Deadline for taxes is Feb. 1

Property owners in Cooke County are reminded that taxes become delinquent on February 1 for the county, cities, hospitals, college and all school districts.

Pat Dennis, chief appraiser for the Cooke County Tax Appraisal District, said all property taxes are due by the close of business January 31 (next Thursday). After that date, a six percent interest charge and a six percent penalty will be added, and the interest charge will increase one-half percent a month until the taxes are paid.

"We will accept mail postmarked on January 31 or before, for the first few days of February," Dennis said. "Otherwise,

As the new administration and the new session of Congress go into business we hear lots of comment on how they will tackle their major job, that of reducing the nation's enormous deficit. There are suggestions about reducing expenditures by the two-fold method of freezing many budgets at their current level and also by reducing some programs and eliminating others.

Likewise Uncle Sam expects to increase federal revenue by increased tax from an upturn of wages and business resulting from a reduction of tax rates. This latter method has served that purpose before as a tax reduction was followed by an improvement of the economy.

The prevailing idea is that the combination of the two debt relief factors will have strong public appeal. Though generally objecting to the personal sacrifice involved in spending cuts, average people are mostly co-operative when they think the belt tightening is shared by all.

Still more possibilities are proposed in phasing out or totally eliminating government programs. Careful studies reveal thousands of improved efficiencies by combining one agency with another or by trimming down overstaffing.

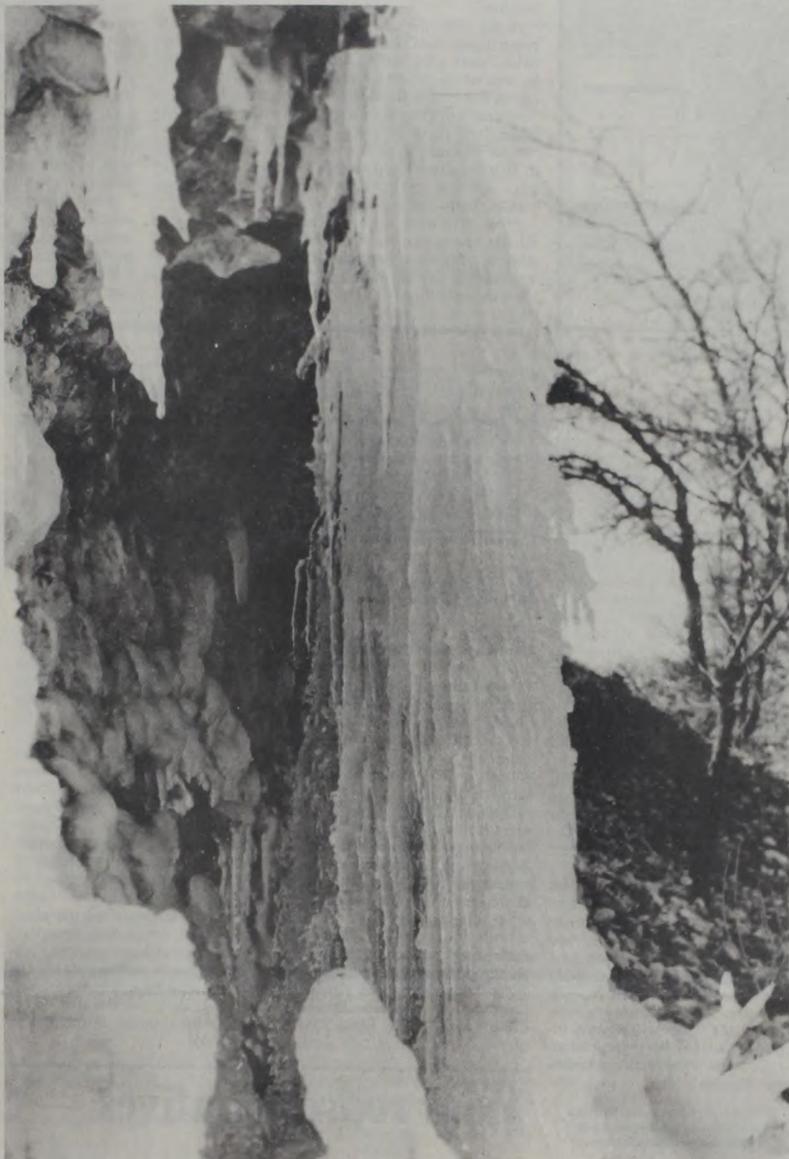

All of those ideas point to fiscal recovery, which can get additional help by converting some of the country's enormous assets into cash. That idea is offered by Richard Viguier of the Conservative Digest. He visualizes millions of acres of government owned land plus thousands of government owned buildings that are unused and doubtless would be very attractive to private or corporate investors. Furthermore, after purchase they could be developed into prosperous businesses.

Possibilities in that kind of sales could be enormous. Starting with their take-over of the property they would become taxpayers by hiring people to remodel and organize. Next they would start paying tax on the goods and services they produce. And from the beginning they would serve in two ways by creating taxpayers while reducing unemployment rolls.

This doesn't necessarily mean that Uncle Sam is urged to sell out as a property owner, but rather to convert some of the properties into assets whereas they are only liabilities now. Incidentally, those properties also involve sizeable burdens in the form of maintenance and management expense — another area where federal costs could be cut.

As regards the extent of federal property holdings, Viguier reveals there are approximately 744 million acres in land, nearly a

State money worries touch CCC operations

by Bob Buckel

"Devastating" is the word Cooke County College president Dr. Alton Laird uses to describe the possible effect of state budget cuts on the Gainesville junior college.

With the state of Texas facing a funding shortfall in the neighborhood of a billion dollars, legislators now working in Austin are looking at state colleges as an area where major cuts can be made. One proposal has suggested a level of funding that would give junior colleges just 71 percent of the state money they received during the last two-year period.

For Cooke County College, that would mean $566,490 less this year and $477,714 less next year.

A cut that size would have a tremendous impact on Cooke County College's total budget of $4.8 million, possibly forcing cutbacks in programs and personnel, a hike in tuition and an increase in local taxes for the college.

"We've already raised tuition to $8 an hour (the state minimum is $4), budgeted into meager reserves two out of the last three years, reduced faculty and administrative personnel and held salaries to a deplorably low level in an attempt to operate effectively," Laird said. "When you start talking about a $600,000 cut out of a bare-bones budget — we're going to be hurting."

The funding proposal, laid on the table in December by the Legislative Budget Board, would provide $1,976,562 for Cooke County College in the 1985-86 school year — down from the $2,543,052 they are receiving this year and well below their requested $2,783,890. In 1986-87, it would give the school $2,095,338 instead of a recommended $2,951,181.

The state funds are used almost exclusively for salaries at CCC, and salary costs make up about 65 percent of the college's budget. Thus, any cutback in state funds would almost surely result in personnel cutbacks at the college.

In their meeting last week, the college board of trustees voted to suspend a policy which requires them to notify by January 20 any employee whose contract is not going to be renewed for that year.

"They're adopting a 'wait and see' attitude," Laird said. "We really don't have any choice. No one knows what the legislature is going to do. We wouldn't want to be in the position of giving someone a contract and not being able to honor it."

Laird met with CCC faculty members last Tuesday after the board's action, explaining the funding situation and the college's options.

"We can cut programs, lay off people, freeze or cut salaries or increase taxes on the local level," he said. "We have to take a look at every option that will allow us to make up that $566,000 or at least part of it."

"We're certainly not looking at this as an opportunity to get rid of faculty members," he added. Laird said the faculty was "disappointed, but understanding" when he advised them of the possi-

Man sentenced for DWI death

Gets six-year prison term

A nearly five-year flight from justice ended Friday in Gainesville when Rogelio Solis pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six years in prison for involuntary manslaughter.

Solis, 46, was the driver of a car which killed Anna S. Sandmann, 79, in Lindsay on February 20, 1980. The head-on collision occurred on FM 1199 at Parkview Drive as Mrs. Sandmann was north-bound two blocks south of Highway 82.

Solis was arrested at the scene and charged with driving while intoxicated. Also injured in the wreck, he was hospitalized at Gainesville Memorial Hospital, and while there he managed to escape by crawling out a window.

While a fugitive, Solis was indicted by a Cooke County grand jury in September of 1981 for involuntary manslaughter. He remained at large until August of last year, when he was arrested in Austin on a charge of public intoxication. The next month, sheriff's deputies brought him back to Gainesville to stand trial.

Friday, Solis pleaded guilty to the charge and was handed a six-year prison sentence by District Judge Larry Sullivan. The range of punishment for the offense is two to 10 years.

Four others plead
Four other guilty pleas were heard in district court during the last few days, three of them Friday and one Monday.

Matt Wayne Matthews, 24, pleaded guilty Friday to forgery in connection with a November 20, 1982 incident.

Matthews admitted to writing a check for $125 on the account of

Valley View board okays construction

Valley View school trustees Monday evening signed a contract with Akins & Redfearn Construction Co. of Aubrey for $390,000 — the pricetag for the school's new vocational wing.

The contract signing ended a month of cost-cutting and negotiation that has gone on since trustees opened the original bids on the job December 20. At that time, four bids were all found to be "too high" according to superintendent Bert Glascock.

The four bids at that time were: BJ Construction Co. of Gainesville, $426,771; Akins & Redfearn, $427,336; Gainesville Construction Co., $471,720; and Trencon, Inc. of Duncanville, $503,300.

The board rejected all four bids and went back to the architect's specifications, cutting costs by changing plumbing fixtures and other items. Cost-cutting brought the pricetag down to $404,000 — still $14,000 above the school district's maximum of $390,000.

After trimming the project as much as they could in a meeting January 9, the trustees went back to the lowest bidder to allow them to offer to do the job for $390,000. BJ Construction said they could not and the board began talking to the second-lowest bidder, Akins & Redfearn.

"He said he could do it for that if he can make it up in time," Glascock said. "In other words, if he can get after it, get through and move on to another job, he can still make money — but if he gets

Grand jury indicts nine in Tuesday session

A Cooke County grand jury indicted nine people Tuesday, with two of those indictments sealed. Two other cases on the jury's docket were passed.

Indicted were:
— Mark Forster of Colleyville, for theft by check in connection with a September 7 incident last year when a check for more than $750 was given to J.C. Harper, auctioneer, here. Forster's bond was set at $2,500.

— Garrett Banks, 70, of Gainesville, for aggravated assault in connection with an incident last Friday in Gainesville. Bond was set at $2,500.

Hong Kong precedent

IN A brief ceremony in China's Great Hall of the People, British Ambassador Richard Evans and Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Zhou Nan recently signed an historic accord, spelling out in detail how the Chinese intend to govern Hong Kong when Britain's long rule ends in 1997.

The agreement was the result of much painstaking negotiation, initiated by the British in an effort to assure investors and residents of the British crown colony that the end of the British rule isn't the end of the world.

The British have governed the territory for more than 140 years. Hong Kong island was ceded to the British in 1842, under the Treaty of Nanking ending the Opium War. Kowloon Peninsula was leased to the British in perpetuity in 1860, as part of the Treaty of Peking. The New Territories, the largest of the three land areas which comprise modern Hong Kong, were leased to the British for 99 years under the Peking Convention of 1898. The treaty expires on July 1, 1997, and the Chinese made it clear that they had no intention of extending the lease.

Faced with such a reality, the British went to the negotiating table.

The agreement that was signed by Evans and Zhou certainly would appear to be precedent-setting. Under the agreement, the Chinese promise Hong Kong "a high degree of autonomy, except in foreign and defense affairs."

The Chinese promise to keep hands off Hong Kong's capitalist economy for at least fifty years. The forty-two-page document also promises Hong Kong's residents a variety of freedoms that are unheard of on the mainland: freedom of speech, press, assembly, religion, association, the right to own property, travel freely, the right to strike. And much, much more.

There is a catch, however. There is nothing to guarantee that the Communists will keep their word.

Certain opinion-leaders in the West have started pointing to the Hong Kong pact as a model for the Chinese to use in luring the wayward Taiwanese back into the fold.

Undoubtedly, this means there will be great pressure on the Nationalist government of Chiang Ching-kuo to follow the lead of the British and sit down at the bargaining table with the "enlightened" leaders of Peking.

It's the kind of pressure, if coming from Washington, the Taiwanese will find difficult to resist.

But resist they should. Not because unification of China is necessarily a bad idea. But because common sense says the euphoria over the Hong Kong pact is a big premature.

The Republic of China on Taiwan would be well-advised to do what the Chinese are known to do so well: be patient. So too should Washington be patient.

Making promises is easy; living by them is far more difficult. And we're decades away from knowing whether the Chinese have any intention, or perhaps every intention, of delivering on the promises they've made.

State Capitol Highlights

AUSTIN—Texas Legislators heard the governor urge them to raise fees but not taxes in his State of the State address on Tuesday, then many attended the funeral of former Gov. Allan Shivers as the session ended its first full week.

Meanwhile, the Republican Party revealed its plan to convert 15 Democratic House members, and the latest political contribution reports indicate two statewide offices held by Democrats are now vulnerable.

The hottest political revelation of the week came when former House Speaker Bill Clayton confirmed he was considering running for governor in 1986 as a Republican. Clayton, who served an unprecedented four terms as a conservative Democrat speaker, said anyone considering a statewide race, "must look at it both ways."

Clayton, who now works as a Capitol lobbyist, was the subject of a support letter recently mailed on his behalf by an oil and gas operator. The former speaker played down the publicity last week, but didn't say no.

Meanwhile, colleagues speculated how eager Gov. Mark White would be to sign bills pushed by Clayton during this session, wondering if he would be facing Clayton on the campaign trail. Clayton was among several gubernatorial appointees recalled by White when he first took office in 1983.

Fees Boosted

Legislators collectively breathed sighs of relief last week after the governor presented his budget which boosts "user fees" by $184 million, but does not raise taxes.

Behind the relief, however, is a certain cynicism about Mark White which is plainly evident in legislators. Although White campaigned on a "no new taxes" theme, once in office he forced lawmakers to pass a record tax bill which contributed to the defeat of many Democratic House members.

Now, six months later, he is preaching no new taxes again, but it's after the House leadership laid down that line, backed by new Republicans in the ranks.

Senate Skeptical

Over in the Senate, leaders expressed skepticism that White's proposed budget could be funded without tax increases.

Senator John Traeger of Seguin predicted a raise in the sales tax from 4 1/8 cents to 4 1/2 cents. Carl Parker of Port Arthur, openly supported a tax hike to support educational and social programs.

New president pro tem Sen. Ray Farabee said White's budget couldn't be realized solely on the basis of cutting spending in other areas and raising some fees. Farabee will most likely support the budget proposed by the Legislative Budget Board.

House Is Anti-Tax

House members were more gracious towards White's budget, but it's because they have confidence in their chamber's fiscal resolve.

Speaker Gib Lewis handed out committee assignments, giving Republicans about one-third of the chairmanship. He also stacked the powerful Ways & Means Committee, chaired by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, with anti-tax votes, including seven Republican members.

The makeup of the committee means a tax bill will get through the first "gate" only with great difficulty

Mauro, Hiring Freeze

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced his office has raised an additional $27.7 million to go into the fund for public school children, which helps lawmakers avoid a tax hike.

A hiring freeze by state agencies is also being implemented voluntarily, and so far Comptroller Bob Bullock and Treasurer Ann Richards have joined it. Bullock said he will fill only one out of every four vacancies. The University of Texas also responded and even added a salary freeze.

Dollars Await Taxing Units

Meanwhile, Bullock has issued an "all aboard" call for local government taxing units to be included when he distributes a projected $58 million from the first year's revenue of the new corporate franchise tax on banks.

The new bank franchise tax replaces the old local bank stock property tax which was declared unconstitutional. Bullock will allocate the franchise money back to every local tax entity where each bank is located—but only if he knows who and where they are.

Bullock found it easy to list the counties, cities and school districts, but he fears that many small special districts—such as water districts, hospital districts and the like—are missing from the estimated 3,900 taxing jurisdictions in the state. Any taxing unit which has a bank in its territory should contact the Comptroller's Tax Administration Division.

Just for the joy of it

I'll never forget the shot: I was sitting in a chair down the baseline, out of bounds, leaning back against the back wall of the old boys' gym at the high school. Jim said go ahead, and I let go a two-handed chest shot halfway thinking he would launch a ball and knock it off-course in mid-air.

He was above that, though. He let it go and it swished — no, it sang — through the net. A 30-foot two-hander from a sitting position outside the baseline.

Along with the crack of a solid wood bat on a baseball and the thud of a well-punted football, that swish, when a basketball slides through a net, has to be one of the sweetest sounds in all of sports. It comes right back through your fingertips and down your arms, tingling your neck and patting you on the backside. It makes you smile.

Sports should be all about smiling. I was reminded of that the other night when I went with a bunch of guys out to a rural gym to engage in some serious pick-up hully-gully smiling basketball.

Most of us were just out there looking for sweat in all the wrong places, set to have a good time and disturb a few sleepy muscles. Don't get us wrong — we were playing hard, and some long-hidden talents were showing through despite the years.

But we weren't out for blood. We weren't frustrated high-school jocks still trying to prove we could play better than the guys down the road.

There was one kid, though, who wasn't with us, who thought he was God's gift to basketball (and probably had been, at one time).

The guy was a pain in the benchwarmer, if you know what I mean.

It was alright, because there was only one of him and the rest of us were pretty cool. I've been in games where there were several like that, and I'd just as soon jog laps around the bleachers.

I guess the desire to win-win-win is behind a lot of great achievements in our society, the pushing, driving force that has made America powerful.

Or is it? There's just a chance that some of the greatest achievements in history were things done just for the joy of doing them. Did the Wright Brothers want to start an airline and get rich, or did they just want to fly like birds, for the freedom and fun of it?

What does that have to do with basketball? Maybe nothing. But if sports relates to real life, maybe it should make us sit back and think why we do what we do, think about what we truly enjoy.

Joy as motivation: what a radical thought. But it's one I could get used to.

third of the nation's total. And there are some 405,000 buildings enclosing some 2.6 billion square feet of office space — roughly 4 times the combined space in the country's ten largest urban business districts.

Vast areas of this land are idle, and could be available for developing natural resources. Although environmental cranks would cry in anguish, the lands could become productive and help relieve the country of its financial distress. Presently most of the those acres are only an expense and never seen by human eyes.

However those land properties are definitely not all wilderness. For instance, an Air Force Base in Hawaii includes 1500 acres of incredibly valuable beach front property. It would be worth many millions as a resort, but it is idle since 1958, with only about 30 personnel stationed there.

A similar case is Fort Sheridan located on Lake Michigan at Chicago's wealthy North Shore area. This post, with its 729 acres has been closed since 1971. The Pentagon has missed opportunities to sell it for hundreds of millions but has been stymied by wealthy and influential constituents who want no development on its scenic open spaces or additional traffic congestion.

This idea of selling surplus US real estate to help relieve the country of its deficit is one that deserves serious thought. Surely this is better than some of the sacrifices people will be expected to make, especially since it offers opportunities to increase federal revenue.

Another thought deserving attention: If public land and buildings are sold they can also become tax sources to state and local governments.

Era plans construction

Architects are drawing up the final plans for a proposed new classroom building at the Era schools.

Superintendent Dale Smiley said the board approved last week a final floor plan for the two-classroom, locker room and restroom facility, which will have nearly 2,500 square feet and serve as a Middle School building.

"Basically, we need this building to comply with the 22-to-1 pupil-teacher ratio mandated by the legislature," Smiley said. "By moving the middle schoolers into the new building, we will free up two classrooms in our new elementary building. We'll probably add a second grade teacher for next year."

A rough estimate on the cost of the new building is $85,000, with furniture and equipment expected to add another $5,000 to $10,000 to the final price tag. The school district will pay for the project out of its budget surplus, hoping to avoid raising taxes.

"The $85,000 is a ballpark figure based on $35 a square foot," Smiley said. "Of course, we hope some of the bids will come in less than that."

Smiley was also directed by the school board to study the cost of paving the roadway that runs through the school campus, at least from FM 922 to the gymnasium. Board action on that matter is expected at the next meeting.

Renovation is underway at the school's bus barn, where workers are building a new weight room for the athletic department. The work is about 30 percent complete, Smiley said, and new equipment will likely be installed when the facility is finished.

Smiley was scheduled to meet with the Era PTO Thursday night to discuss implementing landscaping plans around the new elementary building. Those plans were recently received from an area landscape architect, and call for planting of trees and shrubs around the new building.

Two positions on the Era ISD board of trustees are up for election this spring, with the vote set April 6. Places six and seven will be on the ballot. Incumbents in those positions are Harold Brown and Lanny Lewter.

Luke gets Pennzoil promotion

In a consolidation of its financial and accounting management organization, Pennzoil Co. has promoted Norman J. Luke to group vice-president for corporate finance and accounting — a new position.

Luke, a native of Muenster, was recently named to the Pennzoil board of directors. He joined a predecessor company in 1957 as assistant comptroller and was named a group vice-president in 1968.

Several changes at the Houston-based oil company will be effective February 1 with the retirement of group vice-president for finance Harold E. Sortor. Two other vice-presidents, Clifton H. Fridge and James L. Pate, will be promoted to senior vice-president positions, reporting to Luke.

Fridge will be senior v-p for accounting and will remain controller, assuming Luke's duties.

Taxes due February 1

everything is delinquent after February 1."

Dennis said delinquent taxes are collected in her office until July 1, when they are turned over to tax attorneys. At that time, an additional 15 percent penalty is added to cover the attorney's fee.

In short, not paying taxes on time gets expensive.

In addition to the penalty and interest charges, nonpayment can lead to lawsuits, clouded land titles and even seizure and sale of the property if the owner makes no effort to pay the taxes.

"Around the last part of May we notify all those who still haven't paid that their accounts are about to be turned over to the attorney," Dennis said. "The additional 15 percent penalty is added July 1."

Most of the county's taxing entities, including Cooke County College, the Gainesville hospital district, Clear Creek Watershed and all school districts except Gainesville, use the services of Robert Hagood, a Sherman attorney hired by the Tax Appraisal District. Julian Smith represents the city of Gainesville and the Gainesville school district, while William Carroll represents the county in its delinquent tax suits.

When delinquent taxes are collected, the taxing entity still gets all of the original taxes and interest — the taxpayer pays the attorney's fee through the penalty.

State law holds property owners responsible for paying their taxes even if they fail to receive their tax bills. Those property owners who have not yet received tax notices are urged to check with the tax appraisal district before the due date passes to determine their liability.

The law provides protection from tax suits and seizures for homeowners age 65 and over — those people can choose to postpone paying taxes on a homestead by filing a "tax deferral" affidavit with their local appraisal district. Taxes will continue to be delinquent and accrue penalty and interest, but there can be no lawsuit to collect them as long as the person owns and occupies the home.

Once the property changes hands, however, the taxes become due immediately.

Taxing units hold a tax lien on each parcel of taxable property within their jurisdictions, and tax collectors can file suit to foreclose on the lien and seize the property even if its ownership has changed. As a result, the purchaser of real property cannot get a clear title until all delinquent taxes owed on the property are paid in full.

In addition, the law makes each person who owns taxable property on January 1 personally liable for all taxes due. The January 1 owner can be sued personally for back taxes even if the property has been sold or transferred.

Property owners with questions about their taxes are urged to contact the Cooke County Tax Appraisal District before the February 1 deadline.

College faces budget cuts

"Of course they don't like it any better than I do, but it's something facing not only us but all colleges across the state," he said.

Junior college funding from the state is based on "contact hours," a complicated formula similar to that used to figure per capita funding to public school districts. The money is divided into two categories: Coordinating Board funds, used for academic courses, and Texas Education Agency funds, used for vocational courses. The fact that Cooke County College's enrollment has been fairly steady over the last few years means it will likely lose more money under the new plan than fast-growing schools like those in Houston and other big cities.

Local taxes, at a rate of 8.3 cents per $100 valuation, contribute $612,750 or about 12 percent of the school's budget. The possibility of a hike in that rate is increased greatly by the state's budget-cutting talk.

"We won't do it (make up the deficit) by just cutting programs, or by just laying off faculty and administration, or raising taxes or any one particular thing," Laird said. "It's going to take a little bit of everything."

"Any cuts we make will be analyzed in the light of enrollment, trends, personnel and other factors," he continued. "I certainly don't think we're in such bad shape financially that we'll have to cut a going program that's a benefit to the community."

Administrators still hope the legislature's final bill will be kinder to colleges than the LBB's proposal. One alternative plan would give them about 90 percent of their current funding — a cut that it would be much easier to live with.

Whatever the lawmakers finally do, Cooke County College's doors will most certainly remain open. And Cooke County taxpayers and students will likely get a chance to pick up a bigger share of the tab.

delayed, he'll lose money."

Glascoc said construction could begin as early as February 1. "Their haste suits us just fine," he noted. "We would like to be in the building by September."

Construction of the vocational wing, which will connect to the high school on the west side, is the first phase of a $1.5 million project approved by Valley View ISD voters in a bond election last October 6. Plans also call for remodeling of the present vocational building into a seven-classroom middle school, remodeling of the present cafeteria into three elementary classrooms, and construction of a multi-purpose building to house a new cafeteria, library and gym.

Presented at the altar by her father, Kenneth King, the bride was wearing her mother's wedding dress, worn 25 years ago. It was designed of white silk organza, with wedding ring collar, long sheer sleeves and a detail of pearl-centered silk flowers edging the yoke and sleeves. The skirt swept into a chapel train.

The bridal veil, made by the bride's grandmother, Ola Roberg, was fingertip length and was attached to a wreath of white silk flowers.

Gourmet foods and champagne were served. The three-tiered, honey spice wedding cake was made by "Flavor With Flair" of El Paso. It was iced in white and decorated with pink roses. A bridal figurine graced the top keepsake layer. "Flavor With Flair" also made all the decorations in the reception area.

The bride's table was covered with white lace and centered with a white bird cage and two white doves. It was trimmed with pink roses.

Among guests at the wedding were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heatwole of Horizon City, Texas and Ola and Louis Roberg of Nocona Hills and the groom's grandmother Anna Vota of El Paso.

HERE'S A RECIPE FOR COMMUNITY HAPPINESS

The fundamental ingredients for happiness and community prosperity are the same for everyone

Good health . . . a good job or a prosperous business . . . fine schools . . . strong churches . . . well-planned parks, playgrounds and recreational facilities in a good town with excellent fire and police protection . . . friendly neighbors . . . and good stores and service establishments.

Ever stop to think that most of these things come from your doing your shopping in our own community?

Spending away from home strengthens the foundations of other cities, and weakens the foundations of our home town.

VFW Auxiliary plans district convention here

Members of the Muenster VFW Auxiliary discussed plans for the District I Convention to be held here on Feb. 23 and 24, during their regular business meeting Monday. Also, members volunteered hours to help with cleaning, decorating, registration, etc.

The auxiliary received notification of a mid-winter round-up, workshops and memberships, coming soon.

Members voted to send a contribution to the Nurses Scholarship Fund.

Also included during the auxiliary's business meeting were reports of a number of past activities. Frances Bayer thanked all who participated in the "In Lieu of Christmas Cards" project which benefited the local cancer aid fund. She told members that the auxiliary hopes to sponsor the project again next year. Frances and her daughter Janet Barnhill received applause and gratitude for the successful project. Mrs. Bayer also thanked all who helped with the Christmas parties for preschool children of veterans.

Cards of Thanks were received from Bart Henscheid's family and the Hilda Sicking family; and sympathy cards were sent to Ella Haverkamp and Gusta Walterscheid.

Peggy Walterscheid reported on the book audit, and said all was in order.

The business meeting was presided by Frances Bayer; Rose Hudspeth was guard pro-tem; Flora Mae Knabe led the opening prayer and pledge to the Flag; Ida Bindel read roll call and minutes; Ethel Hesse gave the treasurer's report.

Rose Hudspeth and Jaci Bilderback volunteered as refreshment hostesses for February. Frances Bayer served refreshments to 18 members and Janet Barnhill won the door prize.

Foods have Hispanic origins

Most Texans eat Mexican food almost every day without realizing it.

In addition to enchiladas, tamales, tacos and the array of other Mexican dishes, many of all the foods we eat have origins in pre-Columbian Mexico.

The Aztecs had developed a highly organized system of agriculture and a sophisticated culinary art before the arrival of the first Europeans on the American continent.

Corn, described as the world's most important food crop, is one of the wild foods the Aztecs domesticated and improved. Thousands of years ago, somewhere in the south central valleys, ancestors of Aztec farmers began to select seed from the wild teosinte grain, creating a new food crop and a new way of life linked to agriculture. Corn remains the foundation of the Mexican diet, and an important ingredient in Texas fare.

Tomatoes, squash and beans are other crops domesticated and widely used in Mexico long before they found their way to European tables.

The native Mexican food most noted for its worldwide use is probably chocolate. The Aztecs prepared unsweetened chocolate as a drink reserved for royalty. Today chocolate candies and pastries are found in every country. Its use in Mexico is still primarily as a hot drink, now sweetened, and often served with sweet rolls.

As flower show judge

Woman wins accreditation

Mrs. Paul (Marie) Endres has received her National Council Accredited Flower Show Judge Certificate. She was notified several months ago that she had successfully completed all requirements, and on Monday received the treasured certificate.

Requirements for earning the certificate are very strict and encompass a wide area of study, growth, activity and artistic competition.

Also required are five credits and five blue ribbons in horticulture and design, won in nationally accredited shows.

She must also have five judging credits earned by being a student judge five times, accompanied by an accredited judge on each occasion.

The final step is the reading examination. The written test is given simultaneously in all states, once in the spring and once in the fall.

Mrs. Paul Endres and Mrs. Arthur (Sue) Endres are the only local garden club members who have now earned certification as accredited flower show judges. Several local members and one former Muenster Garden Club member are studying for certification.

Once again the very cold weather we had here over the weekend kept most folks at home by their stoves. A rip-snorting norther blew in here about 4:30 p.m. Saturday the 19th. In about 2 hours the temperature had taken a 30 degree plunge.

Will depart this week with the following — it is food for thought plus part of it might give you a chuckle. I quote:

I acknowledged my sin unto Thee, and mine iniquity have I not hidden. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord, and Thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Psalm 32:5

"The story is told that one day Frederick the Great, King of Prussia, visited a prison and talked with each of the inmates. There were endless tales of innocence, of misunderstood motives, and of exploitation. Finally the king stopped at the cell of a convict who remained silent. "Well," remarked Frederick, "I suppose you are an innocent victim too?" "No sir, I'm not," replied the man. "I'm quilty, and I deserve my punishment." Turning to the warden, the king said, "Here! Release this rascal before he corrupts all the fine innocent people in this place!" Illustrations from Our Daily Bread.

Workshops set on blazer, jacket sewing

Blazers and other tailored jackets are versatile additions to a wardrobe. If you've hesitated to make a lined jacket because you think it's too difficult, new methods make it easier than ever before.

New fabrics, patterns, and notions all make sewing a project many can accomplish with great success.

Two orientation meetings for those interested in participating in a blazer workshop will be held on February 4 and 5. Those who prefer an evening group will meet at 7 p.m. on Monday night, the 4th. For those interested in a day workshop, we'll meet on Tuesday morning, February 5 at 9:30 a.m. Both of the meetings will be at the Texas Power and Light Company Meeting Room in Gainesville. Three additional sessions will be scheduled for the convenience of those attending.

The workshops are being sponsored by the County Extension Service and are similar to those offered during the past years. Demonstrations will be given by Mrs. Evelyn Yeatts, County Extension Agent. Participants will view demonstrations and then do their work at home bringing problems and questions to future meetings.

Pre-registration for the workshop is a must and can be made by calling the County Extension Office at 665-4931 or 665-1966. If you have further questions, call Mrs. Yeatts at the Extension Office.

The workshops will feature making the tailored blazer or jacket using fusible material to a large extent rather than time-consuming hand tailoring techniques. The linings will be put in completely by machine.

There are a variety of jacket styles which are popular this season. Participants may choose quality fabrics and quality construction is used in the making of a blazer. For example last year 36 of the 85 participants returned a questionnaire. These 36 women reported an estimated savings of $2,712.00 on 64 garments. Even if you don't choose to sew because of the savings involved, many women find fun, challenge, relaxation and artistry in home sewing.

Tigerettes earn playoff spot

To play T.K. Gorman Saturday in Krum

Sacred Heart's Tigerettes clinched their league championship Tuesday night with a 51-34 win over Wichita Falls Notre Dame on the road.

The Tigerettes put on a third-quarter surge to leave their opponents in the dust, taking a 17-point lead into the final eight minutes and hanging on for their 20th win of the season.

"We played a good quarter-and-a-half," coach Jon LeBrasseur said. "The last half of the second quarter and the third quarter is where we beat them."

The win put Sacred Heart into a league winners playoff Saturday against T.K. Gorman of Tyler. That game will be played at 3 p.m. at Krum High School, with the winner getting the home court advantage in a playoff (if necessary) with the winner of the district tournament.

That tournament is slated for February 1 and 2 at Notre Dame High School in Wichita Falls.

Sandra Walterscheid dominated the inside game Tuesday with 21 points and 10 rebounds for the Tigerettes. Rose Felderhoff had nine, Sondra and Tammy Hess hit eight each and Lydia Walterscheid added four points. The Tigerettes were nine-for-16 from the free throw line.

Following the girls playoff at Krum Saturday, Notre Dame's boys will face off with T.K. Gorman at 5 p.m.

Notre Dame rips Tigers

John Nasche and Chris Dangelmayr combined for 30 points, but Notre Dame's high-powered offense produced 90 to the Tigers' 47 as Sacred Heart's boys fell in their contest Tuesday night.

Notre Dame jumped on the Tigers for a 34-4 first-quarter lead, and held a 48-17 advantage at the half. Sacred Heart hit for 23 points in the third quarter but it was impossible to stop Notre Dame's scoring machine and it was 64-40 going into the final frame.

Aside from Nasche's 16 — which included an eight-for-eight night at the free throw line — and Dangelmayr's 14, the Tigers got six points from Ken Hesse and five from Steve Knabe. They hit 21 of 37 free throw opportunities.

The loss left the Tigers 1-21 on the season.

MUENSTER ENTERPRISE SPORTS

'Horns edge Hornets in double overtime

Forestburg's Russ Recker hit two free throws with 10 seconds to play in the second overtime period to give the Longhorns a 53-49 win over Muenster Tuesday night.

The win at Forestburg was the 'Horns' third straight in district play, raising their record to 4-3. For Muenster, it was only the second district loss and left them still in sole possession of the district runner-up spot behind Slidell, whom they upset last Friday.

Tuesday, Muenster and Forestburg battled back and forth through the game, with the lead changing hands on almost every basket throughout regulation play. It was 10-10 after one quarter before Muenster built a 23-20 lead at halftime. Forestburg held a 35-33 edge going into the fourth quarter.

Muenster came back to tie the score at 45 at the end of the fourth period, and both teams could manage only two points in the first three-minute overtime, which ended at 47-47.

Forestburg had gone ahead by two points when Recker's free throws gave them a cushion and allowed them to sink back on defense in the final 10 seconds.

"Their defense really impressed me," Longhorn coach Hollis Adams said. "We're a scoring team, and they just about shut us down. We made some adjustments at halftime and came out and outscored them 15-10 in the third quarter before they adjusted and shut us back down. Otherwise, they probably would have beaten us in regulation time."

Ryan Klement and Jay Mollenkopf led Muenster's scoring with 12 points apiece, while Ronnie Fisher added 11. The Hornets were one-for-three at the free throw line.

Kendall Holland paced Forestburg with 19 points and Brent Shults hit 15. The Longhorns were nine-for-13 from the free throw line.

Slidell falls

Muenster toppled Slidell from the ranks of the undefeated last Friday with a 39-37 win at Slidell.

Kevin Wolf led the Hornets with 15 points, followed by Ronnie Fisher with 14, as Muenster held off a determined rally for the big district win.

The Hornets led all the way, at 6-4, 19-10 and 27-22 before winning by a single bucket.

Mike Kelly and Paul Humphreys each hit 10 points to top Slidell's scoring. They were one-for-two from the free throw line while Muenster hit three of six free throws.

Forestburg girls hand MHS second loss

A furious fourth-quarter rally fell short Tuesday night as Muenster's Hornets fell victim to an upset-minded Forestburg team by a margin of 35-32 in Forestburg.

The Lady Longhorns took control of the game early, leading 6-5 after a tentative first quarter and stretching their margin to five at 18-13 by halftime.

They held a 31-23 advantage going into the fourth quarter and stretched it to 12 points before Muenster took advantage of some turnovers and narrowed the gap to four points with less than a minute left.

Forestburg held on, however, to hand the Hornets their second loss in as many outings and put the district race in a whole new light. The two Muenster losses left them tied with Slidell at 5-2 heading into Friday night's games.

Rita Walterscheid led Muenster's scoring with 13 points, while Kim Eldred hit six. Laticia Bell led Forestburg with nine, Michelle Reed added eight and Nancy Traylor hit seven.

Free throw shooting was a big difference in the game, as Muenster missed 19 of their 29 shots, including the front end of nine one-and-ones. Forestburg went to the line 16 times and hit nine free throws.

FLYING DUST AND SCREAMING ENGINES will draw crowds to a motorcycle course in northwest Cooke County March 9 as the Sports Car Club of America holds a PRO rally competition here.

Rally race set at river

Roaring engines and flying dirt will provide the focus of activity March 9 as the Southwest Division of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) holds a Pro Rally and Rallysprint competition at Prentiss Harris' 12,000-acre motorcycle park on the Red River north of Muenster.

The rally will attract cars and crews from six states, chairman Roger Gibson of Richardson said, and should draw at least 25 entrants. Hundreds of support personnel, spectators and news media personnel will converge on Muenster for the event.

Gibson said his association is considering the possibility of expanding the event to sites nearer to Muenster. Harris' motorcycle park is located near Bulcher about 10 miles north of Muenster.

"We have been very pleased with the reception and cooperation we've received from Muenster and its citizens," Gibson said.

"The rally is already growing because of the reaction from the racers in the division."

The rally will feature Datsun 280Z's, Jeeps, Audis, Saabs, Chevettes, Blazers, Triumphs, Fieros and many other makes and models competing for the SCCA championship. Activities surrounding the event will include parties, PRO rally videos, a technical inspection for the cars at Wilde Chevrolet the Saturday morning before the race, and awards ceremonies. Spectator areas will be provided at the race site.

Timed to the hundredth of a second, running one minute apart, each team (driver and co-driver) will negotiate a prescribed course at night in the least time possible, then move to the next stage to continue the race for a total of five hours.

The Rallysprint, run Saturday afternoon, will require each car to run a dirt course several times for a cumulative score — it is a separate event from the Rally.

Stage roads are chosen to be a challenge to competitors and exciting for spectators. Drivers develop the ability to travel quickly using a unique driving style over rough, twisted and brutal courses, regardless of poor road surfaces or bad weather.

American PRO rallies, Gibson said, compare to the African Safari Rally or the Monte Carlo Rally, but on a smaller scale.

"Durability, as well as speed, is the name of the game in performance PRO rallying," he noted. "Performance rallying helps manufacturers find just where a variety of parts are apt to break. Thus, the public benefits from the technical knowledge gained."

Further details on the rally will be released in the coming weeks as specific times and places are determined.

Era girls nip LHS Tuesday

Era's girls stayed in the thick of the race for the district 3-A runner-up spot with a 35-27 win over Lindsay Tuesday night.

Kelly Yarbrough hit nine points in the fourth quarter to help the Era squad hold off a determined Lindsay comeback attempt. Yarbrough had 15 for the night, while Mitzi Mitchell hit 10 and Amy Young and Dana Peyrot added four points apiece.

Jolanda Wimmer paced Lindsay's scoring with 13 points. Christy Hellman added six and the Knightettes were five-for-11 from the free throw line. Era hit five of 12 free throws.

Lindsay led 6-5 after one quarter, but Era roared back to outscore their guests 12-3 in the next eight minutes and take a 17-9 lead in at halftime. Mitchell led the second-quarter rally, hitting six of her 10 in that period.

Lindsay boys win

Lindsay's boys denied Era its first district win by downing the Hornets 44-35 Tuesday.

Kevin Fuhrmann hit 15 for Lindsay, followed by Jeff Hellman with 10 and Wayne Fleitman with eight points. Bradley Fenley led Era with 12 points and the Hornets got 10 — including eight of 10 free throws — from Mark Knabe.

Era was 11-for-16 from the free throw line, while Lindsay went to the line just seven times — twice on Era technicals — and his only two of those.

It was 4-4 after the first quarter before Lindsay pulled out to a 19-15 halftime lead. The Knights led 34-23 going into the final period.

Battleship fund started ...

The Battleship Texas, which survived two world wars, is now facing another enemy as it fights a silent battle with rust and decay in its mooring beside the Houston Ship Channel at San Jacinto Battleground State Park.

In an effort to preserve one of the state's most cherished historical landmarks, the Battleship Texas Advisory Board has launched a "Save the Battleship" fundraising campaign. Donations are needed because the state's budget is already stretched to the limit.

The Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, which was given administrative control over the ship in 1983, is trying to raise funds, donations of equipment and volunteer labor to save the 27,000-ton battleship.

Corrosion has taken a heavy toll on the hull, deck and superstructure of the battleship, which has been anchored and resting on the ship channel bottom since 1948. The Advisory Board hopes to raise enough money to open more of the ship for viewing with more complete interpretive displays and actual standard naval equipment and materials in place. Other public services such as parking, concessions and administration facilities are also being considered.

Individuals, organizations and businesses interested in donating time, money or materials for the battleship's restoration may write to "Save the Battleship," Parks Division, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744.

Callisburg blasts Little Elm

Callisburg's Wildcats blasted Little Elm 69-38 Thursday night to maintain their hold on the runner-up playoff spot in their district.

The 'Cats, led by hot-shooting Scott Pilcher, who scored 15 points, led all the way over the outclassed Little Elm crew. It was 14-8 after the first quarter and 28-17 at halftime before Little Elm went scoreless in the third quarter while Callisburg stretched its lead to 46-17.

Richard Edwards had 12 points and 10 rebounds for the Wildcats, with Clint Hollandsworth adding 10 points and coming down with nine boards.

The 'Cats shot 47 percent from the field enroute to the win and hit seven of 13 free throws. Joe Curtio led Little Elm with 19 points, and his team was 10-for-13 from the line.

The win puts Callisburg's record at 16-5 on the year. They are 2-0 in the second half of district play after defeating S&S Thursday night.

Seventh, eighth split
Callisburg's seventh graders swept a pair of games from Celina Monday, while Celina's teams battered the Callisburg eighth grade boys and girls.

Callisburg's seventh grade girls won 22-21 over Celina, outscoring them 11-5 in the fourth quarter for the comeback victory. Lebecca

Hess led Callisburg with 10 points. The seventh grade boys had an easier time with Celina, leading 12-2, 20-3 and 28-5 at the quarters before winning 42-10. Alvin Childress led the scoring with 22 points.

The eighth grade girls suffered through a scoreless first half and trailed 21-0 going into the third quarter before losing by a 32-6 margin. Three players had two points each to account for all six Callisburg points.

The eighth grade boys met a similar fate, falling behind 24-4 in the first quarter and winding up on the short end of a 59-20 score. Justin Brewer hit 18 for Callisburg.

Tigerettes win two at Amarillo

The Sacred Heart girls swept a weekend's worth of basketball from Alamo Catholic in Amarillo last Friday and Saturday, extending their season record to 19-3 as district tournament time drew near.

District 3-A standings

Boys	Won-Lost
Slidell	6-1
Muenster	5-2
Forestburg	4-3
Lindsay	4-3
Alvord	2-5
Era	0-7

Girls	Won-Lost
Muenster	5-2
Slidell	5-2
Era	4-3
Forestburg	3-4
Lindsay	2-5
Alvord	2-5

Amarillo's team was no match for the Tigerettes, who won 53-30 Friday and came back to win 52-38 in a Saturday game.

Friday, Sandra Walterscheid dropped in 17 points to lead the scoring, while Sondra Hess added 13 and Tammy Hess hit 11. Rose Felderhoff and Vicki Walterscheid each hit six points in a balanced scoring attack.

The Tigerettes trailed, 6-5, after one quarter in that game, but roared back to take a 23-15 halftime lead and pulled away to a comfortable 39-23 edge heading into the fourth period.

Saturday again it was close through eight minutes, as the Tigerettes led by just three at 13-10 going into the second quarter. It was 25-19 at halftime and only a 10-4 third-quarter performance gave Sacred Heart a significant lead at 35-23 going into the final frame.

Sondra Hess led all scorers in that game with 15 points, followed by Sandra Walterscheid with 11, Rose Felderhoff with nine, Tammy Hess with seven, Lydia Walterscheid with six and Vicki Walterscheid with four.

The pair of wins gave the Tigerettes a 10-game winning streak heading into a crucial district match Tuesday night with Wichita Falls Notre Dame. Sacred Heart's girls last lost a game on December 15, when they fell to state-ranked Krum in the finals of a tournament there.

Tigers lose a pair
The Tiger boys had less success on the road trip, coming up empty in two games with Alamo despite a gritty performance Saturday afternoon.

After losing 68-32 Friday, the Tigers came back and battled Alamo's boys before notching a tough 67-55 loss Saturday.

In the first game, Craig Voth led the scoring with nine points, Wayne Becker had eight and Ken Hesse and Chris Dangelmayr hit six each. The Tigers trailed 11-5, 26-13 and 44-25 at the quarters.

Saturday, Sacred Heart led 16-10 after the first quarter and trailed by just three at 34-31 going into halftime. Alamo's defense clamped a lid on the Tigers' bucket in the third quarter, however, as Alamo outscored their guests 14-4 to take the lead at 48-35.

Dangelmayr awoke for 19 points in the Saturday game, and Hesse added 18. Steven Knabe hit seven and John Nasche and Voth added four apiece.

The pair of losses gave the Tigers a 1-20 record on the season.

A winter's beauty ...

Bone-chilling Arctic winds whipped the water out of farm ponds in North Texas last weekend, then froze them into fragile ice sculptures among the trees and grass at the water's edge. A frozen waterfall between Muenster and Gainesville further attested to the stark beauty of the winter.

County Agent's Report

Efficiency in management and operations is the key to profitable beef production in the short term.

"Management Tools for Efficient Beef Production" is the title of a program scheduled for beef producers February 2 at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center, 17360 Coit Road, Dallas.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. and adjourn at 3:00 p.m. with a panel of speakers from all over the State.

Subjects and speakers for the Saturday meeting include: Dr. Larry L. Boleman, Extension Livestock Specialist, will speak on "Profitable Management Practices" which includes implanting, controlled calving seasons, heifer management, and pasture management. Dr. Dale Lovelace, Extension Forage Specialist, — "Efficient Pasture Production" — all about fertility, weed control and management, hay production, treatment and feeding alternatives, and feeding according to analysis. Dr. Ronald Gill, Extension Livestock Specialist, will discuss "Nutritional Requirements" — nutrient requirements related to stage of production and ways to meet those requirements.

Dr. Ernest E. Davis, Extension Economist, — Marketing Alternatives", retained ownership. Dr.

Floron Faries, Jr., Extension Veterinarian, will talk about "Herd Health" — reproductive diseases, parasite control, vaccination, and Dr. Steven P. Hammack, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist, subject will be "Breeding Practices" — breeding systems, sire selection, bull and heifer management.

Steve Wheelless, Dallas County Extension Agent will be master of ceremonies.

There is a registration fee of $5 which will cover lunch and hand-out materials. Reservations for the seminar should be made by calling Craig Rosenbaum, County Extension Agent, at 665-4931 or 665-1966.

Last week we had the opportunity to evaluate the Herbicide and Variety Demonstration Plots at Lindsay. Some very interesting things were evident on this evaluation. One of the primary grass problems in the wheat was ryegrass. Two chemicals are doing an excellent job on ryegrass control. Glean was put out pre-emergence at one-fifth, one-fourth, one-third, and one-half ounce rates. As far as broad-leaf control goes, all of the mentioned rates did an excellent job of controlling henbit, mustard, and other broad-leaf weeds. Ryegrass control should be used with the higher rates of Glean. However, we saw very little difference at any level of Glean applied. Producers should remember that this was a pre-emergence application and certainly if you wanted to control ryegrass this late, you would want to use the higher rates.

We had some post-emerge applications of Glean, Hoelon and other chemicals, too. Hoelon is a new herbicide for us and looks very good on these post-emerge applications. One consideration producers should remember when using Hoelon is that you cannot graze treated fields. But, Hoelon may certainly have a place for producers in Cooke County when properly used.

The Sencor applications did not do as well as either Glean or Hoelon on ryegrass. Other fields in the county this year where Sencor was applied for cheat control has produced 95 to 100 percent control of cheat grass. We had a few problems last year on applications of Sencor but everything is working out very favorably this year.

One last observation about the wheat varieties. The hybrids may produce a lot of grain — we will see at harvest time, but as far as forage production, if you are interested in grazing, they're a little short. The best forage wheats in the plots look to be NK-812, Milburn (which is a new beardless hard wheat), and MIT. Other wheats making good forage growth include Chisolm, Hawk, and Mustang.

If you would like to see the plots, they're located on the former Tony Sicking Farm at the corner of Highway 82 and FM 1201.

TFU president blasts Reagan farm policies

The president of the Texas Farmers Union this week called for a 1985 farm bill that would include a program of strong supply management of agricultural commodities.

Mike Moeller, a farmer from Hays County and president of the 10,000 member family farmer organization, spoke of the omnibus farm legislation that Congress must adopt this year. The 1985 farm bill promises to be the focus of a spirited Congressional debate, since the Reagan administration has called for substantial cuts in federal farm programs over the next four years.

"Our membership is extremely concerned about the David Stockman farm bill that the Reagan administration has proposed," Moeller said. "Even a member of Reagan's own transition team from Texas has estimated that the Reagan farm proposals will put 10,000 farmers out of business in the first year."

"Reagan and Republican farm policy has been mismanaged and

On business vehicle mileage

Ranchers protest IRS ruling

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association has requested the U.S. Treasury Department drop a tax regulation proposal that would impose burdensome and unnecessary record-keeping requirements on owners and operators of farm vehicles used for business.

The proposed regulation, which went into effect January 1 of this year, would require farmers and ranchers to keep continuous records or logs on the use of essentially all farm vehicles, including automobiles, pickup trucks and other farm trucks.

The log or journal must include the date, operator, purpose and mileage of all business uses of the vehicle. The IRS proposal, brought about by passage of the Tax Reduction Act of 1984, would be used to substantiate deductions for both personal and business purposes.

The original law was aimed at abusive deduction of luxury automobiles as business expense, but TSCRA president Jack Shelton of Amarillo said the IRS has greatly broadened the coverage.

"Texas cattlemen don't believe it was the intent of Congress to target farm and ranch vehicles or to burden food and fiber producers with unnecessary, time-consuming records," he said.

In a letter to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue last week, Shelton said Texas cattlemen are particularly alarmed because their vehicles are used primarily for business purposes. Consequently, the regulations require farmers and ranchers to log essentially every mile. Further, the log is impractical given the frequency that cattlemen use their vehicles in their operations. Therefore Texas cattlemen oppose the regulations as onerous and burdensome to all business, he said.

TSCRA has called on Texas congressmen, all farmers and ranchers as well as small business owners to support legislation that may be introduced this week by Senators Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and David Boren of Oklahoma that would repeal the record-keeping requirements for all business vehicles.

TSCRA told Texas congressmen that cattlemen use their vehicles extensively on a daily basis to haul feed and livestock, transport equipment and farm laborers. These business uses often include numerous trips by different operators to and from farms and separate pastures, as well as to town for parts and repairs.

The extensive regulations would go far beyond present IRS requirements for substantiating business vehicle expenses and would require records on virtually every mile traveled. This extra burden is unnecessary, TSCRA contends, and hurts food and fiber producers while offering little significant benefit to the IRS.

Farm hero sought by council

The search continues for the rural hero of 1984, according to Ben Bullard of Waco, president of the Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council which presents the annual rural heroism award.

The 1984 recipient will be announced April 1 at the 46th annual Texas/Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition, to be held at the Shamrock Hilton in Houston.

Deadline for submitting entries is March 1, Bullard said. All nominations should be sent to the Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council, Box 489, Waco, Texas 78703.

To qualify for the honor, a candidate must have performed a heroic act of human life-saving within Texas during 1984. The act should be related to farming and ranching, Bullard said.

Nominations should include a written account of the incident and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of everyone involved. Newspaper clippings and photos should also accompany the nominations when possible.

IMPROVING A BUSINESS IN TEN EASY STEPS

1. ADVERTISE - Let everyone know what you have to offer.
2. ADVERTISE - Spend time thinking about promoting your business.
3. ADVERTISE - Let everybody know what you sell.
4. ADVERTISE - Remind yourself that even though you've been in business a long time, customers will NOT automatically come to you.
5. ADVERTISE - Remember, that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded and urged to do so.
6. ADVERTISE - Keep in mind that you have competition trying to attract YOUR customers away from you.
7. ADVERTISE - Tell yourself that you get more out of advertising than the small cost involved.
8. ADVERTISE - Don't overlook the fact that advertising is an INVESTMENT in selling, not an expense.
9. ADVERTISE - Be sure to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. ADVERTISE - Don't forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that YOU APPRECIATE THEIR BUSINESS.
