POTTER'S Vegetable Catholicon.

THE proprietor of this invaluable medicine feels authorised by its increasing reputation to recommend it as superior to all other popular remedies, for the cure of KING'S EVIL or Scro-fula, NECROSIS or diseased bones, SYPHILIS in every stage, MERCURIAL disease, RHEU-MATISM, LIVER complaints, and ULCERS of every description. The Catholicon has also been used with great

The Catholicon has also been used with great success in every variety of Cutaneous disease, blotches on the face, pimples and tetter in particular, White Swellings, Goul, Jaurdice and Bilious diseases generally, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, complaints of the Stomach, and general debility. It is a certain purifier of the blood and humors, and has been found an efficacious remedy in purifying the blood of children after vaccination, and should be invariably used as a general alterative both for children and adults—being agreeable to the most delicate palate; and a grateful cordial to the stomach. This is the first discovery of a medicine taken into the stomach, that has had the long de sired effect, of curing the most obstinate and dis-tressing external diseases. The use of nutritious food, and the ordinary avocations of business are ries having the power of restoring both flesh and bone, and of renovating and invigorating every part of the system during the process of exterminating disease, is without a parallel. Sold by the principal Druggists in the United

PREMIUM HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

York, the Premium History of the United States for Schools, 3d Edition, with Questions, 12 mo. Price 75 cents. To this History, was awarded by the American Academy of Languages and Belles Lettres, a premium of $400 and a Gold Medal worth $50. It has been favorably noticed in several of the literary periodical publi cations in the United States-and the style and management of the work have been particularly recommended. It has been republished in Eng-land in an elegant octavo, and English Review-ers have spoken more warmly in its praise, than they have usually done of American productions. It contains more, and it is believed is better calculated for a reading book in schools, and for use in families, than any other abridged History of this Republic.

The following is the continuation of the debate on the subject of Districting, which was omitted last week.

Friday Afternoon, May 25.

Mr. Ryder moved to amend the amendment to the amendment, but it was pronounced to be on

Mr. Lyon said he was in favor of the amend ment offered in the morning; he believed that was generally acceptable to his constituents. Mr. Burrel observed that the present amend ment was just like the amendment on the table in the morning-that this was a sorry mode of managing business, and that it was not fair to with draw an amendment and then to tack it on to another. The principal feature in the original amendment is, that it provides for as many districts as senators: to the objections to it I have carefully attended, and have not understanding enough to discover more than two; one is that the senators are to be chosen by a plurality of votes; and the other and great objection appears to be, that in a small district there cannot be that choice of talent. That large districts do not bring candidates home to the knowledge of their constituents, cannot be denied. It will take about 6 or 7 towns to form a district, and it can hardly be supposed that there will be any difficulty in finding a man of talents in some of them, com petent for the office. Lawyers may know the character and qualifications of candidates within the county, but it is impossible for the greater part of the people, such as farmers and mechanics to know the qualifications of men in a remote part of the county. In order, therefore, that people may judge discreetly, the districts must be restricted to small limits.

Mr. Lathrop was understood to express a strong opinion against a division of counties, and also against the proposed amendment. [His concluding remarks only, were heard by the reporter.]

Mr. Willlams observed that the question was whether we should leave it to a future legislature to say what the number of districts should be between 8 and 24. There are conflicting opinions upon this subject, and the question seems to occur whether those, who seriously wish to legis late upon the subject, will so far yield up thei opinions as to submit it to a future legislature to decide this thing. If it be safe to leave it to a future legislature to say what towns shall compose a district, it cannot be upsafe to submit it to them to determine how many districts there shall be. No constitution can go into detail; in our present constitution provision is made for superior and inferior courts, but the legislature are vested with a considerable discretionary power upon the subject.
If the gentleman from Canaan, (Mr. Burrel) is and it is all important that a senator should come from each district, the representatives next year will be chosen for that purpose. Why, kind, so that, one way or the other, it will lose many of its friends.

Mr. Shepard observed that he was opposed to the proposed amendment to the amendme

Mr. Gurley said that about five-sixths of the members of this house were the firm and cordial supporters of districting; this being the case, the question simply is what course, as wise and inteligent men, we will take to carry into effect this darling measure. We ought to leave it so that a future legislature may have the power to district, and then the principle will be obtained; and our children and those that come after us will have the benefit of this provision. The difficulty consists in this, that we will not only amend the con stitution, so that the state shall be districted, bu we want to district ourselves. If we place the power so that districting can take effect it is all we want. There are certain great principles, or which we are agreed. One is, as suggested by hi Excellency, that districts should be composed of contiguous territories; another is, that no town should be divided; and a third the intirety of the counties. What necessity is there of going fur-ther? Some would have it as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians, that there should be as many districts as senators; but the legislature, that will come after us, will be endowed with wisdom and talents, and better know the wishes of the people. Suppose the people should get sick of the great number of districts, the mode of choosing could not be altered without wading through all the difficulties we now have to encouter. In my opinion we ought to go no farther than great and vital principles are concerned; should not the present amendment to the amendment prevail, the object of districting wil be defeated, because we have insisted upon trifles Mr. Bierce said that the subject was exhausted; that he was in favor of the original amendment, as he thought that made the bill the most perfect of any vet offered; that it would bring an ac quaintance and knowledge of a candidate hom o his constituents. But we might as well leave to the county court to make a nomination as adopt the amendment to the amendment, for the nomin ation would in fact come from that court or the gentlemen assembled to attend it.

Mr. Tilden made some remarks which were not distinctly heard; he was understood to say that the state was already districted, in one sense county-wise; that he had rather vote for a can-didate he knew, than for a stranger; that he was always in favour of districting; and that we had a right to say how many districts we will have.

Mr. Cooley observed that farmers &c. did not know the qualifications of persons living at a distance; that so much time had been spent in the discussion, and he was so anxions to dispose of it that he did not care much which way it went on the whole he believed he should vote for th amendment proposed by the gentleman from Suffield, (Mr. Shepard.)

Mr. Haley said that we had now come to a difficult point; that his own opinion was, that it-was better to have as many districts as senators; that allowing one senator to 12,000 inhabitants, it would make about 21 senators in the whole state that he proposed this in the committee, but most all were against him and he gave it up; he observed that he was very sorry to hear any thing said about party feelings, and if we wish to carry the hill into effect we must unite, somehow or other but if we are determined to oppose and defeat the measure at all events, party feelings may well be

Mr. Gurley here made some explanation of the remarks he had made.

Mr. Shaler observed that the question was, in substance, whether we would go into detail. He had always found, that when a person opport the truth because his antagonists believed it, i would in the end operate against him. He made those remarks because he had seen it in the conduct of the majority towards the minority, to which he belonged. He observed, that he wa bred a farmer and a fisherman-that his constituents had seen fit several times to honor him with a seat on that floor-but he did not call himself legislator, nor did he expect to edify the literati of this house; and that in whatever he did he wish ed to act honestly. He was in favour of the

Mr. Hill said he was so anxious to district the state, that he was prepared to vote for almost any thing that would accomplish that object; that the amendment provided, that the senators should be chosen according to the population; Tolland, by this rule, would have but one, and Middlesex two he thought wealth, and perhaps territory, ought to have its representation as well as population we ought to send out such an amendment as will be agreeable to the people, and he thought we ought to leave it open to the exercise of as much discretion in the legislature as the present amendment proposed.

Mr. Shepard made some remarks not distinctly understood mendment. Mr. Ryder expressed an opinion in favour of he amendment.

Mr. Ellsworth spoke to the same effect. Mr. May observed that we were not at variance that the town he had the honor to represent, would not send members hereafter of less ability and zeal than himself and colleague, and those memers would be better qualified to vote upon the ubject than he was; he thought we had agree upon that, which will hurt nobody, than to ay we are wiser than any legislature which hall come after us. He was in favour of the

Mr. Williams moved another amendment to the mendment, which was carried without debate.

Mr. Ryder moved to amend the 2nd article s amended, so that no county should have less han 2 senators.

Mr. Pitkin expressed himself strongly in favor of the amendment; he said it was always conemplated, that there should not be less than 2 senators to a county; that the population might fall a little short, but this was no kind of objection. Mr. Boardman was opposed to the amendment. The question was then put and carried.

The question was then put upon the 2nd article as amended, by yeas and nays, and passed. Yeas 7-nays 84.

Mr. Ferris, of Greenwich, wished to be excused because he did not understand the question. The House excused him. He afterwards wished to ote, but the House refused to permit it.

The 3d section was then passed.

Mr. Hitchcock moved that 250 copies of the bill as amended be printed, and the bill be made the order of the day for Tuesday morning. Mr. Burrel moved to recommit the bill to the ommittee, for the purpose of making an addition repealing a part of the present constitution as beng inconsistent with the bill.

Mr. Pitkin objected to this as being unnecessary. The motion to print was withdrawn, and the final question on the passage of the bill was taken by yeas and nays as follows. Yeas 116-nays 74.

A bill for a public act was read providing that no member of the General Assembly, shall appear as attorney before the Assembly or before any committee of either House, unless in his own cause, or that of the town which he represents, or any society or corporation therein, or in cer tain cases of near relation between the members and the parties concerned, on penalty of forfeiting his seat. That part of the bill relating to the penalty was opposed by Mr. Shepard, advocated by Mr. T.S. Williams--and the bill passed.

A bill for a public act relative to the assessment of taxes was read the second time. The first section of the bill provides, that the town clerks o the several towns where mortgage deeds securing money on interest are recorded, shall give notice to the assessors of the towns where the mortgagees are described to belong, of the names of said mortgagees with the sum or sums so secured ; and on neglect to give such notice to be subjected to a penalty of fifty dollars. The second section prorides, that the assessors may add to the list of any person such sum of money on interest as they may think proper, which shall be liable to be abated by the board of relief; and false swearing before the board of relief shall be subject to the punishment of perjury. Mr. Shepard made a few remarks against the bill. Messrs. Cleaveland and G. Hill from the committee who reported the bill, advocated it at some length. Mr. Burrel moved to amend the bill by striking out the 1st section.— The amendment was advocated by Mr. Miner, opposed by Mr. Hill, and negatived by a vote of On motion of Mr. May the bill was 91 to 83.

Friday Morning, June 1. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Sears.

The resolution relating to the State-House in

New-Haven was taken up. Mr. Lyon moved to reconsider the vote of the House passing the resolution; carried.

Mr. Warren remarked, that he was not in the nouse when the resolution was passed. He was surprised at the sum, which he thought was more little than too much; he therefore moved to amend the bill by reducing the sum to $20,000.

Mr. Lyon moved to amend the amendment by educing the sum to $10,000.

ause he thought the sum appropriated too large; he had no doubt however that $20,000 would be entlemen would not avail themselves of the liberality of the House in opening the bill, for the purpose of defeating the object.

Mr. Cleaveland said he had no local feelings on large, and was therefore in favour of opening the bill; but to appropriate only 10,000 dollars was equivalent to giving nothing-he thought a state house ought to be built, and one that would be respectable and furnish the necessary accommo dations; for this purpose he thought $20,000 would be requisite. Mr. T. S. Williams remarked, that the House ought to pursue a just and liberal course in relaion to this subject. If it was necessary to erec a state house, he cared not where, let a suitable appropriation be made. After two respectable committees had thoroughly investigated the sub ject, and the house by a large majority had deliberately decided that such a building was necessary and had made what was deemed a suitable appro priation, he would ask whether gentlemen were really serious in their proposition to reduce the sum to $10,000, or whether the object was merely o defeat the grant; if so let it be done openly and not in this indirect manner. If it could b made to appear that the original sum was too great, he would certainly consent to reduce it, but until that was done he was opposed to such a

Mr. Lyon varied his motion to $15,000 Mr. Perkins said, that when the resolution was first introduced he was undecided on the subject he did not like the sum of $26,000, and should now prefer the sum proposed by the gentleman from Lyme. The constitution made it necessar that the legislature should hold its session in two lifferent places; this was perhaps an unfortunat feature of the constitution, but it could not be altered and he was sorry to see this attempt to evade this provision; he represented a people who were not willing that their hard earnings should e spent in adorning the public buildings of the sister capitals, but they were willing to furnish suitable accommodations for the legislature; two espectable committees had reported that the present building was in a ruinous state, and he oped a sum necessary to crect a new one would be appropriated, and that the amendment would

The amendment was further opposed by Messrs Shepard and T. Pitkin: advocated by Messrs Haley and Cooley. The latter gentleman, however, was opposed to any appropriation, and thought it preferable that the Constitution should be altered so that the Legislature should meet in one place, in the centre of the State. On taking the question on the amendment proposed by Mr. Lyon, it was negatived. The question was then taken on the amendment proposed by Mr. Warren, reducing the sum to $20,000, and carried. After considerable desultory debate on the details o he resolution, it finally passed without any further amendment. By a provision of the resolution, it is not to take effect, until a sum equal to one half of the sum granted by the State, shall be raised for the same object, by the city, town, and county of New-Haven.

As to the expediency of granting the charter for a second college, there might 'as the time have been doubts; but such a charter had been granted, it was now too late to regret it, and it was the duty of the legislature at a proper time, and in a proper manner, to nourish and cherish the institution they had established Rus when he said this he was not prepared to admit that an appropriation ought to be made whenever than was necessary; that it was better to grant too applied for, without regard to the time or manner of doing it. He feared when the charter was granted that jealousies and rivalship would exist between the two colleges-to prevent this, he would have the interests of both considered and Mr. Swan was sorry to hear the last amendment protected; both should be placed on an equal proposed; he was in favour of opening the bill be-footing, and instead of aiding one to the neglect footing, and instead of aiding one to the neglect of the other, he would have some general provision made for the encouragement of literature and requisite to erect a suitable building, and hoped science, and let each institution then share equally the favor of the state, without regard to local or sectarian influence. These were the reasons, onnected with the present state of the treasury, which induced him to vote against the grant when the subject. He thought the original sum too previously before the House. He was aware he had pursued a course opposed to the wishes of many of his friends whom he highly esteemed, but he had acted from a sense of duty, which would again compel him to vote against a reconsideration.

Com. Adv.

HARTFORD, JUNE 4.

The Legislature of this State closed its session on Friday last. In the sketch of proceedings published from week to week and closed in this paper, we have endeavored to furnish our readers with a concise history of the business which has been done. From these it will appear that the harmony of the session has not been disturbed by any party excitement. With the exception of one or two instances, which seemed rather to be frowned upon than encouraged, no allusion was made to political distinctions for the purpose of reviving former prejudices and animosities. The districting bill occasioned considerable discussion, and met with the opposition of many who have heretofore been loud in their professions on this subject. It however passed by a handsome majority, and it remains with the people to decide by their representatives whether the amendment proposed to the constitution shall be carried into effect. Charles Brenam, 27 .- At New-Canaan, Widow One bank has been granted, after meeting with much opposition, and being once negatived by the House. Appropriations to a large amount for Connecticut, have been made from the treasury. principally for the erection of a new State House in New-Haven. The petition for a grant to Washington College proved unsuccessful; the principal opposition to it however seemed to proceed, not from any hostility to the college; but from an opinion that, now there were two institutions of this kind established, they ought both to be fostered by the State, and that some general provision should be made, in which each should share equally, rather than an appropriation exclusively for the benefit of either.

It appears by the New-Haven and Northampton papers that Governor Clinton, in company with Mr. Hillhouse, the Agent of the Farmington Canal, is making a tour through Massachusetts and Vermont, for the purpose as it is said of examining the proposed rout of the Canal. He was welcomed at New-Haven as we are informed with special honours, and has received public dinners, and been toasted, saluted, escorted, &c. at Northampton and Westfield. The ultimate object of these imposing movements is not distinctly stated; but it is to be presumed that it has no connection with the efforts that are making to obtain a canal charter from the Legislature of Massachusetts, and no one surely will suspect his Excellency of any electionsering manœuvre.

For several weeks a large portion of our columns have been occupied with the proceedings of the Legislature, which, to many of our readers, we presume have afforded but little interest. Of such we would only ask indulgence for this week, after which we hope to furnish our usual variety of miscellaneous matter.

We have received a communication in reply to an article in a late New-Haven Herald, on the subject of a loan made to Washington College by the Commissioner of the School Fund, which we are obliged to omit for want of room : it shall appear in our next.

From the Boston Journal.

Gov. Chnlon is making a progress through the western part of Massachusetts to Vermont, for the purpose, it is said, of viewing the proposed route of the Hampshire and Hampden Canal. Although Mr. Clinton is a man whom the citizens of Massachusetts must always feel honored and happy in receiving as a visitor and a guest; still the occa-sion of the present visit appears to us singular. Does he intend to express his opinion of the practi-cability, and expediency of the caual in comparison with its rival enterprize, the Connecticut River Navigation ? This we think cannot be, for he must know that the comparative merit of these two projects are a subject of legislative inquiry, and are to receive a legislative decision in our General Court. It would, as it appears to us, be a libel on the Governor of New-York to say that he intends in any way to interfere in a local question of much delicacy and ir has aroused large and respectable portions of the Commonwealth to keen, and almost angry controversy, a question upon whose decision property to an immense amount is depending! It can scarcely be presumed that Mr. Clinton has any political views in undertaking this tour any more than he had in undertaking a former one to the west. There is, however, a manifest difference between the two cases. In relation to the Ohio Canals, there were no parties, and there was, we believe, an invitation from the Executive ; but we are not aware that there has been any invitation from the Executive of Massachusetts. Indeed it is utterly impossible from the nature of the case, that our Governor could have invited the accomplished chief Magistrate of N. Y. to meddle with matters in which Mr. Lincoln himself has no right to interfere. It may be added also that the city of New-York is supposed to have a direct in terest in the success of the canal, an interest adverse to this metropolis.

Distressing Providence.-While a number of men were washing sheep in the pond, near the centre of Ashfield, on Friday last, 7 of them took a few sheep into a boat in order to pass a deep place to where water was more shoal. they reached the deep water, the boat, being overloaded, dipped and went down. Three of the seven that were in it, reached the shore. The other four, after struggling a while sunk to rise no more. The father of one of the young men in the boat, standing on the shore, and seeing his son strugging for life, plunged in to his assistance, but being advanced in years, and having all his clothes on, was unable to reach his son, and was soon seen sinking into the same watery grave. The persons who have been thus suddenly and awfully summoned into eternity, are Deacon David Lyon, aged 63; his son, aged 19; Mr. Arnold Drake, aged about 30; and two sons of Mr. Eli Gray, Jr. one in his 14th and the other in his 13th year. The two first have left each a wife and children to mourn their loss. The scene that recurred when the widows, children, brothers, and sisters of the deceased entered the room where their lifeless remains were strewed, cannot be described. A shock of the most appalling kind has settled upon the people of the town. The hand of the Lord has touched us, and may it be sanctified to our everlasting benefit. On Saturday, while a Mr. Douglass and his wife were attending the funeral of the above named persons, a daughter of Mr D. aged 11 years, who was left in charge of other children, in attempting to get out of a window, was killed by the falling of the sash upon her neck. boatman was drowned at Miller's Falls on
