

Personally Speaking

By E. M.

An urgent plea to the favorite recipes editor, the editorial assistant, news hound, and general pinch-hitter to relieve the editor and incidentally the community or possibly I should say the Solitary Reader of this column, resulted in the following dashed-off bit:

"Oh boy, ain't it a grand and glorious feelin'? The folks are away, and so no parental restrictions. No dishes to wash, etc. A box of creamy, caramely candy right in front of me and all the magazines I wanta read right here too.

"I settle myself all comfy in a big soft chair with my nose buried in the very most favorite of my favorite magazines. Just as I am in the midst of a detective thriller, noises begin to break thru my armament. Sounds resembling the function of a British war tank come from below.

"Frantically I tear myself away from my story and rush to the head of the stairway. 'Hey, what in all creation's goin' on down there?' I shriek. For an answer I get silence—then a few smothered giggles.

"I streak down the stairs to the living room door. Just inside awaiting my appearance are the kid sis and the two kid brothers, ranging in ages from three to nine years.

"Say, who ever said you could use books for artillery and ammunition, and when did you get permission to wage wars in the house anyway?" I asked.

"Bud started it," declared Sis, "Aw, just like a girl to tattle," retorted Bud. "Anyway you helped."

"Never mind who started it! I am going to stop it. Begin at once and put those books back where you got 'em," I ordered. "I'll stay right here till you do, too!"

"And I did. All evening long."

Beaver Theatre Is Destroyed By Fire

Beaver had its first fire in many months when a blaze was discovered in the rear of the State Theatre Tuesday morning, Oct. 6. This room was filled with radios, pianos, victrolas, and electric supplies belonging to Frank Spangler, owner of the building which housed the State Theatre. Blakemore Drug, and the Spangler Music and Electric Company which is located on the second floor.

The fire is believed to have started from a tremendous explosion. A few early risers discovered the blaze in the rear room immediately after this explosion.

Drug Store Damaged

The fire department was soon on the scene and might have contained the fire to the store room had they been able to stand the dense smoke which quickly gathered in the Theatre proper. However the flames soon ate their way on to the stage and into the gantry. The front of the building and the booth that encases the picture machines is all that was saved of the building.

The flames never reached the Blakemore Drug room, but some damage was done by water and smoke. Other store rooms along the same side of the street were filled with smoke but no serious damage is believed to have been done.

Insurance Covers Loss

It is not known just how much the loss will amount to, but everything is fully covered by insurance.

Fred Dolton, owner of the State Theatre says that all his equipment, including the picture machines is fully covered by insurance. The machines were damaged by the gummy smoke to the extent that they would have to be replaced with new machines.

Mr. Spangler suffered an entire loss on all his stock that was in storage and also nearly a complete loss on his personal effects. Most of the damage on these being from the wet smoke that settled in thick gummy layers on them.

In an interview with Spangler, he states that he intends to completely rebuild the theatre building. The new building will be larger and built exclusively for sound pictures.

The Town of Beaver and the citizens at large wish to extend their appreciation to the Forgan Fire Department for the speedy response they made to the SOS sent out by the Beaver department during the fire.—Beaver Herald-Democrat.

P. T. A. Sponsors Attendance Race

Program Is Given At Meeting Of Group On Wednesday

An attendance contest to stimulate interest in meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was decided upon at the last meeting of the group on Wednesday afternoon, according to Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president.

Mrs. Ray T. Hennigh, chairman, and Mrs. Ed McVicker and Mrs. G. A. Jenkins, were appointed to form a committee to draw up and present regulations for the contest.

Program Given

Numbers on the program presented at the meeting including a humorous reading, "A sewing lesson," given by Naomi Rush; "Fire Prevention," a play by third and fourth grade pupils under the direction of Mrs. Hennigh, and a talk, "A child Likes to be Polite," by Miss Ruth Friend.

In her discussion, Miss Friend traced the development of social customs and manners with the growth of civilization. She pointed out that etiquette is not a set of rules but the way we do things.

Miss Friend Talks

"Wealth does not buy peace happiness, love or understanding, but the simpler things, among them manners, being these," she stated. "Manners are the finishing touches, the little things expressed by the inner person."

"Life is a tapestry and all of us are weaving threads of life," Miss Friend continued. "Someone has said that the color of the threads we weave is determined by our manners. If we would have harmony in our design, we must have understanding and unselfishness for these are the basic fundamentals of happiness."

"Since children first learn by copying those about them, they should be treated courteously and trained that manners are based upon regard for others," Miss Friend concluded.

"The importance of the American Legion in Time of Peace," was the topic on which Reverend Brashear addressed the group. Other numbers on the program included the singing of patriotic songs, and a reading by Miss Fay Martin.

The date of the next meeting of the American Legion is to be Thursday, October 15, at Higgins.

Lee Carter, Tech Freshman, Tells All About "Fishing"

"Fishing at Tech" is the way Lee B. Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Carter, who is enrolled as a freshman studying agriculture at the Texas Technological College at Lubbock, labels his early experiences as a "fish" at college.

Lee, who was a member of the 1931 graduating class from the Darrouzett high school holds the distinction of being the first Darrouzett graduate to attend college. He was an honor student, graduating with salutatorian honors. He also represented the high school in debating and tennis at the track meets.

An editorial request for Lee to tell the home town about some of his early experiences as a college freshman resulted in the following article entitled "Fishing at Tech."

Receives Training

"I have been on the college campus several weeks and now may be considered a full fledged 'FISH.' At first, I, along with other freshmen, was somewhat at a loss as to what to do, but now having undergone intensive training supervised by several upper-classmen, I am well instructed as to how I should conduct myself.

"In one of my first encounters with the upper-classmen, I was asked what the name of the football captain was. I had not been on the campus long enough to learn many of the things I would be expected to, so I was forced to tell my prosecutor that I didn't know. Then, as well as on other subjects, I was informed that in order to retain good health, a cheerful disposition, and to get the college spirit that I should, to without delay grant all requests of any upper-classman.

'Fish' Wear Green Caps

"The major sports at Tech are: football, basketball, courting and training of freshmen. In these lines about all that is expected of a freshman is to be meekly subject to training.

"Among the traditions of the college, there is one to the effect that freshmen must wear a green 'fish' cap. The color, green, is to symbolize our small state of advancement. We are still green, having not yet ripened into the maturity of upper-classmen. On the upturned bill of our 'Fish' caps we are compelled, by general sentiment, to write our surname preceded by the word, 'SLIME.' This is to further emphasize our insignificance.

Room-mates Instruct

"I have especially received a great deal of 'training' from the two upper-classmen with whom I am batching. They think I should appreciate a little 'bringing up.' Among the first things they tried to teach me in regard to my freshman duties were

World Series Is Real Game Say Melvin Beck, Don Tobin

Watching Pepper Martin steal second and those tense minutes in the last of the eighth and the first of the ninth innings were the most exciting points in the final World Series baseball game, in the opinion of Melvin Beck and Don Tobin who returned from St. Louis Sunday evening.

The two boys left last Wednesday night in order to attend the games on Friday and Saturday.

The Friday game was rather a disappointment since St. Louis lost without a struggle, says Melvin Beck.

"The pitcher walked men, a fielder dropped a fly, the players went wild, and altogether they did worse than we do around here," he said. "It seemed that the players weren't half trying."

The Saturday game was a real one, however, the boys agreed.

A red cardinal perched on a baseball, a trophy brought back from St. Louis, is now on display in a front window of the Beck Drug Store.

Among the interesting sights seen by the boys on their first trip to St. Louis was an international Western Airship coming in on the Lambert flying field by night. They also crossed the Mississippi River, and saw a zeppelin.

Follett Panthers To Play Higgins On Friday Night

Special to the Darrouzett News.

FOLLETT, TEX., Oct. 14.—The Follett Panthers and the Higgins Wildcats will tussle on Friday night, October 16, at the first football game to be played under the floodlights at the Jett Field south of Follett, according to J. L. Hill, Follett superintendent.

The new light system on the gridiron was to be completed by Thursday and everything was to be in readiness for the Friday game.

A lively scrap is expected since the Higgins boys always give Follett a good game and word comes from Higgins that this year will be no exception, according to Mr. Hill.

Altho the game will be played under the lights there will be no advance in price. Fifteen cents will be charged for children under 12 and 35 cents for adults, Mr. Hill announces.

Rains Early This Week Drench Panhandle Area

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 13.—A drenching rain capped by snow and hail in some sections and low temperatures in all, accompanied Winter into the Panhandle yesterday.

The lower South Plains headed the moisture list, with a two-inch deluge of mixed hail and rain that left damaged cotton fields in its wake.

In the northern edge of the Panhandle snow flurries were reported in the vicinity of Guymon, Okla., where a heavy downpour of rain made roads muddy and slick.

More rains threatened over the entire area last night as the weather bureau here predicted partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures for today.

The mercury dipped to 45 degrees here early yesterday, and climbed in the afternoon to 60 degrees, its maximum for the day. Similar temperatures were reported throughout the Panhandle.

Late crops and pasture lands were expected to be benefited materially by the belated rains, but unharvested feed crops and cotton may sustain damages, local agricultural authorities stated.

Panhandle highways were reported slippery but passable.

Highway 66 to Oklahoma City was said to be difficult to travel on detours. Highway 60 to Enid was reported in a similar condition. Highways to Lubbock and Fort Worth were slippery, but traffic was continuing over these routes. North and west highways were said to be in fair condition.—Amarillo Daily News.

The Congress Prayer

(Adopted by the Parent-Teacher's Association)

Our Father, Giver of all life's holy responsibilities, consecrate unto us, we pray thee, the highest purposes for which we are organized.
 Give us more than wisdom; give us devotion; loyalty, sober steadfastness, and eager exaltation of faith in a superb mission that we may achieve generous triumphs of progress, winning for the world an accumulating glory of manhood and womanhood from the growing generation of children now charged upon our care.
 Help us to learn self-control in thought, and word and deed; to put aside resentment and criticism and to forget every fancied wrong.
 And Thine, shall be the praise forevermore.—Amen.

Future To See
 Columbes In Air

Monday marked the four hundred and thirty-ninth anniversary of the day Columbus landed on the coast of the West Indies, and started interest in the New World.
 Today scientists agree that oceans of air above interplanetary space challenge the explorer with as much mystery as the Western Atlantic held 439 years ago for Columbus. Men of science are generally agreed that the great discoveries of the future will be in the air since practically every bit of land on the earth has been covered.
 Discovery trips of the future, rivalling perhaps the uncertainty and fear assailing Columbus on his 70-day voyage, may lie in interplanetary space. From time to time, discussion of the possible trips to Mars, the moon and Venus, is revived, along with plans for an exploratory trip. Rocket-propelled crafts are being experimented with now.
 Jeers of this modern populace may greet some aerial Columbus of the future starting for Mars as the scoffing European world laughed at the Genoese explorer before October 12, 1492.

THE VAGABOND

By MILDRED J. SPEER

he gods gave to one riches and power;
 To one fame and wisdom; to another
 Success and influence; to another
 Subjects and kingdoms; and to a last one
 Great ambition and earned praise.

The gods had left for me
 Nothing that was of note;
 So I may walk the fields
 Strong, joyful and free;
 I may play with children;
 Breathe deep of winned air;
 Rest long in cool valleys;
 Visit with the fairies;
 Bathe in silvery waves;
 Climb whitened mountains;
 Sleep under heaven's eyes;
 And taste of all simple things
 Offered me in cups of Peace, as I wander by.

 If we knew the cause and trials,
 Knew the effort—all in vain,
 Knew the bitter disappointments,
 Understood the loss and gain—
 Would the grim—eternal roughness
 Seem—I wonder—just the same?
 Should we help, where how we hinder?
 Should we pity where we blame?
 O! We judge each other harshly,
 Knowing not life's hidden force—
 Knowing not the fount of action
 Is less turbid at its source;
 Seeing not amid the evil
 All the golden grains of good;
 And we'd love each other better
 If we only understood.
 Rudyard Kipling.

"Has it occurred to you what the proposal to bring back beer involves? To bring back beer would also bring back ninety two percent of the liquor trade. Beer did not help the people. It made millionaires of brewers but it made none of the people who drank beer millionaires. It did not bring them health. It did not increase their savings, the ownership of their homes, the comfort of their children or their welfare and respect.

Some of the boys in the seventh grade have learned that Mr. Speer does not use the broom altogether for sweeping purposes.

Carl Hanschu has lost his history notebook. He says that he is needing it very badly and if it were not for the hard times and the worn-out condition of the notebook, he would put out a reward for it.

For beauty-parlor information regarding the use of cold starch and green ribbons for hair dress, monkey blood for facial massages, and milk out of a bottle for a general tonic, see any or all members of the freshman class. If none of the Fresh are handy, perhaps a sophomore would do just as well.

Fifth, Sixth Grade Notes

By MRS. RUTH WRIGHT

Naomi Rush is librarian for our room. She has charge of all library books and may check out to pupils for a period of three days.

Monday, October 12, was Columbus Day. We studied two pictures of Columbus and read a story about his voyage made four hundred thirty nine years ago.

Mr. Speer visited our room Thursday afternoon for a short while.

Our "Good English Club" meeting which was scheduled for Friday, met on Monday afternoon at 1:45. All members were present. After roll call and reading of the minutes, Erma Hennigh read a list of the oral English errors made during the past week. Our errors are numerous now, but we hope to conquer the foe of "bad English" before very long.

We are beginning to decorate our room for Halloween. Black cats, witches, bats and pumpkins are be-

Third, Fourth Grades Activities

By Mrs. Lela Hennigh

Manuel Kirchman is back in school after an absence of two weeks. The third grade is very glad to have him taking part in school again.

Mrs. C. W. McGee, Alpha Hennigh, Delbert Rush and Mr. Speer visited the third and fourth grade room last week. Mr. Speer visited again on Tuesday of this week.

Don James was absent from school on Thursday, and Claudia Hamilton was absent on Tuesday.

A large ship was drawn on the board Monday morning, and sentences were written with colored chalk about Columbus' discovery of America. The story of Columbus was read during geography period and the story was dramatized for English. Tuesday's English lesson was to write the play of the Discovery of America. Some very good plays, by different students, were read to the group.

Tuesday, G. A. Jenkins brought a gallon can to school in which had been found a ground sparrow's nest; G. A. found the nest near an old house. The nest was used in nature study class.

All but two students in the third and fourth grade room are drinking milk every morning. The class has offered a number of good suggestions that might induce these two to do their part in the health program.

Richard Rush brought a lovely bouquet of cosmos to school Tuesday morning; and Erma Hennigh, from the sixth grade, brought the room a beautiful bouquet of dahlias. Flowers are very much appreciated as they add cheer and beauty to the room.

Beulah McGee's animal book was selected as the best from the third grade, and Gertrude McGee's from the fourth grade. The girls were given brightly colored pencils as prizes for their good work.

Contests in reading expression are being carried on in the third grade. Especially good work was shown in reading the humorous poem, "Matilda Jane."

Primary Room Notes

By MRS. J. E. SPEER

Sam Kirchman, a second grade student, has been in the hospital at Shattuck, Oklahoma for a week. Sam was operated on for appendicitis. The students of the primary room wrote him a letter on Wednesday.

Harry Hennigh, a first grade student, brought two story books for the reading table Monday. One book, a story of Humpty-Dumpty, was read during English class Monday afternoon.

The second grade worked out a project in clay on Tuesday afternoon. In the morning reading class a story of a vegetable party was read, and in the afternoon class each vegetable was modeled in clay. Mr. Speer was invited to see the project.

Ben and Maie Kirchman, who have been out of school for two weeks, came back on Monday. They think that they will not have to miss again.

The students of the primary room are allowed to check out books from the library to keep for three days. The primary library has sixty books in it; about half of the books are for the first grade and the rest for the second grade.

The students of the primary room made fruit dolls last week; the dolls were placed around the top of the blackboard, and look like a dancing border.

A special study was made of Columbus on Monday of this week; stories of Columbus were told, and pictures of Columbus and his ship were mounted and placed on the public interest board.

A new pencil sharpener has been placed in the primary room; a pencil monitor takes care of the pencils for a week at a time.

Betty Jane Frass was elected president of the first and second grades. She will be president for six weeks. Betty Jane's duties are to see that the room is cared for in the absence of the teacher, to welcome visitors, to answer the door, and to assist in every way to keep the room orderly and neat. Betty Jane is to be assisted by Dorothy Woods.

The slips in the milk cups were counted on Monday morning; more than half the students in the room had full cups; they were given red hearts to place in their milk books.

The school was very glad to see so many visitors present at the chapel program last Thursday. The visitors were: Mrs. H. F. Ludlum, Mrs. Henry Altmiller, Mrs. E. J. Stranske, Mrs. Chas. McGee, and Mrs. A. B. Grubb.

We, the school, welcome all visitors at all times. T. C.

LIPSCOMB HI NOTES

By BEN LAWRENCE, Supt.

The school children of Lipscomb received a scare on Thursday when a bolt of lightning shook the school building; an electric spark came through the window of two rooms and broke with a snap; several students were jarred slightly by the bolt, but none were hurt. No damage was done to the school building.

Miss Mary Wood and Miss Johnny Callahan spent the week-end in Canadian with Miss Woods' parents.

The Lipscomb school faculty has a one-hundred per cent membership in the Texas State Teacher's Association. Those belonging are: Mrs. Claud Wells, Miss Wood, Miss Callahan, and Mr. Lawrence. All plan to attend the convention which meets in Amarillo this year.

The old boiler in the Lipscomb school building was fired on Tuesday morning; no one complained that the radiators were too hot.

Both teachers and students of Lipscomb school are busy this week, as it is examination week. Report cards obedience and respect for my 'superiors.' Remarks often heard about the house are:

"Freshman, it's time to get up and get breakfast." "Bring me a drink." "Fish, go over to the store and get us some groceries." "Slime, my shoes need shining again." "Your pants are dusty; bend over and I'll dust them off with this paddle." "Fish, aren't you going to wash the dishes today?" "No, freshman, you don't think; you cogitate."

"After all—the average freshman really enjoys college life as much as his co-called 'superiors.' I myself am looking forward to the time when I shall outgrow my greenness and occupy the position of equality with the ones whom I now look to as my 'betters.' Perhaps when that day comes, I too can direct some freshman and bring him up in the 'paths of righteousness.' Who knows but what the next in line will be more green products of the 'ol' home town'."
