

Camp Sweeney for diabetics ends 36th successful year

GAINESVILLE — Sunburned and self-assured, campers from everywhere proudly head homeward at this time of year. Most have learned a new hobby, made a new friend, and often, the shy ones have gained a startling readiness to pick up any challenge or to play on any team.

Such summer victories are apparent at most summer camps, but those at Camp Sweeney outrank all the rest. At Camp Sweeney, nature's challenge involves more than hiking or swimming; it's truly a matter of life and death. When each camper has learned how a diabetic guards his life, all share in the discovery that it needn't be lived out on the sidelines.

Camp Sweeney, now ending its 36th year of operation, has seen over 300 diabetic children this summer. With campers coming from Texas, Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Mexico; and counselors coming from New Mexico, New York, Hawaii, England, Canada, Sweden, Scotland and Mexico, Camp Sweeney is truly becoming an internationally known center where diabetic children can enjoy the pleasures of a summer camp as well as become more knowledgeable about their lifelong companion - diabetes.

The camp, operated by the nonprofit Southwestern Diabetic Foundation, offers its fun and training to all diabetic children, ages 6 to 18. There is a fee for children to attend, but scholarships are available for those who cannot afford to pay, and the camp has never turned anyone away because of race, color, creed, or ability to pay.

The 1985 sessions were particularly successful and featured not only the traditional camp activities, but hot air balloon rides, sky divers, wagon trains, "gum drops," during which sugarless gum was dropped from a plane passing overhead, camp olympics and festivals.

For more information on Camp Sweeney's program for diabetic children, contact the Southwestern Diabetic Foundation at P.O. Box 918, Gainesville, TX 76240, or call (817) 665-9502.

Forestburg ceremony unites Edwards, Greanead

Veronica Lynn Edwards and Chris Allen Greanead were united in marriage on Aug. 17 at the Forestburg United Methodist Church with Rev. Chris Allen officiating at 7:30 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwards of Forestburg and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Embry of Saint Jo. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Idell Greanead of Dallas. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a designer gown of delicate white Chantilly lace featuring an exquisite Victorian neckline bordered with Venice lace, and a beaded cameo. Lace overlaid the front of the bodice and the back was sheer. A wide lace ruffle completely surrounded the sheer yoke. Long, sheer lace sleeves had ruffled cuffs. The full skirt was asymmetrically ruffled with alternating tiers of lace and chiffon satin-hemmed ruffles, flowing gracefully into a cathedral length train. She carried a bridal cascade of pink and burgundy silk roses, her chosen colors. The bride carried out tradition with her grandmother's gold wedding band as something old; her dress as something new; her aunt's diamond and ruby ring as something borrowed; a garter as something blue.

Attendants Maid of honor was Pamela Edwards of Dallas, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Joanna Beckham of Newcastle and Alicia Bell of Forestburg. Nelia Embry, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. They wore pink, formal-length dresses of acetate taffeta and carried long-stemmed roses. Josh Embry, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. The best man was Ran Greanead of Forestburg, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Gary Greanead of Burleson, the cousin of the groom, and Larry Dill of Forestburg, a friend. Ushers and candlelighters were Douglas Edwards of Forestburg, the bride's brother, and Cody Greanead of Burleson, the groom's cousin. Wedding guests were registered by Beth Holzbog of Forestburg. The church was decorated with a brass arch with a halo of votive candles; also a heart-shaped candelabra with tall candles and floral baskets in the bride's chosen colors. The center aisle was graced with lighted candles. Wedding music was provided by Vatoni Dill of Denton at the piano and Mrs. Hal Hays of Forestburg who sang "You're the Inspiration" and "The Lord's Prayer." During lighting of the Unity candle, she sang "You Light Up My Life."

Reception A reception followed at the Forestburg New Community Center. The bride's table was covered with an imported white linen cloth having wide borders and insets of bobbin lace. The three-tiered wedding cake and silver appointments were on the bride's table. The groom's table was covered with ecru lace over brown. The chocolate horseshoe-shaped cake was served with coffee from a silver service. Debra Dill of Forestburg and Norma Edwards of Bowie presided at the bride's table; and Cass Greanead and Brenda Greanead served at the groom's table. Upon returning from a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will make their home in Forestburg. The bride will attend Texas Woman's University in Denton this fall and Chris is employed as a paint technician for Peterbilt of Denton. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at The Center Restaurant in Muenster.

Academic challenges
Glascok sees some challenges ahead at Valley View, despite what he views as a strong academic program.
"We will be trying to refine what's already been done to comply with House Bill 72, and hope each of our plans is successful," he said. Most of the course offerings mandated by the legislature were implemented last year, but the school hopes to add some fine arts courses this year.
The major challenge academically, according to Glascok, will be to improve written communication. "We have difficulty trying to put into words what we want. The TABS test has shown this to be our weakest area for several years," he said.

The school is working on a new writing program which should help develop comprehension, and "if the kids are able to write, they can comprehend better," the superintendent said.
Glascok said the board plays a vital role in the success of the school. "I feel the innovative attitude of the school board and administration is a definite strength. They're very dynamic and are willing to try something new."
Even though the school faces challenges in the years to come with growth, finances and academics, Glascok feels the people of Valley View ISD are up to the challenge. And people, he said, form the strength of the school.
"We have a family feeling. It's the closeness we have here that is special. I think it was Ross Perot who said the strength of an education system is a great teacher being supported by a great parent."
Valley View, he feels, has both of those essential elements for successful education.

Central expecting 54

Central Christian School was started in 1981 as a ministry of the Central Baptist Church in Gainesville.
This year, the school expects to enroll 54 children in pre-kindergarten through the ninth grade.
Evelyn Fincher serves as principal of the school, which is housed at the Central Baptist church building where her husband, Bill is pastor. The school has five teachers: Vonda McFarlin, who teaches the combined three and four-year-olds; Therese Williams, who teaches the kindergarten class; Darla Beal, grades 1-3; Mrs. Fincher, grades four and five and Bill Williams, grades six through nine.
Students pay a tuition, which supports the school. The church gives the school a place to meet and pays utilities. The school receives no state funding and is not accredited by the state.
Kindergarten students attend school from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., while older students go from 8:30 to 3:30 each day. Bible class is the first period of the day for all students, with the regular curriculum following. Children bring their lunches.
School began Monday for Central's students. Labor Day will be a holiday on September 2, with other holidays in the first semester coming on October 3, November 27-29 for Thanksgiving, and December 20 for Christmas.

College campus gets new look

by Bob Buckel

The county's only institution of higher education will open its doors September 3 along with other area public schools. Cooke County College is expecting around 1,700 students at campuses in Gainesville, Lewisville, Denton and Bowie.

The college, like most of Texas' educational establishments, is walking on constantly shifting ground for funding as the state endeavors to put more of the financial burden on local taxpayers.

The college's 1985-86 budget of $4.7 million is nearly $100,000 lower than last year's, but the tax rate will go from 8.3 cents to 8.7 cents to help make up for the loss of more than $276,000 in state funds.

Budget cuts and declining "contact-hours" are cited as the two main reasons for the reduced state funding.

Despite financial worries, the college is working hard to improve the physical and academic environment for its students. With the search now underway for a new president, Cooke County College is optimistic about the future.

One sign of that optimism is an aggressive promotional campaign underway this year — an effort to bolster sagging enrollment and help recoup some of the lost state funding. Advertisements in various media and on textbook covers throughout the county have promoted fall registration, and a day of festivities is being planned in October to draw people onto the campus.

The campus itself has a new centerpiece this year, as construction nears completion on the new Student Center.

The building is located in the old "activities center," which was originally designed as a gymnasium. The outer shell is the only thing that has not been changed in the $320,000 project.

A large student lounge and dining area has been added, with an eye-catching upper deck or "mezzanine," private meeting rooms and an intimate 175-seat auditorium. The snack bar and kitchen facilities have been re-done and expanded, and additional space has been added to the bookstore and testing center.

The project is largely complete, but it may be October before all the furnishings are in place and it is ready for full utilization.

Some changes are evident in the administration as well, after the retirement of Dr. Alton Laird, who served as college president for the past several years.

Whit Williams, dean of instruction, is serving as acting president of the college while a committee headed by board member Wendell Proffer sifts through the 106 applications and prepares to select a permanent president.

Another departure, that of registrar Don Stafford, brought about an even bigger shift in administrative duties. Eddie Hadlock, dean of student services and director of extension and continuing education, will take over the registrar's duties while giving up some of his other responsibilities.

Linda Mast, director of special programs, will take on the continuing education and extension departments under Hadlock's supervision. Some of her counseling duties will fall on a new employee to be hired for the counseling center.

Registration for the fall semester is set for today (Wednesday) and tomorrow, with the registrar's office open 8:30 am to 12:30 p.m. and 4:30 to 8 p.m. today, and 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow. Late registration will be September 3-4, but a $5 fee will be added for those registering late.

Tuition at the college has been raised, in a further effort to offset the loss of state funding. Last year's rate of $8 per semester has been raised to $12 for Cooke County residents. Out-of-district students (including those from Oklahoma) will pay $13, and out-of-state students will pay $25 per hour with a $200 minimum.

The increases will make the cost of a 12-hour course load $144 for county residents, $156 for Oklahoma and out-of-county Texas residents, and $300 for residents of other states. Certain lab fees have also been adjusted.

The college has 67 full-time faculty members, and about that many who teach part-time or on an occasional basis.

Courses available on campus this fall include agriculture, art, astronomy, auto body repair and automotive technology, biology, business administration, chemistry, data processing, diesel mechanics, drafting technology, economics, English, foreign languages, geography, government, history, industrial arts, library orientation, machine shop, mathematics, mid-management, music, nursing, paramedicine, photography, physical education, physics, police science, psychology, reading, real estate, sociology, speech and drama, vocational nursing and welding.

St. Mary's students enjoy new facilities

A sparkling new facility will greet around 164 students at St. Mary's school in Gainesville this fall.

The school, which is in its 94th year of service, has a new look with a major renovation project just complete. About 4,000 square feet have been added to the existing building, with a new computer room and library, enlarged kindergarten area, three new classrooms, a music room and a remodeled principal's office, teachers' lounge and book room.

Enrollment in kindergarten through the eighth grade was 158 at the end of school last year, with a slight growth projected for this year according to principal Diane Middlebrooks.

The school is supported by St. Mary's Parish and the Home-School Association, with tuition negotiated for students. St. Mary's is accredited through the Texas Education Agency and must meet the same standards as public schools. It is overseen by a local board, under the oversight of the Diocese of Fort Worth.

"I believe we offer a quality education, with emphasis on basic courses in conjunction with Christian values," Middlebrooks said. "The close parent-teacher relationship and the small classes help give students the individual attention they need."

School started Monday for St. Mary's students, where four new teachers have joined the 16-member staff this year.

New on the faculty are Bernadette Gray, teaching fourth grade, Elizabeth Weincher, fifth grade, Linda Holland, sixth grade and Nina Arendt, kindergarten aide.

Returning teachers include Donna Dieter in kindergarten and Connie Bezner in first grade, with Peggy Salas working with Spanish-speaking students in those two grades. Diane Dietz teaches second grade, Mary Turbeville teaches third and Debbie Mitchell teaches seventh and eighth.

Father Nicholas Fuhrmann, pastor of St. Mary's, serves as track coach. Sylvia Bayer is librarian and Della Turner is school secretary. Sister Gabriel Burton is religion coordinator and Virginia Krahl teaches religion. Joyce Stewart is teachers' aide.

The work of "a lot of dedicated people" helps make Sacred Heart school in Muenster a top-quality private institution — as its 230 students can testify.

The school, which is totally funded by Sacred Heart Parish, was established in 1900 and offered its first high school diploma in 1928. It is the largest private school in the county to educate students all the way from kindergarten through the eighth grade, and the only K-12 school accredited by the Texas Education Agency.

There is no tuition charge at Sacred Heart. The school's $405,000 budget this year will come from donations and parish funds. The school operates under the Diocese of Fort Worth and competes athletically in the Texas Christian Interscholastic League (TCIL).

Sacred Heart, under the direction of superintendent Sister Cabrini Arami, offers a curriculum that conforms with the standards of H.B. 72 — the same as those imposed on public schools. A full range of academic programs, plus football, volleyball, basketball and track, give students a similar range of educational opportunities as may be found in most public schools of the same size, and religious education is an integral part of the curriculum as well.

The school has 24 teachers this year, including Sr. Cabrini, who teaches religion and trigonometry. Six new faculty members have joined the staff this year — four of whom have past teaching experience at the school.

Rebecca Fenton will teach seventh grade English, reading, spelling and art as well as speech and art at the high school level. She has a bachelor's degree from Missouri Valley College in secondary education, and also studied at the University of Missouri. She has four years' experience teaching speech and English.

Her husband, Joe, is city manager in Muenster. They have three children.

Sister Clare Myers will teach basic math in high school, and seventh grade math, religion, history and science as well. She comes to Sacred Heart from Stuttgart, Arkansas, but her 40 years of teaching experience includes a 13-year tenure at the school in the 40's and 50's.

She holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Arkansas State University with a specialization in education. She has taught in Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

Teaching third grade this year will be Steven Kohler. Kohler earned his bachelor's degree in elementary education from the University of Montana, and has eight years' teaching experience — the last two at Selwyn middle school in Denton.

Eileen Fisher, who has taught special reading part-time at both Sacred Heart and Muenster public schools for the last few years, will be full-time this year on the Sacred Heart faculty. She will teach second grade.

Two faculty members returning to Sacred Heart will be Patti Bayer, to teach high school chemistry, and Mary Beth Bartush, to teach physical science, biology, health and help with athletics. Both have taught at Sacred Heart before and are Muenster residents.

An addition to the campus this year is the new building to house the Young Children's Learning Center — the parish's pre-

by Bob Buckel

Meeting the state's 22-to-one student teacher ratio is no problem at Sivells Bend, where the biggest class is about 15 students — and that's in two grades.

The main problem at Sivells Bend is oil. That is a problem most school districts would love to have. This tiny northwest Cooke County district has always depended on oil for much of the tax revenue needed to educate the 40 or so children they will get in kindergarten through the eighth grade.

But this year, oil is a mixed blessing, as declining production and lower prices have cost the school district $10 million of its $48.2 million in tax values. To finance a budget that will be lower than actual expenditures last year, a 12-cent hike in taxes is required.

"We actually lost about $6 million in values," superintendent Orville Anderle said. "The real estate came up about $4 million, through new construction and reappraisals."

Anderle, beginning his sixth year at Sivells Bend, said the drop in oil values coincided with a loss of $23,000 in state funding. That funding was withdrawn, he added, because the school district's tax values are not up to state averages.

"We'll have to make that up out of local Development Center for nine years, then funds," he said. The Sivells Bend school board was to meet Tuesday night to consider the $191,000 budget and adopt the tax rate of 40 cents per $100 valuation to fund it.

The original budget last year was just over $175,000, but actual expenses — the final amended budget — ran closer to $192,000. This year's budget is lower than that, as Anderle tightens the reins to try and offset the tax increase.

"Family" instructional atmosphere

But money isn't all they think about at Sivells Bend. The small-school atmosphere makes it possible to do a lot of individual work with students in an almost "family" situation.

There aren't enough kids for competitive athletics, so "no pass-no play" isn't a problem here. The youngsters get plenty of calisthenics and a chance to learn basic skills in basketball and volleyball without the pressure of interscholastic competition.

One added wrinkle at the school this year will be full-day kindergarten throughout the year. In the past, the school has taught kindergarten for a half-day beginning in January and running through the end of school. But H.B. 72 has changed that, and so kindergarten students will get a full day of instruction beginning September 3.

Two new teachers have joined the faculty for the coming year — a small number at most schools but half the faculty at Sivells Bend.

Gainesville resident. Rieger has six years' classroom experience at Chico, Callisburg and Collinsville. Her degree is from Texas Tech University.

Anderle, who normally teaches eighth grade math or science in order to give that teacher a conference period, will likely teach the required computer literacy course this year to seventh and eighth grade students. That is the only new offering on the schedule this year, since most of the state-mandated enrichment courses come in at the high school level.

Sivells Bend students finish high school at either Gainesville or Lindsay in most cases.

Changes in the physical plant have been minor this year, Anderle said. The school was bricked last summer, and it got a new roof this year, but beyond that most of the maintenance has been routine.

Family Life offers self-paced curriculum

Family Life Christian Academy is an outreach ministry of the Family Life Center in Gainesville. At the end of its first year of operation last year, the school had 31 students in kindergarten through the eighth grade.

The academy offers a self-paced "completely Christian" curriculum with supervisors, working with monitors, overseeing the students' work on a personal level.

Pastor Albert Garrett serves as administrator of the academy, with Mrs. Debbie Randolph supervising the upper learning center and Opal Cason serving as supervisor of the kindergarten and first grade.

The staff includes Gina Wilson, who oversees physical education; Faye Bridwell and Debbie Orsburn, classroom monitors; Audra Ballard in the reading center; Sherry Garrett, working as an administrative assistant and fill-in supervisor as well as a music teacher; Lynn Monden in art and Chriss Ott as secretary.

Children are graded and are tested each year with the California Achievement Test to assure that they maintain grade levels. They are allowed to work ahead in areas in which they excel, but they must stay in their grade level.

The school is funded by tuition and housed in a portable classroom building adjacent to the church. The church pays for the building and utilities. Two more classrooms will be added to the facility this year, increasing the school's capacity to 50 students by September 15.

The school receives no government funding and is not accredited by the state.

Even though the ratio may cause the school to eventually add yet another teacher this year, Smiley said he supports the 22-1 philosophy. "We feel smaller classes do help at those early grade levels," he said.

Little growth expected

The Era ISD had an average daily attendance of 212 last year — an increase of about one percent from the 208 ADA the year before. Smiley expects more of the same this year, as he projects an ADA of around 215 from kindergarten through grade 12. Although it is second only to Muenster ISD in geographic size, Era is the smallest school district in the county in the number of students in grades K through 12.

With all the additions this year, the school district's major problem remains obvious: Money.

"We're not in good financial shape due mainly to the cutbacks at the state level," Smiley said. "With the cost of additional teachers and the expense of state-mandated reforms, it's becoming quite a problem to work with the funds that are available."

The school district this year has a tax base of about $32 million — a 13 percent increase from last year — due mainly to new construction and updated appraisals. With a tax rate of $1.12 per $100 valuation, the district's budget last year was $927,000.

The financial picture isn't expected to get any better in coming years.

"Austin is forecasting doom like you would never believe," Smiley said. The school should receive about 90 percent of the projected $500,000 from the state this year, but could receive as little as 65 to 70 percent of the projected $504,000 for next year.

Smiley said the district could increase taxes from three to eight percent this year, and even more in future years, as funds from the state continue to dry up. "There isn't anywhere to go except to the taxpayers," he said.

The people in Austin are increasing the pressure for consolidation, he added. Declining state revenues for small school districts could eventually result in consolidation as the financial burden becomes unbearable.

"People have looked at me straight in the eye and said we lost the battle for consolidation," Smiley said. "Since they couldn't get it into law, they may try not to fund the smaller districts."

But even with less-than-rosy financial predictions, Smiley continues to look at the situation as a challenge rather than a curse. "We're not financially insecure, but we're looking daily to get the most out of our money," he said.

Faculty biggest strength

Smiley is in his third year as superintendent at Era. A native of Dallas, he earned his master's degree in education from Stephen F. Austin College. He taught science and coached at Cedar Hill for eight years, eventually becoming principal. He also served as assistant superintendent for instruction at Weatherford before coming to Era.

Era ISD is proud of its excellent 24-member faculty, good facilities, good support personnel and board members who have the school's best interest at heart, Smiley said.

"The strongest thing we've got out here is our faculty. They work hard to educate the students. Whenever a student is having problems, instead of lowering the rope, faculty members work with the student until he gets over the rope. There's no mediocrity here and no bending the rules," he said.

The staff will welcome five new teachers this year. They are:

— Lorri Beall, who will teach remedial reading and English as a second language. A graduate of ETSU, she taught for one year at Farmersville.

— Deean Black, who will teach computer literacy and math. A beginning teacher, she is a graduate of TWU.

— Sam Moore, who will teach social studies, serve as first assistant football coach and head basketball coach. He is beginning his teaching career after receiving his bachelor's degree from Stephen F. Austin.

— Donna Sikes will teach first grade. She received her degree from NTSU and formerly taught at Era for three years. For the past two years she has taught in Cleveland, Oklahoma.

— Ron Shaw will teach English and coach girls' volleyball, basketball and track. A 19-year veteran teacher, he received his master's degree from Stephen F. Austin.

Joining the support staff will be Darlene

Era school gets

by Elaine Schad
The Era campus has had construction changes galore in the past 18 months, but there is a new look just about everywhere at this small school which puts a lot of emphasis on individual attention.

Era will complete its third major construction project in the past 18 months as a new middle school classroom addition will be open when school starts. The new facility will contain two classrooms, restrooms and lockers, and will complement the new elementary building and agriculture barn which were completed last year.

"Our biggest problem two years ago was facilities, but we've really worked to turn that around," superintendent Dale Smiley said. Most of the improvements are part of a $500,000 bond issue passed by the school district's voters in June of 1983.

Reform impact felt
Era is no different from any other school in feeling the impact of education reforms mandated by the Texas Legislature in H.B. 246 and 72. When the doors open this September there will be additional teachers, more classes, new subject offerings and more electives than ever before.

"House Bill 246 focuses on trying to have a well-balanced curriculum," Smiley said. "In the past we've really concerned ourselves with reading, writing and arithmetic, but we haven't done much in the area of fine arts and foreign languages."

As mandated by law, Era will offer fine arts and Spanish for the first time this year. The school will also begin computer literacy classes, and industrial arts, which will include small engine repair and basic shop techniques, at the junior high level for the first time.

The state's education reforms have even changed the way a student will select classes.

"Before, we were so small everybody had to almost be on page 32 at the same time. Now a student can pick stronger or less academic courses," Smiley said. Students will have several academic plans from which to choose, but Smiley emphasized students will not be allowed to take remedial subjects unless they qualify.

Period added to school day
With the added electives and added class time, the school will be going from a six-period format to seven. Smiley doesn't think this will necessarily be an improvement, however.

"I'm not sure that we weren't giving as good an education in six periods as we'll be giving in seven," he said, noting the school will now be offering everything from drug to career education. "It's all important, but it's making a pretty full school day. We're fast approaching a saturation level as to what we can do in a seven-hour day."

With the additional curriculum changes, Era has added the equivalent of four full teaching positions to its staff, and will be offering an additional section of second grade this year. The new state requirement that grades kindergarten through second must have a student-teacher ratio of 22-1 may also cause problems before the year gets into full swing.

"We have 19 students that we know of in first grade, so we are staying with one teacher for the present time," Smiley said. He noted that he has been told state regulators will be very strict about the ratio. "If they see student number 23 on the roll for a single day, we could be in violation of our accreditation standards."

Walnut Bend enhances facilities

by Diane Hill
A new classroom, new library and an additional teacher top the list of changes students will find when they return to Walnut Bend school this fall.

A multi-purpose room that doubled as the library has been turned into a classroom and is ready and waiting for its fourth, fifth and sixth grade students. This change places the district in compliance with H.B. 72's 22-to-1 pupil-teacher requirement.

The library, also a requirement of H.B. 72, has been moved into a storage room, spruced up with new carpeting and is on its way to becoming a community-wide resource.

"We wanted to meet the requirements," superintendent Sharian Keeling explained, "but we also wanted to add something more." This something more centers around a library that will eventually contain a VCR and color television, and a special section where parents can check out books and tapes.

Keeling said she hopes to have the facility in "tip-top shape" by the end of the school year. Other changes include new cabinets in the classrooms and some general refurbishing.

Also in the works this year is a new policy on spring breaks. The concept, called "break Fridays," replaces the traditional spring vacation with a series of three-day weekends. This year, "break Fridays" will occur on March 7, 21, 28, April 4 and 11.

Walnut Bend has six professional staff members. Keeling, the district's chief administrator, is also an educator with 22 years of experience. She teaches seventh and eighth grade English and all of the school's music classes.

Keeling's husband Danny, also a 22-year veteran, serves as principal and teaches seventh and eighth grade. Gladys Anglin has 10 years of experience and is the kindergarten and first grade teacher. Diane Baugh, with three years of teaching behind her, handles the second and third grades.

After teaching secondary students in South Texas for 10 years, Brenda Pierce decided it was time for a change. Last year she worked as a teacher's aide at Walnut Bend, and then went back to school to obtain her elementary certification. This year she will be teaching the newly-formed fourth, fifth and sixth grade class.

Bettie Sieger rounds out the staff as teacher's aide and library helper. Her experience includes working with Gainesville's Head Start program.

Values plummet
The county's smallest school district lost over $14 million in tax values this year, dropping from $58 million to $43.8 million. The loss means it will take a tax rate of 33 cents per $100 valuation this year just to generate the same amount of revenue brought in by a 21-cent tax rate last year. The district will increase taxes the allowable three-percent, giving Walnut Bend a 1985-86 tax rate of 36 cents.

"We intend to be conservative in our spending," Keeling said. "We will use some of our reserves to come up with the needed funds, but we will not take anything away from the students."

Increases in the budget reflect just how much it costs to pay a new teacher, set up a classroom and outfit a new library. Last year, it cost $186,239 to run the school. This year it will take $215,899.

Walnut Bend was not always the smallest school system in the county. Keeling, looking through some old records in the county superintendent's office, found that the school had as many as 100 students in the 1950's. The number declined as the government bought up the district's land to use as a water back-up for Lake Texoma.

Luckily, size has nothing to do with quality. "Our strengths lie in our ability to meet the needs of the individual student," Keeling said. "We are concerned with the total child."

Students attending small schools do miss out on some of the extras such as UIL competitions and organized sports. But Keeling likes to tell both parents and students, "If you get the fundamentals and the basics, you can do anything you want to do in high school, and you won't have to worry about 'no pass-no play'."

Callisburg primes for TEA visit

by Diane Hill

Callisburg ISD will be facing a visit from the accreditation board of the Texas Education Agency as early as April 14 of next year. According to superintendent Larry K. Hawkins, the inspection may create some serious problems for the county's eastern-most school district.

"If we have an accreditation visit, we are really going to be written up for our facilities," Hawkins said. "They will definitely write us up for converting places like the stage and the dressing room into classrooms."

People in this rural community are working on their building problems, and Hawkins hopes to have a solution by the end of the school year. A Facilities Study Committee, appointed by the school board, has been asked to determine what the specific needs are and what can be done to meet them.

The committee is made up of a good cross-section of the community," Hawkins said. "We have people with kids in school and people who do not have kids in school. We have young people and old people, people from the north end of the district, people from the south end and people from the middle. All indications are that they are going to check us out very thoroughly and I welcome that."

Committee members include chairman Frank Carson, Bill Caver, Larry Corbett, William Cunningham, Don Henderson, Carolyn Hassell, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lira, Debbie Miller, Ike Thurman, Don Tooley, Larry Westbrook and Marilyn Woodridge.

Academics strong

"I feel Callisburg has a strong academic program," Hawkins said, "and we'll come through the House Bill 72 requirements pretty easily because we have always emphasized our academic program."

Hawkins feels Callisburg can meet the bill's 22-1 student-teacher requirement, but is unsure about the pre-kindergarten program, which schools are required to offer if enough students are eligible. To be eligible, a four-year-old must come from a non-English speaking and/or low-income household.

"If we have enough people eligible, we may have to request a waiver (from the state)," Hawkins said. "We won't have enough classroom space."

Although Hawkins believes everyone had trouble with the "no pass-no play" requirements of H.B. 72, he feels Callisburg did well last year. "We started implementing it at the first of the year, trying to get our kids accustomed to it." Even then, he noted, a few individuals were caught.

"I would like to see the eligibility changed to three weeks instead of six weeks," he said. "Right now, if a student is ineligible in one subject, it means he can't play anything for six weeks. That just about cuts out an entire season in any sport."

Values, taxes steady

Financially, Callisburg's losses due to declining oil values have been made up by an increase in home values.

"We are just about at the break-even point," Hawkins said. "What people do not realize is that we are holding our own. Last year and this year both, we had a lot of new construction and that offset a $7 million loss in oil values. But the losses are hitting us just like they are hitting everyone else in the area."

This year, Callisburg will be able to meet its budget and keep a tax rate of 65 cents per $100 valuation by dipping into reserve funds. The district's tax values have been set at $144.8 million. This year's proposed budget will top $2.4 million.

New faces on campus

The two-campus school system will welcome a number of new staff members this year, including a new athletic director and head football coach.

Former athletic director and head coach Gary Utler accepted a promotion to the principal's job in April, with responsibility for grades K-3 and 7-12 at the Callisburg campus. Gerry Langston, with eight years' experience is back at the helm of the Rad

Ware campus administering grades four through six.

Mickey Finley, a graduate of Angelo State University with 11 years' coaching experience, will take over as athletic director and head football coach. He came to Callisburg from Comanche.

Jim Price, a Gainesville High School graduate, will also be coaching at Callisburg this year. He received his bachelor's degree from Tulane University in New Orleans, and has been teaching at Waxahachie for the past five years.

Patricia Finley, wife of the new athletic director, will teach high school English. She earned her bachelor's degree at Angelo State and taught in Comanche before moving to Callisburg, and has 10 years' classroom experience.

to average grades every week, but we've been doing that all along."

"The rule is going to encourage a pretty good student to select easy subjects in order to remain eligible."

Hellman also has mixed feelings about the teacher competency examinations. "I don't think the tests are going to prove anything, but I'm not concerned about teachers passing in our district. I think it's going to be watered down, and I really think it's insulting," he said.

Since the test will not be given until March 10, Hellman feels teachers will be under an additional unnecessary strain. "I'd rather have them take it the first day and get it over with," he said. "I think it'll hurt the quality of teaching just because it's a threat."

The combination of good facilities and excellent teachers helps produce a good student, but Hellman said the parents play a vital role in education at Lindsay.

"The parents are concerned about the students and are really behind the school," he said.

The greatest strength of the district, the veteran superintendent feels, is in turning out people who go on to make contributions to their families, communities and to society. Lindsay, he said, has a relatively high percentage of students who continue their education in college; but those who seek employment immediately after high school do well also.

"The sum total is the product we produce," he said. "We're pretty happy with what we've got."

Hornets edge Chico

Muenster and Chico had a scoreless standoff in their scrimmage Friday, but the statistics favor the Hornets. That's how it looked to Coach Dewey Sims who says that MHS offense moved the ball well and held the opposition to very little progress.

Using the alternate twenty play systems, starting at the 30 and the goal 70 yards away, the Hornets sustained three drives for about 60 yards but failed to reach pay dirt. Once they ran out of the 20 play quota, twice they failed on a series inside the ten.

Defensively they allowed four first downs and did not permit the Dragons to cross midfield.

The report is equally good for the Hornet JV, especially on its second allotment of 20 plays. That drive went all the way. Likewise the defense held the foe to just a few gains. Considering that all JVs except one were freshmen their coaches are especially happy.

Three of the boys had to sit out the contests because of injuries, Shawn Flusche with a bad finger sprain, Dan Klement and Bubba Klement with pulled muscles. Sims said that all could have played in emergency but coaches preferred not to take chances.

Southlake Carroll next

A tougher test is ahead Friday when MHS hosts Southlake Carroll. Rated near the top of their AA district, the visitors are expected to have lots of power.

In lieu of an admission charge scrimmage spectators are asked to give soap and towels for the Hornet shower room.

MUENSTER ENTERPRISE SPORTS

Perrin wins over Tigers

Sacred Heart Tigers were second best in their first test of the year. They were outscored 2-0 at Perrin and lost possession on 5 fumbles and 1 interception while the opponents lost on only 2. Besides, according to Coach Jon LeBrasseur the Tigers made lots of other mistakes which are receiving attention all week as they strive for substantial improvement in their next scrimmage here Thursday, at 6 p.m. with Aubrey.

Sacred Heart made one sustained drive at Perrin and wasted it on a fumble inside the 10 yard line. The opponents made two good drives and finished both.

The Tiger standouts were Kevin Switzer and Richard Fuhrmann on defense, also Keith Hennigan and Ken Hesse on offense. Mike Adair and Tim Bartel were sidelined by injuries which are expected to be healed in time for the next action.

In hosting Aubrey the Tiger coaches expect a comeback team recovering from a couple of disappointing seasons. At the same time they are looking for their own comeback from last week's slow start.

Fans attending are asked to remember that no admission will be charged but donations of soap and towels will be appreciated.

Lindsay shines in first test of season

Though the scrimmage was one sided in favor of the Knights, Coach Grady Roller found some areas indicating that his Lindsay boys are not ready for the tough competitions.

Their principal shortcoming on offense was timing as blockers at times failed to give needed help to ball carriers. Defense, too, was below par, allowing the Bulldogs to make a number of gains, but holding them scoreless nevertheless.

The Knights were most impressive in their passing. They completed 17 of 22 for 260 yards and three touchdowns. Tim Carpenter scored on two of those for 40 and 50 yards and Leroy Hermes scored once on a short pass.

That was mostly the work of first stringers and second team also looked good. It scored once on an eight yard pass to Ralph Klement and once on a Four yard run by Rick Sandmann. The summary, in brief, is that Lindsay completed five drives while Alvord completed none.

Lindsay - Paradise Friday However, Roller makes allowance for the fact that Alvord is below par this year. He's expecting a considerable tougher test Friday when his Knights take on Paradise, which is rated fourth, just below Lindsay and Valley View in District 4-A, and second in the 4-A south zone. By then Roller expects to get a few kinks out of both offense and defense.

FARM & RANCH

Sept 30. is crop insurance deadline

SHERMAN — Sept. 30, 1985 is the last day to apply for crop insurance for wheat, barley and oats in Northern Texas counties, according to Bruce Hottel, district operator of the USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

Crop insurance covers unavoidable loss of production resulting from adverse weather conditions, wildlife, earthquakes or fire.

"Three coverage levels (50, 65 or 75 percent) are available for insurance protection. Additionally, FCIC offers three optional price elections for valuing production lost or damaged," says Hottel.

A new crop insurance plan, called Actual Production History (APH), is available this year to producers of wheat, barley and oats. Producers of these crops may now qualify for higher yield guarantees by proving their yield history. Rates have been developed to offer reduced premium for producers with above-average yields. "With the increased cost of producing a crop and the risk associated with adverse weather such as drought and hail, it makes good sense to take a look at this new concept," says Hottel.

To find out more about coverage and cost for wheat, oats and barley, contact a local authorized agent. As to the requirements necessary to establish a yield history for insurance purposes on each farm where wheat is to be grown, producers should contact their local ASCS Office prior to the final sign-up date.

Pecan field day October 31

ARDMORE, Okla. - Squirrels aren't alone delighting in pecans, a multi-million dollar cash crop for Oklahoma and Texas growers, but it seems fitting that an early-maturing pecan variety, Squirrels' Delight, will be used for a unique demonstration of shaking, harvesting, and field cleaning equipment on Oct. 31.

That's the date of the Pecan Harvesting Program and Demonstration Field Day being hosted by the Noble Foundation at its Red River Demonstration and Research Farm south of Burneyville, Okla.

Featured will be "pecan harvesting equipment of most of the major equipment manufacturers," George Hedger, horticulturist at the Foundation's Agricultural Division headquarters, said.

"All the equipment will be operating under actual field conditions," Hedger continued, "and also there'll be some harvesting with catching frames (umbrella harvesters)."

"What's so unique is that they'll actually be demonstrating in the orchard and they'll all be there at the same time," added Scott Landgraf, head of the soils lab and an irrigation specialist here. "To actually shake out the trees, pick up the pecans and run them through a handling system - it's just never been done before."

Hedger, Landgraf, and horticulturist Gordon "Dooley" Barlow have high hopes of attracting a good cross section of harvesting equipment manufacturers, as well as a strong turnout of growers and other interested onlookers at the free demonstration and field day.

Too, there's that element of growers being able at last to judge the merits of each piece of equipment operating side-by-side.

"It's our intent to let every grower make his or her own evaluation," Hedger said.

"There are always these questions (about comparing equipment)," Landgraf added, "(and) there will be different opinions when this is over. There's something about seeing them all work together."

Registration at the farm will start at 9:30 a.m., and the morning program will include discussion on management, harvesting, and handling pecans, as well as the success of an irrigation system installed on 120 acres of the farm's pecan orchard in 1984.

Throughout the afternoon, each equipment manufacturer will be allotted 30 minutes to demonstrate their equipment under actual field conditions and answer questions. A catered meal will be available at noon.

Persons wanting additional information about the Pecan Harvesting Program and Demonstration Field Day can contact Hedger, Landgraf, or Barlow at (405) 223-5810.

Craig Rosenbaum

County Agent's Report

The 1985 Texas pecan crop is estimated at over 80,000,000 pounds, but at least 20,000,000 pounds will shed between now and November. There are numerous causes of premature pecan drop. Some varieties such as 'Desirable' shed naturally. Poor pollination results in a drop from June through July. Planting several varieties helps reduce the poor pollination drop problem.

A small insect known as the pecan nut casebearer is the cause of pecan shedding at three different periods of the year; mid-May, July and on rare occasions in late August. This drop is easy to identify because there is a small hole in the base of the pecan.

In visiting with George Schmidkofer the other day, he expressed the need for hickory shuckworm control in prevention of shedding.

Water stress can also result in pecan drop. Ideally pecans should be watered every two weeks. Three weeks without water is the maximum.

Nutritional problems from shallow soil or poor fertilization can cause pecans to shed throughout the year.

Waterstage in later July and early August is the most common form of pecan drop. As the nuts move from size development into kernel formation, the pecan sheds very easily. Any stress received by the tree at this stage can result in major fruit drop. Some trees can lose up to one half of its crop if not properly managed during waterstage.

Pecan weevils can be a problem if we get a rain. Usually it will take a one half inch rain or more so it can soak into the ground and start the emergence. Watch for weevils after the rain mainly, but you can start checking now even though it is dry by limb bumping. Or, some people just plan a spray about three days after that good rain we hope we are going to get.

BIG ON SMALL FARMS.

Sole tractor on a small farm or chore tractor on a big farm. The Kubota L345 is a giant in its class.

Standard features on both the two- and four-wheel drive models include live rear PTO, draft and position control, power steering, and a 29 PTO h.p. 4-cylinder diesel engine. And it handles implements like a plow, cultivator, front loader, front blade, rear-mount mower and backhoe without a problem.

Compare the L345 tractor. You'll find it sizes up nicely.
