

George Washington's Soldiers Remembered On Memorial Day

This year, on the day when the American people give thought to those who gave their lives for the preservation of the nation, it is especially appropriate to remember the patriots who died during the Revolution while battling with General Washington for the independence of the American people. In no way could Memorial day be better observed than in thus devoting it to Washington's honor, during this year when we celebrate the 200th anniversary of his birth, and nothing would be more in Washington's own spirit than this tribute to those loyal Americans who gave their lives to the cause for which he fought.

This rite is all the more necessary, according to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, because of the curious historical fact that no accurate record was ever made, either during the Revolution, or after it, of the patriots who died in action, in their country's struggle for Independence. Washington's hurriedly gathered and untrained army had no facilities for the "paper work" that has become an elaborate feature of modern military science.

For example, no count of American dead has come down to us from even so important an engagement as the action at Princeton, which enabled Washington to clear the British out of New Jersey. The best authority on the subject contents himself with reporting the British loss as more than one hundred, and the American loss "much less."

One historic fact does sharply stand out, however, as to patriot losses in battle. That is, where Washington himself reports them, they are accurate enough, and their smallness indicates with what enmity of men he accomplished his epoch-making results. For example, he himself records that in the siege of Yorktown, the action that decided the Revolution, there were but twenty-three of his officers and men killed. At King's Mountain, another pivotal engagement, the British loss was severe, but again the patriots lost but few. The battle of Trenton, to fight which Washington made his famous crossing of the Delaware, and which saved the patriot cause from going on the rocks of public apathy, was bought at the cheapest price of all. Two patriot soldiers were killed, and three officers wounded—one of those was Lieutenant James Monroe, afterwards President of the United States.

The best count now possible by military experts gives Washington a total enlisted military force of 39,500, but he never had these gathered together at any one time, owing to lapses and over-lappings of enlistments, and at critical times his forces sank to 30,000. The most accurate count possible today, covering the number of patriot actually shot and killed in battle, fixes their number at 4,044.

Again the Revolutionary army could make no effort to mark the burial places of the dead, as is the modern military practice, and the sacred places where these heroes lie will never be known. Almost the only known graves of Revolutionary soldiers are those who survived the war and were buried in private burial grounds.

Nothing remains, therefore, of those who gave their lives in the making of the United States except the memory of their heroism. It is the greater reason why on Memorial Day, in this year of tribute to George Washington, the United States should give a thought to these self-giving men who died that their country might live.

For Tax Assessor

R. C. POTEET

Mr. Poteet, believes that the property of the County should be at the Minimum Valuation through a full and complete assessment.

That when the Commissioners Court meet to make out their budget, they should have before them the Tax rolls covering every dollars worth of taxable property in the County, so far as is possible.

This will enable them to raise the money for the required budget and still place the minimum valuation on property. Thus distributing the Tax burden EQUITABLY.

Mr. Poteet promises if elected to use the power and influence of the Tax Assessors office to this end.

Supect Held In Robbery

Daylight robbery of a Wilson dry-goods store was attributed to a paroled convict arrested early Sunday night southeast of Lubbock by Tom Abel, Slaton chief of police, and R. L. Wickler, deputy sheriff of Slaton.

The man had been paroled to Sheriff Gus White of Lamesa from the state penitentiary, where sentence was to end June 1, according to Police Chief Abel. He was driving an automobile stolen at Lamesa when captured, officers said.

Race Precedes Chase

A chase in which the suspect was said to have driven nearly 60 miles an hour with one tire flat, preceded his arrest. Merchandise, shirts and other apparel, identified as stolen about 4 p. m. Sunday from the Wilson store, was found in the automobile. The suspect was reported to have said he had a rifle in the automobile. No weapon was found.

Notified from Wilson of the burglary, the Slaton peace officers started toward Lubbock. A tire on the suspect's machine blew out about 21 miles south of Wilson, he later said, and he continued to drive. The officers sighted him in the vicinity of The Flats, negro quarter in Lubbock.

They caught him between Burrus and Posey communities, between Lubbock and Slaton. The engine of his car was so heated from fast driving on a rim that it was necessary to push it to Slaton.

The accused man, who has a wife and two children living in an unidentified nearby county, indicated to authorities that he had no desire to continue living, they said. They reported he said, in city hall at here, that he had a notion to jump through a window so he would be shot.

Nature of the charge on which he was sent to the Texas penitentiary was not learned. The suspect is in jail here.

The bride is a graduate of Slaton high school, and attended Texas Technological College for three years, after which she was employed as stenographer and book-keeper in the Williams Auto Supply Company at Lubbock. The groom is employed at the Fred Harvey House at Winslow.

TRADING AT HOME

The Slatonite has been fighting strenuously for Slaton, and for Slaton merchants, to the end that, by looking the facts squarely in the face, we might get together and stem the tide of Slaton people going elsewhere to do their merchandising.

The plain, unanswerable fact is that those who are killing Slaton are not Slaton purchasers but Slaton merchants.

Slaton purchasers resent the accusation that they are not loyal to their own home town.

Slaton has merchants who regularly patronize Lubbock retail stores.

It has been said that Slaton made a big mistake in voting for paved roads—building a paved highway from Slaton to Lubbock.

coming to Slaton to do their trading. Money does not talk; it screams; that's why Uncle Sam put an eagle on the dollar!

Slaton merchants will not advertise. When a merchant does not advertise, the feeling gradually grows upon the community that he really has nothing for sale that he considers worth making known to the community.

Slaton people are all right—as good people as can be found on earth. Their hearts are in the right place.

Sometimes people ask us if we know why it is that a Company owning a grocery store in Lubbock and another in Slaton charge Lubbock people one price and Slaton people a higher price for the same class of merchandise.

Purchasers, especially those who spend only their cash and keep their credit, are independent. In spite of all you, or anyone else can do, those people are going to trade where they come nearest getting their money's worth.

Some merchants make the mistake of going on the assumption that their customers and potential customers are not "merchandise wise."

The difference between prosperity and hard times in Slaton is that big portion of Slaton trade that goes out of Slaton. If all, or substantially all, of Slaton money was spent in Slaton, then Slaton merchants would all be doing a nice business and would be making money.

It all comes down to a proposition of competition. The plain fact is that Slaton merchants are not competing. They know that fact, but their customers discovered it a long time before they did.

When it is discovered that a Slaton merchant is meeting competition, right then Slaton people will make a beaten path to his store.

We need cooperation—buying cooperation—among our merchants. One purchasing agent in each line, receiving each merchant's requisitions, then going into the wholesale market and buying in large quantities, would effect a saving that would go far toward making competition with Lubbock possible.

THIS TOPSY TURVY WORLD

"When people get topsy turvy the world seems that way."

Have faith in Slaton! No, dear, not every beautiful house houses a beautiful home!

Having proved that silence doesn't pay why not try advertising?

This depression has lasted almost long enough to acquire the aspect of normalcy.

For our part we would be willing just to ignore this depression if it would do as much for us.

And when we reach the bottom of this depression we hope to find a well inflated balloon down there.

We see no reason why a hypnotist should not do a thriving business times like these. He could make us forget everything.

The modern flapper may not be an adept at making rolls, but she is no piker when it comes to spending one.

Prohibition has brought about a cursory situation. Liquor curses people; Pros curse liquor, the Wets curse the Pros, and the Pros curse the Wets.

The country is constitutionally dry; Congress is politically dry; the people grow more and more factually wet.

The chief craving that some folks seem to have for liberty is liberty to compel their neighbors to do as they want them to.

The real prohibition issue is not whether people shall or shall not have liquor, but whether they shall have it legally or illegally. And it is perfectly obvious that they want it and have it.

If you have a friend and want to there was one-half as much cooperation and serious, business like effort put forth to put and keep Slaton on the commercial map as there is in trying to pass the buck and in "cussin'" each other, we would all be better off.

Persistent and painstaking effort can accomplish wonders. It is entirely possible for Slaton merchants to get together and start a campaign that in a few years would make Slaton the shopping center of the South Plains. It would be a fine campaign to get underway, and to keep hammering away at it. Nothing but good could possibly come from such a campaign.

"SLATON—SHOPPING CENTER OF THE SOUTH PLAINS!" It sounds good. The South Plains will ten years from now have a shopping center. Is there any good reason why Slaton should not be that shopping center? Is there any harm done in making the effort and striving to attain that goal? Unless something is attempted nothing will be accomplished. The goal will not be realized unless a start is made to attain it.

It is so easy to get into a rut, and Slaton has done nothing else but. Let us pull out of it. Instead of continually creating problems for ourselves, let us begin solving the problems we already have. Let us start on the shopping problem. Let us determine that five years hence Slaton will in truth be THE SHOPPING CENTER OF THE SOUTH PLAINS!

Have faith in Slaton!

The following citations from pages 317 and 359 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also included: "The individuality of man is no less tangible because it is spiritual and because his life is not at the mercy of matter. . . . The evidence of the existence of Spirit, Soul, is palpable only to spiritual sense, and is not apparent to the material senses, which recognize only that which is the opposite of Spirit."

Like Good Health--- Beyond Price

Dependable Gas Service, like good health, is seldom considered while we enjoy it, but is appreciated keenly after it disappears.

Your gas service is regarded as a good gas service only if it meets your needs 365 days in the year, every minute of the warmest day of Summer or the coldest day in Winter.

Day and night, the members of the West Texas Gas Company work diligently at their task to insure such a service.

Posey Paragraphs

Some folks seem to labor under the impression that this is an extremely dry country, and at times it seems almost that way, but reading the gauge on Tuesday morning we concluded that is very wet (sometimes). That portion north of town received more than three inches of rainfall Monday nite. As it happened it was not needed at this time and did considerable damage to growing crops. Any number of fields will have to be replanted. In some instances hail did damage also. Even as we are writing this it appears as if the god of rain has taken control and is exercising his authority.

Only the NEW NuGRAPE Has Their Delicious Flavor

You'll admit there is a goodness in the flavor of grapes—and that's why the New NuGrape is different from all artificial flavors—different as gold and brass.

In a certain valley, made rich and productive by reason of the moisture, in season, from surrounding hills—a famous brand of grapes is raised. The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. And it has been our obligation to YOU, to transport that natural delicacy of flavor—to your home—to places where soft drinks are sold.

The New NuGrape — made exclusively with Welch's Grape Juice — costs no more than any artificial grape substitute. It's now on sale everywhere for 5¢.
