Five Arrested in Drug Raid

Five persons, in two separate cases, were arrested by Cochran County deputies in Morton last week and charged with possession of Marijuana.

One of the persons arrested and charged, Wendel Bicket, 20, 309 S.W. Third Street, was arrested and charged with possession of a narcotic drug, Marijuana, according to sheriff deputies, they searched Bicket's residence with a search warrant and found what appeared to be Marijuana growing in his yard and flower beds. He was free after posting a $1,000 bond.

Lamont Debre, 20, also of Morton, and three juveniles, one reported to be 14 and the other 15 years old, were apprehended in the act of smoking what was thought to be a Marijuana cigarette. According to sheriff records, the four were sitting around a fire in a grove of trees near Morton and passing the alleged Marijuana cigarette from mouth to mouth when they were apprehended.

Dewbre's bond was set at $1,000 and the juveniles were released in the custody of their parents.

Trustees of the Lubbock School District have voted to annex one square mile of the Frenship School District if the change is ordered by Lubbock County Commissioner's Court.

Howell Kilgore is requesting the annexation as he plans to develop the area north of 4th Street and west of Frankford Avenue. Preliminary plans call for 550 single homes, 1,140 town houses and 920 apartments in the area.

The Frenship school board are opposed to giving up part of this district. A new law signed last week by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, abolished the Lubbock County School Board and placed in the hands of the Commissioner's Court the jurisdiction over all petitions to enlarge, annex or otherwise change school district boundaries.

Governor Briscoe said the grant will assist South Plains CAA in operating a Part Day program for 310 children from economically disadvantaged families. Objectives of the program include providing educational experiences, counseling, social development experiences, nutritious meals and medical and dental examinations to participating children.

Grant processing for this type of grant for the state is performed by the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity, a division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Comment

Land Grab is Criticized!

by Mrs. Joe Mangum

It seems to me that it would be to the advantage of all patrons of the Frenship School District to contact the members of the Commissioner's Court and protest the annexation of this land by Lubbock School District.

As I understand it, the bonded debt adjustment would be a very small sum. But the loss in school taxes would be a much greater amount.

It doesn't seem fair that a land developer can request such an annexation and get it, thus gobbling up land for Lubbock School District and the smaller School Districts around the city losing by it. Who knows where the next developer will want to go to grab land for the Lubbock School District to benefit from?

Energy & The Future

If inflation is currently the nation's number-one domestic problem, the energy shortage is probably the number-one long-term domestic problem. And it seems clear the federal government must move on several fronts to insure adequate energy for the American people in years to come.

Since there's little time to lose (a start should have been made several years ago), the Nixon Administration, it seems obvious, should mount an all-out effort to produce within this country approximately ninety per cent of the nation's energy needs—because national security demands that we not become overly dependent on foreign oil.

To accomplish this more coal must be mined, and used. We have more than ample reserves. More oil and gas must be produced in this country, some perhaps on federal lands. More nuclear power must be developed. Conservation should be preached and practices, and engines burning less fuel and producing less pollution are desirable for our automobiles. These are general goals almost everyone agrees on; it is now up to the Nixon Administration to have them translated, by experts, who appreciate that the public interest and national security are our primary consideration, into a practical program. How the President meets this crying need will, at least in part, determine history's judgement on his second term.

To The Young

Pertinent advice for the young generation has been offered by Judge Phillip Gilliam of Denver, Colorado. Today's young men and women are more sensible and realistically oriented than were their counterparts just four or five years ago but the advice is still valid, and worth repeating each summer—as college and university students go home:

"Go home. Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork, rake the leaves, mow the lawn, wash the car, learn to cook, scrub the floors, repair the sink, build a boat, get a job, help the minister, priest or rabbi. Visit the sick, help the poor, study your lessons . . . and when you are through and not too tired read a good book.

Your parents don't owe you entertainment. Your city or village doesn't owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely. In plain simple words, grow up; quit being a cry baby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone; start acting like a man or lady. You have no right to expect your parents to buy you every whim or fancy just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, thinking and requests. In heaven's name, grow up and go home."

Nixon, Dean & Cox

The recent charge by John Dean, that he discussed Watergate many times with President Nixon, was not unexpected. After all, he had been the man designated to investigate White House involvement. And he is apparently hard put to explain his alleged investigative role in the affair.

Other White House aides have testified that Nixon became dissatisfied with Dean's investigation, which is said to have exonerated everyone in the White House. It seems obvious Dean wouldn't have been telling the President anything different. Aides have also testified the President sent Dean to Camp David for six days to write a report on the investigation. Dean returned with nothing in writing. He was then fired according to reports.

Splashing his charges against the President on front pages over the world, depressing the dollar, the stock market and causing widespread consternation and doubt was certainly a costly business. But it is inevitable as long as a Senate committee continues its circus—which Democrat special prosecutor Archibald Cox has asked postponed. Cox says the whole truth may never be discovered if the Senate show continues before the television cameras; he seeks a delay of three months to conduct the Justice Department's investigation.

The politicians, of course, know when they have a crowd-pleaser, a good gate attraction, and make the most of it, for better or worse. Since Democrats control Congress and its committees, it's inevitable politics is being played in these scandal hearings.

The Justice Department would not play that game. And since Democrats on the Hill overwhelmingly approved fellow-Democrat Cox only a few weeks ago, they should now comply with his request for the good of the nation and in the interest of obtaining the truth "from bottom to top," as Cox puts it. That kind of Justice Department determination can be relied upon; sensational, self-defense statements from a parade of involved witnesses before a Democratic committee, about a Republican President, cannot be equally relied upon.

Rushed Plantings Cause Weed Problems in West Texas Grain Sorghum Fields

In their haste to get grain sorghum planted after a late harvest and wet spring, many High Plains farmers skipped the pre-plant or pre-emergence applications of herbicides used for controlling weeds. These fields will now need careful attention, says a Lubbock-based agronomist.

Dr. James Supak, area specialist with the Texas Agricultura Extension Service, says that many area fields where no herbicides were used are becoming heavily infested with weeds. In some cases, herbicides were used but their effectiveness was limited by less than ideal soil and moisture conditions.

Under these circumstances, what is the farmer's best approach?

"Mechanical methods such as cultivation or knifing will help," says Supak, "but the weeds left in the drill row are the real problem.

"The weeds can be cleaned out by hoeing, but this method is costly. The next best method is with timely and precise post emergence applications of herbicides."

The agronomist explains that for small careless weeds (less than one and a half inches), atrazine (Aatres) is recommended. The rate necessary to obtain control depends on the soil type and is specified on the chemical label. Usually, the rate is about one and a half pounds for these small weeds.

For larger careless weeds and small annual grasses, a higher rate of atrazine (up to two and a half pounds per acre) plus one gallon per acre of a non-phyto-toxic crop oil is needed to get control.

"Even with this higher rate," Supak points out, "careless weeds more than four inches tall and even small annual grasses may not be controlled, especially if they are moisture-stressed at the time of application."

The area specialist says that atrazine is capable of killing weeds that germinate after it is applied. A timely rain or incorporation with a rolling cultivator within two days after application will increase the residual effectiveness of the herbicide.

Although atrazine generally provides effective post emergence weed control, the chemical has some limitations. First, it persists in the soil for long periods of time, and only sorghum and corn can be grown the following year. Second, atrazine should not be used on sandy or loamy sand soil because serious crop injury can result. And third, sorghum must be at least six inches tall before over-the-top atrazine treatments can be applied, Suak emphasizes.

For broadleaf weed control in areas where cotton and soybeans are not grown extensively, 2,4-D or Vanvel may be used. The 2,4-D is available in amine, acid and ester formulations. However, the amine formulation will drift less than the ester or acid. All formulations of 2,4-D may be used at one-half pound per acre to control broadleaf weeds less than two inches in sorghum. The sorghum should be at least six inches tall but not yet to the boot stage at the time of application. The agronomist warns that hybrids with wheatland parentage are susceptible to 2,4-D damage at all growth stages and should not be treated with this chemical.

Banvel, another effective herbicide for broadleaf weeds, should be applied at one-fourth pound per acre to sorghum that is three to twelve inches tall but not later than 25 days after crop emergence, Supak advises.

Since both Banvel and 2,4-D constitute a drift hazard to susceptible crops such as cotton, soybeans and vegetables, he says, precautions must be taken. While Banvel causes less injury to cotton than 2,4-D, soybeans appear to be more sensitive to it.

Spray drift, Supak explains, can be minimized by the use of high gallonage (10 to 20 gallons per acre) and low pressure (15 to 20 pounds per square inch) at a time when the wind is less than 10 mph.

Careless weeds that emerge after late irrigations and which are less than two inches tall can be controlled with post emergence directed sprays of Karmex he adds. Applications of two-tenths to four-tenths pound per acre should be made using 20 to 40 gallons of water containing one-half of one percent surfactant. Sorghum should be at least 15 inches tall. This is an inexpensive treatment which provides excellent weed control and leaves no residues which might damage next year's crops.

"Heavy infestations of grassy weeds such as Johnsongrass, nutgrass, and watergrass can not be controlled in sorghums with the available herbicides," Supak says. "However, lighter infestations of Johnsongrass and nutgrass can be spot treated with MSMA. Watergrass which emerges after a preplant application of propazine (Milogard) can be controlled by applying an additional two pounds of AAtrex after sorghum is six inches tall, and should be incorporated with rolling cultivator."

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

This is it! The All America game unfolds Saturday night in Jones Stadium amid all the splendor and pomp that only Lubbock can stage. It's truly a magnificent spectacle.

To go with it are two football squads that well could be the best that have ever been assembled. That includes the two abortive efforts to stage the game at Buffalo, N.Y., and Atlanta, Ga. This year's group is outstanding by any standards.

As usual, it probably will be a passing game to go with the punishing ground game that both teams manage to develop in a span that is all too short to develop a smooth attack.

Passing has been the key to other games, despite the fact that there have been tremendous runners. And this year's game has four of the finest aerialists around. I'd have to go with Terry Davis and Don Strock, both of the East, as having an edge.

You can argue quarterbacks all afternoon and not come out ahead. You can do the same with runners, although I think that Greg Pruitt could turn out to be the top rusher in the game.

Both teams have great runners, which is what you expect in this type of all-star game. In fact, there isn't a player on either team who doesn't come equipped with the credentials to prove that he has earned a place. Second raters just aren't considered.

I will be pulling for the Southwest Conference players to have outstanding games, especially Don Rives and Davis Corley of Texas Tech. They have a chance here to show why so many in these parts considered them among the best in the nation.

Probable, however, the defensive action will center on Rich Glover, the great Nebraska middle guard. Many consider Glover the finest defensive player in the U.S.

If you haven't bought a ticket for this extravaganza, it isn't too late. The game deserves our support, not only because it brings the city and Tech so much publicity and exposure, but also because the proceeds are used for worthwhile causes.

When you come right down to it, the All America game is a bargain. Only on nationwide TV would you see so many 1972 stars. And here you see them on the same field.

If I was sponsoring the game, which I'm not, I'd be less than excited when talk of moving the show somewhere else. It was tried elsewhere with less than enthusiastic success.

In Lubbock, and West Texas, it has found a home. With the kind of support it has gotten, and probably will continue to receive, it would be the height of stupidity to move it. This is "home" to the All-America game and this is where it will stay.

Despite normal June heat, the players have been working hard this week. Their biggest problem is getting their timing down on offense. In other games, this surprisingly hasn't been a factor. These are stars and they learn quick.

As for the heat, it really isn't that bad, especially for these youngsters. When you consider that gray-haired old men cut the grass and work in the sun, it can't be that impossible for these young men. Tough, yes, but not killing.

Anyway, to heck with everything else. This is the All America game! This is for Lubbock and West Texas. Support a worthwhile cause and get your full money's worth. You'll be glad you did.

There isn't a bad seat in the stadium and the action is exciting no matter where you sit. And, in years to come, you may be able to tell someone that you saw some particular play that was unusual or especially noteworthy. In short, Go To The Game!

Next week's scribbling in this place will relate once again to Saranac Lake, N.Y. For, shortly after this appears, the wife and I will head out for the Adirondacks and, hopefully, some good fishing this year. Last year, you may remember, we ran into Hurricane Agnes.

A friend tells me that the water is higher this year, thanks to the rains they have had. And his writing about catching a juicy, succulent Red Salmon was all I needed to hear. I'll let you know from the mountains what it's like.

Lake E.V. Spence Fishing Report

Fishermen are catching big striped bass and lots of keeper black bass at Lake Spence near Robert Lee. Stripers have been schooling in the main portion of the lake. The saltwater transplants have been taking up the feeding habits of their 'running mates' the white bass.

Lately, several times during each day they can be found thrashing around on the surface while feeding on shad. Some nice sized stripers have been taken with top water baits since the surface feeding began.

However, the majority of the stripers are still being caught with deep running trolling rigs.

Black bass action has also picked up at the Robert Lee Lake. Some nice fish are being taken by worm fishermen who work the ledges and dropoffs around Spence Lake.

"Texas" Musical Drama Opens Once Again

Prizes will be waiting for the 242 person who walks up the ramp to see the Gala Opening of the eighth season of the musical drama "Texas", because he or she will be the 500,000 person to attend this production. In seven years the show has drawn half a million people.

The Paul Green show this season will be the finish of many races against time, as it always is at the opening of a new season.

The directors, William and Margaret Moore, Royal Brantley and Neil Hess, have had to find time to prepare the members of the cast so that the opening comes at the peak of their powers when they are ready but not jaded or tired.

The costumers led by Charlotte Brantley have prepared a new look for the second act overture and renewed the other scenes. However, this took more time than usual because the new members of the cast happen to be very different sizes from the ones they are replacing.

Pat Jarrett and his sound and light crew have been working day and night for two months to install a new lighting system in the theater handicapped by the loss of time in long delays in the delivery of some of the key parts.

The construction crew building the new rest rooms near the theatre which the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is responsible for, is working against time to make up for weather caused delays at the start of the project.

The crew under technical director Nick Reid and stage manager Jim Meeks is repairing the make up for the ravages of this

After seven years of experience in making these races come out even, the staff will present the

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Bill Boykin

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Austin, Texas—Texas state government may see far-reaching new changes in budgeting techniques, hopefully to save money and curb a tax increase.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe expressed enthusiasm for the Georgia "zero base" budget methods inaugurated by Gov. Jimmy Carter two years ago.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and a delegation of Texas budget experts, including Sen. A.M. Aikin of Paris, visited Georgia last week for a briefing by Carter's aides.

When the officials returned, Briscoe said he expects to "be proceeding with implementing (changes) very shortly".

Hobby is chairman of the Legislative Budget Board, which ramrods the Texas budget process. Briscoe said he will instruct his own budget office to take the Georgia system as a model in preparing the executive department's spending recommendations.

Under the "zero base" system, all agencies are instructed to start "from scratch" in drawing up their appropriations requests rather than taking present levels of spending as their beginning point.

Governor Carter asked all Georgia agencies to detail how they would operate under existing revenues, a 15 per cent cut and a slight increase. He also insisted that they list their own priorities of programs as a guide to the legislature in directing economies.

Briscoe has emphasized repeatedly that he proposes to follow that procedure in weighing the value of existing educational programs, as he maps his recommendations for revision of the public school finance system.

Leaders Challenged—One of the top leaders in the National Democratic Party was in Austin last week. That's a unique political position for a head of the nation's largest corporation.

C. Peter McColough, chairman of the board of Xerox Corporation, told top business executives in the capital city that social problems in the United States have become problems of business and industry and challenged the Austin leaders to quit treating symptoms of problems instead of causes.

Businesses must become less resistant to change. American institutions must examine all fundamental values in the 1970s and establish a new framework to come to grips with new problems.

Education Study Ordered—The State Board of Education agreed to go along with Governor Briscoe's request for a complete restudy of the school system after some griping that the job already had been done.

Some board members claimed they had gone over the system with a fine-toothed comb since the initial Rodriguez case decision in 1971 faulting present finance methods for public education.

Briscoe, meanwhile, said he isn't asking for "just another study". What is needed, said Briscoe, is to determine the fair market value of each school district. A fundamental change, he insisted, is necessary in methods of evaluating wealth of a district. There will, pledged the Governor, be no sacred cows in his coming study.

"It would be unfair to commit the people of Texas to another spending increase measured by billions without taking every step to first correct the crumbling foundation of public school finance," said the Governor.

Energy Crisis Steps Ordered—State agencies have been called on by the Governor to cooperate in fuel supply and energy-saving plans, including travel curtailment and use of car pools.

Brig. Gen. James Rose was named to coordinate energy conservation efforts among state agencies.

At the same time, it was announced bids on the state's annual fuel contract will be three cents a gallon higher than at present for gasoline and four cents more for diesel fuel. The State Board of Control was able to contract for about the same amount of gasoline and slightly less diesel fuel, although consumption usually increases about 10 per cent per year.

The agencies, directed the Governor, must not only keep fuel consumption within given allotments but attempt to build up reserves due to uncertainty of future supplies.

Courts Speak—The Court of Criminal Appeals held the state's 1967 law against incitement to riot unconstitutional.

The State Supreme Court affirmed a Potter County commissioners' decision that a dead man's name can legally appear on an election ballot.

The High Court ordered release on bond of a Carrollton lawyer pending a June 20 hearing on a contempt of court order in which a Wichita Falls judge accused the attorney of unprofessional conduct following a divorce action.

Insurance Rates Reduces—More than half Texas' fire, extended coverage and homeowners insurance companies are now selling at reduced rates, according to Insurance Board Chairman Christie.

Susan Lamb-Larry Davidson Vows Exchanged Recently

Miss Bobbie Susan Lamb became the bride of Larry Leon Davidson at 8:00 p.m., Saturday, June 2, in the Monterey Baptist Church of Lubbock. Robby Dee Rhodes, assistant principal of Lubbock Christian High School, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Lamb of Lubbock, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Whitlock of Ropes. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon F. Davidson of Lubbock.

Three seven branch candelabras featuring long white tapers entwined with greenery and a white kneeling bench flanked the altar. Special pews were designated by white satin bows. Traditional wedding music was presented by Miss Marcheta Billips, organist, and Melvin Billups, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a formal length empire-style gown of white dotted swiss organza, over peau de soie. Venise lace accented the square neckline, long sleeves and the full cathedral length train of the bridal gown. Her waist length veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of Venise lace accented with seed pearls. Completing the brides ensemble was a colonial bouquet of blue and white carnations and babies breath. Nestled amid the bridal bouquet was a pair of U.S. Air Force Wings, presented to the bride by her uncle, and namesake, M/Sgt. Bobby J. Whitlock, of Abilene. For something old the bride wore a pair of heirloom earrings belonging to her great grandmother, the late Mrs. John R. Popejoy. For something borrowed the bride selected an heirloom necklace belonging to her great-aunt, Mrs. John Bayne, of Big Spring.

Mrs. Peter Graves of Lubbock, sister of the bride was Bridesmatron, Matron of Honor was Mrs. Michael Cox of Ft. Worth. Bridesmaid was Miss Martha Cummins of Odessa. Miss Rae Monda Rhodes of Lubbock was flower girl, the tapers were lighted by Misses Lori & Cindy Whitlock of Abilene, and Miss Gail Davidson of Lubbock. The guests were registered by Miss Debra Sue Whitlock of Abilene. The female attendants were all attired in blue dotted swiss, floor length, princess style gowns. Fashioned with short puffed sleeves and roll collars accented with lace. Short white gloves, white shoes, and broad brim hats completed their ensembles. They each carried a single long stem white carnation, with blue satin streamers.

Michael Cox of Ft. Worth served as best man and groomsmen were Peter Graves and Wayne Davidson of Lubbock. Paul Mengwasser of Snyder was ringbearer. Ushers were Jobby J. Whitlock, of Abilene, Don R. Whitlock, John Charles Hart and Rex Davidson all of Lubbock.

The reception followed for the 95 guests in Fellowship Hall of the church. Two tables were featured, one covered with white lace over satin, one covered with blue lace over satin. The three tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Jack Wilks of Lubbock; the chocolate grooms cake was served by Miss Linda Johnson of Lubbock. Serving coffee and punch were Mrs. Don R. Whitlock of Lubbock, and Mrs. Bobby J. Whitlock of Abilene, aunts of the bride. Assisting with the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wilson and Jack Wilks of Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson will reside at 2910-B 45th Street in Lubbock. Mrs. Davidson is a 1973 graduate of Lubbock Christian High School in Lubbock and is employed at Medical Arts Clinic, by Dr. C.L. Montgomery.

FISH FACTS AND FANCIES

"Truth is stranger than fishin,'" the learned angler Izaak Walton once punned.

Truth is certainly stranger than fiction when it comes to fishing. While you may scoff at "fish stories," some of the actual facts about the world of marlin, minnow and muskellunge are more amazing than any fisherman's yarn.

Alfred Dean doubtless "reeled" when he saw what was at the end of his line one day in 1959 at Ceduna, South Australia: a white shark weighing 2,664 pounds, on record as the biggest fish ever caught with a rod. Dean was just scratching the piscatorial surface, however—some whale sharks are said to weigh over 130,000 pounds.

The largest fresh-water fish, the giant Russian sturgeon found in the Volga River, has weighed in at as much as 3,221 pounds and measured up to 26 feet in length.

Some fish, not many, live long enough to earn Social Security benefits. European pikes are no pikers when it comes to longevity: some grow to an age of 50 to 70 years. An 81-inch long, 215 pound sturgeon caught some years ago in the Lake of the Woods, Ontario, Canada, was believed to be 150 years old!

Some communities that are dependent on fish for their diet or commerce hold special ceremonies. Many western Europeans spit on the hook to insure a catch. In Alaska, the first fish of the season is especially honored, and in France, the coastal clergymen bless the sea. Scientists also have a special interest in fish.

Under a contract from Southern California Edison to assess the impact on marine life of warm water and any accompanying effluents being pumped into the sea from a shoreside steam generating plant, Lockheed environmental survey teams have found that counting fish noses is not always the best indicator. This is because many kinds of species die off, but the harder ones increase in numbers due to greater nutrients and living space available to them.

Therefore, to test the waters and monitor the species distribution, there are marine ecologists at Lockheed's Ocean Laboratory who have mounted an all-out effort to enumerate, identify and classify marine life in an area covering nearly a square mile of ocean, surf and beach. They go out for 24 hours at a time to measure the temperature and outgoing tides. Their ships troll for fish, their scuba divers pick invertebrates off the ocean floor, their crews dredge up liters of ocean bottom sediment populated by as many as 150 different species and tour acres of beach to see what lives in the sand.

The numbers and classifications of these species are then compared on a regular basis with the water temperatures to see how marine life is doing.

Fish are not only a source of sport and scientific interest, but of mystical meanings sometimes attached to the denizens of the deep. The fish early became a Christian symbol: Christ fed the multitude with five loaves and two fishes, and He made His disciples "fishers of men." In parts of India, the belief persists that fish are the favorite food of ghosts. In the Carribean the notion still flourishes that men who live on fish will never grow old, because fish are always young. But try to tell that to the European pike, or that Lake of the Woods sturgeon who hit the 150-year-old mark with little urgin'.

Nutritive Value of "Organically Grown" Foods: There is no proved, substantiated basis for claiming that plants grown with only organic fertilizer have a greater nutrient content than those grown up conventional methods. The type of fertilizer used, whether organic or inorganic, is not a determining factor in the nutritive value of the plant.

The nutrient content of a plant is based on its genetic nature. The genes in a carrot cause it to develop a relatively large amount of vitamin A value, just as the genes in an orange are responsible for its high ascorbic acid content. Climate (including the amount of light), together with the kind and amount of nutrient material available to the plant for growth, and the stage of maturity at harvest are the other chief factors involved.

Nutrient material must be in the inorganic form to be absorbed by the plant. This means that organic fertilizer must be broken down into its inorganic components before the elements are absorbed. Also, most of the nutrients present, except for the mineral elements, are synthesized in the plant rather than being absorbed from the soil in the preformed state.

Maintaining or preserving the nutritive value of fresh vegetables and fruits from the time they are harvested until they are marketed and then until they are consumed requires great care. Maintaining "freshness" is the key to maintaining nutritive value. But maintaining freshness, including the desirable flavor which it connotes, has nothing to do with the manner in which the vegetables or fruits are fertilized and grown. Freshness depends on the manner and the time of harvesting, control of such factors as temperature and humidity, packaging, speed of transportation, and thereafter the handling at the wholesale and retail levels and in the home.

The nutritive superiority of most whole grains over their more refined counterparts, i.e., whole wheat flour vs. white flour, is well recognized. This superiority, however, is in no way related to the type of fertilizer used or the use of pesticides or additives. The process of refining removes some of the nutrients in varying degrees, especially the B vitamins, iron, and trace minerals. Often products are "enriched" by adding certain purified B vitamins and iron. This is not done, however, for the trace minerals and vitamin E lost in refining.

Increased use of cereals in the whole grain form is commendable. It can be promoted on the basis of increased nutritive value but not as related to fertilizer and processing methods.
