BIKE ★ A ★ Thon

Don't forget the Bike-a-thon for Cystic Fibrosis, April 4th-9:00 a.m. at the Rising Star City Park. Cystic Fibrosis (CF) is an inherited lung and digestive disease which presently is incurable. CF takes more children's lives in this country than any other genetic disease. Although a cure has not yet been found, with early diagnosis and comprehensive treatment, a child with CF has a 50% chance of living past age 20. To facilitate the early diagnosis and treatment that lengthens lives, the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation urges parents to be alert to the signs of CF. These signs include: recurrent wheezing; persistent coughing with excessive mucus; pneumonia more than once during the year; excessive appetite but poor weight gain; and clubbing (enlargement of fingertips). Additional signs include: salty taste to the skin, persistent, bulky diarrhea and nasal polyps. For information on sponsor forms, call Doris Wilson at 643-7601.

May Voters

BULLETS & BALLOTS: Monday our nation came within a fraction of an inch of another system-wrecking experience. This tragedy ends better though, because through the grace of God, President Reagan and the three others who were hit by gunfire, will live, although the extent of permanent injury to Press Secretary Jim Brady, the Secret Service man, and D. C. Policeman isn't fully known yet....A pawn shop bought handgun, six bullets, and a sick mind caused havoc again. Could it have been prevented? Given the circumstances, probably not, although it will be discussed, written about, speculated over and conjured over many ways for a long time. What a shame that this young man chose to express himself in this way. Sickness? Uncontrolled personal actions? You see variations closer. When people go into rages over imagined or real sights, or actions that go contrary to their own feelings, the results can be similar. Violence. Grief. Loss. Action out of character. Humiliations. It's said that the young man is from a good, conservative family. His father voted for President Reagan but was not active politically. You wonder if the young man did—and changed his mind about his vote. During all the furor of the early afternoon, when Secretary of State Alexander Haig spoke from Washington, you could detect the old military man come through when he said: "The President took a round."

BALLOTS ARE BETTER! Let it be a reminder to all of us that we have a responsibility to go to the polls SATURDAY and exercise our DUTY to vote by Herrel Hallmark

Many Adverse Consequences of Loss of Peanut Allotment

1. Abolishment of acreage allotments first step in unlimited production and elimination of the traditional peanut program.
2. With abolishment of allotment comes low loan rate.
3. Growers could not secure financing to plant crop—Shellers would face the same problem buying the crop.
4. Growers would have to contract at levels above loan rate—this is

A Special Thank You to the superintendents, Ag-Teachers, our County Agents, show judges, 4-H personnel who worked in the concession stand, all the exhibitors who showed animals and especially the buyers who took time out of their busy schedules to come to the sale and purchase these animals.

This year's record breaking sale set an all time record on money received by the exhibitors who work so hard all year to get these animals ready for show time. I am sure each child and their parents appreciate the efforts of these buyers in making this years sale the success it was.

I have enjoyed working with the personnel and exhibitors in this years show and am looking forward to next year. Let's all get behind these kids and make next year even better.

Loss of Peanut Allotment

difficult in the Southwest. 5. Contracts might follow 1981 pattern—Southeast, Virginia-Carolina and limited contracts in South Texas. 6. S.W. crop moves late—markets would be largely filled before S.W. crop moves. S.W. crop would move largely at low loan rates. 7. Two distinct markets and low loan rates—Edible and oil-widely separated prices—price seeks low rate. 8. Growers who grow multiple crops and support target programs for other crops know that the open market approach will not work on peanuts. 9. Peanuts are semi-perishable and is a food commodity that must be marketed and placed under roof immediately—cannot store and play the market like non-perishable commodities--the predictability of production controls is essential to assist growers in marketing and for preservation of quality. 10. Without the stability provided by acreage allotments, supplies of peanuts in the market would be erratic and prices to consumers would increase. 11. There definitely would be a shift in peanut production from traditional producing counties in the Southwest to areas with low cost, high yield potential. 12. The income of allotment holders who rent or lease would be eliminated in present producing areas with abolishment of allotments. 13. Dozens of communities in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico would experience economic chaos with loss of the peanut program as we know it.

Keeping Up with the Joneses Today;

COLLEGE STATION—To keep up with the Joneses these days, ask the Joneses to be part of the team, one specialist advises.

With increasing prices—and the decreasing value of income, today's families are searching for ways to increase their buying skills to maintain their level of living, Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist, says.

To do that, families must turn to such tactics as "do-it-yourself" repairs, sharing talents with others and using community resources more than in the past few years, she says. Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of Texas A & M Extension Service.

Put them on the Team

"Do-it-yourself" expertise will lessen your dependence on professional and save repair money while keeping the house and car in working order, Mrs. McCormack says.

Learn to perform maintenance on such household possessions as the car, appliances and plumbing, and visit the library for publications on consumer topics.

If you don't know how to repair something, find a book or a friend to show you step-by-step repair techniques. Ask the County Extension Office for publications or help in home and family living—on topics from home canning to repairing leaky faucets.

If repairs do require experts, first check with trade or technical schools. Some have economical repair-service programs for the public.

Share your talents or skills with others. For example, trade your painting skills for a friend's plumbing know-how. Or ask someone to till your garden for a return payment of fresh tomatoes or vegetables during the summer.

For entertainment, visit local, free or inexpensive attractions—museums, lectures, zoos. Make it a family affair.

Rely on friends and family for other entertainment by organizing round-robin dinner parties, book-review groups or a neighborhood basketball or soccer game.

Get acquainted with neighbors and other community members. One small block of homes can represent hundreds of skills.

Consumer Views Important to Cattlemen

College Station--Cattlemen must know the changing needs and attitudes that consumers have toward beef before they can hope for beef consumption to increase.

High beef prices are the major reason that consumers give for not buying red meat. This explains the noticeable per capita decline in beef consumption since 1976, says Mary K. Sweeten, food and nutrition specialist with the Texas A & M Extension Service.

"High prices have forced consumers to cut back on beef purchases, substitute cheaper cuts, and buy poultry and fish rather than beef. Others have stopped buying beef altogether," Sweeten explains.

"Cattlemen should realize that recent major changes in society have affected food consumption. 'Among these,' she says, 'are the number of available items in the grocery store, drastic changes in living patterns, an increase in the elderly population, health concerns and a reported seven million vegetarians. Although not practicing vegetarianism, another 37.5 million are seeking a conscientious effort to eat less meat.'"

Also affecting food consumption is the increased popularity of fast food establishments, government food programs and new food technologies that are resulting in more "engineered foods" such as breakfast bars and space sticks.

"American food policy has always stressed quantitative proportions to avoid hunger and nutrition deficiency diseases. But recently qualitative considerations have become more important,"

Sweeten says.

Beef is known as a nutritious food that contains protein, iron and the B vitamins that supply the body with nutrients. It also contains calories for energy.

But beef has appreciable amounts of fat that consumers are trimming off and throwing away. Cattlemen should look for ways to raise leaner animals, Sweeten notes.

"Cattlemen must also use marketing strategies to meet the needs of each consumer group in America: low income, senior citizens, minorities and parents. Consumers from different socio-economic levels and other groups differ in their beef needs.

"Cattlemen must understand the images that these groups have of the beef industry and work to provide leaner beef at more reasonable prices," Sweeten says.

Agriculture Committee Wade-Jackson To Wed Sunday to Hold Hearings

WASHINGTON--The House of Agriculture Committee will hold field hearings on the 1981 omnibus farm bill in three Texas cities next month, Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, announced today.

De la Garza said the hearings will be held April 20 at the Abilene Civic Center, 1100 North 6th Street, Abilene; April 21 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, 1501 6th Street, Lubbock; and April 22 at the Villa Inn, I-40 and Grand Street, Amarillo.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, a Member of the Agriculture Committee will preside at the hearings. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, and Jack Hightower, D-Texas, are also expected to attend.

All three hearings will run from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m.

Anyone wishing to testify at the hearings should notify:

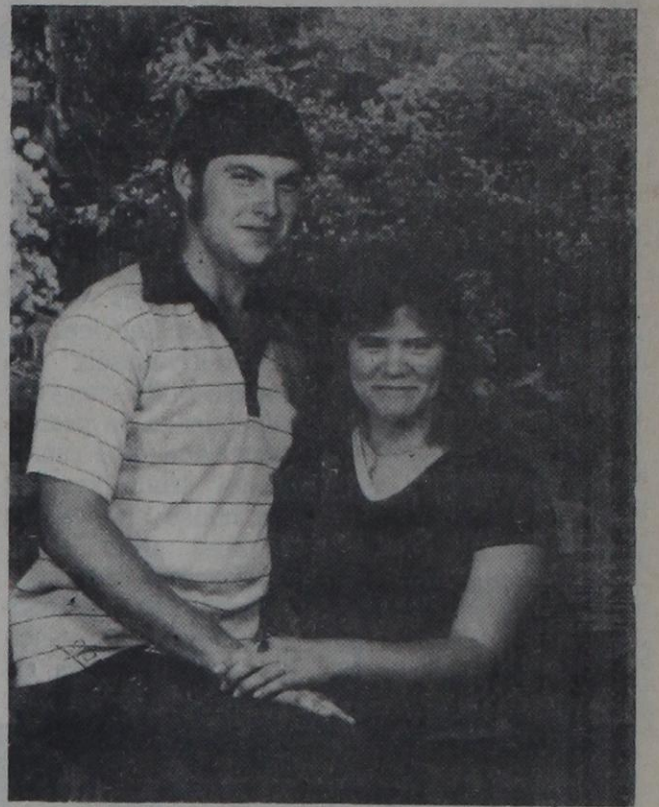

—For April 20, Elaine Talley in Rep. Stenholm's Abilene office at Box 1101, Abilene, Texas 79604, phone 915-673-7221.

—For April 21, Vicki Nixon in Rep. Hance's Lubbock office at 1205 Texas Avenue, S-611, Lubbock, Texas 79401, phone 806-763-1611.

—For April 22, Marjorie Errington in Rep. Hightower's Amarillo office at Box F-13207, Amarillo, Texas 79101, phone 806-376-2381.

Witnesses are requested to bring 25 copies of their prepared statements to the hearings for the use of the Committee Members and staff. If possible, copies should be sent in advance to the person with whom you arrange your appearance at the hearing.

Chairman de la Garza said, "I know that many West Texans who are deeply interested in this year's farm bill and what it may mean to the future economy of the state and the nation, have not been able to testify at Committee hearings in Washington. I hope these hearings in Texas will help give the Committee a sharper view of the situation as our people see it at the grass roots."

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wade of Rt. 1, May, Texas, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sherry Melanie, to Robert Neil Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jackson of Andrews, Texas.

Sherry is a senior at May High School. Robert is a 1979 graduate of Andrews High School. He is employed by Andrews Pump and Well Service.

Sherry and Robert will exchange wedding vows on Sunday, April 5th, 1981 at 3:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of May with the Rev. Bill Campbell officiating. Friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend.

Homemaking Hints

By Janet Thomas

What should we eat to stay healthy? Hardly a day goes by without someone trying to answer that question. Newspapers, magazines, books, radio and television give us a lot of advice on what foods we should or should not eat.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has published "Dietary Guidelines for Americans". These guidelines are: 1) Eat a variety of foods, 2) Maintain ideal weight, 3) Avoid too much fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol, 4) Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber, 5) Avoid too much sugar, 6) Avoid too much sodium, 7) If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation.

These guidelines are suggested for most Americans. They do not apply to people who need special diets because of diseases or health problems.

Food alone cannot make you healthy. But good eating habits based on moderation and variety can help keep you healthy and even improve your health.

Frequently, we receive calls at the Extension office by persons wanting information on which foods contain high or significant amounts of sodium which should be eaten in moderation or avoided in low-sodium diets.

Table salt is the most common source of sodium. Many foods contain added salt because of the processing through which they are made ready for consumers. Some of these sources are: Preservatives in ham, bacon, frankfurters, frozen or dried fish and dried beef. Brines used in corned beef, sauerkraut and pickles also have significant amounts of sodium.

All mixes such as dried fruit-flavored drink mixes, pudding mixes, cake mixes, and biscuit mix as well as commercially baked goods contain sodium.

Quick cooking cereals and processed cheeses contain disodium phosphate. Sodium benzoate is used as a preservative in sauces, relishes, and salad dressings.

Drinking water may contain sodium without tasting salty. Your local board of Health or water board should be able to give you the sodium content of your water supply.

Some other sources of sodium we don't normally think about are the "stick-um" on postage stamps and envelopes also have sodium in the glue. Low calorie carbonated drinks may be higher in sodium than the regular carbonated soda drinks.

Sodium is very important and our bodies need the right amount. Too little sodium is just as hazardous to our health as too much. Sodium plays a regulatory role in our body's metabolism. Sodium compounds are responsible for maintaining osmotic pressure between cells and surrounding fluids. Sodium is important in maintaining the pH (acid/base balance) of the blood and other body fluids. Sodium compounds produce alkalinity in the small intestine which is necessary for digestion.

Excessive consumption of sodium may increase the retention of body fluids. Research has indicated that high sodium intake contributes to the development of high blood pressure. Also reduced perspiration resulting from today's limited activity and extensive use of air-conditioning necessitates chronic excretion of excess sodium by the kidneys which may contribute to their eventual malfunction.

To avoid too much sodium in your daily diet, learn to enjoy the unsalted flavors of foods. Cook only with small amounts of added salt. Add little or no salt at the table. Limit your intake of salty foods such as chips, salted nuts, popcorn, pickled foods, cured meats, etc. Read food tables carefully to determine the amounts of sodium in processed foods and snack items. Check with your medical doctor concerning your body's requirement for sodium.

Today's consumers benefit from the fact that U.S. agriculture remains a giant among American industries. It still has the capacity, says Dr. W.E. Black, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, to produce all the food needed at home as well as for many people abroad.

The average U.S. farmer today feeds 48 at home and 22 abroad. This so-called capacity is primarily the result of new technology and capital flowing into agriculture. But, productivity in agriculture is slowing down, Black warns, primarily because of the reduced research support to this critical industry.

"U.S. agriculture plays a vital role in defraying part of the mounting fuel import bill. In 1981, we will likely export $48.5 billion of food and import about $18.5 billion. U.S. agriculture will generate about a $30 billion positive balance of trade. In order to bring in these dollars, the U.S. will export about 163 billion metric tons of food and fiber."

"The world is better off because the U.S. is an agricultural giant", Black says. "Our future food supply depends on increasing yields per acre, rather than putting new lands under the plow. Today, the farmer is using more sophisticated machinery, better seeds, herbicides, insecticides, antibiotics, and so on. With increased research support, he may well be poised on the threshold of even greater technological revolution," he adds.

Increasing costs of capital, fuel, water, labor and other production needs are of much concern to farmers. Producers are not always able to transfer these rising costs to consumers as they occur, and consequently many are caught up in a tight cost-price squeeze very rapidly.

Folk Life Festival Slide Presentation Available
The Cisco Civic League cordially invites all area towns to come to the fun and festivities in Cisco on April 24 and 25. The folk life festival, which has been sponsored by the Cisco Civic League for the past eight years, will have many special events for the celebration of Cisco's Centennial Birthday Party.

The Cisco League has a slide presentation that can be shown by a league member to any club or group who is interested in knowing more about the folk life festival. Color slides depict unique demonstrations of folk art, folk medicine, folk food, and folk entertainment. The slide presentation contains sixty slides and would be appropriate for a luncheon meeting or an evening meeting.

The average U.S. farmer today feeds 48 at home and 22 abroad. This so-called capacity is primarily the result of new technology and capital flowing into agriculture. But, productivity in agriculture is slowing down, Black warns, primarily because of the reduced research support to this critical industry.

"U.S. agriculture plays a vital role in defraying part of the mounting fuel import bill. In 1981, we will likely export $48.5 billion of food and import about $18.5 billion. U.S. agriculture will generate about a $30 billion positive balance of trade. In order to bring in these dollars, the U.S. will export about 163 billion metric tons of food and fiber."

"The world is better off because the U.S. is an agricultural giant", Black says. "Our future food supply depends on increasing yields per acre, rather than putting new lands under the plow. Today, the farmer is using more sophisticated machinery, better seeds, herbicides, insecticides, antibiotics, and so on. With increased research support, he may well be poised on the threshold of even greater technological revolution," he adds.

Increasing costs of capital, fuel, water, labor and other production needs are of much concern to farmers. Producers are not always able to transfer these rising costs to consumers as they occur, and consequently many are caught up in a tight cost-price squeeze very rapidly.

To The Citizens Of Rising Star

From time to time during the recent past, there have appeared articles in the local newspaper in regard to various problems confronting our community. This can of worms is no exception. It isn't my intention to try to tell you how to vote, but merely remind every citizen that April 4th is but a few days away.

I also feel there are several points that need to be stated concerning the current Mayor's race. As most of you know, I would like to see Mayor Killion reelected. I feel he has the intelligence and business background necessary to the proper completion of our construction jobs now in progress. I feel, we the citizens, should give Mayor Killion the opportunity to see these projects completed. You know I am not so young nor so old that I have forgotten how things were when Mr. Reed was Mayor, and I am sure he did the best he could; but, we turned out school on numerous occasions because there wasn't enough gas to heat the rooms. If memory serves me correctly, we had water shortages during the summer months, about these same years, and if I am not totally mistaken, I believe it was Mr. Reed who strapped on a gun, had a red light and siren installed on his car—all in the interest of better law enforcement.

No, I am not mad at Mr. Reed and I don't want anyone to think I am picking on him. I can say it simply like this: Mr. Reed was our Mayor for several years and he had his chance to make these needed improvements. I think that we need to extend the same courtesy to Mayor Killion and let him finish these jobs already started.

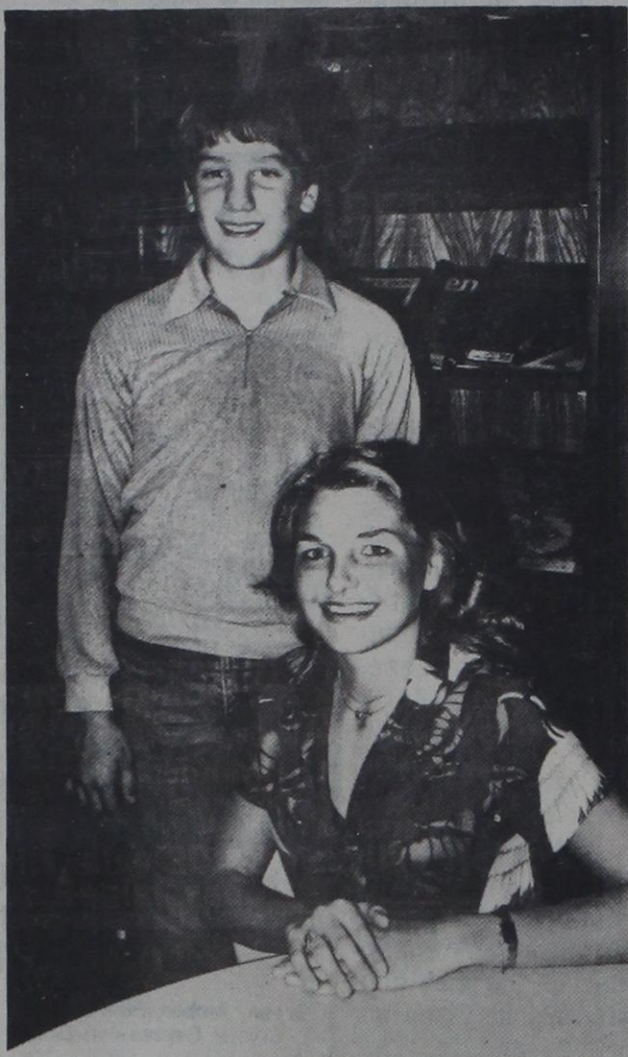

Thank You

Fire Whistle Installed

City Secretary, Janna Long has announced that the Fire Whistle has been installed. The whistle arrived last week and on Saturday, City personnel and other interested citizens installed the 370 pound whistle on the water tower. The whistle is located in the same position as the previous one. Janna went on to say that they will be working on the whistle throughout the week, so citizens should not be alarmed as they are only working on adjusting the whistle.

Two Celebrate Birthday

Thursday, March 26th, there were 24 to enjoy pot luck lunch. This included seven City employees and pipeline men. Margie Earp played the piano and a couple of them, including Howard White, led us in a little singing. It was one of those days when we all did whatever we wanted. I enjoyed playing 42 and I noticed a couple of others playing that don't usually play.

Friday night we helped Beth Blake and Clyde Griffin celebrate their birthdays. We were served sandwiches, chips, birthday cake, punch and coffee. The Starbrites serenaded them with music and song. The crowd was smaller than usual, but we all had a good time.

I hope everyone has whipped the bug and will come April 2nd. Rilla

Who said that older folks can't have fun? Now there's an opportunity for those over 55 to take part in an exciting, fun-filled camp at the Texas 4-H Center at Brownwood, April 28-May 1.

Appropriately called "Spring Fling '81", the camp is designed for today's older adult. Among activities will be basket weaving, lapidary, needlecraft and ceramics. There will also be free-choice demonstrations on creative cooking, gardening, nature studies, exercise and recreation.

Among other fun activities will be shuffleboard, dominoes, "42", bridge and other card games.

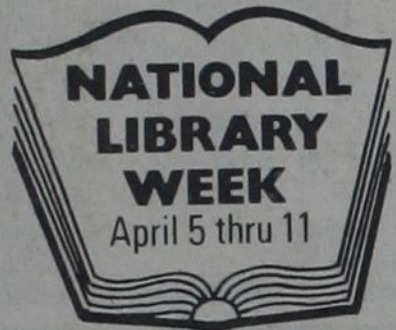

And there's tennis and a golf course near by.

Of course, square dancing and sing-along are planned each evening to make your stay at the 4-H Center a memorable one.

Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialists and a key group of volunteers will be on hand to present educational programs and to help you get the most from your camp activities.

The 4-H Center, located in a lovely wooded area on the shores of beautiful Lake Brownwood, offers an opportunity to "camp" in a resort atmosphere with all the modern conveniences.

Anyone interested in taking part in the "Spring Fling '81" camp may contact Mrs. Janet Thomas, County Extension Agent, for an application form. The county Extension office is located in the courthouse or telephone 629-2222. Reservations must be received at the Texas 4-H Center by April 22 adds Mrs. Thomas.

Out thanks to W.G. Reed, Mrs. Pearl Nunnally and Earnest McLand for donations to the ambulance. Lorene Clark, Secretary-Treasurer
