RUBY JAY'S CORNER

New Hope Baptist Church has been broken into twice in recent times. The first time was when the Coke machine was robbed by unknown persons. The second time, the unknown persons went to the pulpit and took the Holy Bible. You know, stealing God's words is a shame. Those persons even got a jan out of one of the offices.

This writer gave the Holy Bible to the church as a gift. As Black people, we've got to quit stealing from each other.

Johnella Savage has spent a week in West Texas Hospital. She is expected to come home this week. Let us pray for her and family.

Morning services at the New Hope Baptist Church was great last Sunday morning. Rev. Melvin Minute of Cameron, Texas brought the message. His text was taken from Matthew 27:37. His subject was "The Amazing Jesus." What a wonderful message.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lewis of Paris, Texas were visitors here last weekend. They attended church services at New Hope, and are former members of this church. Mr. Lewis was a fine deacon of the church. He's quite a christian gentleman.

Rev. A. L. Dunn and Rev. W. A. Harris motored to Midland, Texas this week to take care of some business.

Ms. Mae Emma McGowan returned home last Tuesday from Navasota, Texas. She was in all smiles over having such a wonderful visit with her sisters and brothers. They spent the night with her after bringing her back home before journeying back to Navasota.

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast met last Saturday morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Ervin.

Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. C. E. Fair. Opening scripture was read by Mrs. Ervin. It was taken from Revelations 21:8. It was followed by prayer.

The morning lesson was taught by Mrs. Ervin also. It was taken from Romans 10:9-13.

(Verse 1 from Living Bible) For it is by believing in his heart that a man becomes right with God; and with his mouth he tells others of his faith, confirming his salvation.

Thought of the Day: "Salvation opens to all believers. Have no fear. Think about it!"

Mrs. Ervin, you truly was a blessing to our hearts for such a spirit filled lesson. Thank you.

Mrs. Dyer sang a beautiful solo, "His Eyes Is On The Sparrow."

Breakfast was served by our gracious hostess. It was delicious.

Are you feeling a little bit hungry? Come and eat with us at the welcome table. We will feed you spiritually and physically, because we love you.

Guest at the meeting included Mrs. Clara Colquitt. Come again, because you make our day complete.

Prayer requests were made at this meeting. If you have request, come and let us pray together.

Morning prayer was led by Dorothy Hood.

Our sick list include Mrs. Flemmings, a patient at West Texas Hospital; Mrs. Gloria Walker, a patient at West Texas Hospital; Mrs. J. Savage, Mrs. Mayer, and Mrs. Doris Gilmore, all are at home.

We're sure there are others not known about at this time. Just remember God never leaves you alone.

To the bereaved families, God never makes a mistake.

Across The Nation

News From Home Folks

This feature is a news compilation from more than 100 black-owned and oriented newspapers across the nation. It deals with what blacks, who are all-too-often little-recognized, are doing to promote full participation in American life by black Americans. It is thus a salute from all of our readers to unsung heroes... and is designed to be a challenge for all of us to keep on doing our very best.

The St. Louis Crusader reports the reaction of one of its area's distinguished citizens, William E. Douthitt, who states:

Without reading and considering the six separate opinions emanating from the Supreme Court, it is only possible to give a cursory opinion about what the Bakke decision means to the black community.

But, at first glance, it must be considered a large step backward from the advance toward full participation in United States citizenship that began with the Brown vs. Topeka decision in 1954.

The admissions program giving reference to disadvantaged members of this country's racial and ethnic minorities has been decreed discriminatory against whites by the Supreme Court. Since that program was established as a response to the need for our society to hasten the integration of minorities into full participation in this society's privileges and benefits, deciding against the University of California admissions program has to be considered a decision against racial and ethnic minority citizens.

a disappointment to all of us who have devoted our professional lives, or many valuable hours from our private lives, to hurrying that natural course of events along.

We are left with little more but the faith in the far-sightedness, goodwill, and essential fairness of the admissions officers, administrators and faculties of our colleges and universities. That was never enough to do much good, before 1954, but minority members have a large supply of hope. It sustained them during the centuries of slavery, it sustained them for almost a century before the Emancipation Proclamation and the Brown-Topeka decision.

If hope is all we have for the future instead of the doctors, dentists, nurses, lawyers and other professionals our people desperately need, I imagine we will get by somehow. And admissions officers may surprise the whole country by proving to be great liberals; we may continue to see minority students admitted to professional schools in increasing numbers, even without what the Supreme Court now considers illegal programs.

The Buffalo, N.Y., Criterion tells of a group of local citizens whose activities in housing might be duplicated in other areas across the country. We are grateful to the Criterion for sharing the following with us:

A coalition of community groups is planning to attack the problem of deteriorated housing in Buffalo with a series of lawsuits against owners of abandoned houses. The committee of the Central City Housing Task Force has surveyed every neighborhood in the Masten and Elliott Districts and targeted abandoned houses which are a nuisance to residents of the area, according to David Gordon, committee spokesperson. Neighbors who want to get the abandoned houses demolished or rehabilitated are being referred to Neighborhood Legal Services, Inc., which is providing its services at no charge.

"These vacant houses are a nuisance and a health and safety hazard," Gordon said recently. "Many remain open and unboarded. They're frequently rat-infested and falling down. They attract children, who might be injured playing inside; vandals, arsonists, rapists and delinquents."

Homeowners insurance rates often increase or homeowners lose their insurance altogether because of the presence of an abandoned house next door, Gordon said. Rats or mice from an abandoned house may begin to invade the surrounding, occupied homes. "When one house starts to run down, the whole area suffers," according to Gordon.

"Neighbors on either side begin to wonder whether it's worth keeping their own property up."

Owners who abandon houses must be held accountable for what they are doing to the surrounding neighborhood, the committee believes.

"Some of these owners have five, ten or 20 other houses on the East Side of Buffalo," he said. "They have the money to fix these places up. They just don't care enough to do it."

For owners who do not have funds to make repairs or demolish their buildings, the committee will try to find methods of financing. Some money for such work is available from various government agencies, Gordon said.

Once an abandoned house has been identified as a nuisance in a neighborhood, the committee contacts residents who live close to it, Gordon said. If a neighbor is willing to take legal action against the owner, he or she is referred to a housing task force at Neighborhood Legal Services, Inc. of Buffalo. The task force, funded as a CETA Special Project, will then negotiate with the owners of the abandoned house and, if necessary, sue on behalf of adjoining property owners to force demolition or rehabilitation, according to Gordon.

The private lawsuit approach is being taken because residents have been frustrated in their efforts to get the city to take some action on the buildings, he said.

themselves. Customers can save money by picking up their telephones at the PhoneCenter. If a residence is equipped with the modular plug-in jacks, the one time charges will be even lower. The one time charge for one phone is $24.25 when picked up at the center. The reduced rate represents a saving of more than $20 when compared to having a technician make the installation, McNamara said.

In addition, the PhoneCenter will simplify equipment repairs. Customers experiencing equipment problems will be able to take their phones to the center and exchange equipment. The inconvenience of waiting for a repair technician is thus eliminated.

When disconnecting service, customers will receive credit on their final statement by returning their telephone sets to the PhoneCenter. While these money saving options are available to customers now, facilities will be more adequate to handle customer needs upon completion of the planned remodeling.

Communications And Image Building Important

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. once made the statement in regard to racism and segregation. He said: "How do you know you hate me when you don't know me." It makes a lot of sense communicating and utilizing positive image building. It is an absolute must. The forums recently held at Mae Simmons Community Center, between City officials and personnel and the Black community proved this to be true. From those sessions, others will be held with the Lubbock County Commissioners and the Criminal District Attorney. This meeting is set for November 13 at Mae Simmons.

In line with this kind of communications, T. J. and I had the privilege of meeting with citizens of the Jewish community last Monday evening for the same purpose - opening a communication line with the local Jewish community. This is the way to break down all the barriers and misunderstandings among people of different races, backgrounds, social and economic differences. This can only help us to know and understand each other. This is done through communications.

At that session, we invited our Jewish brothers and sisters to meet with us in a forum at Mae Simmons. It appears as though it will become a reality. If so, we want all of you there.

The "Top Ten Best Dressed Black Women" finalists have been selected in this first annual effort. The grand finale will be held Friday evening, October 26, at 9 p.m. The place is the Ko Ko Palace. We hope you will get your tickets and be there in the place. Let's salute Black womanhood in our community. It's about time that something like this be done.

At least something like this will take place here before we began another decade. How about that?

Not only have the Black community been complaining about the Southeast Drive and East 34th situation, but because of this other problems have been happening with the railroad crossing on East 32nd (perhaps) and Juniper Avenue. People are stopping and telling us that the trains keep them from getting to their destination. They want to meet with railroad officials and talk about this situation. More will said about this in the future.

The four minority members were seated on the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) board of directors this week. Also, one of those Black members, Bert McWilliams, was elected an officer. This, to this writer, is image building. This is good because our children can see and relate to this kind of a thing.

We are in need of positive images, plus, we need some true history taught. Our young people, with everyone given credit for their inventions, contributions, accomplishments in the past as well as contemporary history, need to be taught to these young Black brothers and sisters. They need to know! Our young Black kids have received nothing but all white images, including George Washington. If true history is available, our youth could have positive images to relate to and identify. Not only Blacks, but all so called minorities, every group of every hue, every religion, every sex, every national origin contribution. This is good for the greatness of America.

LEGISLATIVE ALERT

FOCUS ON U.S. POLICY TOWARD AFRICA

Education of The U.S. Public

In a letter to the president last year, the Congressional Black Caucus urged that the Administration educate the American public as to our strategic concerns with respect to Africa. The letter stated in this regard:

As a first step towards further educating the American people on the complexity and significance of African issues, we urge that you convene a White House Conference on "America's Strategic Interests in Africa." Such a conference, innovatively approached and creatively executed, could highlight our policy toward Africa within the larger context of our relations and those of our allies with the Third World. It would also help alleviate some of the fears and distortions evoked by recent crises and at the same time initiate a dialogue at the national level on the subject of U.S. policy toward Africa. In addition, we urge you to consider reinstituting an Advisory Committee on U.S. Policy Towards Africa; one composed of persons from within the various agencies of the Executive branch, from the Congress and from the non-governmental community. As an adjunct to a White House Conference, the Advisory Committee could, we think be of invaluable assistance to your Administration.

You may write to your Congressmen and Senators at: Congressional Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515 or Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. Please congratulate them for their important work and let them know where Black America stands on crucial issues.

Believe it or not as strange as it may sound, it is really a fact. Three (3) new houses are under construction, at the same time, in East Lubbock. Did you know that this is the first time in about twenty years in East Lubbock that three houses were going up at the same time.

Now if you go to southwest Lubbock and see the sub-divisions being created, but in East Lubbock this is remarkable.

You know, maybe there is really light at the end of the tunnel. Three houses on the same street and on the same side. Maybe, just maybe, East Lubbock will be a part of the city's development and growth in the 1980's. Let's hope so.

Media Reviews:

MODERN BLACK MARTYR

(For all concerned about the best of black African thought.)

A review of Steve Biko: I Write What I Like. Edited by Aelred Stubbs, Harper and Row, Publishers, San Francisco. 216 pages, Cloth, $8.95.

Steve Biko is remembered as the courageous young black South African writer who died several years ago under highly mysterious circumstances while being detained by the South African police.

For those who knew of Steve Biko primarily through the press, this present compendium of his major writings will provide an introduction to one of the most exciting and profound minds of our time.

Father Aelred Stubbs, an Anglican (or Episcopal) monk who was most closely associated with Steve Biko during the last ten—and most productive—years of Biko's life, has put together the best of Biko's writings, including, along with Biko's essays, a letter to U.S. Senator Dick Clark who had served as Chairman of the Senate sub-committee for Africa and extracts from court testimony given by Steve Biko before his death.

In Biko's writings, we see all the important and substantial meanings of a political scientist, a philosopher, a theologian and an organizer for human liberation. Glorious in life and even more glorious and effective in his martyrdom, Steve Biko's writings are to the highest ideal of our times. This is a must reading. It is a primer of essential thought for all concerned with the liberation of Africa, of all Third World peoples, and of humanity itself.

BLACK EMPOWERMENT

By Dr. Nathaniel Wright, Jr.
Human Rights Activist

A GALLANT BLACK STATESMAN

With some passages of time having now occurred since the death of Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta, it is of tremendous significance that world opinion—in continuing discussions—holds this great African liberation leader and statesman in the highest esteem.

It has been said often—and most aptly so in Jomo Kenyatta's case—that history often makes heroes of heretics and attaches the badge of greatness to many who once wore the mark of criminals.

Like many world liberationist leaders, Jomo Kenyatta in his earlier years fought against colonialist or imperialist rule in his "country." The term "country" or "nation" is used advisedly, since the African colonial states or territories were created in a manner which largely disregarded historic tribal and other kinship or political ties.

This is not without its own deep import in that, once the solidifying colonial powers left, there was often little left to hold these arbitrarily bound nations or differing groups of people together.

The immediate results of this kind of situation were two-fold. One has been that the newly independent or newly-emerging black nations of Africa have been, in fact, almost impossible to govern. Fragments of peoples bound together by tribal ties for thousands of years do not quickly develop fresh loyalties and a sense of political affinity or of belonging.

Hence, when outside observers—most notably, perhaps, those of European extraction associated historically with colonialism and with a sense of superiority toward Third World Peoples—perceive or remark that the newly emerging states seem to find it difficult to govern themselves, they may be, strangely enough, somewhat correct. The "emerging states" were freed by the Europeans with conditions which made such "sound and effective governance" a virtual impossibility. This has been true, in some degree, in the highly praised and relatively successful experience in Kenya in and under Jomo Kenyatta's almost miraculously progress-filled leadership and experience.

A second effect of this fragmentation of African tribal life and loyalties by the European colonial powers has been the need for the black nations to create or to encourage the monolithic or one-party leadership of dynamic hero figures. The late President Jomo Kenyatta was such a figure.

The traditional credentials of such a personage were personified in Kenya's great president in abundance. Had Jomo Kenyatta never become President of Kenya, he would doubtless have been remembered by historians in perpetuity as a pioneering freedom fighter who gave of himself tirelessly and selflessly for the ending of colonialist exploitation world-wide.

It was the late Dr. W.E.B. Du Bois who noted that colonialism, particularly as exemplified in Africa and in southern Asia, was the major world scourge for a period of well-nigh three centuries. No less a prominent world figure, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was to remind the late Sir Winston Churchill—one of the world's most ardent and perhaps callously adamant colonialists—that the ending of colonialism was to be the free world's major task following World War II. Jomo Kenyatta's life was a testimony, a kind of living script, speaking of the need for human liberation, growth and fulfillment.

President Kenyatta also symbolized in his impressive person, by his profoundly sensitive mind and by his broadly inclusive human embrace, the best in Africa's political past. It is a past where the spirit of "maji" (the Swahili word for "the oneness of all life's forces"—i.e., unity) has been exemplified in a way which should, perhaps someday, become a model for the world.

In Africa—and perhaps, as many claim, in the entire world—there is or may be no one remaining who is quite like him. Jomo Kenyatta's star thus rises in death, doubtlessly adding its own black brilliance to the marvelous glory of the lighted galaxies of the firmament.

OUR GIANTS SPEAK

W.E.B. DU BOIS AND BOOKER T. WASHINGTON REVISITED

In the following two parts on W.E.B. Du Bois, we look briefly at the character and make-up of his grandfather and his life from five to sixteen years of age in Massachusetts.

There is perhaps no more serious, potentially profitable and dispassionate debate and investigation regarding black Americans than that involved between Dr. Booker T. Washington and Dr. W.E.B. Du Bois.

We shall be taking the equivalent of a university trimester so that our thoughtful public school, college and adult readers may take a fresh and somewhat structured or disciplined look at these two highly misunderstood black heroes.

In the context of the times, education, color, regionalism, "class" consciousness, and genuinely different (but desperately deep) longings for the best for black Americans made these men perhaps seem much more different than they were. They represented, perhaps, the potential seeds or beginnings of a kind of operational harmony urgently needed today.

You may wish now or later to thank your newspaper editor for enabling you to share in this vastly different and exceedingly important opportunity.

Students should possibly keep notes for later classroom and term paper work.

Grandfather took his bitter dose like a thoroughbred. Wild as was his inner revolt against this treatment, he uttered no word against the thieves and made no plea. He tried his fortunes here and in Haiti; he became eventually chief steward on the New York and New Haven boats, and later a small merchant in Springfield. Always he held his head high, took no insults, made few friends. He was not a "Negro," he was a man! Yet when the white Episcopalians of Trinity Parish, New Haven, showed plainly that they did not want him or his folk, he led the revolt which resulted in St. Luke's Parish, and was for years its senior warden. Beneath his sternness was a very human man. Slyly he wrote poetry. He loved much and married three wives, but he was hard and unsympathetic with his children. Some of them and their children are now "white," but his oldest son quarrelled and ran away from home and married my brown mother.

So, with some circumstance, having finally gotten myself born, with a flood of Negro blood, a strain of French, a bit of Dutch, and thank God! no "Anglo-Saxon," I come to the days of my childhood.

They were very happy. Early we moved back to grandfather's home; I barely remember its stone fireplace, big kitchen, and delightful woodshed. Then this house passed to other branches of the clan and we moved to rented quarters in town; to one delectable place "upstairs," with a wide yard full of shrubbery, and a brook; to another house abutting a railroad, with infinite interests; and, finally, back to the quiet street on which I was born—down a long lane and in a homely, cozy cottage, with a living room, a tiny sitting room, a pantry, and two attic bed rooms.

Here mother and I lived until she died in 1884; for father early began his restless wandering. I last remember urgent letters for us to come to New Milford where he had started a barber shop. Later he became a preacher. But mother no longer trusted his dreams and he soon faded out of our lives into silence.

Key Questions:

1. What peculiar problems does this episode reveal? Are they still present today?
2. How well were today's circumstances handled? Were there any "hidden agendas"?
3. What important lessons may be learned from today's episode? How would you have possibly handled them differently?

STEVE BIKO AND THE MOOD OF BLACK RESISTANCE IN SOUTH AFRICA

(For Classroom and Group Discussion)

Donald Woods, former editor of an anti-apartheid newspaper who escaped from South Africa a year ago, continues to tell of his association with Steve Biko.

It also paints a picture of Mr. Biko as a peaceful man—a view that sharply denies the trouble-making image that the South African government gave to the world after his death.

Part II of Two Parts

Steve Biko wanted to solve things without violence. All his efforts, all his attempts at inculcating a new dedication to Black Consciousness were aimed at the peaceful, non-violent resolution of the South African issue. But events would probably have moved him ultimately to accepting that there is a case for violence.

Nelson Mandela also tried for many years to negotiate peacefully and came to the conclusion, ultimately, that violence was justified.

I myself have not come to this standpoint. I believe that a peaceful solution is still possible. But this would not be the argument of most black leaders in South Africa who represent the people. The young blacks are increasingly rejecting the liberal position and their elders who have sought for reconciliation based on a multi-racial response. They feel that this has got the black man nowhere, and they can only see a future in building up their strength as a black resistance movement. I grieve over this because it could bring a legacy of inter-racial bitterness after the apartheid government is crushed. But I can understand why it is happening.

Key Questions:

1. What are three main issues in this article?
2. What Does this article suggest that you can do about our world situation today?
3. How many words did you look up in the dictionary? If we do not use a dictionary daily, and for every word whose FULL meanings we may not know, we cannot grow individually and assure the best use of our resources for group freedom and a better America.

questions and answers

by Booth H. Robbins Field Representative Lubbock, Texas QUESTION

It seems to me that even though social security and SSI benefits have been increased over the years, and apparently will continue to increase, they can't possibly keep up with the high cost of living. I just can't see how people are expected to get along on social security benefits and SSI. Are there any plans to solve this problem?

ANSWER

Yes, the social security law was amended to help cope with the cost of living by providing build-in automatic increases when the cost of living index rises above 3 percent in a year. But the important point to remember is that social security and SSI was never meant to be your sole source of support. That's why we urge people to add to their social security and SSI protection during their working years with savings, private pensions, insurance, or other investments. In addition, besides the continuing increase of your monthly benefits, the amount you can earn without losing any of your benefits has been gradually increased so you can add to your social security payments by working a little.

QUESTION

My mother, who's 71, has been living alone and gets monthly SSI payments. She just took a grandniece in to live with her so she won't be alone. Is this the kind of thing that has to be reported to social security?

ANSWER

Yes, any change in living arrangements must be reported to social security because some changes might affect the amount of your mother's monthly SSI checks. She should do it as soon as possible so her records can be brought up to date.

QUESTION

I have an 8-year-old daughter who suffers from muscular dystrophy. A friend told me that my daughter may be able to get social security checks on my earnings record, even though I won't be retiring for many years. Is that true?

ANSWER

No, your daughter can only get monthly social security benefits if you retire, become disabled, or die after working long enough under social security. However, she may be eligible for supplemental security checks, depending on the family's income and resources. You should get in touch with any social security office for more information and help with an application on behalf of your daughter.

"Give Me That Ole Dunbar Spirit."

Dunbar 20, Lamesa 10

The Dunbar Panthers won their first game of the 1979 season last week. The Panthers spoiled the Golden Toronados' Homecoming with a hard fought come from behind win.

Senior fullback Jeff Crawford led the Panthers' attack with a 63 yards rushing effort, and one touchdown. Barry Pillow, the utility back, was second in rushing with 53 yards. Although Pillow's yardage was few, in this writer's opinion, he was the key to the Panther's victory. After being trapped several times behind the line of scrimmage, Pillow, somehow, managed to struggle free to get the necessary yards needed.

Defensively, Mark Sanders and Eddie Walker gave most of the protection of the Dunbar goal line. Sanders showed very good movement for a big man, by combing the field from sidelines making tackles. Walker came up with the key to the game when he fell on a Lamesa fumble at the mid-field stripe. Walker's fumble recovery was enough to put the icing on the victory. Congratulations, Seniors. You played a good game, and don't you forget it.

"The Pot and Kettle Warmed The Tea Again"

Monterey 49; Hobbs 0

Kent (Pot) Potts and Willie (Kettle) Johnson easily rolled to a victory last Friday night at Lowrey Field by beating the Hobbs' Eagles.

Johnson struck quickly for the Plainsmen with two TD's in the first half. On the night, the man from Mississippi saw the promise land three times. The last TD came on a 65 yard gallop early in the third quarter.

On the other hand, quarterback Kent Potts had his best night throwing. Potts threw six out of thirteen for 111 yards. Cockrell had one of Pott's receptions for 69 yards. The Plainsmen had 389 yards of offense for the night.

Reeves Bank Shot Raiders To Win

TECH 21; AM 20

Ron Reeves, with the precision of Minnesota Fats, banked the winning shot home to Greg Tyler last Saturday night at Jones Stadium to defeat the Texas A & M Aggies by one point (21-20).

Just like a wild finish to a pool game, the Aggies saw their hope of victory fade slowly away as the football bounced into the hands of (Eight Ball) Greg Tyler who then banked off several Aggie cushions to the endzone to put the tying points on the score board (20-20).

Adams added the point after to put the Raiders ahead to stay.

James Hadnot had 29 carries for 111 yards for the evening. Reeves had 26 carries for 84 yards at the end of the game.

At the post game interview, A & M Coach Tom Wilson said this was a typical Tech/A&M game - a game from beginning to end. Wilson said he has nothing but praise for Hadnot and the Tech offense. On the other hand, Wilson admitted the injury to Curtis Dickey caused him to change his game plan in the pre-game warm-up.

Prayer Poem

The hymn or prayer poem, "Lord, Speak to Me," is a familiar and beautiful reminder that we are to listen to God and lean upon God—that God's fullness is to fill us. We are to become instruments of God's peace, and followers, learners and servants of God. These words which have provided inspiration for more than 100 years were written by F. R. Havens in 1872.

Lord, speak to me, that I may speak
 In loving echoes of thy tone,
 As thou hast sought, so let me seek Thy errand in this lost and lone.
 O strengthen me, that while I stand
 Firm on the Rock, and strong in thee,
 I may stretch out a loving hand

To wrestlers with the troubled sea.
 O teach me, Lord, that I may teach
 The precious things thou dost impart

And sing my words, that they may reach
 The hidden depths of many a heart.

O give thine own sweet rest to me,
 That I may speak with soothing power
 Word in season, as from thee,
 To weary ones in needful hour.

Let God use us in service to Whom we need our care,
 For such is our privilege,
 To support your church, Serve
 Through your church each week.

WORDS OF LIFE Biblical Inspiration For The Week

Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.—Romans 10:17

1. We must listen. Our present times have been said to be in need of faith. But faith in what... or whom? If we need faith in God, we must listen to His voice—to hear and to know Him in whom we seek to build up our faith. How often have you listened to God? Listening is the first step. ... God speaks to us through His word. There is absolutely no way for faith to grow in us without our having a knowledge of God's Word. Hence, we must feed upon the Scriptures to know God's Word. But so many—if not most—if it will ask: just where do we begin? The simplest answer is to read two simple portions of Scripture first. First read the "Love Chapter," 1 Corinthians 13 which tells us of the need for Love. Then read all of the First Epistle of St. John which tells us how to apply God's love.

2. Faith grows. Once we have gotten into the "love theme" in the Scriptures, we have a way of testing to discover just where we are as we make our way through the Scriptures to hear God's Word. Faith grows through feeding upon the Scriptures. It is here that we come to know the God of love in whom our faith must grow.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST SETS THE EXAMPLE IN SERVICE

PHILIPPIANS 2:1-11

- 1 So if there is any encouragement in Christ, any incentive of love, any participation in the Spirit, any affection and sympathy,
- 2 complete my joy by being of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind.
- 3 Do nothing from selfishness or conceit, but in humility count others better than yourselves.
- 4 Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others.
- 5 Have this mind among yourselves, which you have in Christ Jesus,
- 6 who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped,
- 7 but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men.
- 8 And being found in human form he humbled himself and became obedient unto death, even death on a cross.
- 9 Therefore God has highly exalted him and bestowed on him the name which is above every name,
- 10 that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth,
- 11 and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

MEMORY SELECTION

Being found in human form he humbled himself and became obedient unto death, even death on a cross. Phillipians 2:8.

POLICE HAPPENINGS AROUND LUBBOCK

BURGLARY
VERNON FLOWERS, 4407 East 64th Street, reported that persons unknown broke into his place of business, Grass Shack Club, one day last week. Entry was gained by tearing off the screen door and kicking in a solid door.
 Unknown persons used a cinder block to knock the phone off its wall mount, according to the police report.

 The pool tables and juke box were not disturbed.
 Approximately $50 worth of damage was done to the club.

BIKE THEFT
HARRY WILLIAMS, 1308 46th Street, was an unhappy young Black brother this week. You see, he reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown removed his bike from his backyard without his permission.

 It is believed that some young people took the bike.
 It was valued at $165.

UNAUTHORIZED USE OF MOTOR VEHICLE

MYRTLE MAE C. JOHNSON, 2418 East Colgate Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown took advantage of her while she was away at a hospital recently.

She told police that someone took her car from the front yard. It was believed to have been taken by a wrecker.
 After checking the police reports, nothing was found of a car which could have been taken by police. It was learned, however, that some members of her church were concerned about her car, so they had it parked on a car lot.

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF

SANCO NASH, 1921 East Broadway Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that he saw two young fellows throw two rocks through his piece of business one day this week.

He told police that he caught one of them. He said that the young fellow refused to cooperate with him. This is when Mr. Nash flagged down a patrol car and told the police officer about the incident.

The youth, who was apparently responsible for this activity, was taken to the Lubbock Police Department where he was turned over to a juvenile officer.

Mr. Nash said he wanted to file charges against the youth.
 Approximately $40 worth of damage was done to the business.

HOUSE BURGLARY

HOMER BUTCH AVERY, 3424 East Cornell Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that he was home one day this week when he observed two young fellows go to his backyard. One of the young fellows, according to the police report, pushed on the back door.
 This is when Avery called police and told them of the attempted house burglary.

He told police that he knew one of them and would file charges.

WHAT YOUR STARS SAY

October 10-16

ARIES — March 21-April 20
 No matter how magnetic and alluring the stranger is use your better judgment before committing your time, energy or money to vague projects. The Law of Reciprocity indicates that you will lose what you've taken from others.
TAURUS — April 21-May 21
 Make sure that valuable papers are kept in a safe place, and don't rely on nebulous facts for a total answer. Don't be owned by your possessions. The less you have, the less you have to worry about.

GEMINI — May 22-June 21
 Impatience is the main reason behind your losing your temper. So hold on and remember that all people (other than yourself) are not stupid; but sometimes they do stupid things—and this is human and permissible.
CANCER — June 22-July 23
 What prevents you from being loved is your refusal to believe that you are loved. Accept those who love you at face value, and don't demand that your lovers be or act like types that don't fit their nature. Graciousness can attract a positive Love.

LEO — July 24-August 23
 It is always laudable to strive for power—if you intend to use that power to serve the powerless. However, most power-seekers mistake themselves (i.e. ego) for the power, and fail to realize that they are vehicles of the spirit. This could cause heart trouble.

VIRGO — August 24-September 23
 Jupiter's temporary ingress into your sign may mitigate the severe conditions brought into your life by transiting Saturn. If your mind can stretch and detach enough to see the broad view Cause and Effect in things, you will definitely prosper.

LIBRA — September 24-October 23
 You may have trouble balancing your sense of power, or trying to be all things to everybody. Perhaps you should focus on a single goal and go after it—all the while steering clear of false prophets and wolves in lambs-wool.

SCORPIO — October 24-November 22
 Being in love can make you crazy and careless... so be aware of impulsive romantic desires and avoid clandestine and illicit relationships. However, if you have the capacity to intensely relate to more than one person at a time... give Love and Be All!

SAGITTARIUS — November 23-December 21
 Your romanticism and idealism could often prevent you from actualizing a practical reality. Life is good and bad; high and low; beautiful and ugly. The secret to well-being is to accept what is, and to use what's usable from either side.
CAPRICORN — December 22-January 20
 Opportunities to go up the ladder of success just the way you planned may finally draw on your horizon. A wise man once said—however... that the secret is not having what you want, but wanting what you have.
AQUARIUS — January 21-
