Reason and Result

Men are down town at their offices The women have to stay at home and with the exception of the milkman, the grocery man, the ice man, a few missellaneous peddlers and hucksters, and the woman next door, there is nobook to talk to. That is why wine talks husband's head off when he comes home at night. Husbands who through long years of experience have grown accustomed to this, merely answer 'umh.'' without hearing. Sometimes the wife will catch them unawares, and between remarks will insert a request for ten dollars to buy a all day and have a chance to talk.

Mr. Truax while down there took particular pains to investigate the railroad work and to ascerthe work is actually being rushed as never before on the Shattuck-Spearnever before on the Shattuck-Spearman line. Sufficient material is in the Shaftuck yards for the construction of all the bridges, and depots and also for fencing the right-of-way. Work on the 3-stall round house at Shattuck is being rushed as fast as possible. Great quantities of rails and ties are stacked in the yards, to be used on the line soon as all the big bridges are completed. The bridge construction seems to have delayed the construction seems to have delayed the work considerably, but one big bridge was completed last week and the work will move faster from now on. Mr Truax believes trains will be running into Spearman by Thanksgiving day.

The crown prince, though not generally known, frequently visited England and Scotland incognito, and we were upon one of those flying visits on that bright summer's morning as the express tore through the delightful English scenery of the Thames valley, with the first stopping place at Plymouth, our destination.

young hot-headed imperial master was concealed from me.

Your days before he had dashed into my room at the Marmor palace at Potsdam. He had been with the emperor in Berlin all the morning, and had motored back with all speed. Something had occurred, but what it was I falled to discern. He carried some papers in the packet of his military tunic. From their color I saw that they were secret reports—those documents prepared solely for the eyes of the kaiser and those of his oldest son.

He took a big linen-lined envelope and, placing the papers in it, carefully

"Oh! We'll leave Eckhardt at home," he said, for he always hated the surveillance of the commissioner of secret police. "We shall only want Schuler, my valet, and Knof."

We never traveled anywhere without Knof, the chauffeur, who was an impudent, arrogant young man, intensely disliked by everyone.

So it was that the four of us duly landed at Harwich and traveled to London, our identity unknown to the jostling crowd of tourists returning from their annual holiday on the continent.

one of the most charming ornaments I had ever seen.

As I ushered her in she greeted the crown prince as "Mr. Richter," being apparently entirely unaware of his real identity. I concluded that she was somebody whom his highness had met in Germany, and to whom he had been introduced under his assumed name.

"Ah! Miss King!" he exclaimed pleasantly in his excellent English, shaking hands with her. "Your boat should have been in yesterday. Litear you encountered bad weather—eh?"

"Yes, rather," replied the girl. "But it did not trouble me much. We had almost constant gales ever since we left New York," she laughed brightly. She appeared to be quite a charming little person.

The sealed packet! I had forgotten, all about it ever since he had handed it to me at the door of the Marmor palace. It knew that it contained some secret reports prepared for the eye of the emperor. The latter had no doubt seen them, for the crown prince had brought them with him from Berlin.

As ordered, I took the packet into the room where his highness sat with his fair visitor, and then I retired and closed the door.

"I Can't; It Would Be Dishonest!"

Hotel doors are never very heavy, as rule, therefore, I was able to hear conversation, but unfortunately few conversation, but unfortunately few words were distinct. The interview had lasted nearly half an hour. Finding that I could hear nothing, I contented myself in reading the paper and holding myself in readiness should "Mr. Richter" want me.

Of a sudden I heard his highness' voice raised in anger, that shrill, high-pitched note which is peculiar both to the emperor and to his son when they are unusually annoyed.

"But I tell you, Miss King, there is

"You wish to save your brother," he said. "Very well, I have shown you how you can effect this. And I will help you if you agree to the terms—if you will find out what I want to know."

"I can't!" cried the girl in evident distress. "I really can't! It would be dishonest—criminal!"

"Bah! my dear girl, you are looking at the affair from far too high a standpoint," replied the man she knew as Richter. "It is a mere matter of business. My dear LeQueux:

I have just finished reading the proofs of your articles describing my life as an official at the imperial court at Potsdam, and the two or three small errors you made I have duly corrected.

The gross scandals and wily intrigues which I have related to you were many of them known to yourself, for, as the intimate friend of Luisa, the ex-crown princess of Saxony, you were, before the war, closely associated with many of those at court whose names appear in

The revelations which I have made, and which you have recorded here, are but a tithe of the disclosures which I could make, and if the world desires more, I shall be pleased to furnish you with other and even more startling details, which you may also but into print.

My service as personal adjutant to the German crown prince is, happly, at an end, and how, with the treathery of Germany against civilization glaringly revenled, I feel, in my retirement, no computaction in exposing all I know concerning the sec.cts of the kaiser and his son.

With most cordial greetings from

Your sincere friend,

Hence it was at two o'clock that afternoon Knof brought round a big gray open car, and in it I sat beside the emperor's son while we were driven around the defenses of Plymouth, just as on previous occasions we had inspected those of Portsmouth and of Dover.

On the following Thursday evening we had returned to London, and the crown prince, without telling me where he was going, left the Ritz hotel, merely explaining that he might not be back till midnight. It was on that occasion, my dear LeQueux, you will remember, that I dined with you at the Devonshire club, and we afterward spent a pleasant evening together at the Empire.

I merely told you that his highness was out at dinner with a friend. You were, naturally, inquisitive, but I did not satisfy your curiosity. Secrecy was then my duty.

A Sample of German Preparedness.
On returning to the hotel I found the crown prince arranging with Knof a motor run along the Surrey hills on the following day. He had a large map spread before him—a German military map, the curious marks upon which would have no doubt astonished any war office official. The map indicated certain spots which had been secretly prepared by Germany in view of the projected invasion.

that wild mountainous district beyond Breslau. For a week we had been staying at a great, high-up prisonlike schloss, the ancestral home of Prince Ludwig Lichtenau, in the Wolfesgrund.

The emperor and his suite had left, and our host had been suddenly called to Berlin by telegram, his daughter having been ill. Therefore, the crown prince and we of the suite had remained for some further sport.

On the day after the emperor's de parture I had spent the afternoon in a small paneled room which overlooked a deep mountain gorge, and which had been given up to me for work. I was busy with correspondence when the courier from Potsdam entered and gave me the battered leather pouch containing the crown prince's letters. Having unlocked it with my key, I found among the correspondence a small square packet and aftersed to his imperial highness, and marked "private."

"Now, fearing bombs or attempts by other means upon his son's life, the emperor had commanded me always to open packets addressed to him. This one, however, being marked "private."

When at last he came in, wet and marked "private."

When at last he came in, wet and muddy after a long day's sport, I showed him the packet. With a careless air he said; "Oth, open it, Heltzendorff. Open all packets, whether marked private or not."

"I obeyed, and to my surprise found within the paper a small leather-covered jewel case, in which, reposing upon a bed of dark blue velvet, was the beautiful ornament which I had admired at the throat of the fair-haired British girl—the golden butterfly.

I handed it to his highness just as he was taking a cigarette from the box on a side table.

The sight of it electrified him. He held his breath, standing for a few seconds starding at it as though he were gazing upon some specter. His

To those spots we motored on the following day. His imperial highness, at the instigation of the emperor, actually made a tour of inspection of those cunningly concealed points of vantage which the imperial general staff had, with their marvelous forethought and bold enterprise, already prepared right beneath the very nose of the sleeping British Hon.

From the crown prince's jaunty manner and good spirits I felt assured that by the subtle persuasive powers he possed towards women he had brought sterious Miss King into line own plans—whatever they had at the British Hon.

Suddenly the crown prince's face brightened, as though he had had some inspiration.
"The truth will not be known, I promise you," he said, with a strange grin. I knew that expression. It meant that he had devised some fresh plan. "The girl is defiant today, but the will not recognize to girl."

The sight of it electrified him. He held his breath, standing for a few seconds staring at it as though he were gazing upon some specter. His countenance was as white as paper.

"When did that arrive?" he managed to ask, in a hearse voice, which showed how completely sight of it had upset him.

"This afternoon. It was in the courler's pouch from Potsdam."

"If the Truth Came Out."

He seemed highly nervous, and at the same time extremely puzzled. Receipt of that unique and beautiful brooch was, I saw, some sign, but of its real significance I remained in entire ignorance.

That it had a serious meaning I quickly realized, for within half an hour the crown prince and myself were in the train on our 200-mile journey back to Berlin.

On arrival his imperial highness drove straight to the Berlin Schloss, and there, had a long interview with the emperor. At last I was called into the familiar pale-green room, the kaiser's private cabinet, and at once saw that something untoward had occurred.

The emperor's face was dark and thoughtful. The crown prince, in his c. The enemies of the Hohenzolas are as a cloud of gants on a sum-ris night. The dew comes, and they no more. It is a pity. Has not of our greatest German philosorrs written: 'It is no use breathing inst the wind?''

Washington.—Provost Marshal General Crowder has issued complete instructions for the men registered under the selective conscription law. So that everyone will understand just what is to be done, he gives the directions, step by step, as follows:

1. LOCAL BOARDS—In every county in the United States and for every city of over 30,000 there are one or more local exemption boards. Each of such boards is in charge of the registration cards of persons registered in the area, over which the board has jurisdiction, and has jurisdiction of all claims for exemption, except those based on industrial grounds. FIND OUT WHAT BOARD HAS YOUR CARD AND WHERE THE OFFICE OF THAT BOARD IS.

2. DISTRICT BOARDS—In every federal judicial district there are one or more district boards, having appellate jurisdiction over a number of local boards and having original jurisdiction of claims for exemption on industrial grounds. IF YOU INTEND TO MAKE A CLAIM ON INDUSTRIAL GROUNDS, INCLUDING AGRICULTURE, LEARN WHAT DISTRICT BOARD TO APPLY TO.

Meaning of Numbers.

3. RED INK SERIAL NUMBERS—

Meaning of Numbers.

3. RED INK SERIAL NUMBERS—
Every board has numbered the cards in its jurisdiction with red ink in a series running from 1 to the number representing the total number of cards in its jurisdiction. Lists showing the names of persons in the jurisdiction of each are open to inspection number of each are open to inspection at the office of each bard. INSPECT THE LIST AND INFORM YOUR-SELF OF YOUR RED INK SERIAL NUMBER.

4. ORDER OF LIABILITY—These red link numbers are to be drawn by lot to determine the order in which registered persons are to be called by the various local boards. As soon as the drawing is complete lists showing the order in which these red ink numbers are drawn will be published in the press, and will be posted at the office of each local board. GO TO YOUR LOCAL BOARD AND FIND OUT THE ORDER IN WHICH YOU ISTAND FOR CALL.

5. As soon as quotas are assigned to ORDER OF LIABILITY—These

STAND FOR CALL.

5. As soon as quotas are assigned to each state and each board, each board will call upon persons whose cards are in its jurisdiction instructing them to present themselves for examination. This call will be posted at the office of the local board and the papers will be requested to print it. A notice will also be mailed to you, but the posting of the list at the office of the board will be deemed sufficient notice to charge you with the duty of presenting yourself. The law therefore makes it your duty to inform yourself when you are called. The mailing is for your convenience, but if the letter never reaches you you cannot make that an excuse.

7. EXEMPTION OR DISCHARGE.

No claim or discharge on account of the industry in which you are engaged can be decided by a local board. (See Par. XV, below.)

WHETHER YOU FILE A CLAIM OF EXEMPTION OR NOT, YOU MUST PRESENT YOURSELF FOR PATNICAL EXAMINATION ON THE DAY NAMED IN THE NOTICE.

From the day notice that you are say is malled and posted you have days in which you may file a for exemption:

That you are an officer, legislative, executive or judicial of the United States, a state or territory, or the District of Columbia.

That you are a regular or duly ordained minister of religion.

That you were on May 18, 1917, a student preparing for the ministry in any recognized theological or divinity school.

That you are in the military or naval service of the United States.

That you are a subject of Germany, whether you have taken out papers or not.

not.

That you are a resident allen who has not taken out first papers.

In addition to claims for exemption claims for discharge may be made on any of the following grounds, which are the only grounds for discharge by a local board:

a local board:
That you are a county or municipal officer.
That you are a custom-house clerk.
That you are amployed by the United States in the transmission of mails.
That you are an artificer or workman employed in an artificer or workman employed in an artmory, arsenal or navy yard of the United States.
That you are employed in the service of the United States.
That you are employed in the service of the United States (under certain conditions). See paragraph (c) of section 20, Regulations.
That you are a licensed pilot regularly employed in the pursuit of your vocation.
That you are a mariner actually employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States.
That you are a married man with a wife or child dependent on you for support.
That you have a ged or infirm parents dependent upon your labor for support.
That you have a widowed mother dependent on your labor for support.
That you are the father of a mother-less child under sixteen dependent upon your labor for support.
That you are a brother of an orphanchild or children under sixteen dependent on your labor for support.
That you are a member of any well-recognized religious sect or organization organized and existent May 17, 1017, and whose then existing creed or principles forbade its members to participate in war in any form and whose religious organization.
These are the only grounds for exemption or discharge by a local board.
Another person can file a claim in your behalf, but must use different forms in filing the claim.

8. Proof of claims—Your claim of exemption or discharge must be filed your benait, but must use different forms in filing the claim.

8. Proof of claims—Your claim of exemption or discharge must be filed within seven days of the day on which notice to you that you are called was posted and mailed. But after you have filed your claim for exemption or discharge you have ten days within which to file proof.

The method of proving claims is very simple, but it is rather exact. If you follow the rules given below you will have done what is required of you:

(a) Go to the local board and consult the regulations to find out the form number of the affidavits that you must submit for your particular claim.

(b) Ask the board for the blank affidavits that are necessary in presenting your proof; if the board has not the forms, ask to consult the pamphlet of forms.

(c) Have the affidavits properly accomplished and return them to the board within the time limit assigned you—ten days from the filing of your claim.

Remember:

(a) You must submit your proof in the prescribed form and the board has no authority to exempt or discharge you unless' you submit all the affidavits required by regulations.

(b) There will be no argument before the board and no proof other than the prescribed affidavits, unless the board calls for other proof, which it will do in only α limited number of cases.

9. WHEN CLAIMS ARE DECIDED—Every claim for discharge or exemption will be decided by the local board within three days after your affidavits have been filed.

10. CERTIFICATES OF EXEMPTION OR DISCHARGE—If your claim heal your certificate may be with-trawn at once. When so withdrawn ou stand precisely as though you had been selected for military service by the local board.

11. ADVERSE DECISIONS ON CLAIM—If your claim is disallowed by the local board your name will be certified and sent by the local board to the district board as one who has been called for military service and not exempted or discharged. Within two days thereafter, if practicable, a list of those so certified to the district board will be given to the press with a request for publication, will be posted in the offices of the local board accessible to the public view, and notice will be mailed to the address on the registration card.

All be marked egistration card.

Therefore, if you have filed a claim and proof in support for exemption or Form 121 for discharge. If the board has not the printed forms ask to consult the form pamphlet and copy the form shown there.

Fill out the proper form and file it with the board.

Do this within seven days of the posting and mailing of notice to you to present yourself.

18. APPEALS TO THE PRESIDENT—Only decisions of district boards on industrial claims for discharge can be appealed.

If you desire to appeal the decision of the district boards to the president, you may do so within seven days of the date of mailing to you of the decision of the district board. To perfect your appeal:

(a) Get or copy from the district or local board Form 165.

(b) Fill out the form and file it with the district board.

(c) Do this within seven days after the mailing of notice to you of the decision of the district board in your case.

Canvas House to House.

Friends of those working directly with Mr. Stowell were obtained and a committee was made up with at least one representative from each election district. These, in turn, canvassed apartment houses and dwellings in every one of the 115 districts.

The surprising part about the beginning of the movement was that the pioneers found no hostility, only welcome, in the houses they visited. This in spite of the fact that although they may have lived for years adjacent to a family, neither had spoken. It was a means never before offered for everybody in the district getting to know almost everybody else.

workers are in his district. That, however, is not the object so much as the power of being in personal touch with people. Mr. Stowell emphasized this when he received a call for cooks to go with the Red Cross.

He sent out the notice to leaders in the election districts and shortly afterward they had obtained a score or more of the men desired. One district leader himself persuaded two men to enlist. It is this "neighborhood" touch, this knowing everybody in the apartment house or city block or county township where you live, that makes the possibilities of the plan so great, according to Mr. Stowell.

Purposes of the League.

"We are organizing that we may serve the government of the United States," said Mr. Stowell, "and assist to the full in this great fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts—for democracy, for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments, for the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free.

"The Patriotic Service league aims to form in every congressional district, and of the patriotic efforts of all citizens of both sexes and of every age, so that an early and successful termination of the war may result.

In New York, of all places, the community idea of nationalism has worked out, and very successfully, too. As the terms "community spirit" may seem rather indefinite to some, the exact significance of what Mr. Stowell means when he uses the term may best be set forth by himself.

Several months ago, when the necessity of rousing the country to the fact that every resource of the United States should—be—available for war, Mr. Stowell thought of the old town meetings in New England.

"If," he asked himself, "this plan worked to weld together a town or village, why could not the same principle be applied to the entire nation?" Intensive thought on the question confirmed his idea that it could. He selected the congressional district as the best geographical division for a unit of the league.

He chose the Nineteenth congression—seems specific duties.

Recently the congress of the United fictes increased the pay of the sailor men so materially that the recruits pay is double what it was.
In the navy the young men of the rountry, both in times of peace and in lines of war, secure liberal educations. Their opportunities for travel and for sight-seeing are greater than those of nen employed in almost any other calling in life. Moreover, the boys just entering manhood who enly in the any are given opportunities for instruction which, if they have the ambition and the mental qualifications, will enable them to enter the naval acadimy at Annapolis on the same terms as midshipmen who are nominated by nembers of congress, and at that institution to secure an education which fits them for the commissioned rank which the government of the United States will confer upon them.

There are traditions in the American navy which keep high the spirit of endeavor in every man who walks the deck under the colors, from the admiral to the apprentice seaman. The boy learns all about John Paul Jones, and his deeds on the sea for his gountry; all about Decatur, Balnbridge, Hull, Porter, Farragut and Dewey. By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington—Sailors of the Ameritan navy, many of them young men who only a year ago were on the farm at the bench, at the counter, or in tehool, today are in Uncle Sam's destroyers sailing the waters of the aorthern seas, where they are engaged in the heroic duty of upholding the world principle of freedom for all peoples.

The American people always have shown a kindly disposition toward the man-of-war and the man-of-warsman. There has been an appeal about the sea which has drawn and held the interest of landsmen who never smelt sait water. Americans always lave taken a pride in their navy.

Today Uncle Sam needs men for his havy and he wishes to get them from the ranks of those who are charged with the volunteer spirit of service. Dur great fider is mobilized "somewhere on the coast" for possible deadly iervice with the great fleet of the memy. Today, for the navy has allowed the fact to become known, many of our smaller craft, the buildog destroyers of the mavy, are hunting the submarine sharks in the waters off Daunt's Rock, close to the const of Ire land and farther north, where even in momer the elements at times are alasost as fierce as "man, the enemy."
