SPLINTERS

A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance.—Prov.

Been browsing around the capitol this week looking for a little news and finally came to the conclusion that the best way to find out what was going on was to come home and read the daily exchanges. A country editor hasn't got any business there, he's too apt to get an elevator door closed on his nose or ask a senator if he isn't a new member in the House or some other fool thing.

The Baylor County Banner, a country newspaper by the way that can hold up its head in any company, comes out this week with headlines, "West Texas Sheriffs Here." That scared us because we didn't know what our old friend, O. C. Harrison, had been doing and expecting the sheriff, ourselves, to drop in at any time and tack up a notice, "to the highest bidder," we were relieved to find that it was only Arch Holmes having a little company in.

A peculiar thing, recently we were informed that we were elected on a finance committee appointed by the United Forces for Prohibition in the local Knox County organization. If such be the case, we accept the honor and offer the use of our columns in the interest of that organization but wish to make our position clear. We are not prohibitionists. We most emphatically agree with the gentlemen of that organization that whiskey is bad. It is. We agree with them that it would be a step backward to repeal the present restrictions. We do believe, however, that as long as man has an appetite for drink he is going to drink and the only question is whether he will continue to have an illicit traffic in contraband liquors or a legal traffic in regulated liquors. We believe that the present law does not have the respect of the majority of the citizens of this nation and consequently causes a disrespect for other laws. Having stated our position, we are now willing to assist the gentlemen of the United Forces for Prohibition to encourage the respect of the present laws as long as they remain on the statute books, and to foster a campaign of education and persuasion against the use of intoxicants.

If we ever lay hands on that dratted ground hog he'll never see another shadow again. Here all through the month of January we got by on a pile of wood that the least conscientious of all RFC beneficiaries would have agreed was scarcely a day's grubbing and then after Mr. Ground Hog, the timid little trouble maker, peeks out, somebody leaves that barbed wire gate down between here and Amarillo and in one week we burn three subscriptions worth of wood without even getting warm.

Depressions are funny things. Take eggs for instance. When they are selling for forty cents a dozen they sure taste good. But like now when they only bring six cents nobody likes 'em. When land, cattle or anything else is two prices too much people want to go borrow money so they can buy 'em. But now that people are worth the money nobody wants 'em. It looks like people just want to get stung. It's a wise hombre that buys now. This old thing can't last much longer.

Technocracy is just the engineers wanting to run the country instead of the lawyers.

Methodist Conference Here Well Attended

The Quarterly Conference of the Vera-Benjamin Charge of the Methodist Church was held here Sunday. Dr. Slover, presiding elder of the Stamford district, delivered a well prepared sermon to an appreciative audience. Dinner was served on the grounds. Among the Vera people attending were Mesdames Dickson, Ds-Duke, and Mr. Thompson and Harold Hurd. Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Knoy of the local charge were also present.

PLANS PROGRESSING FOR WATER AT CEMETERY

Plans are progressing nicely for running water at the cemetery. Costs have been determined, labor available, a number of interested people have offered subscriptions, and water will probably be available for spring planting. A formal subscription list will be made up so that actual work may begin soon.

JONES APPOINTED DISTRICT SUPERVISOR WITH OFFICE AT HOUSTON. WILL ASSUME DUTIES IMMEDIATELY

L. P. Jones returned from Ft. Worth Monday where he had been attending a conference with Chief Tick Inspector, Mr. Olin Graves, of the State Livestock Commission. Mr. Jones has been recently appointed district supervisor in charge of the Houston district which comprises ten East Texas counties. He will assume his duties the fourteenth of this month. Mr. Jones is a native of Benjamin and has engaged in the livestock business in the county practically all of his life. He attended the public schools of Benjamin and Temple, is a graduate of A. and M. College, specializing in Animal Husbandry and did post graduate work in Kansas State Agricultural College. The family will not move to Houston until after the present term of school as Mr. Jones feels that his daughter will do better work here for the remainder of the term and that he will have a better opportunity to find a suitable location in which to live between now and summer. Mr. Jones is a life long Democrat and has been a supporter of the present administration at all times. A host of friends rejoice with him in his latest advancement but regret that he and his family will no longer reside here.

Rev. G. W. Davis of Plainview and son George of Denver are visiting friends and relatives here this week. The Rev. Mr. Davis is the father of Mrs. R. R. Rouse of this city and was for many years pastor of the Christian Church here. George Davis attended the public schools here several years and has a host of school mates who are glad to see him again.

Roy and B. W. Snody were business visitors in Abilene the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Deaton Moorhouse and son of Sayre, Okla., were visiting friends and relatives here over the week end.

I. H. Spikes of Snyder was a business visitor here Thursday.

B. A. Lawrence has our thanks for the payment of his subscription. Mr. Lawrence is a well known farmer and stockman who has been in this country for many years and while he has attained a greater number of birthdays than his appearance would lead one to believe, he is still very active.

Icy Blasts, Sleet, Snow Grip Benjamin Vicinity

One of the most severe cold spells of the winter arrived here the first of the week accompanied by sleet and the mercury went into a tailspin. Ten below is reported by local observers although the accuracy of the advertising thermometers is questioned. Construction on the paving project from Benjamin to the King County line has been virtually at a standstill. Livestock has suffered but as yet no losses have been reported. Business and traffic have been lowed up and frozen pipes are common complaints.

February Term Court Opens Here Next Week

The February Term of the Knox County District Court for the 50th Judicial District will start Monday, February 13. As a rule this is one of the busiest terms of the Court. Two new faces will be seen on the Court personell, J. Donnell Dickson newly elected District Attorney and Thos. F. Glover, recently appointed court reporter. Bill Combest, former district attorney did not make the race for re-election this year, having returned to his private practice. Mr. Glover takes the position vacated by Steh Cockrell who resigned to accept a position as court reporter at Sweetwater. Judge Issac O. Newton is still on the bench and is considered by his constituents and the members of the profession who practice before him to be one of the most able judges in the state. His father was one of the first district judges in the old 50th district when it extended from Baylor County to the New Mexico line covering an area greater than most of the states in the Union.

Edwards Goree Grocery Moves

J. M. Edwards has purchased the building about the middle of the block on the west side of the square known as the Hutchens building and is having some repairs and changes made preparatory to moving his grocery into it.

New plate glass front has been put in and several improvements are being made on the inside. The front has been given a new coat of paint and the building generally "dressed up."—Goree Advocate.

McGlothlin-Mayes

Christmas day Joe Lynn Mayes and Miss Lillian McGlothlin stole quietly away and motored to Waurika, Okla., where they were united in marriage by the Rev. Smith, pastor of the Baptist Church.

These are two of our most popular young people, both having resided here since childhood. Joe Lynn is a son of C. L. Mayes, one of the pioneer citizens of Munday, and has grown to manhood here. He recently established the Joe Mayes Hardware and Implement company.

The bride is the daughter of E. W. McGlothlin, and graduated from the Munday High school two years ago. She has been a leader among the younger set of the city.—Munday Times.

FEATHERSTON MOVES TO HIS KNOX COUNTY RANCH

Chas. Featherston, prominent business man and civic leader of Wichita Falls, and wife, moved this week to the Featherston Ranch, about 4 miles west of Truscott, where they will remain several months.

Last fall 731 head of selected Hereford cattle were placed on the ranch, following their purchase by Mr. Featherston at Dalhart.

Mr. and Mrs. Featherston were visitor in Crowell Wednesday. Mr. Featherston is well known in Crowell having played polo on a number of occasions here, in addition to business visits.—Foard County News.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Melton were called to the bedside of Mr. Gore at Knox City who is critically ill.

Regional Interscholastic Contests Planned

ABILENE, Feb. 9.—Plans for the regional interscholastic league art contest to be held in the spring have been sent from Interscholastic League headquarters in Austin to Miss A. M. Carpenter, Simmons Art Director, who has been chosen as director of this region.

This is the first year that regional contests have been sponsored by the League and the first year art contest have been organized throughout the state by the league.

The state has been divided into a number of regions and Simmons University at Abilene has been named the art center for this region.

Three contests, for both intermediate and high school students, have been specified by the league officials. They are: 1. To draw in charcoal, a group of still life objects, 2. To paint in color any medium a group of still life objects, and 3. To model in clay, wax, soap, or other material, an animal or figure, or other object, the nature of which will not be given out till the hour of the contest.

Other rules announce that previous winners in a contest are not disqualified, and that regional winners are entitled to participate in the league rebate fund.

Heretofore, only an invitation meet has been held by the state, and contestants were admitted without prior qualifications in a regional meet. This year, only first place winners in one of the regional events can enter the state meet.

Those who want further details are addressing the regional director Miss A. M. Carpenter, Simmons U. Abilene Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moorhouse announce the arrival of a daughter, Sue Mona, February 6. Mother and child doing nicely.

The Gilliland Home Demonstration Club met in regular session February 7 with Mrs. Spivey. There were thirteen members present and several farmers who came to watch the demonstration given by Mr. Jones, county agent for Knox County. The sub-irrigation demonstration proved very interesting. The next meeting will be held at the school building Wednesday February 15 at which time a love token will be prepared to mail to one of the absent members, Mrs. Bryan Lowrey, who is in a sanitarium in El Paso. It is hoped that a godly number will attend.

The president, Mrs. Ryder, and council representative Mrs. Cure, attended a council meeting at Benjamin Saturday an report that a call meeting of all clubs is set for Monday, February 13 at Benjamin. The meeting will be held in the afternoon.

GARDENING TIME IS HERE

A carefully planned garden and truck patch add much to the food supply of the family. Space is abundant to all who want to garden. Those who are unable to buy seeds should apply at the Benjamin Post for free seeds.

C. H. Burnett, prominent banker and ranchman of this place has our thanks for the renewal of his subscription to the Post. Mr. Burnett is a son of one of the pioneer families of this section of West Texas and by virtue of his long residence here would be called an old settler also were it not for his youthful appearance.

 GORY HIGHWAYS

Beginning with the revolution, this country has been engaged in six major wars, not counting its numerous Indian campaigns. These wars have cost just about 300,000 American lives.

During the last 15 years—a period of time just about equal to that consumed by the six wars—no fewer than 325,000 Americans have been killed in automobile accidents.

Our highways, evidently, are comparable in danger to our worst battlefields.

These figures are taken from a little booklet, "They call us civilized," compiled and distributed by The Travelers Insurance company. It is quite possible that the biggest puzzle future historians will face will be the question why such horrifying figures did not instantly shock us into drastic action.

The number of fatal accidents last year—about 29,000—was substantially below the number for 1931. Yet The Travelers' statisticians have proved that this was almost entirely due to the fact that fewer autos were in use. The number of deaths per accident actually increased, and approximately 1,400 more people were killed than in 1928, when auto registrations were about the same as in 1932.

It is high time that we tackled this problem in a really determined and comprehensive way.

Every state in the union ought to have a driver's license law, with full provision for examination of all applicants.

Our forces of traffic policemen, in cities and on rural highways, ought to be vastly increased, and traffic codes should be enforced with the most ironclad strictness.

The authorities should be able to make periodic inspections of cars at frequent intervals, ruling off the road those which have mechanical defects that render them in the slightest degree unsafe.

We should be much quicker to bar from the road careless, drunken or incompetent drivers.

Lastly, every individual driver should recognize his responsibility more fully, observe the highway code most scrupulously and see to it that he, at least, never takes chances that can cost lives. Wichita News.

HITLER MOVES

The first move in the new chess game of German politics has been made by Hitler. The packing of the Prussian council of State by the simple device of ousting the elected Premier is not democratic government, but it is effective dictatorship. The substitution of von Popen for Otto Braun supplied the necessary two-man majority to dissolve the Prussian Diet. In the Prussian election, as in that for the Reichstag, Hitler hopes to gain a popular mandate, but in Prussia the methods of dictatorship may counteract the supposed wave of nationalism on which the new coalition Cabinet relies.

Control of the Prussian Government would be a tremendous advantage for the Nazis, hitherto unable to gain mastery in the most important State of the Reich. Prussia is to Germany what Paris is to France. It has approximately about two-thirds of the population and wealth of the nation. Control of its police power is a potent weapon for government de jure or de facto. That has been the unsuccessful aim of the Nazi party in the past and it remains to be seen what will happen if Hitler gains control of the Prussian Diet through election or if he does not.

Having taken Mussolini as his model, Hitler has given no sign of falling short of the example. So far he appeals to constitutional government, but the inference is strong that if power is not accorded him constitutionally, every effort will be made to hold it without a mandate from the Reich. Dallas News.

A SALEMN OCCASION

Although it was scarcely to be classed as spot news, the house and Senate of the United States learned yesterday, officially, that Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York and John Nance Garner of Texas had been elected president and vice-president, respectively.

The information was conveyed to a joint session of the two houses by four solemn-faced gentlemen in frock coats, technically known as tellers. They announced the official finding of the electoral college, which met recently and canvassed the returns of the November election.

The announcement of the Roosevelt-Garner victory was the signal for a boisterous demonstration, in which the rebel yell rose high above the more decorous applause of the Easterners and Westerners. Every section of the country shared in the glory that belongs to the democratic party.

We have our forms and ceremonies, but observe them more in the letter than in the spirit. The ceremony of notifying the congress was duly carried out, but the founders of this republic probably did not expect such an occasion to be the signal for roof-lifting cheers. We Americans are an irrepressible lot, and if we feel like emitting a whoop or two a little thing like a ceremony never bothers us. Abilene News.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Editor, Benjamin Post:

I want to thank you for exchanging papers, the first copy of The Post just now reaching me. I believe that is about the most artistic printing job I have ever seen in a country paper, and the reading paper is in harmony with the generally neat appearance.

L. A. Woods was elected state superintendent on the platform: "Not more money for schools, but more school for the money". Of course the loss from the homestead exemption will have to be made up somewhere, but it seems that the mind of the people is set against very much increase of taxes of any kind. It seems the part of wisdom to do so adjust and retrench that what we do have will get the most results—go the farthest.

I believe that the legislature will recognize the injustice to children, parents and public school teachers to continue to appropriate close to 20 times as much for an adult in college as for a child in public schools:

The state of Iowa, which heads the list in the general literacy of her people, has only three state colleges, a university, an agricultural and mechanical college and one teachers college. Texas with about twice the population has 16 state colleges. Is it any wonder that we can do so little for our public school children?

It is strange that public school people are tearing their shirts and shooting in petitions "Don't meddle with West Texas state colleges," as many are doing? Of course other sections of Texas will protest the same way, and a strong probability that no adjustment will be made.

Even in prosperous times public school teachers should resist the constant crowding and cheapening of their profession at public expense, but instead of doing that, are actually signing petitions to the legislature to leave state colleges alone. It seems they would be trying to save their own necks.

Freternally yours,
 W. A. Bynum, Editor

ON TEXAS FARMS

BY W. H. DARROW
Extension Service Editor

This is the "outlook season, the time when economists throw the searchlight on current trends and offer suggestions to farmers about what lines of production look worth trying. They're having a hard time to find any this year. Apparently a farmer should lay off from anything to be safe.

One thing is certain. You either make your living at home this year or you go without. Texas farmers know that, and they are going after a home living with all the enthusiasm they did last year when at least four fifths of them raised at home the greater part of the food and feed, and many of the other necessities and comforts.

We are back where agricultur was 100 years ago, on a self-sustaining basis. We surrendered that to go in for specialized farming; witness cotton. In returning to the old basis we find the game is not the same it used to be a century ago. Everything has been modernized.

Today Texas farm families plan their living at home; make a living at home plan, can thir food by budget instead of by guess, make their food quantity to the requirements of a supply conform in variety and healthful diet, and even butcher their meat animals by modern labor saving and meat saving methods.

How to live at home the easy modern way that gives healthful plenty at least cost and effort is a contribution of the Extention Service of Texas. County farm and home demonstration agents personally helped more than 100,000 farm families last year to live at home more fully and more wisely. Another 150,000 were helped indirectly.

The Extention Service living at home plan is available to everybody through county farm and home demonstration agents, and through a series of bullitons. The one that sketches the whole plan is C-76. All are free from farm or home demonstration agents or from the Extention Service at College Station.

GOOD SEED AND TERRACING YIELDS CASH IN FOARD CO.

CROWELL, Jan. 30.—Good plant-in seed, saved from the 1931 crop grown from pedigreed cotton, and terraced land, are the two chief factors responsible for the production of an average of 944 pounds of seed cotton per acre on 632 acres of cotton grown in demonstrations in Foard county last year, says Fred Rennels, farm demonstration agent. The growers averaged $11.41 per acre for their labor and investment. "Small as it was, it was substantially above the county average," states Mr. Rennels, "and furnished a much needed cash income to supplement the living on the farm."
