Sewing plant re-opens

Expects to employ 25 by year's end

After six weeks of silence, the sewing machines are humming once again at the former Jr. Elite garment manufacturing plant in Muenster.

It is a welcome sound. The plant, which once employed 75 people manufacturing designer dresses, closed down May 4 when the building ownership changed hands and the company pulled out of its lease. The new owner, Frybrant Industries, Inc., had not planned to begin manufacturing operations here for a year, but with the building empty they decided to speed things up.

Manager Bernice Sicking, who ran the plant for Jr. Elite, now has 11 workers making lingerie and loungewear for the Cameo label. The garments are not sold in stores, but through home parties much like Tupperware or Mary Kay cosmetics.

"I've really been impressed with these people," Stan Frederick, who along with his brother John owns the company, said Wednesday. "They know how to sew a quality garment — that's one of the reasons we decided to go ahead and open this plant. They're teaching us something about sewing."

Frederick said plans are to expand the work force here to about 25 or 30 people and operate at that level until the end of the year. In the spring, he hopes to double that number as contracts for garment work expire at other plants and more work can be brought into the Muenster plant.

"My brother and I have a farm near Bulcher where we're putting in a company retreat, to use as a training facility for our managers," Frederick said. "So we're going to be trying to move quite a bit of activity in this direction."

"But we're not in a hurry," he stressed. "We're long-range people, and it may take five years to get this plant back to where it was with the dress company. We're very conservative and we want the growth to be solid — we don't like retractions."

The company, headquartered in Dallas, was founded in 1970 by the Frederick brothers. They started with one woman selling in her home, and now have more than 10,000 in the U.S. and several thousand more in Mexico and Japan.

They own plants in Frederick, Oklahoma and Juarez, Mexico in addition to the one in Muenster, and contract work out to seven other plants.

The Muenster facility will send out its first full shipment this week. It gets the raw material in bulk, and do all the cutting and sewing to turn out a finished garment.

"This is new for everybody," Mrs. Sicking noted. "After doing dresses, I didn't know how it would be to switch over to lingerie, but everyone's learning and doing well."

The plant manager said former employees who want to be considered for jobs as they open should contact the plant and put in applications. All the people hired so far formerly worked at the dress plant.

"Things will really begin picking up next April or May," Frederick said. "Of course, if sales really exploded, that could make it pick up more quickly. We're always open to surprises."

Man indicted for pickup theft here

A 20-year-old Oklahoma man is awaiting extradition which would return him to Cooke County to face charges stemming from the theft of a pickup in Muenster last week.

Billy Richard Farnham was indicted Monday by a grand jury in Gainesville for theft over $750 in connection with the taking of a 1980 Chevrolet pickup belonging to Matt Paul Sicking of Muenster.

The pickup was parked in front of the Center Restaurant when it was stolen between 11:30 p.m. last Thursday and 12:30 a.m. Friday. Farnham was arrested around 3 a.m. by the Ardmore police in Oklahoma, driving the stolen pickup, which he had wrecked by running it into a ditch.

The wrecked pickup was recovered and returned to its owner in Muenster.

Farnham did not waive extradition, but proceedings were underway at presstime to return him to Cooke County to face the theft charge. Bond has not yet been set.

Also indicted at Monday's grand jury session were three Sherman residents, on charges of aggravated robbery June 19 in Gainesville.

Robin Marquette Gatewood, 24, Ronald Wayne Jackson, 24, and James Donald Mitchell, 32, were all named in the indictment. Bonds were set at $25,000 each.

The three allegedly held up the desk clerk at the Caravan Motel on I-35 in Gainesville a week ago Tuesday, threatening her with a knife. Bank bags from the motel's safe and the clerk's wallet were taken in the robbery.

One other indictment was returned Monday against Mary Jane Dabney, 25, of Gainesville. She was charged with misappropriating funds while employed at Peggy Sue's dress shop in Gainesville, and indicted for theft over $750. Bond was set at $2,500.

In district court, Charlie Manning pleaded guilty to two counts of aggravated assault in connection with stabbing incidents on February 13 and March 5 of this year. He was sentenced to two three-year terms in the Texas Department of Corrections, to run concurrently.

THE GEHRIG BOYS (l-r) Lucien, Mike, Ryan and Jason, contemplate a fireworks purchase as they plan to celebrate the Fourth of July. Police chief Helen Tompkins reminded residents that a city ordinance forbids the use of fireworks inside the city limits of Muenster. All fireworks should be handled with caution, she warns. An unfortunate fact about the presentation of news in these times is that so much of it is told by liberals whose minds are biased in favor of communism and whose reports, therefore, apply a blatant double standard.

The manipulation of news may reflect any of several causes all of which end in distortion of fact. One way is to depend on communist sources. Another is to maintain a biased disposition in which one side of a report is exaggerated while the other is played down. That is why atrocities committed by communists are all but ignored whereas lesser and fewer crimes by anti-communists are not. Rather they are seized by many American liberals as evidence of the "murderous" nature of non communist nations.

The situation is eloquently told in a recent cartoon of Conservative Digest. One scene portrays a Salvadoran killed by a left wing death squad. He gets no attention whatever. Nearby is a Salvadoran killed by a right wing death squad. He is surrounded by some half dozen media people obviously exploiting their discovery to the extreme. The contrasting scenes explain much of the contrast found in daily news reports.

Conservative Digest this month presents a number of cases of the liberal standard during some 40 years of history. In the winter and spring of 1940 when Poland was partitioned between Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia, Soviet troops killed some 10,000 Polish army officers in Western Russia's Katyn Forest. When President Roosevelt found out he dismissed the proof as Nazi propaganda and ordered news of the massacre suppressed.

Nearer to our time, in 1975, communist forces headed by murderous Pol Pot rebels overthrew Lon Nol's non communist government of Cambodia. The Cambodian communists killed some two to three million Cambodians before they were overthrown by Vietnamese in 1979.

American liberals and big media people largely ignored the massacre, many even denying that it happened. One of the liberal journalists wrote that none of the developments will apparently bear any resemblance to mass executions that had been predicted by Westerners.

The story of Afghanistan is another case. After invasion in 1979, Soviets have waged a constant war of genocide on the people. They have machine gunned helpless civilians, gassed and napalmed villages, captured teenagers for military training and indoctrination, and committed other atrocities.

SHANE WIMMER ... Muenster youth plays in movie ...

In "Jesse Owens Story" Boy gets movie role

by Bob Buckel

Thirteen-year-old Shane Wimmer is as American as apple pie — blonde-haired, suntanned, freckled and outgoing. Set to enter the eighth grade in Muenster this fall, he is starting to get tall and lanky like his father Larry.

So what's unusual about Shane?

Nothing, except that the producers of a television movie on the life of Olympic star Jesse Owens picked him to be an extra in their upcoming film, "The Jesse Owens Story," to be presented on KTXA, channel 21, July 11 and 12.

Like a lot of kids in Muenster, Shane looks the part of the ideal "Hitler youth" of the 1930's. His German ancestry gave him just the look the movie producers were seeking for a scene in which a youth work group removes a sign forbidding Jews to enter the Berlin Olympic stadium prior to the 1936 Games.

Shane, along with Keith Klement, Chris Klement, Jay Mollenkopf and Lyle Huchton, was suggested for the movie part by his school principal after the movie company — planning to film in Dallas and knowing Muenster was a German town — called the school.

"They just called the school principal and asked if he had any blonde-haired, blue-eyed boys, Pat, Shane's mother, says. "Shane and a couple of others went to Celebrity Studios in Dallas to try out. They were trying out for a speaking part, but the movie people wanted a German accent. That was difficult — none of these boys has a German accent!"

About a month after the tryout, the movie company contacted the Wimmers again. The speaking part went to a boy from California whose accent was more German and less Texan, but Shane got a non-speaking role and did a day's work in the movie business.

He received $40 and a steak dinner for his efforts, but he paid the price with an over-the-ears haircut.

"They just told us a few minutes beforehand what we were going to do, and then we went. Please see MOVIE, Page 2

Thieves get truck, bulldozer

Cooke County sheriff's deputies are investigating a $105,000 theft which occurred last weekend in Gainesville.

A tractor-trailer rig with a bulldozer on it was driven out of the yard of the Robert McElreath Dozer Service Co. sometime between June 23 and 25. The company's yard is located on Interstate 35 north of town.

The tractor is a 1977 White Freightliner, towing a 1979 Hyster lo-boy trailer with a D-6 Caterpillar bulldozer. Total value of the tractor, trailer and bulldozer was pegged at around $105,000.

The truck was apparently just driven out of the yard, where it was parked for the weekend. Deputies are still seeking leads in the case.

played down by the liberals as they focused criticism on El Salvador, South Africa and Taiwan.

Also in Nicaragua, the Sandinista reds have brutally oppressed Miskito Indians, 100,000 of whom had lived peacefully in the country until Sandinistas took over, killed the leaders and moved entire villages into concentration camps. The liberals paid little attention to this outrage and focused attention on the non communist government of El Salvador.

On the other side of the situation there was the incident of March 1968 when US troops reacted to Viet Cong treachery, with the massacre of some 100 men, women and children in what became known as the My Lai Massacre. The incident galvanized anti-war sentiment in the U.S. as liberals exploited it in their effort to end U.S. aid in Vietnam.

COMMENT

It was a tragic event but much less so than a massacre by the Viet Cong a month earlier of some 5,000 residents of Hue. Not one picture or story on U.S. TV, radio or press told about it, whereas the My Lai event was repeated over and over.

An event which has been highly publicized was the murder of three nuns and a social worker in El Salvador in 1980. Immediately, before any facts were established, the U.S. liberals accused the government or right wing death squads or both and the Carter Administration joined in the reaction by promptly suspending aid to El Salvador. Reagan's administration later restored the help. Still later four Savador soldiers were found guilty of the crime and legal action was taken against them. The murders were tragic but they could not justify the drastic liberal action in exposing three and a half million persons to Soviet backed terrorists. Both before and after the guilt was discovered liberals were out of line in making millions suffer for the crimes of four persons.

Modern history is packed with stories of the liberal double standard. In world events, in domestic politics, millions of people are being misled by slanted reports.

through it a few times and they shot it," he says matter-of-factly. "It was fun, and the steak was good. It was kind of scary coming back to Muenster with that haircut, though."

The shooting took place at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas in late March. Paramount Pictures, the company making the movie, chose the Cotton Bowl as the stadium most resembling Berlin's stadium in which the 1936 Olympic Games were held. There Jesse Owens, a black athlete from Columbus, Ohio, won four gold medals and dealt a fatal blow to Hitler's "master race" theories.

"They had the place all decked out with swastikas, and they had a bunch of double-decker buses and old-timey cars around," Larry says. "The scene Shane is in calls for these boys to go up and take down a sign. They just roll up in this panel wagon, two boys get out with ladders and start unbolting the sign, one holds the tools and the other — the one from California — talks to some the athletes."

"We don't even know for sure if it's going to be in the movie," he laughs. "It might have been cut. But they spent quite a bit of time working on it and filmed it three or four different ways."

In the scene, Shane is on the ladder nearest the camera. His dad says you can hardly recognize him in the military-style uniform and hat, and of course, the haircut.

The movie, a two-part series, deals with Jesse Owens' life as an ordinary man trying to live in a world that praised his athletic ability but held him at arm's length because of his color. It was shot in Dallas and Denton, as well as in studios at the Paramount lot in Hollywood.

Shane's part is small, and the youngster hasn't let all the attention go to his head. The most detailed comments in his diary account of the filming were about the steak, "big and juicy with potatoes and everything."

But the lure of Hollywood is there.

"Sure, I'd kind of like to be an actor," he says. "I don't think I'd have much of a chance, though."

You never know. Opportunities can be found in some of the most unusual places.

Dr. George S. Benson Looking Ahead

Who is responsible?

FOR UNTOLD millenia man has been struggling to be free. When he emerged from the dim mists of barbarism on his faltering climb toward civilization, he passed through the first societal state of slavery. From that time, thousands of years ago, to this very day man has fought for freedom.

Always there have been those who wish to control others, to manipulate, to regulate, to play God. And then there is the "Utopian Heresy," the endeavor to make life better — with a little bit of force — for those who can't see the wisdom of the leaders.

In the realm of political philosophy there are today but two choices: Individualism or Socialism. Individualism recognizes that the nature of man is to be free. Socialism is a mistaken Utopianism, based on a belief that life for man can be improved by a central authority, by planning and regulation, by coercion.

In the realm of economics there are also but two choices: capitalism or socialism — freedom in the marketplace or the coercion of the command economy.

Most of us realize that we are indeed privileged to enjoy a very high level of living in this country. But few of us realize the reason this has occurred. We tend to think it is because we are blessed with a land rich in natural resources. Or that we are a population of particularly intelligent people who are diligent workers. None of these is the reason.

The reason we are more affluent than most other people is because of our system of economic organization. Our climate of freedom, stemming from the American Revolution, led naturally to the adoption of a system of maximum individualism, maximum freedom in our economic system.

How fortunate we were that our ancestors opted for private enterprise, for capitalism, for this is the reason we have been so richly blessed.

Our free enterprise system has resulted in greater abundance for all precisely because it is the most efficient system for overcoming the age-old, world-wide problem of scarcity. But our system is under attack.

The ancient dream of Utopia manifested in modern times by Socialism, has made dangerous inroads in America. And we are suffering the consequences:

exorbitant taxes, inflation, unemployment, the myriad curses of any attempt to supplant freedom with coercion.

We are dangerously close to losing the real secret of America's greatness — to "killing the goose that lays the golden egg" by stifling the private enterprise system.

In a country based on individualism there is no agency charged with the responsibility of preserving the system. That responsibility falls on each individual. It is vital that we assume this duty, for as Henry Hazlitt has written:

"What is threatened, in fact, is no less than our present civilization itself; for it is capitalism that has made possible the enormous advances not only in providing the necessities and amenities of life, but in science, technology, and knowledge of all kinds, upon which that civilization rests."

"All those who understand this have the duty to explain and defend the system. And to do so, if necessary, over and over again."

Keeping faith...

SHE REFUSES to accept feminist explanations of the so-called "gender gap." She supports the President's positions on school prayer and tuition tax credits. She is interested in Central America, and Maureen Reagan has "pointedly not invited her" to lunch.

Those are among the criticisms aired recently in a Washington Post article about Faith Whittlesey, director of the President's Office of Public Liaison. "Anonymous White House aides" were quoted as saying that she had "crazy, right-wing ideas" and that she was "a disappointment" and "a loose cannon." The article reflected an apparent effort by moderate and liberal establishment Republicans in the White House to get rid of Whittlesey, who is (other than the beleaguered Ed Meese) the last Reaganite among the President's top aides.

Since Inauguration Day, 1981, the establishment Republicans led by White House Chief of Staff James Baker has systematically eliminated the President's longtime supporters from the inner circles of the Administration. Some they have fired, some they have harassed, and others they have simply pressured to leave; that's why, as The New York Times reported, the Baker faction was "cheered to watch the departure of William P. Clark to the Department of the Interior and at the prospect of (Ed) Meese's, to the Department of Justice."

As the number of Reaganites at the White House dwindles, the pressure increases on the few who are left. They are given a choice: get along with the moderates and liberals, or get out.

Banking on good health

IF CONGRESS doesn't act quickly, Medicare could go bankrupt in less than five years. That's not much time to fiddle around with inefficient remedies; the program helps pay hospital bills for more than 30-million Americans!

When Congress acted last year to bail out the failing Social Security retirement fund, it didn't even examine the related Medicare hospital fund — currently suffering from what might prove to be a terminal illness.

Medicare insurance pays most hospital bills for Social Security recipients. Initiated in 1966, it cost $3.4 billion its first year. Medicare now costs $36.1 billion annually — better than a ten-fold increase.

There are many factors contributing to the cost hemorrhage. People live longer and 2.2-percent more elderly are added to the Medicare rolls each year. The permanently disabled became eligible for Medicare in 1977. And there has been a sharp increase in medical costs in recent years. A May Reader's Digest article on the Medicare crisis reported that between 1967 and 1982 "the daily rate of a hospital room escalated 457 percent...at the same time newer and higher-priced diagnostic tests and surgical procedures have been prescribed with increasing frequency." According to the Congressional Budget Office the additional funds pumped into Medicare can't keep up with the escalating cost of hospitalization.

The time has come to find a cure for the ailing program.

One by one, they have left, to be replaced by persons who have little understanding of the issues that brought millions of Democrats and independents out to vote for Reagan in 1980. Not just in the White House, but throughout the government, the Administration is now filled with people who would fit in well under Presidents Nixon and Ford. As Washington Post Reporter David S. Broder wrote last year, "almost every replacement Ronald Reagan has made for a vacated major policy post has been someone who earned his reputation in the earlier Republican administrations."

That is why Faith Whittlesey is so important. She is a crackpot politician who rejects the traditional Republican goal of "losing as slowly as possible." She wants to win, and she knows how to do it: By building a government that reflects the philosophy of the American people. Ed Meese shares that view, but he is in political limbo while the Democrats try to dig up election-year dirt on him; Mrs. Whittlesey is next in line within the White House as chief advocate of the populist conservative philosophy.

Rare among the members of the White House staff, Mrs. Whittlesey's background is that of average, working-class Americans. Her father was a dock worker who never earned more than $100 a week; her mother worked menial jobs to pay for her kids' education. When Mrs. Whittlesey graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1963, she was told not to bother trying to get a job with a big law firm because they wouldn't hire a woman, so she taught school and worked in the welfare bureau in South Philadelphia and eventually became an assistant U.S. attorney.

While five months pregnant, she campaigned for a seat in the Pennsylvania legislature and won. Later, as chairman of the Delaware County Council, she fired 300 patronage workers rather than raise taxes. She delivered the defense plank at the 1980 Republican National Convention and served as ambassador to Switzerland before coming to the White House.

Faith Whittlesey, a widow with three children, is the kind of person more concerned about cutting taxes on working families than in bailing out big international banks. She is more interested in helping Joe's Garage than in helping the hapless management of certain auto companies.

You might think she is the kind of person the Administration would showcase, to prove that it is not a government run by pedigreed alumni of Harvard and Yale. Instead, the Bakerites who dominate the White House and the President's campaign have tried for months to replace her. They even dangled a judgeship in front of her to entice her to leave.

The President should thank his lucky stars for Faith Whittlesey and others like her who have remained loyal to him and to the principles that got him elected. They represent his only hope to break the liberal hold on the American political system, to forge a new majority to govern this country, and to rid the Republican Party of the habitual losers that have led it to defeat time and again.

Viguerie is president of the National Conservative Political Action Council, NCPAC, based in Virginia.

Recently, proposals for "privatizing" Medicare have begun surfacing. Though the very idea sends some people into knee-jerk-induced spasms, the plan deserves serious consideration.

One such proposal, by former White House analyst Peter Ferrara, proposes the use of "health-bank" individual retirement accounts (IRAs).

Under this proposal, workers would continue to pay taxes to fund the current Medicare program, but they would also receive tax incentives to establish voluntary health-bank retirement accounts. Over the years, funds that accumulate in these private accounts would be used to pay for private health insurance and other medical expenses during retirement.

This proposal could be the first step toward solving the current Medicare financial crisis. It would support the current system for the elderly without other medical insurance plans; it would provide health care for the poor; it would make the system equitable. Most of all, it would create a financially secure health-care system for retired people — at considerable savings to the tax-paying public.

Outsmarting The Bear.

When the bear's loose on Wall Street, large investors may worry. The bear is mean. But he can be outsmarted. Just join the Payroll Savings Plan and buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Bonds have a variable interest rate combined with a guaranteed minimum.

That means you get higher returns in a bull market and protection in a bear market. And that's a smart move.

Take stock in America.

Hess gets scholarship

Renate Ann Hess, a 1984 graduate of Muenster High School, is one of seven area students named to receive 1984-85 Faculty Association Scholarships at Cooke County College.

Hess, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Hess, ranked third in her class scholastically at Muenster High School and was president of the National Honor Society. She was also a class officer and was active in Student Council, FHA and band serving as majorette and drum major.

She will major in nursing at CCC and plans to eventually continue her education at Texas Women's University in Denton.

Awarded according to past academic accomplishments and demonstrated scholastic potential, the scholarships are stipends of $350 which recipients use to help with educational expenses.

"Competition for these awards was particularly keen this year," commented Ann Waggoman, chairman of the Faculty Association Scholarship committee. "There were many qualified and deserving applicants, and since scholarship funds are limited, we were given a real challenge in selecting the recipients."

"We congratulate these students and applaud their scholastic accomplishments. We hope this scholarship award will serve as an incentive toward continued excellence."

RENATE ANN HESS ... earns CCC scholarship ...

Three of the recipients will be returning to CCC this fall as sophomores, while the remaining four are graduates of area high schools who plan to enroll as freshmen at CCC this fall.

Other recipients of the 1984-85 scholarships include:

John Shasteen, son of John W. Shasteen of Whitesboro and a 1983 graduate of Callisburg High School, is a sophomore psychology major at CCC. Shasteen plans eventually to transfer to Texas A&M University.

Steve Wood, a 1975 graduate of Gainesville High School, is majoring in engineering and plans to continue his education at the University of Texas at Arlington after leaving CCC.

Lisa Smith, an elementary education major and graduate of Thackerville High School, is the daughter of Wesley Smith of Marietta, OK. Smith plans to complete her education at North Texas State.

Bobby Bratcher was also valedictorian of his 1984 graduating class at Thackerville High School. He is the son of Joe Bratcher and is majoring in mechanical engineering.

Valerie Bryant plans to study both computer science and medicine. She comes to CCC from Callisburg High School where she was salutatorian of her 1984 graduating class, and was active in FHA and recipient of several academic achievement awards.

Terri Higgins is an honor graduate of Gainesville High School. She is the daughter of Jack and Suzie Owensby and will be majoring in computer science and mathematics.

Recognized in high school for scholastic achievement and outstanding performance in speech and drama, Ms. Higgins also was a member of both junior and senior honor society.

According to Waggonman, the CCC Faculty Association Scholarship program was begun as a concerted effort on the part of the association to encourage high academic standards. The fund is supported by contributions from CCC faculty, administrators and staff as well as local area businesses and individuals.

Commissioners study notary insurance

Insurance for notaries who work in county offices was the top item of discussion in a not-too-lively county commissioners' meeting Monday morning.

The commissioners discussed whether "errors and omissions" insurance was needed for the county judge's secretary and other county employees who serve as notary publics, validating signatures on legal instruments.

County Judge Jim Robertson said his secretary sometimes handles as many as 15 or 20 such documents a day. The insurance would help protect her and the county from liability in the event someone's signature turned out to be a forgery or some other irregularity was found.

"I know these employees are bonded, but I think the bond covers a different area," Robertson said. "County officials are bonded, but we still bought a separate errors and omissions policy on ourselves. I know the laws are a lot stricter on notaries now than they used to be."

The commissioners agreed to check and see whether such a policy is needed for county employees. Robertson also asked county clerk Frank Scoggins to see if some of the deputies in his office might not also be able to serve as notaries, to help cut down the number of instruments his secretary has to handle.

The errors and omissions insurance costs about $19 per year for a notary, Robertson said.

Dealing with a short agenda, the commissioners also approved four bonds for the sheriff's office — two for reserve deputies and two for regular deputies — and okayed the purchase of a steno chair for Justice of the Peace precinct one, place one.

After paying the normal bills, the commissioners met in executive session.

"College for Kids" graduates 40 Youths complete program

Eight Muenster youths were among the forty who recently "graduated" from this summer's "College for Kids" program at Cooke County College.

Angela Endres, Janel Flusche, Noelle Hesse, Glen Swirczynski and Michelle Walter of Sacred Heart, and Jennifer Carroll, Douglas Evans and Lisa Robinson of Muenster Public School all took part in the program, which is sponsored by CCC's division of Continuing Education. The program is designed to provide young people with learning experiences that are significantly different from their normal studies.

This was the second summer for it to be offered.

"The response to College for Kids has been very gratifying," says Dr. Eddie Hadlock, dean of Continuing Education at CCC. "We definitely plan to continue it on an annual basis, and we hope to expand it considerably in the years to come."

College for Kids is open to talented students in grades six through eight who receive a written endorsement from their school principals. Criteria for eligibility include higher than average scholastic aptitude, grades and learning potential.

Because of these eligibility requirements, we feel that this program not only provides unique learning experiences for participants, but also serves as a means of giving special recognition to outstanding students," Dr. Hadlock says.

Participants are allowed to choose two courses of study from among a selection of seven which includes art, science of nutrition, creative writing, public speaking, botany, chemistry, and electing the presidents. All courses are taught by CCC faculty.

"Our overall aim in developing these courses was to broaden the student's base of knowledge, deepen understanding, increase skill levels, develop a love for learning and encourage initiative," Dr. Hadlock explains.

Other area students taking part were:

MRS. MONTY BROUSE

Muller, Brouse exchange vows

Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Bedford was the scene of the Nuptial Mass and double ring ceremony uniting Vickie Muller and Monty Brouse.

Father Ed Favilla officiated on June 16 at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Muller of Bedford and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hacker of Muenster and the late Mr. and Mrs. Matt Muller.

She is a graduate of L.D. Bell High School, attended Texas Tech University and is currently attending North Texas State University. In all her college work she has been on the Dean's List. She is also employed part time as counter help at Gerald Stavelly Martinizing.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brouse of Keller. He is a 1979 graduate of Keller High School, and is employed by Minyard Food Stores, Inc. as perishables manager.

Before an altar decorated with lighted candles and two large pink flower arrangements tied with pink bows and greenery, the bride was presented by her father. For her wedding she chose a formal white taffeta gown designed with a sheer overskirt. The fitted bodice was completely covered with pearls, beads and sequins. The lace sleeves were puffed to the elbow and banded with a narrow ruffle.

A very full, sheer wide ruffle edged the overskirt, sweeping into a chapel length train. A row of matching lace, with pearls and sequins sewn on by the bride, provided accent for the skirt and train.

Her fingertip veil was attached to a bridal crown and held scattered lace appliques.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of pink and mauve roses, carnations and daisies. In keeping with tradition, for "something old" she carried a rosary once belonging to her great-aunt Katie Hacker, and for "something borrowed" she wore diamond earrings belonging to a friend, Kim Autrey.

Attendants
Renee Muller of Bedford was her sister's maid of honor. Another sister, Debbie Lain of Bedford, and friends Mary Hedgpeh and Kim Autrey were bridesmaids. They wore suede rose colored formal gowns.

Erin Meyers was flower girl and Maurus Hacker Jr. of Muenster was ring bearer.

Mike Brouse of Keller was his brother's best man. Greg Brouse and Russell Brouse, also groom's brother of Keller and Richard Smith of Ft. Worth, a friend were groomsmen.

David Lain, bride's brother-in-law and Dale Muller bride's brother both of Bedford were ushers.

Steven Strittmatter and Michael Hacker, both cousins of the bride were Mass servers.

David Cloutier and Annette Taylor presented traditional wedding music.

The groom's father, Richard Brouse gave readings from the Old and New Testament for the wedding liturgy. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Schilling, bride's godparents brought the Offertory gifts forward.

Reception
A reception, formal dinner and dance followed in the Knights of Columbus Hall, hosted by the bride's parents for 200 guests. Denise Pelzel and Jeanna Strittmatter presided at the guest book.

A pink cloth with pink lace overlay covered the bride's table, holding a pink candle, bride's book, rose shaped rice bags and the bridal bouquet.

The three tiered white wedding cake laced with pink roses and the double-heart chocolate groom's cake were served by Jeanna Strittmatter, Denise Pelzel and Angela Hellinger, bride's cousins.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Vance Godby's in Fort Worth.

After a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the couple will be at home in Lewisville.

Among local relatives who attended were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. John Hacker of Muenster; also the Donald Pelzel family and the Jim Strittmatter family all of Pilot Point; the Maurus Hacker family of Myra; the Jerry Wilson family of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Walterscheid; Mrs. Hank Walterscheid; Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Yosten; Mrs. Alfons Walterscheid and Leon.

FOUR GENERATIONS were represented in the family reunion held on Father's Day last year for the Eckart family here. The celebration also commemorated the 84th birthday of Mrs. Margaret Eckart.

Eckart gathering compares '83 and '84

Father's Day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Eckart was observed quietly this year, with informal visiting, gifting and family members dropping in throughout the day. At noon most attended the community dinner in the Community Center.

Visiting during the day were Mrs. Alfons Koesler, Mrs. Bill Black, Mrs. Dale Hofbauer, Mrs. Bernard Hesse and Betty and Bob Simmel; also Steve Eckart, Don Eckart, and Jim and Dee Eckart. Jerry Eckart was on vacation and missed the family gathering.

The day was quite a contrast to the family reunion in 1983, when the above picture was made by Janie Hartman. Held on Father's Day in the VFW Hall, the dinner and gathering also observed the 84th birthday of Mrs. Margaret Eckart, and the first family reunion in 40 years, attended by 61 relatives. Father Steven Eckart celebrated the special Mass and Father Placidus Eckart, a cousin also attended.

Included in the family reunion were the following and their families representing four generations: Mrs. John (Margaret) Eckart, Katherine Eckart Parque of San Gabriel, Ca., James and Angeline Eckart, the Alfons Koeslers, the Bernard Hesses, the Dale Hofbauers, the James Yostens, the Duane Knabes; Don, Steve and Jerry Eckart all of Muenster.

The Bill Blacks of Myra; the Robert Simmels and the Jeff Simmels of Pilot Point; the Albert Eckarts of Okla. City, the Bill Eckarts of Bethany, Okla., David Eckart of Norman, Cindy Chiles and the Gilbert Eckarts of Okla. City.

Also the Leo Eckarts of Paris, Ark., the Joe Prangers of Lewisville and Debbie Eckart of Tulsa.

Schillings play host to California visitors

Jerry and Helen Stelzer and Frank and Barbara Kortecamp of Los Angeles came to Muenster for several days this week, to visit relatives and friends after attending the VFW State Convention in Amarillo June 20-24. The Kortecamps went to Duncanville to visit his daughter.

Registration July 7 for swimming class

Registration will be held Saturday, July 7 at the Municipal Pool in Muenster for everyone wishing to take part in this year's swimming classes.

According to Jeannene Flusche, director of the program, the only requirement for taking part in the classes is completion of kindergarten and a signed permission slip from parents or guardian. A form is included with this article.

"Everyone should know how to swim," Mrs. Flusche said. "Statistics show that over 60 percent of drowning fatalities involve people who accidentally find themselves in the water. Swimming should be a prerequisite for participation in aquatic sports such as boating, sailing, canoeing, water skiing, surfing, and skin and scuba diving."

Registration for the local classes will run from 9 to 11 a.m. at the pool.

This year's course will be taught in two sections, one during the week of July 9-14 and the other from July 16-20. The first week, classes will begin at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. The second week, classes will begin at 10 and 11 a.m. with the 9 a.m. hour reserved for adults and swimmers.

The registration period will be for the purpose of assigning students to the first or second week and also to class hours, so that classes can start without delay on the following Monday. Those registering should wear swimsuits, as they will be tested for ability and assigned to a class in either the beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate or swimmer level.

Those with more questions may contact Mrs. Flusche at 759-4497.

She added there is a need for teachers in the program. They must be willing to donate their time and energy for the benefit of the children.

"The program especially needs instructors to assure the safety and quality of the lessons," she added. "Without good volunteers we cannot continue offering these classes."

"The task of water proofing America is a major challenge for the Red Cross," Mrs. Flusche added. "More than 100 million Americans each year engage in some form of water-related recreation, and many millions of that number can't swim, or swim so poorly that they are in danger of drowning."

"A majority of drownings occur because people violate or ignore good safety practices. The growth in aquatic sports indicates the importance of proper training in swimming and water safety."

COOL, WET FUN was available at the city pool in Muenster this week, as this youngster knows. Swimming lessons at the pool begin July 9.

Do you have an investment that can

Double in 6 years
Triple in 9½ years
Quadruple in 11 years

Zero Coupon Bonds from Prudential-Bache Securities can. How? Zeros are purchased for a fraction of their face value. And instead of paying interest periodically, the interest is automatically reinvested and compounded over the life of the bond. The effects of this compounding are quite dramatic. For example, a $350 initial investment would grow to $1,000 in as little as 9½ years.

Zeros are especially attractive for retirement planning and funding your children's education. To learn more call Kenneth Floyd at 817-759-2725 or 817-665-7612 or stop by our office at 800 E. California, Suite 9.

Steady growth is trademark

A decorated pilot during two tours of duty in Viet Nam, Earl "Rusty" Russell now specializes in helping investors to avoid getting shot down in today's volatile stock market.

Russell runs the Gainesville office of Edward D. Jones & Co., a Wall Street investment firm noted for its steady growth and sound management practices. The office is located in the First State Bank building on East California St.

"I believe in conservative investments that are high quality," Russell says. "We are currently offering some government-backed bonds that have a 13 percent rate and pay monthly, and we have some insured tax-free investments that are at 10-and-a-quarter and also pay monthly. We look for things that are either insured or guaranteed."

Russell is a 1966 graduate of Kansas University with a degree in business and finance. He received an ROTC commission and was a fixed-wing aviator in Viet Nam, earning two Distinguished Flying Crosses, a Bronze Star and 21 Air Medals while accumulating some 1,600 hours of combat flying. He retired as a Captain and is currently a Major in the Army Reserve.

After 10 years in commercial and residential real estate brokerage, Russell left his own firm in Manhattan, Kansas and joined Jones & Co. in 1981. He moved to Gainesville with his family the next year.

Russell recently was selected to attend a seminar on retirement planning hosted by the financial services department of Jones &

Co. at the firm's corporate headquarters in St. Louis, Missouri. He was one of only 20 investment representatives from throughout the U.S. chosen to attend the conference.

The purpose of the meeting was to familiarize the representatives with recent changes in tax laws regarding business retirement plan opportunities.

Seminar topics included Simplified Employee Pensions (SEP/IRA), Defined Contribution and Defined Benefit Plans for the self-employed and for corporations, and instructions for providing tax deferred handling of distributions received by individuals when leaving a company plan.

The company was founded in 1871, and has grown since then to serve more than 694 communities in 34 states. The firm's registered representatives sell traditionally low-risk securities including federal tax-exempt bonds, government and corporate bonds and trusts, mutual funds and common stock of companies with histories of solid growth and sound management.

"I believe investors should stay diversified and not put all their eggs in one basket," Russell says. "It's well-documented that over the years a person who invests in a prudent, conservative manner will greatly out-perform those who go for the short-term, risky type of investment."

"The investment opportunities that exist right now are as good as they've been in years," he added. Russell and his wife, Jan, have one son, Lee, age 14. Jan is also a graduate of Kansas University, and holds a degree in interior design from Kansas State as well. She does design work by appointment, working out of her office in the Vinyard at Gainesville.

Branch office administrator Jacki Budlong has been at the Jones & Co. office in Gainesville nearly two years. The office is on the third floor of the First State Bank building, phone 759-4942 in Muenster or 665-0351 in Gainesville.

Stenholm announces Business hearings

District 17 Representative Charles W. Stenholm has announced that the Small Business Committee will hold two field hearings in Dallas-Fort Worth and Abilene in July.

The meetings will be held to gain input into specific problems facing today's small businessman, Stenholm said.

"We are trying to form an agenda of the problems facing small businessmen in our region and in our nation. We'll then use the information, ideas and criticisms from these hearings in preparation for the 99th Congress."

Stenholm (D-Stanford) will be joined at the hearings by Cong. Tom Vandergriff (D-Arlington) and Ike Skelton (D-Missouri). The DFW hearing will be conducted by the Export Opportunities and Special Small Business Problems Subcommittee. The meeting will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. July 10 at the DFW Regional Airport in the boardroom of the Administration Building.

The building is located on East Airport Drive at the south entrance of the airport.

The Abilene meeting will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. July 11, in the River Oaks Room of the Kiva Inn on West Highway 80. This hearing will be conducted by the Subcommittee on Energy, Environment and Safety Issues Affecting Small Business, Stenholm said.

"We expect to deal with current issues such as Small Business Administration loans and procedures, exports, the Chapter II bankruptcy laws, telephone access charges, energy industry concerns and OSHA safety standards for grain elevators and feed mills at both hearings," Stenholm said. "But we are open for any other problems businessmen are facing."

Individuals interested in testifying or attending the hearings should contact Elaine Talley at Stenholm's district office in Abilene at (915) 673-7221.

"We want witnesses," he said.

It pays to topdress pastures.

Pastures are too often overlooked in an otherwise comprehensive fertility program. The fact is, proper fertilization of pasture will greatly increase meat and milk production. You'll see faster weight gain, more pounds of gain per acre, a longer grazing season and greater carrying capacity. It can also dramatically increase your milk production. Begin with a soil test. Then apply the fertilizer shown to be needed. Add lime, if your soil is found high in acidity. Let our Fertilizer Specialist help you. He has the know-how and we have the materials. Come see us soon. We're ready when you are.

County Agent's Report

Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Cooke County. Spring hatch usually begins the first week of May. Insecticide control is most effective in late May and early June when the bagworms are small. Earlier in the week we were in Muenster and found bagworms just beginning to make their cocoon. So insecticides applied now should have a good chance to kill some of the crawlers.

In the spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves. Soon they begin to construct their own protective bag of silk, twigs, and leaves, making them camouflaged and hard to see. As the larvae and their bags continue to grow, control becomes more difficult.

Bagworms feed throughout the summer months and their bags can eventually become 1 1/2 inches long. In the fall, the bagworms mature into adults, mate, and the females lay eggs inside their bags. The eggs overwinter in the bags on trees and shrubs with each containing from 500 to 1,500 eggs.

Since the bagworm only completes one generation a year and spreads very slowly from plant to plant, picking the bags off infested plants in the winter will help in reducing populations of this pest. If bagworms were present on a plant last year and control measures were not applied, chances are very high that control measures will be needed this spring.

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include dursban, diazinon, dylox and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control apply the insecticide when bags are small. Thorough coverage of the foliage is important and as always, read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.

Sooty mold is a fungal disease frequently occurring in the spring on evergreen shrubs such as azaleas, camellias, laurels, gardenias, ligustrum, and other ornamental plants.

The mold is a black, powdery coating that develops on leaves and twigs during cool, moist cloudy weather. There are several fungi that grow in the sugary honeydew left on plants by insects such as white flies, scale insects, leafhoppers and aphids. Also, this honeydew or sugary substance may occur on lower shrubs on which insects are not feeding simply by falling from large shrubs and overhanging limbs or trees.

The fungi that cause sooty mold do not directly attack plants but derive their nutrition from the honeydew itself. This can destroy the beauty of plants if the mold concentration is heavy enough to shade out light, causing plants to become yellowed and stunted. These fungi will also grow on honeydew which has fallen on walls, sidewalks, fences and automobiles.

Control of sooty mold is indirectly achieved by controlling the honeydew-producing insects.

Several insecticides are available to control these sucking insects. Select a material recommended for use on the plant to be treated. Insecticides may have to be applied periodically throughout the growing season, depending on the insects to be controlled and the plant on which they are feeding. Follow label direction carefully as to the use of these materials.

Once sooty mold has become established, it is not easily removed. Generally the mold will gradually disappear after the insects have been controlled.

energy answers

from the Texas Energy

Extension Service

We are building a home and are interested in installing ceiling fans. Is this a smart idea? What recommendations or general guidelines do you have? Also, where are the best rooms to install them? C. A., Edinburg.

Ceiling fans are a practical energy-saving idea for both new and existing homes. The fans will allow you to postpone air conditioning during milder seasons when circulating air is all you need to be comfortable. During the summer when you really need air conditioning, the ceiling fans will allow you to raise the thermostat on the air conditioning system 2 to 4 degrees higher (depending on the humidity level) and still maintain the same level of comfort.

Ceiling fans are best installed in rooms which have frequent use. Bedrooms and family living areas are typical locations. The fan should be sized correctly to fit the room. Bedrooms typically use the 38-inch blade size, while family rooms and dens usually require the 52-inch blade size. In very large rooms, you may want to use two 38-inch sizes to cool the room evenly.

When selecting the fans, make sure you select models that have at least two forward speeds.

For more information on fans of all types, ask for the Fans factsheet available free from the Texas Energy Extension Service office at Texas A&M University.
