Unemployment Hits Harder Among Blacks, Latinos

The ax fell without sound or shadow: Tatiana Gallego was suddenly called into human resources and laid off from her job as an admissions counselor for a fashion college.

"The way people tried to explain it to me was, I was the last one hired so I was the first one out," said Gallego, 25, who had worked there for 17 months.

Last hired, first fired: This generations-old cliché rings bitterly true for millions of Latinos and blacks who are losing jobs at a faster rate than the general population during this punishing recession.

Much of the disparity is due to a concentration of Latinos and blacks in construction, blue-collar or service-industry jobs that have been decimated by the economic meltdown. And black unemployment has been about double the rate for whites since the government began tracking those categories in the early 1970s.

But this recession is cutting a swath through the professional classes as well, which can be devastating to people who recently arrived here.

Since the recession began in December 2007, Latino unemployment has risen 4.7 percentage points, to 10.9 percent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Black unemployment has risen 4.5 points, to 13.4 percent. White unemployment has risen 2.9 points, to 7.3 percent.

Gallego, whose parents were born in Colombia, graduated from the University of Rhode Island. Her mother is self-employed, and her stepfather works in construction.

She was stunned when she was told to pack up and leave by the end of the day because enrollment was down at her New York City school. She said she had recently received a positive performance review, and her bosses were planning to send her to a conference.

"Maybe I just don't know that much about the business world, because I felt like I did more, I went above and beyond more than other people in my office did," she said.

William Darity, a professor of economics and African-American studies at Duke University, said that "blacks and Latinos are relative latecomers to the professional world — so they are necessarily the most vulnerable."

"We don't have those older roots to anchor us in the professional world," Darity said. "We don't have the same nexus of contacts, the same kind of seniority."

There are no recent government statistics that measure jobs lost by race and income, but Darity and others believe that professional Latinos and blacks are more likely to lose their jobs in the recession.

"Many times blacks and Latinos are the last to be hired, so naturally they are first to be fired," said Jerry Medley, who has been in the executive search business for 30 years.

"Not saying that it's racism," Medley said, "but if a manager

West Coast Blues Hall Of Fame Inducts Lubbock Musician

Oakland, California — On Sunday, March 29, 2009, Alvin "Skeeter" Draper was inducted into the West Coast Blues Hall of Fame. He was presented by Ronnie K. Stuart, Executive Director of the Bay Area Blues Society.

Alvin started playing at an early age. His father, Richard Draper, and his grandfather were known as guitar playing blues men. Some of the well known musicians they played with were Lighting Hopkins, Sonny Boy Williams, Little Walter, T-Bone Walker, Gate-Mouth Brown, the Chi-Lites and John Lee Hooker.

Alvin attended Dunbar High School in Lubbock. As a young man, he formed his own band in Lubbock and played all over the Panhandle of Texas. His favorite place to play was the Playhouse. Following in his father and grandfather's footsteps, he played with Little Willie Brown, T-Bone Walker, Gate-Mouth Brown, and the Chi-Lites. Alvin's idols included Jimmy Reed, Freddie King, B. B. King, and James Brown.

After moving to California, Alvin formed another band. His inspiration comes from his wife, Edith, who is also his greatest supporter.

Recently, Mrs. Mary Jo Wilson of Lubbock has the honor and pleasure of playing with "Skeeter" and his band while visiting in San Jose, California for her brother's 40th wedding anniversary. Alvin is presently in the studio working on a new CD that will soon be released.

The West Coast Blues Hall of Fame Awards Ceremony was held at the Hilton Oakland Airport Grand Ballroom in Oakland.

FROM THE DESK OF PARSON D. A. SMITH

"Mexico A Failed State"

Will Mexico become a failed state? Some argue Mexico will cave under the pressure of drug cartels. More than 6,000 people died in drug-related violence last year alone.

Reports claim Mexican businessmen are relocating their families to Houston and other cities because they are terrified that family members would be abducted by kidnappers.

These affluent and middle-class Mexicans fleeing comfortable lives in Mexico are moving to Houston and other major cities in Texas. The lawlessness of the drug cartels of Mexico leave these people no choice but to move from their beloved country.

Many Mexican in border town wracked by violence are crossing international bridges and requesting asylum one report states. Spokesperson for U. S. Customs and Border Protection in El Paso, asylum claims by Mexican citizens have increased from 12 in fiscal year 2005 to 80 last year.

The outreach coordination for the Paso Del Norte Civil Rights Project in El Paso noted: "We're seeing complete families fleeing from our sister city Juarez. They are middle-class business people... Their loved ones are being kidnapped, and they are asking extremely high amounts of money."

Ricardo Ainslie, a professor at the University of Austin, according to the Houston Chronicle has produced a documentary on Mexico's kidnapping industry. He said the kidnapping have motivated many of the nation's leading professionals to leave. "In Mexico, there is a real anxiety about it because it's a huge brain drain. The money and talent is leaving Mexico in huge numbers to San Diego, San Antonio and Austin," Ainslie said.

This should be a great concern for the people of Lubbock. We live in a major metropolitan city that is less than 400 miles from where major drug wars are being fought. This drug war has no borders. This drug war is very serious for Mexico's drug cartels bring in billions (not millions) of dollars more than the government of Mexico spends to defeat them. It is known that an untold number of crooked politicians, judges, prison guards and police officers are on the payroll of drug cartels.

I read an interesting note that said "over the past year, Mexico's top organized crime prosecutor has been arrested for receiving cartel cash, as was the director of Interpol in Mexico. The cartels even managed to slip a mole inside the United States Embassy. Those in important positions who have resisted taking cartel money are often shot to death, a powerful incentive to others who might be wavering."

Marc Lacey, a columnist for the New York Times wrote this past week: The nation (Mexico) has launched a war, but it cannot fully rely on the very institutions: the police, customs, the courts, the prisons, even the relatively clean army-most need to carry it out."

This war against a "failed State" has been launched by Mexico. According to Lacey, Mexico is using American helicopters and aircraft to pursue drug traffickers and is awaiting a fleet of American helicopters and aircraft as part of millions of dollars in aid initiated by President George W. Bush and expanded in recent days by President Obama.

Lacey noted "with the prospect of a quick victory increasingly elusive, a rising chorus of voices on both sides of the border is questioning the cost and fallout of the assault on the cartels.

Mexicans, aghast at the rising body count, the mutilated corpses on their streets and the swagger of the drug chieftains, wonder if they are paying too high a price in pursuing organized crime groups that have operated for generations on their soil.

American, including border state governors and military analysts in Washington, has

We Thank God for Jesus

"America's Sins Are Upon Her"

Written by Evangelist Billy "B.J." Morrison, III - Your brother in Christ Jesus always.

Jeremiah 8:7-8a - The Lord said, yes, the stork in heaven knows her appointed times; and the turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord. How do you say, we are wise. And the law of the Lord is with us?

America was founded on the word of God; it was her guidelines. But then she wanted her rights, like Adam in the garden; wanted to use his own mind!!!

John 8:31-32 - Jesus said, if you continue in My words, then you are My disciples indeed, and you shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free.

 MANKIND CAN ONLY BE FREE IN JESUS CHRIST!!!! ******

When the churches marched against the law, and the policemen. The started much of the troubles that are in this troubled land!!!

1 Peter 2:13-16 - Submit yourself to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake; whether it be to the King (President), as supreme; or unto governors, unto them that are sent by him for punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well, for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

 BLESSED ARE THE

PEACEMAKERS; CURSED ARE THE TROUBLEMAKERS!!!! ****

When the children watched the Adults, the police they didn't obey. The children are their MY RIGHTS, and the blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

The Christians said, I will give service to free my fellow man. But God never gave the Order. He said, Preach Salvation to your fellow man!!!

Matthew 28:19 - Jesus said, go you therefore, and Teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and Holy Ghost.

Galatians 5:7-8 - Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man sow (plant) that shall he also reap (harvest). For He that sow to his flesh shall reap corruption, but he that sows to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. But don't want God in her Homes, Churches, Courts, and Hearts!!!

 YES, AMERICA DID ROB GOD!!!! ******

When America got Proud, she kicked Prayer out of her Churches and Schools. Now she is Trouble in every way one can imagine: HER LEADERS PLAYED THE FOOL!!!

Romans 1:18, 21-22 - For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of who hold the truth (Christians) in unrighteousness. Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. Profess themselves to be wise, they (Christians) became fools.

America has school killing, unemployment, wild fires, flood, terrorist killing, disasters of all kind. Now you can hear America crying out to GOD ALL THE TIMES!!!

Isaiah 57:20-21 - The wicked are like the troubles sea. When it cannot rest, who's waters cast mire and dirt. There is no Peace, said my God, to the wicked.

America is raising up a nation full of liars and killers, like ADAM AND CAIN. They commit the crime: THEN PLAY CRAZY, SAYING WE'RE INSANE!!!

Deuteronomy 28:15a-16-20 - The Lord said, it shall come to pass, if you not listen unto the voice of the Lord, your God, cursed shall be in the city, and cursed shall you be in the field.

Cursed shall be your basket in your store. Cursed shall be the fruit of your body, and the fruit of your land, the increase of your kine (Cattle), and the flock

It only matters how I live:
Obedient to God.*

Thought For The Week: "The proof of our love for God is our obedience to the commands of God."

If you are looking for a Church Home, come and worship with us at the St. Matthew Baptist Church. You will be glad you chose to do so. It is just great when all of God's people get together. Shall we see you on Sunday morning? If you have any questions, please give Pastor Canady at 744-2445.

Let us not forget those who are on the shut in list this week. It could be you or I next week. But thank God, he is still standing for all of us. There is no doubt about it, God is able. Your prayers are very important. If you get a chance, call them.

Outreach Prayer Breakfast

The members and friends of the Outreach Prayer Breakfast are saying: "Hold on to your faith in suffering." Job 2:1-10.

What do you do when suffering comes knocking on your door? Do you hold on to your faith or let go in defeat?

Job was a righteous man who loved and honored the Lord, he was rich and blessed with many children, cattle, and servants.

God permitted Satan to attack Job and within one day, He lost his children, herd, and most of all, his servants. Satan later attacked Job's health, but God had warned Satan to spare Job's life. Job must have been in terrible pain, inside and out, to have experienced so many losses so quickly. We all, at one point, may experience some form of pain, but we are still expected to hold on to our faith in God.

The god of Satan is to get us to the question God's ability to deliver us, because this will open the door to doubt or losing our faith in God.

We should never give up on God, because he never gives up on us although Job's friends tried to diagnose the reasons behind his suffering. Only God can give us true answers to life's trials. Friends and family may serve as our support system to help us in tough times, but we must remember to seek God first for trials or not. We must hold Job's confidence that God is still with us and will bring us out as pure Gold.

Who do you turn to when trials come your way?? Do you seek God first or friends and family.

For all of you who are hurting, seek God's face and turn from all evil and He will heal. II

Chronicles 7:14.

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast will meet Saturday morning, April 4, 2009, at 9:00 a. m. in the home of Sister Elnora Jones.

We are praying that you can meet with us! Meanwhile, thanks for reading, Saints! We're Praying For You!

The Season of Lent

Lent is a forty-day season of preparation for the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ on Easter Sunday. The season begins on Ash Wednesday, when pastors mark the foreheads of Christians with ashes as a reminder that we are created from dust and to dust we shall return.

During Lent we follow Jesus from his adult ministry through his suffering during Holy Week to his crucifixion and death on Good Friday. And we read the Psalms that foretold what happened during that week.

Holy Week begins with Palm Sunday, also called the Sunday of the Passion, and continues through Holy Thursday (when Holy Communion was instituted at the Last Supper) and Good Friday, when Jesus was tried, crucified, and buried.

Because the Last Supper was celebrated during the Feast of the Passover, which is calculated on the phases of the moon, Easter is called a movable feast. Lent is scheduled backwards from Easter. Easter falls on the first Sunday after the full moon after the spring equinox. The forty days of fasting and penitence during Lent do not include Sundays. Christians always celebrate Sunday as the day Jesus rose from the dead, so it is never a day of fasting.

Hope you enjoyed this.

Embracing the Lean Times

But blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in Him." - Jeremiah 17:7 Have you ever considered at what point a test becomes so difficult that you decide you can no longer trust in God and you must take over to solve the problem? The prophet Jeremiah describes a situation in which the temptation to solve a financial problem can become so great that we trust in man's way to solve it.

This is what the Lord says: "Cursed is the one who trusts in man, who depends on flesh for his strength and whose heart turns away from the Lord. He will be like a bush in the wastelands; he will not see prosperity when it comes. He will dwell in the parched places of the desert, in a salt land where no one lives. But blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in Him. He will be like a tree planted by the water that sends out its roots by the stream. It does not fear when heat comes; its leaves are always green. It has no worries in a year of drought and never fails to bear fruit" (Jeremiah 17:5-8).

Historian Helped Blaze a Civil Rights Path

John Hope Franklin

John Hope Franklin, one of the most prolific and well-respected chroniclers of America's torturous racial odyssey, died of congestive heart failure Wednesday, March 25, 2009 at the age of 94 in a Durham, N.C., hospital.

It was more than Franklin's voluminous writings that cemented his reputation among academics, politicians and civil rights figures as an inestimable historian. It was the reality that Franklin, himself a black man, had seen racial horrors up close and thus was able to give his academic work a stinging ballast. Franklin was a young boy when his family lost everything in the Tulsa race riot of 1921. The violence was precipitated by reports that a black youth assaulted a white teenage girl in a downtown elevator. In the end more than 40 people died, mostly blacks, although some reports put the death total much higher.

Franklin was among the first black scholars to earn prominent posts at America's top - and predominantly white - universities. His research and his personal success helped pave the way both for other blacks and for the field of black studies, which began to blossom on American campuses in the '60s.

In time, a second generation of eminent black scholars - Harvard's Henry Louis Gates Jr., Georgetown's Michael Eric Dyson and Princeton's Cornel West - would follow Franklin to the heights of America's most illustrious schools.

He will be missed!

THINK ABOUT IT

We Must Help Our Selves!!!

by Edsile Richardson

For too long, we have sat around and waited for someone else to do for us what we should and must do for our selves. We must first learn to love, trust, and respect each other. We need to go back to 'I am my brother's keeper, love thy neighbor as thy self. For too long, we have had the attitude of I have mine, and the heck with you as the old wives tale of together we stand, and divided we fall. It still holds true today as we must learn to pool our resources, work together, give up the pettiness, jealousy, envy, and work with and help each other. That's how we can make it as a people. We look at others from foreign countries come to this country United States of American and watch them buy up our community. We fuss, cuss, moan, groan, about how they over charge us, rip us off. They just rob us. It's a shame. Something should be done about it! It's a shame how they come over here come to our neighborhood and rob us. Think about it, we have been here all the time and let it happen when we could have had the businesses all the time. We only have ourselves to blame. The remarkable thing about the situation is many of the people from other countries come to this country on a rickety boat, wearing their wardrobe on their backs, living in a one room shack, substandard over crowded taking, jobs we refuse to work. They pool their resources and buy up our communities. Then we complain.

When you look at it, the largest financial institution in the Black community is the Church which could pool their resources. Along with some of clubs and organizations, they could buy up all of the abandoned buildings and collectively work with those people who

Study: Payday Loan Stores Too Prevalent in Black Community

Date: Monday, March 30, 2009

By: Denise Stewart, BlackAmericaWeb.com

Payday loan shops in California are eight times as likely to be located in communities where a majority of black and brown people live, often luring them into a cycle of debt, according to a study released Thursday by the Center for Responsible Lending, a non-profit and nonpartisan advocacy organization.

"They're all over the place in urban centers. It's like an oasis," said Harold Dees, a 57-year-old general manager for a social service agency in Oakland, California. "You need money, and there they are."

Back in the fall, Dees borrowed $255 with an interest fee of $45 for two weeks. But that was the beginning of a hole that got bigger and bigger, Dees told BlackAmericaWeb.com.

Over six months, he paid about $540 in interest on a loan of $255.

Once you borrow the money, unless something happens to change your finances, you stay in the hole, he said. "You go in and pay off one loan for $300, but you need another loan to make the ends meet."

According to the CRL: - Black and Latino communities in California lose $247 million in wealth annually to service payday loans.

- Even after controlling for income and a variety of other factors, payday lenders are 2.4 times more concentrated in African-American and Latino communities.

- Racial and ethnic composition of a neighborhood is the primary predictor of payday lending locations. This differs with an analysis of mainstream financial institutions such as banks, where deciding factors for locations are not tied to race or ethnicity.

In addition to work for a social service agency, Dees is a handyman. He was able to get enough money a few weeks ago to pay off the loan without having to get another one.

Dees' story is like thousands of others in California and other parts of the country, according to CRL. Several states are considering regulating payday loans, while others in recent years have put stiffer regulations in place.

In California, CRL representatives say they want to convince lawmakers to put a cap on interest payments for the loans because of the devastating drain on the finances of blacks and Latinos who often live in urban areas.

"Once you pay off the loan, there isn't enough money to pay your other bills," said Leslie Parish, one of the co-authors of the CRL study. The average payday loan lender in California pays 459 percent interest on a typical loan, she said. And most of the loans are made because a borrower couldn't pay the first loan back.

Generally, payday loans are small and are secured by a personal check, usually for two weeks. The loans are appeal to borrowers because they are advertised as a quick and easy way to deal with unexpected expenses, Parish said.

"And many of the people we talked with obtained a payday loan simply because it was convenient, and they could walk in and get one," she said.

People who get payday loans have checking accounts, and they have a stream of income to repay the loan. That means they have access to banks, Parish said. They opt for payday loans possibly because banks are not providing the products they need, she said.

In Cinque

by Renetta Howard

Howard

Being a History major, it is just difficult to throw away anything which I consider significant which has happened in the past. I suppose I have kept every program, article, brochure, letter, card, speech, research paper, research notes, magazine which I have written or received in the last thirty years. It is unfortunate though, that I have all of these things which probably mean nothing to everyone else. While trying to pack to move, I have begun to decide that twenty-five years from now, they probably will not mean anything to me either.

We live and we move or less plan to stay put in one place for a long time. What we do not realize, however, is that we accumulate things. We do not realize how much we actually accumulate until we get ready to move. What a job!

The older we become, the more we have accumulated. My first out of state move was a charm. I suppose I had about eighty-nine thousand pounds. On the second out of state move, I had added about four thousand pounds. I now estimate that this next move will go over twenty-five thousand pounds doubling the last move and consequently cost a small fortune.

When the dollar signs are focused upon, I tend to close my eyes and throw away a few of my treasures. I ask myself, "What will this matter in ten to fifteen years?" When you think of primary sources in writing history, it is a difficult decision to make because so many pieces of my collection are primary sources for my writings. I have to decide whether to pay for the moving weight of each item or to suffer the consequences and keep it.

This is one of those times when less is better. The less you have when you move, the better, cost wise, that is. If early decisions are made as we collect items, about their value, this may be the key to deciding what is worth keeping that causes clutter in your home and make packing difficult when you decide to move. Without help, this little fete would take me six months at the least. It will be just as difficult to unpack. Of course, with the economy like it is, the only thing I have collected in the last few months, are boxes in which to pack. We all need to get 'in cinque,' packing or not and watch our clutter.

With Water Rates Going Up, You Don't Have to Sacrifice Your Landscaping

Water rates may be increasing in Lubbock, but that doesn't mean you have to sacrifice your landscape to save money. The Lubbock Master Gardeners and AgriLife Extension Service are proud to present the 2009 EarthKind Conference on April 25 from 10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. at the Scottish Rite Learning Center, 1101 70th Street.

EarthKind is a type of landscaping that uses research-proven techniques to provide maximum gardening and landscape enjoyment while preserving and protecting our environment. Dr. Steven W. George, an Associate Professor and Extension Horticulturist at Texas A&M University, will be the featured guest speaker. He is the creator of the trademarked EarthKind Environmental Landscape Management System.

Attendees will learn how to maintain a beautiful landscape while reducing water use up to 70%. Dr. George will speak on the seven principles of EarthKind gardening, how to prepare beds for spring planting, gardening practices that protect the environment and much more.

The conference will include information about selecting plant varieties that use less water, require less soil modification, are more tolerant to stressful environmental conditions and are less susceptible to pest problems.

The registration fee is $35 for Master Gardeners/Interns and $40 for the general public. You can register online at <http://lubbockmastergardeners.tamu.edu> or by mailing a registration form and check to Lubbock Master Gardeners, P.O. Box 93603, Lubbock, TX 79493. The deadline to register for the conference is Friday, April 17.

The first 150 registrants will receive a two-gallon varietal rosebush from Chamblee's Rose Nursery in Tyler, TX. If you choose to register the day of the event, the registration fee is $45, provided space is available.

The Lubbock Master Gardeners work as trained volunteers through the Texas AgriLife Extension Service. Master Gardeners earn certification by completing a 50-hour training program and performing 50 hours of community volunteer service. Each year, Master Gardeners complete continuing education classes and do volunteer service to maintain their certification.

For more information about the conference and helpful gardening tips, visit their Web site at <http://lubbockmastergardeners.tamu.edu> or call the Texas

Affordability Program

District 3 City Councilmember Todd Klein is reminding residents of the recently passed Affordability Program for Lubbock residents.

To be eligible for the Affordability Program, a residential customer's household income may not exceed $22,000, and at least one permanent resident of the applicant's residence must be (1) sixty-five years of age or older, or (2) mentally or physically disabled, or (3) the primary caretaker of at least one dependent child under the age of 18 years.

Councilman Klein says, "I will soon hold a Town Hall Meeting to help facilitate enrollment in the program. I understand that many family budgets are critically tight at this current time and it is my desire for anyone that is eligible for this program to participate."

Alpha Kappa Alpha's President Denounces Clear Channel's Decision to Fire Tom Joyner

Chicago, IL (BlackNews.com) - Alpha Kappa Alpha's international president, Barbara A. McKinzie, expressed outrage over Clear Channel Communications' decision to summarily remove Tom Joyner's show from the Chicago market. She characterized this as symptomatic of a narrow-minded "marketing mindset" from executives who view the black community as a monolith and who make decisions about the African-American consumer through their misguided perceptions about the urban market. Dismissing it as a "bad business decision," McKinzie said the view that "all blacks think alike" is an extension of a bygone era of arrogance and ignorance.

On a sentimental note, she praised him for using his show to raise the profile of courageous black females whose compelling stories inspire all African Americans.

Rapper T.I. Sentenced to Year on Weapons Charges

ATLANTA (AP) — A judge sentenced Rapper T.I. to one year and a day behind bars on federal weapons charges on Friday.

The 28-year-old rapper, whose real name is Clifford Harris, entered court smiling as he greeted his lawyers and family members. He wore a dark gray suit and black dress shirt and tie for sentencing.

"Today I would like to say thank you to some, and apologize to all," the rapper told U.S. District Judge Charles Pannell Jr. at the 1 and 1/2 hour session.

Harris pleaded guilty last March after he was arrested in 2007, attempting to buy unregistered machine guns and silencers. The arrest on Oct. 13 of that year occurred blocks from where he was to headline the BET Hip-Hop Awards in Atlanta hours later.

He will have between 30 and 60 days to report to prison. Harris already has completed about 1,000 hours of community service and has warned youths about the pitfalls of guns, drugs, violence. He will need to complete 470 additional hours.

"Everything I learned was through trial and error," Harris also told the judge. "I've learned lessons in my life to put in my music so people won't make the same mistakes as I."

At Friday's hearing, former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young spoke on Harris' behalf.

"He's been able to do the work I've been trying to accomplish for so long in stopping violence in this country," Young told the judge.

Harris had faced a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine for each count, until he cut a deal and pleaded guilty last March to the federal weapons charge and was sentenced to one year and a day in prison.

Pannell said he was pleased with Harris' progress through his community service.

"I think this has been a great experiment," the judge said. "I hope this experience can lead to other experiments so others won't make the same mistake at all. I congratulate you."

Harris initially pleaded not guilty and was released on a $3 million bond before being placed under house arrest.

Ed Garland, one of his attorneys, said they are not sure where he will serve his sentence.

Upon his release, Harris is to be placed on three years of supervised release. He also will be credited for 305 days of some detention he already has served and must serve an additional 60 days, authorities said.

Harris agreed to community service to avoid a lengthy sentence. He already has made 262 public appearances as part of that deal.

Much of that work has been done with children.

Although he has taken part in a voting campaign and had an MTV reality show, "Road to Redemption" to scare teens straight, that was not part of the community service.

Harris is one of the co-chief executives of Grand Hustle Records and one of Atlantic Records' most successful artists.

His sixth album, "Paper Trail," has sold nearly two million copies. It also charted two smash No. 1 songs, and a third with Justin Timberlake is near the top of the charts.

T.I. said fear was the reason he tried to buy the guns. His best friend, Philant Johnson, was killed following a post-performance party in Cincinnati in 2006. A man was found guilty last year in the murder case.

Alessia Rollison Will Graduate From LCU On May 2, 2009

Alessia La Trice Rollison will graduate receiving a Bachelor's degree in Organizational Management from Lubbock Christian University at 10:00 AM on May 2, 2009 during Commencement Exercises at the Rip Griffin Center.

Lesia is a member of Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church and a graduate of Dunbar-Struggs High School.

She was named to the dean's list.

Lesia is the daughter of the late Pamela Sue Rollison, granddaughter of the late Richard and Katie Rollison, Jr. and mother of Aalyah, Aarielle, and Alyssabeth.

Thank you Jesus for helping me on a daily basis to enhance and reinforce my faith and devotion to You and our Heavenly Father the Lord God and that is by the grace of You and our Heavenly Father the Lord God Almighty that I am able to see another beautiful and glorious day that the Lord God has made. I would like to thank my aunt Carolyn Rollison of Houston, Texas for nourishing and sustaining my faith life, for teaching me the value of family, and giving me the glimpse of life as it might be, a glimpse of something — Someone — higher so that I experienced the nurture of the Divine.

Thank you, Tracie Bunton-York of Midland, Texas for giving me the gift of a friendship and for being my rock, my constant touchstone, and my best friend — Sarah Bunton, for being the "other mother" and knowing just when I needed mothering. To my Bethel African Methodist Episcopal "Mothers" I give thanks for each and everyone of you who has supported me and known EXACTLY when I needed you.

Unemployment Hits Blacks & Latinos Harder or a senior executive is looking at a slate of individuals and has to let one of them go, chances are he or she will not let the person go that they spend a lot of time with at the country club or similar places."

The less wealth you have, the harder unemployment hits. Darity cited 2002 data that showed black households with a median net worth of $6,000, Latino households with a median of $8,000, and white households with a median of $90,000.

Philip Salter was creative director for a Chicago advertising firm where about 75 percent of the revenue came from a contract with a Fortune 500 company to create ads targeted at minorities. When the firm lost that contract plus two general-market accounts, Salter's job evaporated.

"When companies cut back their ad dollars, minority budgets are where they start," said Salter, 62, who is black.

"Unfortunately in this business, most clients just view (minority advertising) as an overlay or meeting an obligation that social organizations might place on them."

His last day was in January 2008. With alimony payments and two kids in college, Salter moved from his four-bedroom house into an apartment and has scurried by on consulting gigs.

Salter's mother worked as a housekeeper, and his father was a custodian. Before his divorce, Salter's stepdaughter and her four children lived with him for many years.

ATTEND AND BE BLESSED OF THE LORD. BRING SOMEONE WITH YOU!

Parson Smith

Professional blacks "don't usually start out with an inheritance," he said. "On top of that, quite often things happen in our families to cause us stress. An unexpected child or grandchild, drug problems. When you try to set aside money to put your kids through college, all of a sudden you have to say, 'I can't let this family member fall and become homeless.'"

"I would say eight out of 10 people I know have a similar situation."

Then there are those clinging to the bottom of the ladder, laid off from lower-paying jobs.

begun to question whether the spillover violence presents a threat to their own national security, and to the outrage of many Mexicans, whether the country itself will crumble under the strain of war, noted Lacey.

For the safety of all of Lubbock, our police department in all branches of government should be increased and trained to fight against the Mexican cartels that are ruining the lives of our loved ones. The hiring and training of new police officers will cost money. We cannot afford not to pay the cost for additional officers for the safety of our city! Mexico-A Failed State?
