturday and into the night.

The pageant, starting at 8 p.m. Friday, will choose three Misses Watermelon in age groups of 4-7, 8 to 12 and 13-18, and each of the royal misses will have a place of honor in the parade the following day. Besides, each will receive a trophy as a permanent keepsake.

Opening event of the big day is a parade through downtown Forestburg featuring cherished scenes and memories of the community's past. Next the sheriff will make an effort to rid the town of undesirables, an undertaking that may develop into trouble as the unexpected is expected.

No matter how bad the bad men will be, the sheriff says he will have them subordinated by 11:30. That's chow time, and nothing will be permitted to interfere with a bountiful homecoming dinner at the community center from 11:30 to 1. Featured foods are ham and chicken.

In the afternoon, activity will bust out all over. There will be booths for crafts and eating, games and contests for kids and adults, a fiddlers contest, and the event from which the day got its name. That's the watermelon judging contest, starting at 2 p.m., to choose the No. 1 melon of the show on the basis of flavor and size.

Another big attraction is a 5 mile fun run scheduled to start at 7 p.m. It will have men's and ladies' divisions and trophies will be awarded for the first three places of each. Entry fees are $6 at the race and $5 for the early birds. Numbers to call for early entry are 964-2435 and 964-2483.

The busy day ends with a country and western dance starting at 9 o'clock, with music by Doug Martin's band.

Sacred Heart School starts with enrollment of 235

The 1982-83 school year is in session at Sacred Heart as of Wednesday morning and Muenster Public School is scheduled to start next Monday following a delay for finishing work on the new combined science and junior high building.

Superintendent Charles Coffey said work on the new building has been going at high speed and will be followed at 5 p.m. Friday by an inspection tour by the builder and the school board, hopefully to be followed by formal accepance of the building. Minor adjustments, if any, can be made after the building is in use.

The intention is to assign junior high students to the new classrooms Monday. Other areas of the school are ready.

Principal Stephen Beyer said Sacred Heart students got off to a great start on Wednesday. Thanks to early registration and computerized records, all schedules were ready for instant use.

The registration total, he said, is 235, a drop of 5 since last year. Kindergarten through grade 8 has 157 and high school has 78. Enrollment by grades was reported as follows, K, 14; Gr. 1, 19; Gr. 2, 17; Gr. 3, 22; Gr. 4, 19; Gr. 5, 14; Gr. 6, 17; Gr. 7, 17; Gr. 8, 18; Gr. 9, 17; Gr. 10, 16; Gr. 11, 18; Gr. 12, 27.

Enrollment at the public school and combined enrollment of the two schools will be reported next week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Neu was the center of attention at a party Sunday at St. Richard's Villa, observing her 111th birthday. She is shown with two of her daughters, Mrs. Margaret Kupper and Mrs. Catherine Hermes.

Mrs. Elizabeth Neu honored by over 111 on 111th birthday

More than 111 visitors recorded their names in the guest book Sunday when they came to an Open House at St. Richard's Villa, honoring Mrs. Elizabeth Neu and observing her 111th birthday.

Relatives and friends attended from Lindsay, Gainesville, Valley View and Muenster; and a granddaughter Mrs. Rupert Hoinig and great-granddaughter Carol Hoinig came from Carrollton.

With Mrs. Neu throughout the afternoon were her daughters, Mrs. John Kupper and Mrs. Catherine Hermes. Another daughter Mrs. Agnes Gore of Big Sandy, Texas was prevented from attending by illness, and a son Mike Neu of Mariposa, California by distance. Also attending was another son Joe J. Neu of Lindsay, and members of their families. Many 4 and 5 generation pictures were made.

St. Richard's Villa hosted the party and Mrs. Neu's granddaughter and husband, Betty Rose and Gerry Walterscheid served the beautiful birthday cake.

The three tiered cake was decorated with a ceramic dove and the honoree's Rosary on the lower tier. The upper tier held three white candles arranged to resemble the numeral 111.

Punch was served by great-granddaughters Deann and Julie Walterscheid and their friends JoAnn and Christi Duke of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Neu was attired in a new dress made especially for the occasion by Betty Rose Walterscheid. On the registration table was a framed greeting from President and Nancy Reagan with the notation: "requested by a great-grandson, Ronnie Walterscheid." There was also a white orchid, a gift from "Bouquets and Gifts."

In addition to her five living children (two are deceased) there are 35 grandchildren, 118 great-

Good News

Ephesians 1:3-8

Let us give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! For in our union with Christ he has blessed us by giving us every spiritual blessing in the heavenly world. Even before the world was made, God had already chosen us to be his through our union with Christ, so that we would be held and without fault before him.

Because of his love God had already decided that through Jesus Christ he would make us his sons-this was his pleasure and purpose.

Let us praise God for his glorious grace, for the free gift he gave us in his dear Son! For by the sacrificial death of Christ we are set free, that is, our sins are forgiven. How great is the grace of God, which he gave to us in such large measure!

It's Summer Time

Summer has arrived, meaning temperatures in the high nineties and hundreds along with moisture readings of zero. As a result the rain total remains at 1.60 inch for July and 28.12 inches for the year to date. Vegetation is suffering even though the year's rain total is considerably above normal. Low at high temperature readings of the week were recorded as follows by Steve Moster.

COMMENT

NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

by Dr. George S. Benson President

Thoughts on the National Debt

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is reputed to have said, "Don't worry about the national debt. After all, we only owe it to ourselves."

When Roosevelt took office in January, 1933, the national debt stood at $19.5 billion. When Harry Truman finished out Roosevelt's fourth term, the debt stood at $252.3 billion, a 1200 percent increase in sixteen years.

Of course in Roosevelt's day, just as today, there was indeed need for concern over the public debt. And there were opinion molders and members of Congress who brought the dangers of such debt to public attention. But Roosevelt's facetious and fatuous comment was demagoguery designed to neutralize by ridicule those who cautioned against growing government debt.

There was ample warning from the founder of Roosevelt's own political party a hundred years before. In a letter to a friend, Thomas Jefferson wrote:

"To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt. We must make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude. If we run into such debts, we must be taxed in our meat and in our drink, in our necessities and our comforts, in our labors and our amusements, for our callings and our creeds. This is the tendency of all human governments. The fore horse of this frightful team is public debt. Taxation follows that, and in its train wretchedness and oppression."

What lay behind Roosevelt's ridiculous philosophy regarding the national debt was the acceptance by him and his "Brain Trust" of the plan to finance relief, now called "welfare", during the depression, and to finance World War II by inflation. By monetizing the public debt.

In point of fact, Roosevelt's "New Deal" policies did far more harm than good, prolonging and deepening the effects of the depression. War-spending attenuated its effects with inflation and the draft removed over 16 million men and women from the civilian labor force, thus eliminating the unemployment problem. It was the coming of World War II, not Roosevelt, that overcame the great depression.

A major harmful effect of the Roosevelt days was that 1200 percent increase in the national debt. Had we not accepted the fallacious reasoning of Roosevelt and his political cronies we would probably never have departed on the course of deficit financing of the federal government.

As we watch the machinations of the politicians in Washington, who lack the courage to cut federal spending, we had better keep in mind what the national debt means to each of us.

First, the interest on the debt next year will approximate $134 billion which is more than we spent annually to run the entire federal government from 1789 to 1958. We get no goods or services for all that interest money. But it does increase the difficulty of eliminating budget deficits.

Second, that huge debt means that government will "crowd out" business from the money market, slowing economic growth so vitally needed now.

Third, the debt will keep interest rates high and probably increase them, putting further drag on the economy.

Remember, the national debt has come from cumulative, year after year budget deficits. Unless we move toward a balanced budget, it can only get worse with devastating economic effects for all of us.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR FOR TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Last week the Senate approved a bill which would substantially change our immigration laws, particularly in the area of enforcement. Much as I would like to see much-needed and long-overdue reforms in the laws relating to illegal entry into the United States, I felt compelled to vote against this legislation because of my serious concerns about its provisions regarding penalties for employers who hire illegal immigrants.

Under the provisions of the bill approved by the Senate, an employer of four or more individuals will have violated the law if he does not obtain documentation from each employee to show his legal status. The employer must attest that the documentation was sufficient to make a "reasonable" person believe it to be genuine, and he must keep the form making this declaration on file for at least five years.

This record-keeping burden for each of some 70,000,000 employment transactions each year in the United States is mind-boggling, particularly for small business owners for whom this new requirement will be particularly onerous. Additionally, the employer is put in the position of having to judge the validity of the documents.

Simple failure to obtain the documentation could result in a $500 fine. Hiring an illegal alien would lead to a $1,000 fine per alien for the first offense, a $2,000 fine per alien for the second and a jail sentence for the third.

I am terribly concerned that these provisions, in addition to their unfair impact on employers, will have a discriminatory effect against American citizens or legal aliens. If an employer faces still penalties for unwittingly hiring an illegal alien or accepting forged identification, can we be surprised if he elects not to hire anyone who appears foreign?

I introduced an amendment which would have directed penalties toward employers who willfully and knowingly recruit or hire illegal alien workers.

The employer who attempts to comply -- and I am convinced that the vast majority of businesses will -- would not suffer. My amendment also would have eliminated the requirement for documentation. Instead, a voluntary program would have been created so that employers who chose to participate could use the documentation records as a defense against charges that they hired illegal aliens.

Taken together, I believe the provisions of this amendment would have greatly diminished the risk of discrimination while effectively controlling the intentional hiring of illegal workers. I do not believe that even the worthy goal of making certain that people who break our immigration laws are not allowed to work in the U.S. justifies creating an unconscionable burden for employer or employee.

My concerns were shared by a broad spectrum of groups and individuals. The United States Chamber of Commerce endorsed my approach. Leaders of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the American GI Forum, and other Hispanic organizations also advocated the measures in my amendment.

Unfortunately I must report to you that the amendment was not agreed to on the Senate floor. Because of my concerns for the impact on both employers and employees from this section of the bill, I thus could not in good conscience cast my vote for this legislation.

I cannot predict what will happen to the Immigration Bill in the House of Representatives, but if it is enacted into law in its present form I will monitor its effects on my fellow Texans and do everything that I can to see that these effects are not as harmful as I fear they could be.

State Capital report

By Senator Bob Glasgow

A very hot issue during the last session of the legislature and one expected to be even more controversial during the next session is the issue of trucking deregulation in Texas.

This topic resides in a gray area as opposed to black and white with pros and cons on each side.

In 1929, the Texas legislature enacted legislation regulating motor carriers. This action was in response to the lack of orderly service to the public and a wide variance in rates. The trucking industry had grown rapidly during the 1920's with fierce competition in high volume areas whereas other areas went virtually unserved or were charged exorbitantly. Safety of the trucks and experience of the drivers was also a concern of the legislature.

The Federal government began to regulate motor carriers involved in interstate commerce in 1935. In 1980, the Motor Carriers Act was passed by Congress, and this deregulated interstate trucking to a degree.

The Texas legislature will decide next year whether or not to deregulate motor carriers. The state of Florida deregulated in 1980; Maine and Arizona followed suit in 1982. Several other states are presently considering such legislation.

Proponents of deregulation feel that this would benefit the public by increasing competition. The result they claim would be a decrease in the rates charged and an increase in the services available to the public.

They further contend that economic efficiency will be increased by eliminating regulatory delays and route and back-haul restrictions. Proponents also argue that deregulation is expected to produce more diversity in price/service options.

Opponents of deregulation, on the other hand, maintain that deregulation would put the trucking industry into the same milieu as it was before regulation.

They argue that again you would have the problems that not all of the public would be served -- only the high volume and high traffic areas would receive quality service or perhaps no service at all. Rates would be uncertain and not uniform without safeguards against unfair pricing. This would return to a "what the traffic will bear" type of pricing system.

The trucking industry feels that they have been able to provide the public in the entire State with good service at reasonable rates. They fear that deregulation would start a war of cut-throat competition with the public and many in the trucking industry coming out the loser. Also, they feel that many areas will lose service or a loss in quality of service.

They also cite the example set by the partial deregulation of airlines and the demise of Braniff as what deregulation can do to the transportation industry.

HOME ON THE RANGE

By Edwin Feulner

A home on the range, with the deer and the antelope playing on the horizon, is one of the most idyllic scenes in American folklore. But more often than not, that home on the range sits on federal land, and Uncle Sam isn't the most benign landlord.

A study by economist Catherine England reveals that the federal government owns nearly one-third of all land in the United States and is such a careless landlord it doesn't even know the value of its holdings. Says England, "92 percent of the public lands are listed on official government inventories at a value of zero since they were never actually purchased."

That's one of the reasons the feds hang on to surplus property like 17 beachfront acres in Waikiki, Hawaii, which if sold (which is what the government plans to do) could net the government at least $200 million.

England suggests selling off some of these excess holdings and earmarking the proceeds to retiring the national debt.

Interior Secretary James Watt also has proposed selling off certain federally owned lands. He feels the government could raise some $6 billion by decreasing its surplus holdings.

A good place to start would be federally owned rangelands. The Bureau of Land Management holds title to 174-million acres of rangeland, an area larger than New England and the Mid-Atlantic states combined.

In Locking Up the Range, (Pacific Institute for Public Policy Research, San Francisco, 1981), Dr. Gary Libecap argues that federal control of the range has, in fact, not only harmed the land, but has significantly contributed to the decline in American livestock production.

Dr. Libecap, an associate professor of economics at Texas A & M University, notes that the BLM itself admits that the lands it manages "are currently far below their production level."

Over the last hundred years, the BLM has fought to prevent private ownership of rangelands, fearing that ranchers would overgraze the land and neglect conservation in their desire to maximize short-term profits.

But Dr. Libecap suggests that the BLM's strategy for preserving the range has backfired. Since rangelands are held in common, with federal grazing privileges subject to restrictions and revocation, ranchers have an even greater incentive to overgraze. If the privilege may be gone tomorrow, why not make the most of it today, they reason.

While many ranches have "grazing rights" to federal lands, Libecap suggests that this "insecure tenure encourages overstocking, and discourages investments in improvements such as fences and wells."

The BLM has already made the typical bureaucratic explanation to the rangelands crisis. They blame it on an insufficient budget for enforcing BLM restrictions on land use. Their solution is boosting the BLM's budget.

But the results of the last hundred years of BLM management aren't promising. The government has been taking a bath in the grazing business, since the grazing fees it earns off rangelands amount to barely half of the government's costs to maintain them. As Dr. Steven Hanke, a senior economist with the President's Council of Economic Advisors, has observed, "These lands are liabilities for the federal government -- not assets. Giving them away would put the federal budget, and hence the taxpayer, in a better position."

And selling them would be even better! (Feulner is President of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

sure that liberals will not be allowed to spend lavishly just because the money supply is more plentiful. It is easily possible that availability of more spending money was the motive behind O'Neil and Wright. If so, it's more urgent than ever for the Congress to pass an amendment requiring a balanced budget.

Looking at the opposite side of the coin, we have visions of the tax hike serving the purpose intended by sponsors and the administration. Their intention was to make ends meet with the help of the tax raise. At the same time they intended to eliminate some unessentials from their spending.

Still another big help is to crack down on tax frauds. We're told frequently that billions remain unpaid every year. If IRS will make a real effort to recover the money and collect a few billion more as penalty from the cheats, the annual revenue can get a huge assist without costing us others who have been doing our part.

With Congress disagreeing almost 50-50 on the merits of the tax bill, it's impossible to know if it was the best. On the other hand it has encouraging possibilities if Congress will concentrate its attention on the bill's merits and make the best use of these merits.

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

I voted against the tax bill today primarily because the first prerequisite for my consideration for an increase -- adequate budget cuts -- has not been met. In my mind, you just can't have one without the other. I supported the first budget resolution that called for $20 billion in new revenues for one year, coupled with substantial budget cuts. Now we have seen that revenue figure hit $99 billion over three years and have yet to see the budget cuts.

Economic goals set last year centered around savings and investment incentives and the provisions of this bill that would require withholding taxes on interest and dividends are ludicrous in light of those goals. They penalize the very activities we tried to encourage last year.

I just cannot go against the time-honored economic rule that you don't raise taxes during a recession. When you add the fact that Congress ducked the cost of living adjustments (COLAS) and entitlements -- one more time; put even more tax burden on one of the segments hit hardest by this recession -- small businesses -- by increasing the federal unemployment tax; and impacted our competitive edge in high technological development necessary for the next decade, the arguments against this bill become even stronger.

I was concerned, as well, about provisions that would have great effect on every private pension plan in this country without one hearing ever being held.

When I told the President of my decision on this yesterday, I warned him that the current depression in agriculture was one example of the danger of trying to solve all of our problems through economic policy and ignoring underlying causes of the problem. It's like trying to cure cancer with a bandaid. Our farm program, for instance, is a continuation of agricultural policy that in 5 1/2 years has dropped agricultural profits to a level lower than during the Depression of the '30s.

Deep policy changes are needed in agriculture and other areas, not bandaids. More jobs are needed across the country, not more burdens on the businesses needed to provide those jobs. More real spending cuts -- not paper cuts -- are needed before our economic program is truly a realistic one.

Celebrate Grandparents Day On September 12

The effort of two individuals caused a Congressional act, a Presidential proclamation and a new American holiday. Due to their efforts, Grandparents Day has been celebrated on the Sunday after Labor Day since 1979.

A West Virginia mother of 15, Marian McQuade, and a Georgia grandfather, Mike Goldgar, got the ball rolling. Goldgar recalls that he first got the idea while visiting an elderly aunt in a nursing home. He was struck by the loneliness of many of the residents and resolved to do something to make their lives more pleasant.

Since 1979, Grandparents Day has grown in popularity, and some think it will soon rival Mothers Day and Fathers Day as a national celebration. On September 12, people across the nation will honor grandparents with a festive cake, a family reunion or dinner at a favorite restaurant.

As Goldgar says, "Grandparents remember -- shouldn't you?"

CHANGING ATTITUDES ABOUT DWI

Few things in this country have changed as much during the past few years as public attitudes on drunk drivers. It is a change we can all be thankful for.

Most of that change, in my opinion, can be attributed to the organization of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), and the attendant publicity and editorial support they have received from our newspapers. They have succeeded, where others have failed, in drawing attention to the tragedy that has claimed the lives of thousands of Texans.

It was not long ago, for instance, when some public officials who ought to lead by example were openly contemptuous of our laws against driving while drunk. Much of this problem started nine years ago when my opponent became Lt. Governor and helped pass the law reducing the legal drinking age from twenty-one to eighteen years of age. Now Mr.

Hobby, feeling the heat of irate parents and loved ones, and perhaps personal remorse, has said he favors tougher drunk driving laws—another switch from a previous position.

Political promises, however, are easily made. If a politician can't get excited about an issue of this magnitude in nine years, it seems unlikely that he would get excited and pursue corrective legislation in another four years.

So I hope the Mothers Against Drunk Drivers will stick to their guns, and I hope they continue getting support from the people of our state. Their efforts to put an end to this carnage on our highways has my support, and I hope it has yours.

Of one thing we can be reasonably sure: Starting next year we will have a new Lt. Governor, and that will make it easier. If you have thoughts on this subject, please write me at 1213 W. 34th, Austin, 78705.

There is a wholesale business in Texas these days, where items of your choice can be purchased at tremendous discounts. Fencing of stolen property is on the rise in Texas.

The professional fence is the most vital and least prosecuted link in a chain of transactions through which property passes from the time it is stolen until finally sold. A fence provides an immediate market for stolen items and in doing so, disposes of evidence which incriminates the thief.

Since public attention usually centers on the actual crime of stealing, the fence's part in the support and maintenance of thievery is underestimated and relatively unnoticed.

Operation I. D. is one effective way to fight fencing operations in Texas. Less than 10% of all property recovered in "sting operations" bears owner identification. Marked goods provide risk and difficulty in reselling so criminals try to avoid households that have taken the time and care to identify their valuables.

For the month of August, the Crime Stoppers Advisory Council is focusing the statewide "Crime of the Month" on fencing. Any citizen having information regarding the fencing of stolen property is urged to call the Crime Stoppers hotline at 1-800-252-TIPS. Cash rewards are available for information leading to the arrest and indictment of these criminals.

Your local Police Department will be happy to supply you with equipment needed to identify your belongings. This step toward crime prevention could be the deciding factor for a thief. Call 1-800-252-TIPS and help stop this lucrative business in Texas.

Born Susanna Reinart in Minnesota on August 21, 1871, married to Joseph F. Neu in Roselle, Iowa in 1893, and moving to Lindsay, Texas five years later, she witnessed the development of Lindsay from prairie land into a thriving community. She was widowed in 1937.

Longevity seems to run in her family. Her mother reached 93, a brother reached 100, a sister reached 102.

Phenomenal changes in life style have occurred during her 111 years. She saw the first telephones; first phonographs; first electric lights; first penny post card; Montgomery Ward's first mail order catalogs; first barbed wire; first silk stockings for women; first Model T. Fords that sold for $310.00. She read about the first airplane flight of Kitty Hawk, and made her first plane trip to California at age 80.

She has lived under the administration of 22 presidents and the reign of 6 Popes. Her oldest grandson, Msgr. Hubert Neu is pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church in Arlington.

She proudly possesses birthday letters from Presidents Reagan and Carter, a certificate from the National Catholic Women's Union, Texas Branch, for 60 years loyal service, is a life member of St. Anne's Society in Lindsay, and on her 109th birthday was the guest of honor at a SNAP luncheon. No words could truly express our heart-felt gratitude for the concern which you expressed to us through embraces, handshakes with that "I care" look on your faces, the phone calls, food, memorial donations, flowers, prayers, thoughts, your presence at Ray's funeral, and most of all, the love which all your acts of kindness were founded upon.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY

Dos 'n Don'ts

Don't... ignore appliances that are slow to heat, fuses that blow, TV that sizzles, they can be symptoms of inadequate wiring. Don't take any chances, have your wiring checked by a qualified electrician.

Don't... overload circuits or extension cords. This will overheat wiring causing insulation to bake and crack. The heat can set fire to wood or exposed wires can cause a short circuit.

Do... use extreme care working outdoors around powerlines. Ladders, pipes, pool cleaners, tree trimmers, masts, kites, and model airplane wires can cause fatal shocks.

Do... ground major appliances and make sure they have their own circuit that is properly fused.

Don't... stick objects into outlets: besides risking electrical shock, this may result in a short circuit. Also keep unused outlets and extension cords covered or capped to prevent small children from sticking objects into outlets.

Don't... hang cords over pipes, ducts, nails or hooks. Keep them away from heat and water.

Do... exercise extreme care and judgement when operating any type of outdoor electrical equipment. Always use three wire grounded cords or use double-insulated tools.

Oklahoma City ceremony unites Kathy Ann Kuta and Rick Ault

Kathy Ann Kuta and Rick Ault, both of Oklahoma City, exchanged marriage vows in a double ring ceremony there on July 3 at 4 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Kuta of Mankato, Minnesota and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Spaeth of Lindsay. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ault of Wichita, Kansas.

The garden ceremony, conducted by Judge Wier, was performed in a setting of white wrought iron and hanging baskets of ivy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a soft white floor length dress designed with long puffed sleeves gathered to a self-ruffle at the wrist. A circle of wide imported lace framed the neckline, under a self-ruffle and extending to the shoulders. An overlay at the waist was tied with a white satin ribbon, adding a peplum effect.

Her two tiered elbow length veil of illusion fell from a headdress of lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, surrounding one yellow rose. For sentiment she wore her mother's diamond engagement ring and the single strand of pearls her mother wore 27 years ago on her own wedding day.

Attendants

Attendants were Cathy and Bill McKinney, close friends of the couple. The matron of honor wore a multi-colored floral pattern dress with beige lace yoke inserts. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies. Men in the wedding party and fathers of the couple had yellow rosebud boutonnieres. Mothers of the couple and the bride's godmother, Mrs. Arthur Felderhoff had white carnations corsages.

Beta Kappa starts new year with planning session

Beta Kappa's first meeting of the '82-'83 new year was held on August 10 in the TP&L Building, with Becky Felderhoff as hostess, presiding officer and program leader. She spoke on "History of E.S.A."

Phone 759-4311 or send notes to Box 190, Muenster to report news of illness or injury to be included in our "News of the Sick" column. Patients appreciate "get-well cards" from friends who hear of their illness through the column.

Margie Wimmer will be chairman of the Rush Committee this year and will host a salad luncheon for rushees in her home on Saturday, September 11. Also planned is a couple's night hayride for October 2.

Members discussed the district project, a fund in support of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Tentatively planned is a walk-a-thon, and a committee was named to set a date and a route.

A report was given on the district meeting attended by five of the local chapter members. The next district meeting will be in October in Arlington.

Family Day was held on July 31, hosted by Ray and Marcie Wilde. Beta Kappa members and their families, for a group of about 50, were guests, and enjoyed swimming, games and dinner.

Following adjournment, the hostess, Becky Felderhoff served refreshments to the group.

Ferber relatives visit in Texas

Guests of the Richard Ferbers this past week have been his sister and family, Joan and Robert Bale and Sandy, Jeff, Angie and Karen of Rochester, Minnesota; also the oldest daughter and family, Carla and Tom Spratte and sons, Jeremy, Corey and Mike, also of Rochester.

They all arrived Wednesday evening and departed Sunday morning.

A son, David Ferber of Rochester arrived Friday evening and will remain through Thursday of this week. All were here to attend the wedding of Patti Ferber to Danny Winters on Saturday.

While here they tried to see as much of Texas as time allowed. They spent one long day and evening at Six Flags and another day visited the Nocona Boot Factory and Wichita Falls.

Growing Child

Adults tend to think of coordination as being mainly physical.

But according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, when the job is easy but new, the skills involved are mostly mental.

A child learning a new skill must consciously think about what parts of the body are to move, where they should go and at what time. Consider an everyday situation that requires complicated coordination. You have driven home with the groceries and start to carry two bags in at one time. To make everything come out right, you must be sure that the house key is in hand before you pick up the second bag. Then a knee must be brought into play to support the second bag as you unlock the door. You find yourself thinking ahead, quickly planning what the next move will be.

Toddlers must do the same kind of planning with the simpler coordinations her life requires. At first, just avoiding furniture and objects on the floor took considerable motor planning. When her explorations lead her to climb on and crawl under many different kinds of objects, pull wheeled toys around corners, carry bulky objects through doors, or open doors without bumping head or toes, she must continually be conscious of what her various body parts are doing. If she is successful in her endeavors and keeps everything in line, we say that she is adequately coordinated. A toddler has to think just as hard about the new things she does as we do with a much more complicated task.

It is often found that children who have learning disabilities are poorly coordinated. It is also often found that activities that develop coordination benefit the thinking and planning process.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

2 couples vacation on west coast

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Schilling and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Haverkamp have returned from a two week vacation to the west coast, when they traveled in five states and into Old Mexico.

Enroute they stopped to visit Arnold's brother, A.J. (Moco) Schilling and wife in Seymour and also were overnight guests of former Muenster residents, the Matt Stelzers and Andy Stelzers in Post, Texas.

In Los Angeles they were house guests of the Gerald Stelzers. Some of the highlights of the trip were two days spent in Old Mexico as guests of the Stelzers in their condominium home in Mexico, on the beach. Swimming in the ocean, picnics, shopping and sightseeing were memorable treats.

In Los Angeles they toured the Universal Studios, Knotts Berry Farm, Disneyland, Movieland, Alligator Farm, and general sightseeing.

At the same time the National VFW Convention was being held in Los Angeles. One evening the Gerald Stelzers hosted a yard party honoring his brother Emmet (Andy) Stelzer of Post, who is VFW SR. Vice Commander for the State of Texas. Thirty four Texas State VFW Leaders were also guests for the steak and shrimp cook-out, with the Muenster Schillings and Haverkamps assisting with host duties.

The Gerald Stelzers and their Muenster guests met again in Las Vegas for several days. They also traveled over the Hoover dam and went sightseeing in that area. They said the weather was so hot that many cars were stalled in the favorite but crowded tourist site. The first break in the weather to favor them came on the road home, when rain began to fall, near Flagstaff, Arizona continuing almost until reaching Lubbock.

TP&L THINKS IT'S TIME YOU GOT EVEN WITH YOUR ELECTRIC BILL

It used to be your electric bill went up in the heat of the summer. And then next to nothing in spring and fall. Just trying to keep up with it was a fulltime job. But it doesn't have to be, thanks to a plan from TP&L.

INTRODUCING THE EQUAL PAYMENT PLAN. With our Equal Payment Plan we can average your monthly electric charges. That means you'll pay the same for service all year long. You still pay for all you use, but you'll know exactly what to expect each and every month. With no surprises.

STAY COOL WHEN THINGS HEAT UP THIS SUMMER.

It's a fact that energy costs aren't getting cheaper. And the cost of electricity is at its highest in the summer. So now is the best possible time to enroll in the Equal Payment Plan to keep your bills from getting out of hand.

To find out more about our Equal Payment Plan and what it could mean to you and your checkbook, just call your local TP&L office. Getting even was never so easy.

July 4, 1973 was observed by Bobby and Harold Lutkenhaus with a bit of nostalgia, when they presented a demonstration of harvesting methods of a by gone era with an old threshing machine. For many days they worked to repair it enough to put it into sufficient working order for a demonstration, and invited everyone interested to "come see" at their farm northwest of Muenster.

previously cut with a binder and dried in shocks of about eight bundles each. When ready for threshing the bundles were hauled to the machine on bundle wagons which were unloaded on both sides of a feeder. In the separating process grain was directed into a wagon and straw into the big stack at the left. The operation was powered by means of a belt from a massive tractor about 50 feet away. This picture, from the early 30s, is Leo Becker's.

What is a Weed?

by Ted Brice

A weed is any unwanted plant. Therefore, a weed could be a rose in your tomato patch. But that's not our typical notion of a weed.

Conventional wisdom holds that a weed grows so fast and in such profusion that it crowds out a desired plant, crop or lawn.

Often what one person considers a weed is a welcome addition to another's garden. Many homeowners delight in the morning glory and its blooms. But the same morning glory is nothing but trouble for the farmer who calls it bindweed.

There is agreement on one point, though, and that is that weeds grow and develop at a much faster rate than do many cultivated plants. Weeds reach soil moisture faster and cut out valuable sunlight for cultivated plants--thereby crowding out wanted plants.

Lawn weeds are especially troublesome to homeowners. A thick, healthy turf is the best way to prevent lawn weeds. Weeds, like every other plant, need moisture and nutrients to survive. If they can't find a place to take hold, they will not survive.

Regular mowing, watering, proper fertilization and pest management will keep your lawn in tip top shape so weeds won't stand a chance.

Some weeds can be controlled during July and August but because grass grows at a slower rate during these hot months, bare spots left by dying weeds will most likely be filled by new summer annual weeds--such as crabgrass--rather than grass. These summer, annual weeds are even tougher to get rid of, and some, there is no control. It is best to wait for cooler fall weather to attack big weed problems.

Coach Peters huddles with Hornet backs and ends before their practice with Boyd last week.

Hornets take lessons from Yellowjackets

Muenster Hornets were outclassed in their scrimmage with Boyd's Yellowjackets here last Friday, but that was all right with Coach Leonard Peters. His idea is that a team learns more playing a strong opponent and he was eager to have the boys exposed to the opportunity. He said the Hornets can and will profit from mixing with boys of a higher caliber than they are likely to meet later.

Peters rates Boyd as a classy outfit, loaded with experience, speed and depth. On both varsity and JV its roster is about twice as long as Muenster, and players seem to fit their positions like at the end of the season. They had a definite advantage, offensively and defensively.

When the practice was over it was easily apparent that the visitors dominated the action but MHS coaches were pleased with the progress their boys had made. Peters said they learned more in the one night than in the previous two weeks of practice. Coaches were pleased also to see possibilities in their own players, some of whom were back in uniform after missing a season or two. Standouts included Kevin Felderhoff, Kevin Switzer, Carl Sicking, Wayne Carroll and Jeff Fisher. Carroll has the distinction of making Muenster's most exciting play, an interception with a 75 yard return to the goal.

In spite of that the scrimmage was one sided. Boyd made three touchdowns, MHS varsity none. Defensively MHS allowed a few long gains, but generally it held the visitors to short yardage.

This week's scrimmage is due to be somewhat similar with the Hornets hopefully showing additional progress. The practice is at Southlake Carroll, a team that's rated on a par with Boyd.

His time in the 50 and 100 meter butterfly rate him in the top 16 of the nation; also he is now ranked as one of the top swimmers of the 9-10 age group in the state of Texas.

Tigers and Era mix in scrimmage

Sacred Heart's Tigers had the upper hand in their practice scrimmage with Era, but the determined team of visitors made them work for what they got. On first possession SHHS advanced for a first down and failed to keep going on the second series. Again on offense they completed a pair of first downs and failed on the next series. And on third try they were short on the first series.

Era's problem on first possession was fumbles. The first three starts ended that way, the next was stopped cold and finally Era made a first down but fumbled on the next series.

Next on the program was junior high action in which the Tiger Cubs made one first down on three starts before launching a drive that netted three first downs for 54 yards before ending in an interception. Era got one first down on four starts.

However business picked up in the next varsity action. Wade Walterscheid topped off an 80 yard drive with a 2 yard plunge on first possession. Second try failed on first series and the third went all the way featuring Hesse's pass to Curtis Henscheid and runs by Hesse and Wade Walterscheid plus Darrell Herr's 20 yard scoring ramble.

The Tigers scored again on Era's turn as Greg Walterscheid intercepted and made a 10 yard return. Finally Era put things together on its last possession. Three runs gained 15 before Chris Metcalf broke away for 65 yards and a TD.

Coaches Virgil Henscheid and Julian Walterscheid were generally pleased with defense and with limited progress on offense after only two weeks of practice. Their principal problems are blocking and timing.

Their next practice will be more of a test, the opponent being the Class AA Lake Dallas Falcons at 6:30 in Lake Dallas.

This Era youngster was nabbed for a loss in scrimmage with Sacred Heart last week. Staff Photo

Walt Woodard is the "heeler" part of the Winston and world team roping championship team. Doyle Gellerman is the "header." Woodard and Gellerman spent more time together "than we spend with our wives" to win the 1981 Winston and world titles.

Thirteen was a lucky number for Randy Goss when he won the 1980 Winston Pro Series championship and he hopes the return to the number will mean another title in 1982. "My goal is another championship and I think it can happen," says Goss, who has earned the title of "Mr. Consistency" on the American Motorcyclist Association.

Young Childrens learning center staff attends seminars

A professional development program for all personnel at the Young Children's Learning Center has begun. Loretta Felderhoff and Susan Wilkerson attended seminars given in Wichita Falls on August 18 and 19 by the Region IX Education Service Center. Workshops were included, available to all, and free of charge. Each one attending received 12 hours credit toward her continuing education.

Susan Wilkerson attended a seminar entitled "Essential Montessori". Practical applications of the Montessori method for any structured or traditional classroom were presented. Methods and theories were discussed followed by hands-on experience with children.

Loretta Felderhoff attended "Gifted/Talented: Identifying and Teaching the Gifted Child". This was a 2 day seminar for teachers, counselors and administrators to develop awareness in initiating gifted/talented programs. Methods and materials for teaching gifted students were also discussed. Topics covered were: vocabulary, philosophical overview, definition of gifted/talented, screening techniques, identification procedures, delivery of services, acceleration, enrichment, and differentiation of the curriculum for the gifted/talented.

The seminar was presented by nationally acclaimed Pat Leadbeater, teacher for 16 years, six years of which were devoted exclusively to special programs for gifted students. She has B.S. and M.S. degrees in Elementary Education and an M.A. in Classical and Medieval Languages and has done extensive post-masters work in the areas of Special and Gifted Education.

A local series of seven workshops will be sponsored by the Learning Center during September and October for the personnel and parents who wish to attend. Each workshop will describe a specific area, reason for inclusion and demonstration of materials to be used within that area. A schedule will be announced at a later date.

from the Texas Energy Extension Service

Would it be cost effective to use 2 inch by 6 inch studs on 24 inch centers to allow one to use more insulation? I understand the amount of lumber would be equal to or less than conventional 2 inch by 4 inch studs, but I'm wondering about the need for 5 1/2 inch to 6 inch wall insulation. It seems from what I've read it would be a good idea, but how practical is it in Texas? I. W. Cuero.

Walls built with 2 inch by 6 inch studs on 24 inch centers are an improvement over walls built with 2 inch by 4 inch studs on 16 inch centers. They allow for additional insulation to be installed, particularly behind the electrical outlets and add more strength to the load-bearing walls. The additional insulation improves the overall R-value of the wall and may even reduce air infiltration.

An alternative method which achieves the same insulation value as the 6 inch wall is to use 1 inch styrofoam sheathing on the exterior of the 4 inch wall before the siding is applied. This alternative may be more costly than the 6 inch wall but allows for a slightly thinner wall. This would provide nearly an R 19 insulation value in the wall.

Whichever method you choose, put effort into making the wall as airtight as possible to reduce air infiltration.

My mobile home uses a great deal of energy, especially for cooling. I am interested in cutting down on my energy costs, but I don't know where to begin. For example, do I adopt the same measures as for a regular home, or are there special measures for mobile (manufactured) homes? If so, where do I find these recommendations? P. D., Victoria.

The same basic conservation measures taken in conventional homes apply to mobile or manufactured homes such as insulation, weatherstripping and efficient air conditioning and heating systems. These measures are very critical to manufactured homes which have a greater capacity for energy waste because of the nature of their construction.

One area on which you should concentrate is shading. Shade all glass from direct sun and provide interior shades or drapes as well. Placing the mobile home in the shadow of a large tree will be beneficial if you still have the flexibility to make this choice.

The Energy Efficient Manufactured Home in Texas, published by the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC), explains no cost energy saving practices, proper orientation and siting, weatherization measures, mechanical equipment measures and even renewable resource measures.

Single copies are available free from the Texas Energy Extension Service office at Texas A&M University.

If you have a question about energy conservation in the home, send it to ENERGY ANSWERS, Texas Energy Extension Service, Center for Energy and Mineral Resources, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843 or phone (713) 845-8025. Funds for this program were made available from the U. S. Department of Energy through the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC).

TTI researcher says user fees needed to finance highways

COLLEGE STATION — Automobile owners should get used to the idea of higher fuel taxes and other fees to finance construction, repair and research on the nation's strained interstate highway system, says a transportation expert.

"Obviously, new sources of revenues — taxes and fees — will be needed to address the problems of new construction, proper rehabilitation of existing roads and to accommodate the exploding new growth in Texas," said Dr. C. V. Wootan, director of the Texas Transportation Institute, a research agency.

He said many transportation officials feel that money for building and repairing roads would come from user fees such as gasoline tax, license tag fees and earmarking sales taxes on new cars for highway purposes.
