Council scraps tax plan

Retail merchants oppose sales tax hike

The Muenster city council is dropping the idea of a sales tax to raise funds for street-building after a convincing turnout from local retail business owners at Monday night's meeting.

Ten business owners showed up at the meeting to speak against the city's proposal to add seven-eighths of a cent to the present five-and-one-eighth cent tax. No one spoke in support of the idea, which was advanced by the city council last month as a possible means of paying for street programs.

Last summer's huge paving program depleted the city's reserves and made any paving other than routine maintenance unlikely for the next several years.

"We're just trying to find a way to generate some revenue to get a street program started without having a bond issue," mayor Ronnie Felderhoff said at the start of the meeting. "We're open for any kind of suggestion."

Rufus Henscheid opened the comments by saying, "I'm here fighting for my business life." The Muenster lumber dealer said the sales tax was "probably the best kind of tax," but contended it would be bad for Muenster to have the tax when surrounding communities did not.

"I really think it would be detrimental to business in Muenster," he said. "Whitesboro, Gainesville, Saint Jo and other cities around here don't have it, and for us to sit here with an extra seven-eighths would look terrible."

Henscheid said 90 percent of Muenster's business was from out of town, and noted he had one customer who would have had to pay an extra $600 over the last two months if Muenster had had the extra sales tax.

"If we don't have business, we don't need streets," he added.

Another feeling expressed at the meeting was that the state would likely alter the five-and-one-eighth sales tax formula during the coming legislative session. The city's idea was to round off the maddening fraction — but if the state rounds it off, the city's action would have the affect of adding yet another fraction to the tax.

Former mayor Earl Fisher urged the city to "slow up" on its paving ambitions.

"All streets don't have to be paved," he said. "Rome wasn't built in a day. We need our businesses and we need people coming in here to shop." He also suggested the city might begin to see more revenue from the sales tax because more items are being

Tiller resigns office; Aston new sheriff

Sheriff-elect sworn in a month early

Acting in an emergency meeting Monday morning, the Cooke County commissioners unanimously approved the appointment of sheriff-elect John Aston to fill the vacancy created by Dan Tiller's resignation.

Tiller resigned the post in a letter to county judge Jim Robertson last week. The resignation, effective December 1, was unanimously accepted by the commissioners after a brief closed-door meeting Monday.

The commissioners talked with tax assessor-collector Joyce Zwinggi for several minutes before calling Aston in and informing him of their decision. He was elected sheriff by a healthy majority last month and would have taken over the post January 1 if not for the early appointment.

Aston, as chief deputy sheriff, has been running the county law enforcement agency for some time in the absence of Tiller, who was seldom in the office. Tiller took a job last month teaching at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos although he was still legally employed as the sheriff of Cooke County.

In his letter of resignation, Tiller said: "I feel that this will be a more realistic and acceptable date than the previously submitted one," and went on to explain why he moved up the date of his resigning after an earlier letter.

"I based my previous resignation on several factors in as much as I felt that no law or policy was being violated. I felt that during this period of time an orderly transfer of the office could take place. By county policy I had earned a certain amount of

We hear a great deal about poverty nowadays, especially about the obligation of government to help people whose income is below the level officially regarded as not adequate, that is a total of $10,178 for a family of four. The figure refers to cash income and persons who fit in the classification can qualify for a variety of benefits to help them make ends meet.

According to a report of the Census Bureau, there are about 35.3 million Americans who are living in poverty. That means 15.2 percent of the population, which is higher than in 1965 when President Johnson started the anti-poverty program. A natural assumption from this fact is that government has shirked its duty, even though the money spent to relieve poverty is enormous.

The combined expenditure in federal, state and local giving amounts to $400 billion a year. Reduced to plain figures, this comes to an average of more than $11,000 to everyone of those 35.3 million persons, or $47,000 to a family of four poor people. In other words, the income of $10,178 plus welfare pay of $47,000 should add to more than $57,000. And they call it poverty!

All of this brings up the question of how US can spend so much money to get rid of poverty and still have more of it than ever before. For one thing, people, are paid to be poor, so increasing numbers strive to be in that classification. Specifically, more and more people are responding to the incentives of subsidized divorce, teenage pregnancy, abandonment of the elderly by their children, and break-up of families.

Besides, the welfare bureaucracy is designed from top to bottom to encourage an increase of the welfare count. The increase of operation resulting from this policy can be presented as a need for ever increasing funds.

Another reason why the poverty population keeps expanding can be explained by the way poverty is measured. The key to being classified as poor in the welfare system is to have a low cash income, or at least a low reported cash income. Individuals and government conveniently ignore non-cash. The system may apply to the barter of goods and services without involving cash. And it applies to accepting welfare benefits without regarding them as an addition to the beneficiary's income. Consider the family of 4 with a

Parade to roll Saturday

Saturday is the big day in Muenster as the annual Christmas parade is scheduled to fill downtown streets with color and action.

A children's "mini-parade" is slated for 11 a.m. in front of Gehrig's Hardware on North Main. Youngsters are invited to come out with their tricycles, bicycles, wagons and other youthful vehicles and take part in that event.

Everyone eight and under is eligible to compete for a grand prize trophy to be awarded by the Chamber of Commerce.

At 1 p.m. the big parade will get underway on the east end of Division Street. Floats and other groups will assemble across from Wilde Chevrolet on South Mesquite for their trek down Division to Main, where a right turn will take them north for four blocks before the procession ends.

Parade organizer David Fette said a host of entries should make this year's parade an enjoyable spectacle for the whole family. The Chamber will award a $100 prize to the best float and another $100 to the best non-float entry.

Among the entries will be floats by various groups, horses, antique cars and marching groups. Santa and Mrs. Santa will also make their appearance and will be available after the parade to listen to the Christmas wishes of boys and girls.

Downtown merchants will be open Saturday and everyone is encouraged to browse for bargains when the festivities have wound down.

Anyone desiring further information — or for late entries in the parade — may call Fette at 759-4311, or the Chamber office at 759-2227.

Chili supper to benefit family

A chili supper slated Saturday evening at the Muenster Public School cafeteria will help raise money to defray the hospital expenses of a Muenster family.

Cindy Lynn Tempel, infant daughter of Jeff and Sandy Tempel, was born prematurely and had to be treated for several weeks in the intensive care unit of a metroplex hospital. The staggering medical bills resulting from this have prompted several gestures by the community to raise funds for the family. The chili supper will be sponsored by the Muenster Kiwanis Club, with all proceeds to go into a fund for the Tempels.

Chili will go for $3 a bowl, with other donations accepted. Complimentary tea and crackers will accompany the main course, and other drinks will also be available along with pies served up by club members' wives. Serving will open at 5 p.m. and continue through 8 p.m.

Tickets for the chili supper will be available at the door, or they may be purchased in advance from any club member. Those desiring further information may contact Gordon Adair at the Gainesville office of Texas Power & Light, 665-4371.

Saturday deadline

For "Light the Town" contest entries

Saturday is the entry deadline for individuals and organizations wishing to compete for prizes in this year's "Light the Town" contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Inventive and colorful Christmas decorations are already making their appearances all over town as a result of the contest according to chairman Gary Fisher. The business deadline was Tuesday, and business entries will be judged Saturday by an out-of-town panel. Individuals and organizations will be judged next Saturday by the same panel, with awards going to three different winners in each division. Uniqueness, lighting and adherence to a theme are some of the factors which will figure in the judges' decisions.

Those who still wish to enter are encouraged to do so by Saturday, by calling Fisher at FMW In-

Moral decay

OUR CIVILIZATION is known as Western Christendom. It is the twenty-first civilization of which we have knowledge. Some years ago the late Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen said, "Christendom is dead."

Well, whether we agree with that assessment that our civilization is dead or not, such a statement by a highly respected, well-educated theologian ought to cause us to pause and think about the matter.

The great British historian, Arnold Toynbee, who is considered to be the number one authority on the history of civilizations, wrote that the genesis of all civilizations and all human progress is "challenge and response."

When circumstances of special difficulty arise, whether a nation or a civilization progresses or declines, depends upon whether a special effort is exerted to meet the challenge.

Other historians have developed the theory that these challenges occur in the three areas of societal life which distinguish one civilization from another, namely, the cultural, political and economic areas. The cultural criteria are considered to be of greatest importance. Within a culture is found the system of laws and the code of ethics, historically based on religion.

This means within our civilization, Western Christendom, our culture came from Christianity and this was the foundation of our ethical system on the basis of which human activities were approved of disapproved; they were right or wrong, moral or immoral predicated upon the Christian ethic.

Because this area of societal life has been found to be of primary importance to a civilization, and because moral decay has been found to be one of the major causes of the deterioration of any society, would it not be wise to pause and survey conditions of morality in America today?

Item: A few years ago Congressman Dannemeyer commented on the moral decay rampant in this country. He said, "There is adultery, rape, fornication, homosexuality, and filthiness of mind through the land. Lying, stealing, drunkenness, and murder are rampant. We prey upon one another. Our streets are full of bloodshed and violence. Official corruption abounds."

"Homes are destroyed by divorce. Unions other than holy matrimony are established between men and women. Parents neglect their young. The young do no honor their parents. We slaughter our unborn infants on the altar of personal selfishness."

Item: Sexual abuse of children has reached epidemic proportions. Hardly a day goes by without reports of child molestation.

Item: In describing the decline in the American theater, Otto J. Scott writes: "There are now, available for a pittance, pornographic cable channels where explicit sex can be watched, and — across the land — 'adult' theaters where porno films are featured, together with live sex acts..."

Is there any question but that our people are being challenged by a decay in morality which is eroding the cultural base of our society? Will we stand idly by without responding forcefully to deal with this challenge? If we do not respond, history predicts the future for us!

State Capitol Highlights ...

AUSTIN—As the deadline for receiving campaign contributions, December 10, comes closer, public officials are holding fundraisers around the state to raise money.

This week Gov. Mark White throws a bash in Houston for major contributors from 15 surrounding counties, and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro will retire his '82 campaign debt with a modest affair in Austin.

Contributors statewide are also receiving fundraising letters from various other state officials. State law prevents giving or accepting contributions after Dec. 10 until the Legislature adjourns in late May.

The law was passed to prevent lawmakers from accepting funds while they were in session, a practice that obviously smacked of vote buying.

During the '81 legislative session, when the Legislature redrew the boundaries for political districts, various fundraisers so alarmed citizens groups that pressure was applied to stop them.

For that reason, public officials now have a short rush period—between the November general election date and early December—to raise campaign dollars. The competition among officeholders for those dollars is fierce at some levels.

Freshman Arrive

The obligatory orientation for freshman lawmakers was conducted by House Speaker Gib Lewis last week. Lewis told the 30-odd freshman class to "shoot straight" with their colleagues and to behave as if the television camera was perpetually aimed their way. Be on their best behavior, in other words.

The Capitol tour and orientation is to help the new lawmakers learn the process for passing laws, for servicing on committees, and for studying the issues that will face them when the Legislature convenes in January.

Tax Law

Without doubt, one of those issues will be the tax law passed this summer to fund massive public school reform. That tax increase and those reforms have stirred a wave of criticism in the worlds of academia and business.

Last week, the dean of the Texas Senate said the law may have done more harm than good.

State Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, admitted, "We had a special session we probably could have done without. Looking back in retrospect, I think we did more harm than good."

Brooks said the education bill has to be "repaired," and the tax bill is "unbelievable." Before even a year has gone by, the Legislature is faced with a deficit on the heels of a record tax increase.

"We went for kids' show tickets and the little newsboy's delivery of newspapers and taxing license plates for the elderly people, and we put an eighth of one percent sales tax increase that made every merchant in the state mad," Brooks concluded.

Hike Defended

Although Brooks voted against the tax increase in the special session, his outright attack on the new laws is surprising. Brooks has been known to support liberal causes in the Senate a little earlier than most, and his home district contains a heavy percentage of union and minority votes.

His jab at the tax bill is an indirect attack on the man who called the Legislature back to Austin and forced them to vote on those bills: Gov. Mark White.

But, Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, is defending the new laws as a necessary first step to reforming education in the face of dwindling revenues. Berlanga usually sides with the conservatives.

The incident is noteworthy because it may reflect the dialogue in the months to come when the Legislature sits down to review its handiwork after listening to the voices back home.

Mattox Sues

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox is suing nine trucking companies for more than $9 million in civil penalties because of alleged violations of laws regulating weight limitations.

But the owner of an Austin-based trucking company says that at least half of his business is with state agencies which have ordered him to overload his trucks.

Mattox is seeking $1 million from each company and said the Austin trucker had 1,053 tickets last year. The trucker retorts he only had 63 tickets.

Parker Case

The Jefferson County district attorney who is attempting to prosecute Port Arthur State Sen. Carl Parker on charges of promoting pornography and prostitution said last week he will get a new grand jury to look at the evidence.

Two weeks ago, a visiting state judge threw out three felony indictments against Parker on the grounds that the original grand jury was possibly biased against him.

Six of the grand jurors who indicted Parker had connections to defendants in a federal lawsuit in which Parker testified against those defendants, the state judge ruled.

Bob Buckel

"This is a recording ..."

Talking to real humans on the phone is getting to be a rare privilege.

I spent 40 minutes on the phone the other day to various forms of AT&T and Southwestern Bell and came away with nothing but a flattened left ear. Only about five minutes of that time was I actually talking to a person.

It was a joy, then, to make a local call and be answered by a human being just two rings later. We should remember how it feels — we may have to describe it for our children someday.

My telephone odyssey was all in vain, as it turned out. I blame most of my frustration on government for breaking up AT&T's monopoly on the phone industry. Now we have our choice of companies, they say, but none of them can take care of all our needs. Ma Bell's family is scattered and disoriented.

My need was simple: I wanted phone service at a Gainesville address. Since there was no Southwestern Bell number in my book, I called AT&T's toll-free number. After 10 or so rings, a recording answered and asked me to hold. I did.

(A word of advice — beware of any recorded telephone message that begins, "I'm sorry..." You'll usually wind up being even sorer. And when it ends by saying, "Please do not hang up," always hang up immediately.)

Anyway, I held for 10 or 12 minutes, until I finished reading all my mail. I decided something had gone wrong — no reasonable person could be expected to hold a phone that long. I had been forgotten. I hung up.

Another number yielded a more cheerful computerized message, also asking me to hold. Background music was provided. I listened to several catchy tunes for about 10 more minutes before hanging up.

After three more tries, I finally got a real person (by that time I was so accustomed to holding I almost didn't talk to her when she came on the line). I told her I wanted to get phone service in Gainesville and she promptly started selling me phones.

I figured I would go along. She asked me how many phone jacks there were in the house, how many people would be using the phone — questions which led me to believe she was actually going to provide me with phone service. When we got through talking she told me my phone would be delivered next Wednesday.

"And when will the service be turned on?" I asked.

"You'll have to talk to Southwestern Bell about that," she said. "We don't provide local service anymore."

"You mean all I've done is order a phone?"

"That's right. You see, since the first of the year when the companies were broken up, you have to get local service from one company, your telephone from another and your long-distance service from another."

I rambled on, half-complaining, not wanting to admit that I'd messed up. I didn't want to let go of the human voice in the telephone jungle, not after I'd worked so hard to get her.

Finally, I asked her to look up Southwestern Bell's number for me. After she did, I cancelled the telephone order I had just given her. There are plenty of phones available in stores staffed by real human beings.

By the time I called Southwestern Bell they had closed for the day — at least that's what the recording said.

Letter to the Editor

Letter to the Editor:

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation thanks Mr. Chris Sicking and the people of Muenster and the Muenster Jaycees for supporting the research and education programs of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Without you, research could not continue.

Cystic fibrosis, the number one genetic killer of children and young adults, affects approximately one in 1,800 babies. Although the symptoms of CF are often similar to other childhood disease, the disease is characterized by the very salty taste of the child's skin. Other symptoms may include: chronic cough, severe breathing problems, vulnerability to serious respiratory ailments, and malnutrition, clubbing of fingertips, failure to grow despite large appetite, nasal polyps, and frequent, bulky bowel movements. For more information talk to your doctor or call the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at 214-871-2222 (Dallas).

Again, our thanks to those of you who persisted, in spite of this Fall's unusual weather and helped the CF families.

Sincerely,
Andrea Rutledge
Campaign Director

My very dear friends,

Why is it that time seems to go faster and faster the older I get? The week barely starts and it is finished. But in my estimation this is a wonderful experience, because waiting for time to pass may be very painful.

First of all I wish each and everyone of the persons who will read this letter, from my heart, a most joyful, blessed Christmas and a happy New Year.

I am well informed about you, my dear friends. I rejoice with you, grieve with you, attend services at Sacred Heart Church, visit my friends at the SNAP, appear at the football games, take a special look at Sacred Heart School, noticing the many faculty members I remember, visit Muenster Memorial Hospital, St. Richard's Villa, some private homes, mentioning in one of them, after having run the doorbell, "Avon is calling."

You must by now think that I have nothing else to do than day dreaming, but you know me better than that. Times, before and after Christmas, are hectic times for me as well as for most of you. But they must be coped with as calmly and patiently as possible.

You know my life style at the Convent through previous letters, and I don't want to bore you by telling you again. At this letter writing my room is as cozy as can be, the desk light hopefully brightens not only the lines on my paper but also my brain. It is night time — a perfect setting for writing, especially when it consists in copying only.

Once upon a time, decades and decades ago at the beginning of a retreat a blue card was posted in many conspicuous places. The cards held this message: "Solitude is the home of the saints and silence is their language." Beautiful, but not applicable to this writer.

We had a lovely Thanksgiving day, and I hope you did also. At 7:30 p.m. we had our party. It started with a game. A very skillfully constructed turkey head was put on the head of a Sister. The latter then confronted a fellow Sister, while performing the actions of a turkey as best as possible, inducing the victim of the confrontation to laugh. This was sometimes very difficult. The Sister who succumbed then had to put on the headdress and so the game went on and on.

The next number on the program was dancing to records. This was enjoyed both by the ones who participated and the ones who enjoyed watching. It was very delightful. It reminded me of the many happy hours experienced throughout my life on the dance floor or on the side lines. My whole being partakes especially in polkas and waltzes.

Now I must stop. I notice letters to the Editor are usually not as long as mine. I thoroughly enjoy reading them.

I am very, very grateful to the Muenster Enterprise that I may have this chat with you, my very dear friends, down there in Muenster, in the U.S.A. and in the whole wide world. And now, good bye my dear friends.

With warmest Christmas greetings and blessings, I remain forever your friends.
Sister M. Theresina, O.S.B.

City to look elsewhere for street funds

Mayor defends program

The only fireworks at the meeting came when Felderhoff took offense at Fisher's remark that the city's percentage of payments on last summer's street work was too high. Felderhoff mentioned several factors which raised the city's part to nearly half of the $282,000 total cost, and chastised Fisher for not attending meetings when the paving program was underway.

The thrust of the meeting turned more constructive after that, however, as those present discussed ways of generating more city revenue without a tax increase on sales or property.

"What we should be talking about, instead of raising taxes, is expanding the city's tax base by bringing business into town," Gary Fisher suggested. "If you bring business in, you help everybody. I think we'd have plenty of revenue if people would come to the Chamber of Commerce meetings and work at attracting industry to town — that would be a positive alternative rather than coming in on the backside and trying to raise taxes."

"It's not as quick and easy as doubling the sales tax, but it would be better for everybody."

The group discussed expanding the city limits to get more property on the city's tax rolls, but determined that can only be done at the request of property owners involved.

The city's operating budget was cut to the bone this year, Felderhoff said, so there is little room for trimming there to fund street maintenance.

"Image is a big factor in attracting business," David Fette said, "because of the mobility of the public. People have a choice when it comes to where they shop. Maybe we could put more of the paving costs on the property owners."

Felderhoff said according to ordinances, the city pays for intersections and base work plus 10 percent of the other paving costs. Extensive base work, drainage and other special problems helped raise the cost of this year's paving program.

Fette suggested the possibility of a volunteer program, or enlisting help from the county. Earl Fisher said if people want paving they should have to bear the majority of the cost, and suggested the city re-write its ordinances to eliminate the 10 percent clause.

That, he notes, might reduce the city's costs to about one-third of any paving project.

City manager Joe Fenton pointed out that a "hot-lay" street like the city put down over the summer has about five times the life span of regular asphalt and gravel paving, and increases the load-carrying capacity of the street. It costs about twice as much to install as a conventional street, he added.

"Paving is a luxury," Henschel said. "It's something we don't have to have. If we have the money, let's spend it, but if not, let's leave it alone."

The group praised the council for the quality of Muenster's streets. The council voted unanimously to seek other ways of raising revenue for street maintenance and construction.

Highway 82 project due west of Saint Jo

Highway 82 west of Saint Jo will be widened to four lanes sometime in the next five years, it was announced recently by the Texas Highway Department.

The department is streamlining its system of planning and building for the future and has replaced the longstanding 20-year plan system with a program called the Project Development Plan.

The new program calls for 10-year planning to be divided into one-year, four-year and five-year segments. The one-year projects will be done within a year; the four-year projects will be done in the next four, and projects in the five-year segment will be done the last five years of the 10-year plan.

Projects in the four-year plan have the go-ahead to acquire right-of-way and prepare for construction.

Approved for construction in the four-year plan is a 12.7-mile project in Montague County providing grading, structures, base and surfacing from Nocona six miles east, plus shoulders for another six miles to Saint Jo. The project will provide four lanes from Saint Jo to Nocona.

Several other projects in Wilbarger, Wichita and Young counties are included.

Sheriff sworn in Aston said Monday that he would probably wait until after the first of the year to make any changes at the department. One change that may come sooner could be the appointment of investigator Jim Westphal as chief deputy, to be in charge of the office if Aston should be out.

Westphal has moved into the chief deputy's office, but the official appointment had not been made at presstime.

"I realize now that even though I was drawing vacation pay from the county, I can see where it could appear to create a conflict by reason of my other job. In reflecting on the present situation I see that a replacement needs to be appointed to the position as soon as possible."

Math-a-Thon nets $1,250

Thirty-two fifth, sixth and seventh graders at Muenster Public Schools raised just over $1,250 for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in a recently-completed "Math-a-Thon."

Principal Eddie Green reported that the fifth graders collected $519, the sixth graders took in $625 and the seventh graders brought in $97 in the annual charity fund-raising project.

To raise the money, students sign up sponsors to pledge a certain amount for every math problem they get correct in a "Math-a-Thon" workbook. The workbooks are sent in and graded, and then the students go out and collect based on their scores.

Fifteen fifth graders, 14 sixth graders and three seventh graders took part in this year's project, Green said.

"St. Jude's is one of the major children's hospitals in the world," he said. "They depend on donations like this. We like to do it because it's educational for the kids, and it gives them an opportunity to do some fund-raising for children who are not as fortunate as they are."

Twenty-six of the students raised $25 or more to earn tee-shirts, and two brought in more than $100 each in pledges, qualifying for tee-shirts and tote-bags. The awards will be presented at a special party hosted by the principal.

"We're quite proud of these kids for working so hard," Green said. "We also appreciate the community for backing them up every year. We think it's a good thing and we plan to do it again next year."

The top two fund-raisers were Brad McDaniel, son of Robert and Judy McDaniel, and Sherry Hacker, son of Jim and Linda Hacker. Both are sixth graders and helped their class to the championship out of the three classes involved.

Council discusses streets, antenna, airplane

After a lengthy public hearing about a proposed increase in the city sales tax, the Muenster city council took care of some other routine business during their regular session Monday night.

The sales tax proposal was nixed after the council heard from 10 business owners who spoke against the idea (see separate story). The extra funds would have gone toward a street-paving and maintenance program.

Streets continued to be a topic at the meeting, as the council heard a report from city manager Joe Fenton on patchwork done as part of last summer's paving program. Those patches need to be sealed over soon, Fenton said, or a hard freeze in wet weather could damage the paving.

Fenton said he had had trouble locating the contractor who promised in a "handshake agreement" to seal the patches after they had cured.

"It's urgent that this work be done within a month at the most," he said. The council agreed to continue efforts to contact the contractor.

Radio, antenna okayed

The council approved purchase of a new radio for Fenton's city vehicle for $395. Fenton will use an antenna the city already owns, but the city will purchase a new antenna for its base station on top of city hall.

Fenton said the base antenna is one which was designed for use on a vehicle. It is mounted sideways on the city's CB tower, and provides poor reception for city workers when they try to communicate with city hall from their vehicles.

Fenton said the cost of a new antenna would be $372, but would allow the city to remove the phone line which is in place at the landfill site northwest of town. With the new antenna, workers would be able to contact city hall without the phone, and its removal would save the city $22.50 a month — enough to pay for the new antenna in a little over a year.

A mast for antenna has been donated to the city, Fenton said. The new antenna would also help city police officers, and would allow better communication with the city's fire truck when it goes into rural areas.

Airplane needs facelift

Mayor Ronnie Felderhoff read the council a letter from the Air Force warning the city to properly maintain the fighter jet mounted on display in the park.

If the jet is allowed to deteriorate, the Air Force will remove it, the letter said.

"It's pretty shabby looking," councilman John Pagel said. "It would be no great loss in my opinion if they came and got it." Councilman Willie Wimmer said "It would give us another good slab to put a picnic table on."

The airplane needs some of its side panels replaced, some painting and touch-up work and some cleaning up around the cockpit, which has been exposed to the weather since the glass canopy was broken out by vandals shortly after it was installed.

Councilmen were asked to check on the possibility of fixing up the plane, possibly as a project by a local service club, to keep the Air Force from repossessing it.

Legal action discussed

In a closed session at the end of the meeting, the council agreed to settle with one resident over paving while warning another about possible legal action unless he pays his bill.

Glenn Hess' offer of $7,533 was accepted by the council although it was $347 less than the bill the council sent him for paying work in front of his business on Mesquite St. Hess had complained that the curb work was substandard, and the council had discounted his original bill by $1,000.

Councilmen agreed that it would be better to settle for the amount offered than to go to court over the difference.

On another matter, however, they voted to give Ray Wilde seven days to pay principal for a curbing job done over a year ago on his property along First Street. Wilde owes the city $1,862 plus six percent interest for the work, with the payment due by November 15.

City secretary Celine Dittfurth said he was notified around the first of November that the payment was due, but had not come forward with the money as of Tuesday.

The council voted to send him a letter allowing seven days for full payment before a lawsuit is filed.

Personnel action

The council voted to pay city worker James Harrison $12 an hour for the use of his welding equipment in addition to his regular salary when he welds for the city.

Harrison requested the raise from $7.50 an hour extra because of increased operating costs.

They also agreed to pay water superintendent Wayne Tate additional money for checking the city's wells on weekends when it is not his scheduled turn to do so. Tate has been pulling extra duty since water department employee Chris Yosten left the city on November 16.

Tate was also appointed to the board of directors of the Muenster Public Library.

cash income of $10,178. It can get food stamps and public housing, as well as Medicaid, which is the best health insurance to be found anywhere in the world. These are sizable values which increase personal income substantially above the poverty level, but they do not change one's poverty classification. In fact, as the system is set up, the amount of welfare paid for the benefit of the poor can keep increasing, but the number of people classified as poor would go up instead of down.

A related fact too often overlooked is that the non-cash welfare benefits provided for the poor eventually get into the pockets of people who are not poor. When the government pays the money and poor people get the value but not the cash, third parties have to figure in somewhere. It can be assumed that landlords and contractors get the pay for housing, health services get the pay for Medicaid, and providers of various items get the pay for food stamps. From this it's more understandable why many special interest individuals and groups with no apparent concern for the poor favor the ever increasing welfare program. And, of course, the same can be said of thousands of the programs' administrative personnel. Their chief interest is the fat pay they receive.

Facts like these help us understand the big howl that arises at every effort to trim the welfare system. The real trouble is that too much of it benefits people who do not need or deserve the help. First there are those who report far less than actual income. Next are the administrators getting big pay, many of whom would not be needed if the poverty figure were not inflated, and many others who get rich on goods and service the government appropriates for the poor. The poor are not by any means the only complainers when reform of the poverty program is proposed.

As regards us taxpayers, we know there are many who need and deserve help. By all means, let's be generous to them, but let's get serious and firm about removing vast numbers of under-serving from the gravy train.

Let's be practical and admit that the $400 million is more than enough to make rich people out of all our 35.3 million poor. Let's realize there ought to be a way of reclassifying poverty more correctly and to reduce the vast payroll of administrators.

Regardless of what the howlers say, something is obviously wrong with the system. Poverty needs to be correctly classified and taxpayers need relief. And the budget also needs relief.

Students' reasons vary for learning CPR

by Diane Hill

Do you know what to do if your baby is choking? What if your father falls to the floor clutching his chest, or your neighbor runs up to you with her unconscious child in her arms?

Nine Cooke County residents recently joined the ever-growing number of people who will know what to do if confronted with one of these frightening situations. They learned how to administer CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) during a special course sponsored by Callisburg I.S.D. community education department and Cooke County Chapter of the American Red Cross. The course was held at Rad Ware Elementary School last week.

Class member Treason Kindiger of Woodbine knows how it feels to watch a child choke — it has happened to her ten-year-old son twice.

Josh Kindiger was five years old when he swallowed a small, hard rubber ball he had been playing with, while he and his mother were driving into town.

"I worked on him and then drove and then worked on him some more," Mrs. Kindiger recalled. She was finally able to dislodge the ball caught in his throat and Josh began breathing again.

Last Fourth of July Josh got a piece of chicken stuck in his throat. If family members had not helped him, he could have choked to death.

"It would have been so much easier if I had known what to do," Mrs. Kindiger said.

Debrah Brookshear of Gainesville knows what goes through parents' minds when their child is choking — but she knew what to do when her son, three-year-old Cody, choked on a life saver in the parking lot of a Gainesville supermarket.

"I bent him over my arm and hit him four times on the back," she said. Her blows, using the heel of her hand, forced Cody to expel the piece of candy.

Mrs. Brookshear was repeating the class because she wanted to brush up on her CPR skills and meet the American Red Cross' yearly recertification requirement.

Joe Ivy took CPR because he had recently tried to revive an elderly neighbor who had suffered a heart attack. That rescue attempt failed.

Ivy and the victim's son-in-law found the man on the ground near his tractor and administered mouth-to-mouth breathing for what "seemed like hours." It was 20-30 minutes before emergency help arrived.

Officials told the two rescuers that the man was probably dead before they found him; but Ivy, who had taken first aid classes through the Boy Scouts and in the military, decided he needed to learn how to help someone whose heart had stopped beating.

Fonda Huneycutt, Callisburg's community education coordinator and certified Red Cross instructor, began offering the course two and one-half years ago.

"It is gratifying to teach others a skill that can be used to save a family member, neighbor or anyone else," she said.

Thanks to her efforts, 256 Callisburg elementary and high school students and adults from all over the county are certified to perform CPR.

During the course, Mrs. Huneycutt explained the techniques used in both respiratory (breathing) and circulatory (heart function) emergencies. She taught students how to dislodge an object blocking someone's airway, how to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and how to perform external cardiac massage on an individual who has no pulse.

Students practiced on ResusciAnne and ResusciBaby, two mannequins valued at over $600 and paid for out of tuition fees.

The life-size dolls have chests that rise and fall when air is forced into their mechanical lungs. Anne has a gauge featuring red, yellow and green lights that register whether or not a student is administering mouth-to-mouth breathing and CPR chest compressions correctly.

Most first-time students were surprised at how difficult it was to keep the necessary, steady rhythm going when attempting chest compressions on ResusciAnne, and how much energy it took to breathe for her.

Mrs. Huneycutt told her class it is necessary to decide whether or not to give CPR to a victim.

"If you start, you are obligated to continue until help comes or you are too exhausted to go on," she said. She assured the class they would remember the skills in an emergency. "Doing something is better than not being able to do anything at all."

According to Marie Ownbey, chapter executive of the Cooke County American Red Cross, a total of 427 county residents obtained CPR certification in 1983. Two of these people later used their CPR skills to successfully revive a pair of near-drowning victims in separate incidents at Gainesville's city pool.

Mrs. Ownbey noted that individuals with current Red Cross certificates are protected under the Good Samaritan Law. The few suits that have been filed have been thrown out of court.

For information on where the next CPR class will be held, contact the Cooke County Red Cross at the Court House. This free course only takes eight hours — not a high price to pay for saving a life.

Six sentenced in district court

Six people pleaded guilty to various charges and were sentenced this week by District Judge Larry Sullivan in Gainesville.

Alvin Jimmy Gibson, 62, of Sherman was given a six-day sentence in the county jail and a $50 fine for a subsequent offense of driving while intoxicated. The arrest occurred on September 3 of this year.

Emmett Pugh, 36, of Gainesville, was sentenced to three years' probation for unlawful use of an airplane belonging to Frank Rgnotti. The offense occurred on January 31 of this year.

Ronald Bagby, 27, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault in connection with a May 24 incident involving Jessie Hunt. He was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail.

Randy Epperson was given five-year and one-year probated sentences for the thefts of two guitars. One, a Guild, was valued at $1,000 and belonged to Jim Yeagan, while the other, an Alvarez, was valued at $350 and belonged to John Mike Griffith.

Both guitars were taken on May 27 of this year. Epperson drew a five-year probated sentence for the first theft and a one-year term for the second theft, which was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Dea Swirczynski, 22, of Valley View was given a five-year sentence with deferred adjudication and restitution for a break-in at the Masonic Lodge last February 14.

The burglary of a building conviction will not go on Swirczynski's record if she successfully completes the five-year probation and makes full restitution.

Kinzy Donnelly, 19, of Pilot Point, pleaded guilty to three counts of forgery by passing and was given a seven-year sentence with deferred adjudication and restitution.

Donnelly admitted to writing checks on September 11 and November 2 on the account of Arthur Lee Tolbert, Jr., forging the signatures.

Muenster lady's kinfolk dies in accident

John C. Ryan, 79, a cousin of Mrs. Marguerite (Kitty) King, died Tuesday morning, Nov. 27 in a car-truck accident in Houston, where he and his wife were visiting relatives.

Ryan, a former state senator in Missouri and Mrs. Ryan were frequent visitors in Muenster with Mrs. King and her late husband, Maurice (Chili) King. Their last visit in Muenster with Kitty King was on Nov. 21-22, on an overnight stop between their Sedalia, Mo. home and Houston. That evening they were supper guests of friends, Tony and Thelma Trubenbach.

Mrs. Ryan was brought to Muenster the day after the accident, by a nephew, George Harris of Lake Jackson, and Mrs. King accompanied them to the funeral in Sedalia.

Ryan was a member of the Missouri state senate from 1966 until his retirement in 1980. He was a retired farmer, retired automobile dealer, a director of the Angus Association, a past member of the board of regents of Central Mo. State University and a former director of Missouri State Bank, an officer in Kiwanis, a member of the Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite Mason, United Methodist Church, and the Republican Club. In his high school days he was a member of the state championship basketball team and state all-star team.

Survivors in addition to his wife include two daughters, five grandchildren and a brother.

The Ryans were acquainted with a number of Muenster friends.

ceremony was different this year. The memorial ritual has been made a part of the Mass whereas formerly it was a separate ceremony and the Mass was regarded as an addition. Father Victor Gillespie pointed out that since the holy sacrifice of the Mass is a perfect prayer it is especially appropriate as a prayer for the dead.

Also as a part of the change, the service discontinued the long roll call of deceased members. The new procedure includes naming the deceased of the current year only.

Fleitmans join daughter for trip

Family makes Korean tour

A tour of one of the world's oldest civilizations and a chance to visit with family now stationed on the Korean peninsula combined to make an ideal vacation for a Muenster family who took part in the Reunion in Korea program last month, sponsored by the Korea National Tourism Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Fleitman joined their daughter,

SFC Lenora J. Isenhour, who is an air traffic control liaison non-commissioned officer for the 125th Air Traffic Control Battalion stationed at Yongsan Army Garrison in Seoul, for a five-day visit in the Republic of Korea (ROK). They were welcomed by top United States Forces in Korea (USFK) officials who briefed the group on the U.S. commitment to the ROK and the threat facing peace and security in the area.

Reunion in Korea was established in recognition of the centennial of diplomatic relations between the U.S. and the ROK. It demonstrates the Republic's appreciation of American contributions to security on the Korean peninsula by enabling family members of USFK and Department of Defense civilian personnel to visit Korea at a substantial discount.

Although tour costs vary according to departure and return points, the entire trip, which includes round-trip air fare, hotel accommodations, all meal and tours, is priced, in most cases, less than a standard one-way fare to Korea.

USFK representatives accompanied the Reunion group throughout the program, which includes tours of the United Nations Command Joint Security Area at Panmunjom, the ancient Changduk Palace in Seoul, Bulguksa Temple and the National Museum in Kyongju, the ancient capital of Korea's Shilla Dynasty.

Four members also had the opportunity to visit the Korean Folk Village in Suwon, a reproduction of a traditional Korean village where villagers practice the ancient crafts and demonstrate the old ways of life. In contrast, they were given a tour of the massive Hyundai shipyard in Ulsan where modern craftsmen work in heavy industry.

Throughout the visit participants stayed at first class hotels and were given the opportunity to dine on traditional Korean foods and be entertained by Korean musicians and dancers.

Resident tells of 1922 automobile trip

Automobile travel in the early twenties was rugged adventure. That was the general idea of a diary kept by Mrs. Joe Hoenig, the former Susanna Fleitman, while she accompanied her parents, the Henry Fleitmans, and her brother, Al, on a tour visiting kin folks and old friends and seeing places and things along the way. All of the four persons are now deceased, and the account of the tour was found recently by Susie's husband.

Entitled "Our Trip," it records the happenings of each day along with all towns along the route, the people they visited and their activities, plus washing and ironing clothes for a fresh start on the next leg of their journey.

On the road the principal activity was car trouble. That was mostly flat tires, in fact, a span of 190 miles from one flat to another was regarded worthy of an entry. Some other problems were a broken frame, a burned out fuse, leaking radiator, stripped gears and loss of a wheel.

The trip started on August 7, 1922 and followed a route which included Amarillo and Colorado Springs then east to Chicago and back to Muenster, a distance of 4200 miles ending on October 2. In Colorado they saw the popular tourist attractions: Pike's Peak, Garden of the Gods, Cave of the Winds and Seven Falls.

When weather permitted they camped out but when rain interfered they slept and ate inside. They diary frequently mentions the muddy roads especially when they had to get out and push. And it gave credit where credit was due, especially the good roads and pretty towns. Iowa got their vote for favorite state.

Denhams back from vacation

Perryman and Myrt Denham of Forestburg have returned to their home after a ten-day vacation. They were guests of her relatives in New Braunfels, and then went sightseeing in the Rio Grande Valley and visited briefly with friends. Enroute home, they went through Laredo and then drove leisurely in the hill country, taking time to enjoy spectacular foliage and autumn scenery. Forestburg readers are urged to send her their news for use in The Enterprise.

VFW Auxiliary holds 'In Lieu of Cards' event

For the fifteenth consecutive year, "In Lieu of Christmas Cards" will be a traditional holiday project in Muenster, enabling individuals to send greetings to friends but sparing themselves the usual time and effort.

In 1984, however, a change will be made in sponsorship. In the past, the Muenster Hospital Auxiliary directed the project and a fund for special hospital equipment was the beneficiary.

Announcement was made Monday that the VFW Auxiliary will be the sponsor this year and its Cancer Aid and Research Project will be the beneficiary. As in the past, the Christmas greeting will be included in the Christmas issue of the Muenster Enterprise.

Persons wishing to participate are reminded that the long-standing holiday feature is attractive in several ways, principally that it is a time saver in a hectic time, while contributing to a worthwhile charitable project.

Any moneys will be accepted, but the VFW Auxiliary urges that each signature be accompanied by a donation of not less than $5.00; and larger amounts, as before, will be most welcome.

Individual donations will not be printed, but the total amount received will be included in the Christmas greeting in the newspaper.

Deadline is Sunday, Dec. 16 and responses may be mailed to Frances Bayer, VFW Auxiliary President, Rt. 1, Box A-19, Muenster, Tx. or Janet Barnhill, P.O. Box 15, Muenster, Tx.

THE KEY TO THE BIG CITY MAY COST YOU A BUNDLE

The glamour and glitter from big city merchants with promises of your own 'Key To The City' may come with a lot of pitfalls.

First of all, every time you shop out of town you help pay someone else's taxes, support their schools and help them build new streets and facilities while you neglect your own. Part of every dollar you spend goes to support their city.

You also spend your valuable time driving, use expensive gas getting there and deal with people you don't know and will never see again.

Your local merchants, in most cases, provide you the same selection at the lowest prices and they will be right there in your community if there should be any problem with the goods or services. Make it a point to shop with your home town merchants. By shopping at home you already have the key to the city - YOUR CITY.

Hornettes make tourney finals

Muenster's girls charged into the finals of the Slidell tournament before losing Saturday to the home team in a 44-36 heart-breaker.

The Hornettes beat Chico 40-28 in their tourney opener, leading all the way behind a strong performance from Amy Davidson. The junior forward hit 11 points — nine in the second half — to key a balanced Muenster offense.

Rita Walterscheid added eight points for Muenster, while Dana Dankesreiter scored six and Judy Biffle and Kim Eldred accounted for four apiece.

Muenster led 10-5 after eight minutes and built their lead to 19-11 by halftime. They took a 30-24 advantage into the final quarter and outscored their opponents 10-4 down the stretch.

Bonnie McDaniel led Chico with 12 points. They were eight of 23 at the free throw line while Muenster hit eight of 22.

Muenster's ladies used a strong second quarter to overtake Paradise in their second-round game and held on for a 37-31 win to earn a berth in the tournament finals.

Paradise jumped out to a 10-5 first-quarter lead over the Hornettes, but Muenster outscored them 14-6 to take a 19-16 halftime lead. Paradise came back, however, and led 28-27 going into the fourth period before Muenster beat them 10-3 in the final eight minutes for the win.

Rita Walterscheid keyed the attack with 12 points, followed by Dana Dankesreiter with 11, Amy Davidson with seven and DeAnn Walterscheid with five.

The Hornettes were 11-for-25 from the free throw line, while Paradise's girls hit nine of 17 shots. Potts led Paradise's scoring with 12 points.

Muenster trailed throughout the final game before losing to Slidell 44-36. It was 12-8, 23-17 and 37-28 at the quarters as the host team led all the way.

Rita Walterscheid canned 11 points from the inside for Muenster, followed by Dana Dankesreiter with 10, DeAnn Walterscheid with six and Amy Davidson with five.

The Hornettes hit six free throws, but only went to the line nine times while Slidell made 27 trips to the charity stripe. They hit 14 of those shots.

Debbie Schertz led Slidell's scoring with 17 points.

The tournament left Muenster's girls with a 3-2 record going into a game with Goldberg Tuesday.

Lindsay girls lose to Pottsboro, 44-43

Lindsay's girls basketball squad fell to 1-3 on the season Tuesday night with a heartbreaking 44-43 loss to Pottsboro.

The Knightettes led throughout the first half, holding a 14-6 advantage after one quarter and maintaining a slim 21-20 lead at halftime. Pottsboro came back to lead 31-29 heading into the final period before winning by a single point.

Brenda Haverkamp led Lindsay's scoring with 20 points, including six of seven free throws. Deana Nortman hit seven. The Lindsay girls were 13 of 22 at the line overall.

Sturgill led Pottsboro with 12, while Dutton added 10. The visitors were 10 of 21 at the free throw line.

"Our girls are just inexperienced," coach George Thomason said. "Hopefully they'll come around by the middle of the season and start winning some of these close games."

The junior varsity girls went to 3-0 on the season as they downed Pottsboro 26-21. Jolanda Wimmer and Julie Dankesreiter each hit 10 points, and the team went four-for-six at the free throw line.

Boys lose a pair

The Knights suffered their second loss of the season as Pottsboro rolled to a 61-39 win at Lindsay Tuesday.

Jeff Hellman led the Lindsay scoring with 12 points, followed by Kevin Fuhrmann with 10 and Scott Fleitman with six. The squad was five-for-16 at the free throw line.

Thomason said the boys' inexperience, combined with the late start due to football playoffs, is working against them in the early going.

"All but two of our players were in football, and five of them didn't play basketball before this year," he said. "We've got some pretty good athletes, but it takes awhile to learn the system and develop a shooting touch."

Tough opponents in the first two games have taken advantage of Lindsay's inexperience.

"We haven't run into anyone our size yet, and we're just not shooting the ball very well. We can't score enough points to keep up with the teams we've been playing."

McIntire canned 18 for Pottsboro, including 10 in the first quarter, while Lewis hit 15 and Short scored 13. Pottsboro was 19-for-31 at the free throw line.

The junior varsity Knights fell to an identical 0-2 record as they lost to Pottsboro's jaycee squad, 36-20.

Both the boys and girls varsity squads were set to enter the Forestburg tournament which started Thursday at the Forestburg and Saint Jo gyms.

Era falls in finals at tourney

Era's Lady Hornets swept into the finals of the Whitesboro tournament over the weekend before losing to Van Alstyne by a score of 55-29.

The Era girls edged S&S in their opening contest, 41-37, then whipped Collinsville 42-36 to earn a spot in the tourney finals Saturday.

Era led Van Alstyne 14-11 after the first quarter, but the sleeping giant awoke in the second frame and outscored them 18-3 over the next eight minutes to lead 29-17 at halftime. It was 43-24 going into the fourth quarter.

Kelli Yarbrough hit nine points to lead Era, followed by Mitzi Mitchell with eight and Melissa Young with five. Ferguson led Van Alstyne's scoring with 23 points.

In their tourney opener, Era overcame a big S&S lead to outscore their opponents in the second, third and fourth quarters and take a 41-37 win.

After trailing 15-4 at the end of the first period, Era's girls rallied to cut the margin to 23-17 at halftime. S&S still led, 33-30, going into the fourth quarter, but Era outscored them 11-4 down the home stretch.

Yarbrough led the Lady Hornets with 11, while Amy Young canned nine, and Mitchell and Melissa Young scored six apiece. Tanya Puckett made her presence known under the boards with 23 rebounds.

Smith led S&S's offense with 15 points.

In their second-round game against Collinsville, the Era ladies got off to a slow start — but Collinsville's start was even slower. Era led 4-2 after a ho-hum first quarter, but burst out of their sleep to take an 18-9 lead by halftime.

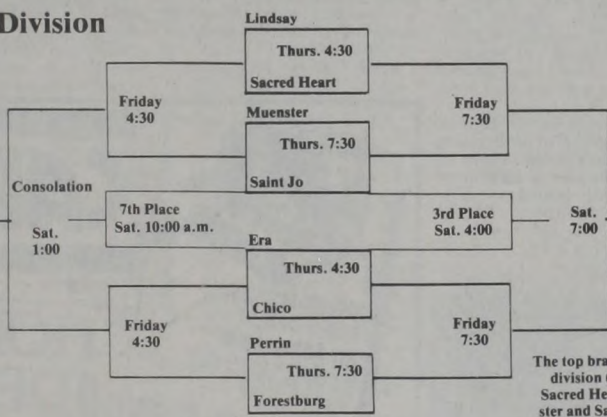

It was 31-13 going into the final frame.

Yarbrough led with 19 points, followed by Mitchell with 12 and Puckett with five. Russell hit 11 for Collinsville, who had beaten Whitesboro in the first round to make the tourney semifinals.

Kelli Yarbrough, Era's high-scoring junior point guard, won all-tournament honors.

Tigerette win ends Callisburg streak

Callisburg's balanced scoring attack proved too much for the Sacred Heart Tigers here Friday night, as the Wildcats stretched their record to 4-0 with a 56-21 win over the winless Tigers.

Richard Edwards paced Callisburg with 12 points and 14 rebounds, while Scott Pilcher hit 10. Clint Hollandsworth canned eight and Gene Thompson added six.

For Sacred Heart, John Nasche scored 10 points while Ken Hesse hit eight and pulled down seven rebounds. The Tigers were three-for-five at the free throw line while Callisburg hit two in four trips.

Callisburg led 18-10 after one quarter and stretched it to 28-14 by halftime. They outscored the Tigers 11-4 in the third quarter to take a 39-18 lead into the final frame.

The Tigerettes ended Callisburg's undefeated streak

Friday by handing them a 38-33 loss after coming from behind.

Sandra Walterscheid led the Sacred Heart attack with 15 points and seven rebounds, followed by Sondra Hess with 11 and Rose Felderhoff with five. The Tigerettes were 18 of 28 at the free throw line.

Kelli Tuck was high-point player for Callisburg with 17, while Tracy Lee had eight and Stacy Lee hit four. The Lady Wildcats were five for eight at the free throw line.

Callisburg took an early lead in the game, holding a 9-6 advantage after a low-scoring first quarter. It was 19-19 at halftime and the Tigerettes managed a slim 28-27 lead going into the fourth quarter before outscoring their guests 10-6.

The win left the Tigerettes 3-1 on the season heading into a Tuesday matchup with Fort Worth's Trinity Valley.

A roundup of area sports happenings

Basketball week ...

Hoop action for the week starts out with the big tournament at Forestburg, with teams from Muenster, Sacred Heart, Lindsay, Era, Saint Jo and Forestburg all involved. For a tournament schedule, see the bracket on this page.

The rest of the week looks like this for area teams:

Muenster will host Valley View Tuesday at 7 p.m. and will enter the Callisburg tournament beginning Thursday on the other side of the county;

Sacred Heart will also be in action at home Tuesday as they host Era beginning at 7 p.m. The Tigers and Tigerettes will enter the Krum tournament Thursday.

Lindsay travels to Collinsville to play a trio of games beginning with the girls' junior varsity at 5:30, with both varsities to follow. They, too, will compete in the Krum tournament beginning Thursday;

Era will be at Sacred Heart's gym Tuesday and then enter the Callisburg tournament starting Thursday;

Forestburg gets a week's rest after finishing their tournament, with no games scheduled until they venture to Callisburg for that tourney beginning next Thursday;

Callisburg plays host to S&S in their district 10-AA opener Tuesday, with jaycee action starting at 5 p.m. for the girls and both varsity games to follow. They will open play in their own tournament Thursday;

Saint Jo's boys will host Nocona Tuesday, with junior varsity play starting at 6:30 p.m. They will play in the Krum tournament beginning Thursday.

Reeves leads Panthers to win

Kevin Reeves swished 29 points to lead the Saint Jo Panthers to a 55-46 win over Forestburg Tuesday night.

Andy Sappington added 13 to the Panther attack, and the team hit eight of 16 free throws to lead throughout the game. Saint Jo was up 14-12 after one quarter and stretched the margin to 31-20 by halftime.

It was 42-34 going into the final frame.

Brent Shults and Russ Recker each hit 18 for the Longhorns, giving coach Hollis Adams hope for the future despite the team's 0-4 record.

"This was the first chance I've had to look at the whole team," he said. "They're taking a while to come together, but this should be a good solid team by the time district starts."

Adams said 6'2" senior Kendall Holland, who was injured in a car accident several weeks ago, made his first appearance on the court in Tuesday's game. Holland led the team in both scoring and rebounding last year as a junior.

The 18-point performance by newcomer Recker, a 6'5" junior, was another encouraging sign for Adams. Recker did not play any basketball prior to this year.

Forestburg girls win

Forestburg's girls boosted their record to 3-1 with a 51-34 victory over Saint Jo Tuesday night. Danna Hamric hit 17 to lead the Lady Longhorns and Page Sirman added 16. They were seven of 11 from the free throw line.

Tany Reeves led Saint Jo with 12 points, followed by Marty Lyons who scored 10. The Pantherettes were five of 14 on free throws.

Forestburg led all the way after jumping out to a 10-4 advantage in the first quarter. It was 23-14 at halftime and they carried a 37-21 advantage into the final quarter.

TIGERETTE SONDRA HESS puts the ball on the floor to go around the defense of Callisburg's Tracy Lee in basketball action at Muenster last Friday night. Sacred Heart won the contest, 39-35.

Five fun runners of Muenster participated and all finished the complete 26.2 mile course at the Dallas White Rock Marathon Sunday.

Among more than 4000 runners were Ronnie Hess, who finished at 2:47, Wanda Flusche 4:49, David

Era boys lose to S&S in first round of tourney

The Era Hornets fell by a score of 68-45 to S&S as they were eliminated in the first round of play at a weekend tournament in Whitesboro.

S&S led 13-9, 34-24 and 44-30 at the quarters before pulling away in the final eight minutes.

Mark Knabe's 30 points paced the Hornets' scoring, while Richard Zanchetta added seven. Mark Gray hit 22 for S&S and Jerry Taylor hit 16.

The Hornets lost a close one at Valley View Tuesday night by a score of 36-33, to fall to 0-5 on the season. They were scheduled to enter the Forestburg tournament this weekend.

SH girls rip Trinity Tuesday

The Sacred Heart basketball teams came out on the winning and losing ends of a couple of lopsided games at the Sacred Heart gym Tuesday night as the boys and girls hosted Fort Worth's Trinity Valley Trojans.

The Tigerettes burst out of an 8-8 first-quarter tie to outscore Trinity 22-3 in the second quarter. They held their guests to a lone point in the third quarter and led 42-12 going into the final eight minutes before winning 64-14.

Sandra Walterscheid had a field day inside against the outclassed

Trinity Valley ladies, hitting 22 points and grabbing 14 rebounds. Eight Tigerettes got into the scoring act: Sondra Hess had 12, Tammy Hess hit 10, Lydia Walterscheid scored six, Vickie Walterscheid and Juline Bartel canned four each and Rose Felderhoff and Molly Koelzer hit two points apiece.

Vickie Walterscheid had 15 rebounds in addition to her four points, and Rose dished out eight assists from the guard position to help spark the attack. Sacred Heart was four-for-seven from the free throw line.

Diane Farrar hit six points to lead Trinity Valley, while her squad went two-for-six on free throws.

Boys get outgunned

The Tiger boys were outgunned by a hot-shooting Trinity Valley team and fell by a score of 72-30. The loss was their fifth of the season, as they are still waiting for a first win.

Trinity held a 20-14 lead at the end of the first quarter and built it to 30-20 by halftime. The real blowout came in the third frame when they outscored Sacred Heart 29-4 to take a 59-24 lead into the final period.

Paul Druley led the Trojans with 20 points. His team hit 12 of 20 shots at the free throw line while the Tigers were two-for-three.

Ken Hesse led Sacred Heart's scoring with 14 points, followed by John Nasche with eight, Chris Dangelmayr with six and Craig Voth with two.

Both the boys and girls were set to enter the Forestburg tournament this weekend.

Hornet teams win split with Goldberg

Both the Muenster boys and girls evened their season records at 3-3 Tuesday night as the girls lost to Goldberg, 50-39, and the boys claimed a 50-37 victory.

A tough zone defense shut Goldberg down in the second quarter to help give the Hornet boys a win — their first of the season over someone besides Valley View.

Muenster trailed 12-10 after eight minutes of play, but roared back for 19 points in the second quarter while holding their hosts to three. It was 29-15 at halftime and the Hornets stretched the lead to 44-22 going into the fourth period.

Jay Mollenkopf led the Hornets' balanced scoring attack, hitting 11 points. Ronnie Fisher added 10 inside and Stuart Hess scored seven for coach Bob Gross' squad. Muenster hit eight of 18 at the free throw line.

Franklin led Goldberg with 14 points; his team was five of 14 on free throws.

Rita Walterscheid's 16 points were not enough in the girls contest as Goldberg handed Muenster its third loss of the year.

Dana Dankesreiter canned 11 for Muenster and DeAnn Walterscheid added five. The Hornets were 13 of 26 at the free throw line while Goldberg hit 14 of 19 charity tosses. Goldberg's scoring was led by Hinn with 24 points and Mills with 16.

Both Muenster teams were set to enter the Forestburg tournament this weekend.

Pilot Pt. eliminates Lindsay at tourney

Lindsay's boys and girls basketball teams made quick exits from the Whitesboro tournament over the weekend after running into tough squads from Pilot Point in the first round.

The Lindsay boys fell behind 19-5 in their first quarter against Pilot Point, and wound up losing 70-37. In the single-elimination tourney, that loss eliminated them from further play.

Jeff Hellman led the Knights with 10 points while Leroy Hermes added nine and seven other boys found their way into the scoring column with two or more points. Elliot had 24 for Pilot Point, 11 of those coming in the first quarter.

Pilot Point led 41-12 at the half and 58-23 going into the final period. They hit 16 of 27 free throws while Lindsay sank just 11 of their 25 free throw opportunities.

The game was Lindsay's first of the season after a late start due to football playoffs. They were 0-1 going into a Tuesday game with Pottosboro.

Knightettes lose battle

Lindsay's girls jumped out to a 13-6 lead over Pilot Point, but got outscored 22-3 in the second quarter to trail 28-16 at halftime. They were down 34-25 going into the final frame, before losing by a 44-36 margin to be eliminated from the tournament.

Gina Arendt led the Lindsay ladies' scoring with 14 points, while Minnie Hundt had eight and Brenda Haverkamp canned six. Lindsay was 12-for-34 at the four line.

Hall keyed the Pilot Point attack, hitting eight of her game-high 16 points in the second quarter. Her team went to the free throw line just seven times, cashing in on only two of those shots.

The loss left Lindsay's girls 1-2 heading into a Tuesday game against Pottosboro at Lindsay.

Hornets win one, lose two in tournament

The Muenster Hornets lost to Chico and Peaster in a weekend tournament at Slidell, getting their only tourney win over Valley View in the first round of the consolation bracket.

The Hornets came out strong against Chico in their first game and were tied with the Dragons at 13-13 after one quarter. Chico pulled ahead at halftime 27-23, and held Muenster to just four points in the third frame to lead 39-27 going into the final eight minutes.

John Anderle led the Hornets with 11 points, all of them coming in the first half. Ronnie Fisher hit eight for Muenster — six of them in the fourth quarter — while Kevin Wolf added six.

Redwine led Chico with 31 points.

The Hornets got their second win of the year over Valley View in the first consolation round as they came back from a deficit to down the Eagles 34-30.

Muenster trailed 10-8, 16-10 and 22-21 at the quarters before nosing out the Eagles. Sophomore guard Ryan Klement got the hot hand, hitting nine second-half points to total 13 on the game and lead Muenster.

Kevin Wolf and Joe Pagel canned six apiece and John Anderle hit five. Muenster was 10-for-17 from the line.

In their final game the Hornets got hold of a two-pronged Peaster offense and found themselves victims of a shocking second-quarter after grabbing an early 12-9 lead.

Although the Hornets scored 12 points in the second quarter, they were outgunned by Peaster's dynamic duo who canned 20 between them to spark a 27-point outburst. After getting the lead a 36-24, Peaster held on for a 64-41 win.

Jay Mollenkopf and Kevin Wolf hit 10 points each for Muenster, while John Anderle scored nine and Ronnie Fisher added eight inside.

Muenster was 10 of 21 from the line; Peaster was 16 of 27.

The tournament left Muenster with a 2-3 record heading into a Tuesday game at Goldberg.

St. Peter's Church featured in magazine

In a simple two paragraphs, a lot is said about the St. Peter's Church in Lindsay in the December issue of the Southern Living Magazine. Mention of our intricately painted church is summarized in two paragraphs on the third page of a four page article entitled, "Painted Churches Shine With Tradition". The article focuses on the decorations found on the inside of some of our Texas Churches.

The article begins with a location of Lindsay, and states that the church is "remarkable for its design as well as its painted interior". It goes on to say that the church was built in 1918 and was designed by a Dutch immigrant for this German community.

The second paragraph explains that a Swiss immigrant artist, Friedolin Fuchs, was responsible for the intricate interior painting.

Members attend FB meet

Voting delegates at the Texas Farm Bureau's 51st annual meeting last week in San Antonio approved a recommendation for a market-oriented national farm program that includes the supply-management concept.

S.M. True, a cotton and grain farmer from Plainview, was re-elected to a third, one-year term as president of TFB which saw its membership reach an all-time high with 317,575 member families. Following adjournment of the annual meeting, the Board re-elected A. Wayne Cranfill, a Hooks dairy farmer, vice president, and Roy Johnson, a Desdemona peanut farmer, secretary-treasurer.

Gerald M. Clark of Edna, who raises rice, grain sorghum, corn and cattle, was elected state director, succeeding George O. White of Harwood, who leaves the TFB Board after reaching the six-year limitation.

The delegates said a farm program should include the following:

— Carry-over supplies that provide a cushion in time of disaster, but not be burdensome.

— Acreage controls to be implemented when supplies exceed certain levels.

— All producers, regardless of size, to be treated equally to encourage maximum participation.

— Because of simplicity, acreage controls preferred to pound quotas or allotments.

— Loan rates and target prices to be basic features of any farm program.

Ten Cooke County Farm Bureau members attended the annual meeting, including Leonard and Emily Hartman, John and Doris Hargesheimer, Tim and Janie Hartman, Alois and Louise Trubenbach, Gus Lutkenhaus and Taylor Vestal.

State issues brucellosis regulations

Livestock producers in the class C area of Texas should be making plans now to have their 1984 calf crop vaccinated in order to comply with a new vaccination regulation from brucellosis.

That announcement came last week from the Texas Animal Health Commission.

The regulation only applies to heifers born after January 1 of 1984 changing ownership within the Class C area. That area covers 113 counties and does not include Cooke County. Two adjacent counties — Grayson and Denton — are included, however.

The new rule requires heifers born after January 1 of this year between four and 12 months of age which are acquired and used for breeding, grazing, dairying or confinement in a nonquarantined feedlot to be vaccinated or be subject to the following restrictions: Unvaccinated heifers born after January 1, 1984 which are over 12 months of age can legally change ownership only after being spayed, or moved to a livestock market and S-branded prior to sale, or consigned directly to slaughter, quarantined feedlot or quarantined pasture.

Craig Rosenbaum

County Agent's Report

With wheat starting to make good growth in the county producers should be on the lookout for greenbugs and winter grain mites in their fields.

Greenbugs are aphids that develop colonies on wheat. A few are showing up so you should begin your field surveys. They feed mainly on leaves but can also feed on plant roots, making them more difficult to locate. Symptoms are yellow spots in the field that eventually die.

Winter grain mites are true mites that have gray bodies with eight orange legs. They feed during cool weather. Symptoms of damage is a fading-out of the wheat stand with wheat taking on a grayish appearance.

When considering control for greenbugs, producers should check for parasitic wasps which may move in and control the insect without the need for insecticides. Chemicals for controlling greenbugs include dimethoate, disulfoton, malathion and parathion.

Insecticides for winter grain mite control include disulfoton, methyl parathion and malathion. Follow all label directions and precautions when using insecticides.

Farm and ranch producers in this area will need to consider every new marketing and production practice to make more profits in 1985. On December 17, 1984, a program which will emphasize a number of innovative approaches for producers to increase income next year will be held at Texas A&M Center at Dallas.

The program, "Planning for Profit — 1985" will open at 9:30 a.m. with "Knowing Your Prices" presented by Dr. Ed Smith, Economist-Grain Marketing, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, College Station. Smith will cover the '85 market outlook for wheat, cotton, grain sorghum and corn; a discussion on how to use this market outlook information in planning; and a look at seasonal price patterns under short crop and bumper crop scenarios.

"Figuring Your Production Costs" will be given by an Extension economist.

"Options on Agricultural Futures", a new method of managing price risks, will be given by John Ireland, Chicago Board of Trade.

Highlight of the program will be a farmer/producer panel discussing "Marketing Practices That Work For Them."

Producers from this area on the panel will be Jack Norman, Grayson County; Ben Scholz, Collin County; and Lloyd Johnson, Hunt County.

Concluding the meeting will be Dr. Wayne Hayenga, Extension Economist-Management, College Station, who will discuss "Growth Is Necessary? How To Avoid The Wipeout?"

Holiday mailing tips offered by Fort Worth Postmaster

Suggestions can save wear and tear on precious packages

With a little bit of care, holiday cards and packages can arrive on-time and in good shape, says Postmaster W.H. Hathman of the Fort Worth office.

In addition to shopping and mailing early, customers are urged to properly address cards and packages with the name, house number and street (or post office box) number, and the city, state, and ZIP Code reserved for the last line. Use of apartment numbers is encouraged.

"It is also a good idea to put a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address and your return address inside parcels, and be sure the addressing on the outside of the parcel includes your return address and ZIP Code," Hathman says.

Customers are also reminded to check the size of their envelopes before mailing Christmas and other holiday cards. Letter size standards require that envelopes be at least 3 1/2 inches high and 5 inches long to be accepted for mailing.

Parcels will arrive at their intended destination in good shape if you follow a few simple suggestions:
CUSHION: Make sure contents are well-cushioned and there is no empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item — including all sides, top and bottom. Commercially available foam shells or air-pocket padding also are good cushioning materials. Padded mailing bags are a good way to mail small items.

DON'T OVERWRAP: Just use your carton. Brown paper and twine cord are not necessary. Paper can rip, and twine can become entangled in mail processing equipment.

SEAL PROPERLY: Close your parcel with one of the three recommended types of tape: pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper, or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive. Don't use cellophane tape or masking tape — they aren't sturdy enough. It's a good idea to put a slip with the address and return address inside the parcel.

AVOID SMUDGES: Use smudge-proof ink for your addressing.

POSITION ADDRESSES properly: Put the recipient's address in the lower right portion of the package. Put your return address in the upper left corner of only one side of the package. Remove all other labels.

USE ZIP CODES: Be sure to include the ZIP Code in both the recipient's and your address. Remember, wrong ZIP Codes can delay the mail.

APARTMENT NUMBERS: Using apartment numbers or suite numbers, when you know them, helps us deliver mail in large buildings.

TIME IT RIGHT: Mail early in the month and early in the day.

USE THE RIGHT SERVICE: Irreplaceable items, such as cash
