BLACKS ENCOURAGED TO ATTEND LAW SCHOOL SEMINAR SATURDAY

The Texas Tech School of Law will be the site of a "Law School Day Seminar" on Saturday, Oct. 22. This day-long event is designed to introduce the study of law to persons in the West Texas area who might be considering attending law school. The seminar is jointly sponsored by the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity and the Women's Law Caucus.

The program will begin with a discussion of admission procedures and entrance requirements. A mock trial and a moot court demonstration are planned as well as an introduction to legal research in the Tech Law Library. There will also be a tour of the law school and opportunities to talk with students and professors. A featured event will be a series of mini-seminars on the general topic, "How To Survive in Law School." These meetings will focus on special problems which might face the law student, such as having to work while you attend school, or being a minority law student or a female law student, or trying to raise a family while studying ten hours a day. These seminars will be led by law students who have "survived" these challenges.

"We hope members of the Black community will attend this special effort," said Risher Smith, member of the Women's Law Caucus. The Law School Day Seminar is free and is open to both current college students and graduates who are considering a return to school. A special invitation is extended to those who might lack access to information about a legal career.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Registration forms can be obtained from the Tech Law School. There will be limited registration at the door as space permits.

The program will begin at 9 Saturday morning, Oct. 22, and continue until 4 that afternoon. All meetings will be in the Law School building on the Texas Tech campus.

Many residents of East Lubbock are saying the upcoming suit against the City of Lubbock, brought forth by Gene Gaines, is good for the community.

The suit is on tap for Nov. 7.

Gaines, plaintiff in the case, filed the suit against the City of Lubbock, the mayor and city council. Those elected officials named specifically are Roy Bass, Carolyn Jordan, Brice Campbell, Dirk West, and Alan Henry.

The suit was filed April 3, 1976 in the United States District Court, Northern District of Texas, Federal Judge Halbert O. Woodard, U.S. District Judge.

The suit, which is scheduled to come up on the Federal docket next month, has been watched by citizens of the entire community for several months.

Gaines, in his brief to the court, says the "at large" system of electing councilmen and the de facto segregated geographical areas demonstrate present efforts of past discriminatory practices by the city council.

He tells the "Lubbock Digest" that this is so because in the past blacks had to live in certain geographic areas which have placed them (blacks) in such a dire economic situation that it is impossible and impracticable for them to move.

Because of this, Gaines contends, the result is that the elected members of the city council do represent the interest of members of the affluent areas since none of them live in the black community.

In his brief to the court, he said: "The at large system established by the city charter is arbitrary and capricious and without reference to any logical or reasonable formula whatever and is in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment."

The Lubbock Digest has learned from sources that citizens of the East Lubbock community will testify in behalf of the suit.

work 40 hours per week and will be paid not less than $2.30 per hour during training.

All applicants must meet CETA eligibility requirements.

Applications may be made at the CETA Intake Center, 1906 4th Street.

ESTACADO PYRAMID

While the Matadors are on the field in district play, these students are on the sidelines cheering their team on. Above they have just formed the ESTACADO PYRAMID. Members of the 1977 cheerleading squad are Robert Reed, Tracey Gatewood, Glenda Mackey, Carolyn Mitchell, Vanessa McCloud, Linda Mosley, Dorsita Price, Anise Jackson, Teresa Martinez, and Gerald Wilkerson.

"IT'S FOR ALL OF US!"

From time to time, we hear Blacks complain of no where to go or nothing to do. There are many things to do and places to go in our community. One only has to know where to find the proper resources.

For example, the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. This facility is for all of us. In this multi-million dollar facility, there are many rooms to accommodate any group or organization. It's only up to us as Black people to use what has been constructed for us.

As Black people, we pay taxes, and in many cases, in greater proportions than any other group of citizens. Since the taxpayers money is used to build such a facility, then why should we as Black people stay away and not use it?

The attendance of Blacks to this beautiful facility has been poor. We should use it, because we are helping to pay for it with our taxes. If you get an opportunity, go by this beautiful place and talk with Mickey Yeager and staff. These people will bend over backwards to help you in any activity you are interested in bringing to the facility.

To us, one of the most positive features of the center is the newly organized Lubbock Academy of Theatre Arts. Rick Brame, an artist in his own way, and staff are doing what they can with what they have to help young Black boys and girls learn something about the fine arts. Of course, this special program is not just limited to Black children, but to any young person in the community who wants to learn. As Rick would say: "We want people from age 3 to 99 years of age." He's very sincere about it also.

Many of those kids don't have the money to take the lessons. This is when Rick and Company find a way to see that these talented young people in our community has an opportunity. Without the Civic Center, however, we would have no Rick Brame. Since we have him in our community, let's support his program so he will stay with us.

Yes, many of us have failed to take advantage of this great facility. There is alot which needs to be done to bring the Black community into this effort. We would hope that something will be done in the very near future to see that there is a Black on the board of directors of the center. It's really needed badly.

Aside from representation of a Black man or woman on the board, let's start talking it up. Let's tell other brothers and sisters that the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center belongs to all the citizens of Lubbock. We cannot continue to put aside something which can help us as citizens and our children.

We say it belongs to all of us, so let's call Mickey Yeager and tell him we want to bring an activity there. While you are doing this, tell him you were advised in the Lubbock Digest, your newspaper.

Many of those who have read many of the articles I've written with another weekly publication in our city have been concerned about me writing the same type column with this newspaper. This writer will not use the same title, "AS I SEE IT," but will use the same style to get the message over to the people of our community about what is really going on. This column, which will appear from time to time, will be called: "Tell It Like It Is."

Another column, "Why Not?," will appear also each month. It's writer will be Eddie P. Richardson, an individual who has something to write about.

We hope you will enjoy reading the columns which will be well prepared for your reading. It is also our hope that you will get information which can be used by each of you in our community.

Representative Perren J. Mitchell (D-7th-Md.), Chairman of the Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, has said that the fears of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Bert Lance, of a return to double-digit interest rates are misplaced. He appears to be recommending monetary expansion to keep interest rates down. However, experience shows that rapid monetary growth is the cause, not the cure, of high interest rates. "But though I do not share his fears," Mitchell stated, "I have some concern about the near term course of monetary policy. The recent rise in short term interest rates is designed to prevent money growth from soaring above the target range, and setting off another calamity boom. However, the rise in rates could force money supply to grow too slowly for too long. We have to be alert to this danger as well as to the danger of excessively rapid money growth."

The Congressman continued, "Because of widespread concerns about current monetary policy, including those expressed by the Director, I asked my Subcommittee staff to prepare an analysis of recent moves by the Federal Reserve. The staff reassures me that monetary policy remains on the track."

Mitchell, who also serves as Chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, stressed that the Federal Reserve has not changed its targets for monetary growth. "This is the crucial element," he said. "Rapid money growth provides the foundation for double-digit inflation, and double-digit inflation, in turn, for double-digit interest rates."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I urge the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn Bakke v. U. of California Board of Regents and for Texas Tech School of Law to institute whatever policies are necessary to increase the number of minorities at the law school.

The basic premise for the American judicial system is "Liberty and Justice for All." To obtain this goal it is necessary to acquire access to all the various legal mechanisms including the courts and the legislature. This access requires skilled minority lawyers.

Historically, the legal profession has been instrumental in establishing the social institutions of today. The legal profession, therefore, must be held responsible for leading the way in curing the defects.

Minorities are far from equal in this society, socially, politically or economically. The reforms of the past decade made little inroad in the legacy of 400 years of discrimination: the median income of non-whites, income, virtually unchanged in over 20 years. Given this fundamental inequality, equal treatment of individuals according to the standards of white America leads to continued discrimination against third-world people. Economic, social, and educational disadvantages replace overt-racial classifications as means of perpetuating the inequitable status quo. "Equal protection of the law" now serves to prevent affirmative steps toward eliminating the effects of historic discrimination. This new form of discrimination is all the more insidious because it is cloaked behind a progressive sounding appeal for "equality."

We can not ignore the problems that the racial history of our country has left us. In order to continue on into the 21st century as a freedom loving democracy we must fulfill the mandate the Constitution proscribes - "Equal Justice for All." Anything less than equality will be disastrous. Any arguments or decisions made that result in less than equality in view of the historical overt discrimination and today's covert discrimination are in direct contradiction with the spirit and intent of the United States Constitution.

Sincerely,
Stephen C. McIntyre

WHY ARGUE? THE FACTS ARE HERE!

BLACK EMPOWERMENT

By Dr. Nathaniel Wright, Jr.
Human Rights Activist

RAW DEAL FOR WOMEN

Black Americans should be deeply disturbed about a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision which declared that seniority rules in employment are not necessarily unconstitutional unless they are found to be discriminatory on a deliberate basis.

The danger in the decision is two-fold. First, it dismisses out of hand the claims of equity which would hold that any unfair discrimination from which others have unfairly profited deserves adjudication and compensation.

On this basis, all black Americans would be seen as deserving "restitution and compensation" for any and all discriminatory treatment from which white Americans have benefited at the expense of black Americans.

But the major defect is that the decision, while affording blacks the possibility of relief on pre-1964 cases, on a case by case basis, allows no recourse whatever for women who have been victims of seniority rule discrimination.

Even though the long range economic consequences of discrimination against women is less felt (due largely to the social and legal arrangements of family life, including alimony payments), black Americans should still be aware of the fact that discrimination against women is statistically more widespread by far than is discrimination against black people.

Hence, in making our own arguments against discrimination, we as black Americans should look to women as potential allies, and especially so since most of our traditional allies—in labor groups, in Jewish organizations and in the Civil Liberties Union—have increasingly taken the other side, as in the immediate U.S. Supreme Court decision.

That women will not take the U.S. Supreme Court decision lying down is almost certain. Regardless of the sluggishness of the Equal Rights Amendment efforts by women, the vast majority of women are deeply sensitive to inherited job discrimination.

Here are some key facts for blacks to keep in mind as we possibly ally ourselves with women, specifically in the struggle for fair play in the nation's increasingly intricate and crucial economic arena.

One half of our nation's population is women, while only 20 to at most 25 percent of our population is comprised of blacks and other "affected classes" who are held by public law to have disadvantaged historically as the result of discriminatory practices.

Statistically, women's salaries as a percentage of men's for full-time work are declining. Statistically women with college degrees still earn less than men with a high school education.

Statistically, a mature "token" woman engineer or lawyer or whatever—i.e., a non-entry level type—has more barriers and fewer opportunities everywhere. Plus the environment in which women work is still hostile, and is reportedly more hostile at present (as women are pressing for more changes) than in the past.

We may add to this statistical image the human realities of many divorced women with children who have never received any sustained child support. Among black women in particular, it has been asserted that this may represent an overwhelming majority.

Even more widespread is the kind of unjust denial reflected in a thoughtful letter from a reader received earlier this year. She wrote:

"I work for the Bell System, and I have seen complaints by white males about 'reverse discrimination' you wouldn't believe. Unbelievable because how can the promotion of one or two women really keep down 500 good men?"

"Maybe what I have just said is unclear, but if two out of 20 promotions are 'non-white' (i.e., blacks and Hispanics) or 'non-male' (i.e. women), it is obvious to me that disproportionate and unfair opportunity for the white male has declined from 20/20 to 18/20; and he is still unfairly getting 90 percent of the promotions!"

The fact that this especially articulate and perceptive woman has worked for the Bell System is significant.

Most black Americans, especially those of the younger generation, know of the Bell System as "an enlightened employer" deeply sensitive to the needs and aspirations of blacks and other minorities. Such has been the Bell System's recently developed image.

Still, in the past, the Bell System, perhaps in a way more widespread than any other major employer, maintained for generations a kind of father-son hiring practice which meant that unless one happened to be related to a Bell System employee, one had precious little hope of ever getting in.

Indeed, the very flagrant and well-nigh notorious nature of this practice precipitated the Bell System's major pioneering efforts in the early 1960's in voluntarily adjusting its minority hiring practices.

Still "voluntary practices" never emanate from the strictest constraints of justice; hence they will be magnanimous at best, being merely "kind" where by law their just practice would represent one's basic right or due.

Black Americans must never settle for less than "the absolute requirements of justice."

If these requirements are to be fulfilled with the due haste which simple justice demands, blacks will need the support and alliances of women.

That both groups are grossly discriminated against economically should be evident on its face. Just how black Americans use this double discrimination to their advantage may hold the key to determining much of the future economic outlook for all black Americans.

POLICE HAPPENINGS

AGGRAVATED ASSAULT

It happened again this week. One of our sisters was apparently in love, but her lover was unhappy with her going out on the town. Can you imagine a brother getting mad over a sister enjoying herself in Lubbock?

Anyway, the lovely sister was leaving the "Crowd Pleaser, 2517 East 37th Street, one evening last week.

According to the police report, someone called her over to the car. She answered the call by going over to where the party was calling her.

When she got there, the lover apparently hit her on the left side of her head with a wine bottle. It knocked her down.

After falling to the ground, the man apparently kicked her in the door and his left hand in his pocket. The man asked her to open the cash register and give him the money. She did what he asked, and gave him $178.90.

"We had only been going together for only two months," she said.

She told police that she will file charges this week.

in the face and body. Grant was taken to Methodist Hospital for treatment.

Grant told police that he would file charges this week. It appears as though someone knows who was responsible for him being shot.

ROBBERY

ROSE MARIE PERRY, 2623 Parkway Drive, had a problem one day last week. She told police that she was locking the door of her business, Sunbeam Laundry at 1865 Parkway Drive, when a man took advantage of her.

She said the man opened the door and pushed her back against the wall. He had his right hand on the door and his left hand in his pocket.

The man asked her to open the cash register and give him the money. She did what he asked, and gave him $178.90.

Mission Two, Junior Mission and the Brotherhood Union meet at the church each Monday evening at 8.

Prayer meeting is held each Wednesday evening at 7. The crops is the banner and standard of him who has overcome and triumphed, not by fighting and slaying but by his own bitter death.

Let us pray for and visit our sick and shut in members. Those on the sick list include Sisters Dolly Howard, Lillie Hall, Ellen Tillman, and Roxie Reed.

The Music Department of our church had a lovely program last Sunday evening.

Twentieth & Birch Church of Christ

It was decided in last week's business meeting that the congregation here will be the sponsor of an Annual Lectureship, and Annual Ladies Day, and an Annual Youth Rally Day.

These special and worthwhile efforts are scheduled to take place here between early Spring and Summer of each year.

Beginning last Sunday, a group from the congregation began conducting worship services at the Sky-view Memorial Nursing Home. Services are held from 9:15 a.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON DISCOVERING TRUE SECURITY

Luke 12:16-31.

16 And he told them a parable, saying, "The land of a rich man brought forth plentifully; 17 and he thought to himself, 'What shall I do, for I have nowhere to store my crops?' 18 And he said, 'I will do this: I will pull down my barns, and build larger ones; and there I will store all my grain and my goods, 19 And I will say to my soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; take your ease, eat, drink, be merry.' 20 But God said to him, 'Fool! This night your soul is required of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?' 21 So is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God!"

22 And he said to his disciples, "Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you shall eat, nor about your body, what you shall put on. 23 For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. 24 Consider the ravens; they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than the birds! 25 And which of you by being anxious can add a cubit to his span of life? 26 If then you are not able to do as small a thing as this, why are you anxious about the rest? 27 Consider the lilies, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. 28 But if God so clothes the grass which is alive in the field today and tomorrow is thrown into the ovens, how much more will he clothe you, O men of little faith! 29 And do not seek what you are to eat and what you are to drink, nor be of anxious mind. 30 For all the nations of the world seek these things; and your Father knows that you need them. 31 Instead, seek his kingdom, and these things shall be yours as well.

WORDS OF LIFE Biblical Inspiration For The Week

"Pray..."—James 5:16

1. Prayer is Jesus' example. Jesus continually prayed to his Father in heaven. He said: "Pray after this manner," as he taught us what has come to be known as the "Our Father" or "The Lord's Prayer." Because Jesus has taught us to pray, we ought to do as he both did and commanded us to do. 2. Prayer unites. Prayer brings us to be at one with God and with all who live, both here and hereafter, in

God. "As near as each soul is to God, so near is he to those, who though beyond the veil have passed, yet in God's life repose." 3. Prayer changes things. In prayer we lift our lives to God and ask that he will bless the things we do and what we say with his own blessedness. There is no more helpful, healing exercise on earth for us to do than obey the command to pray. "Pray."

make communities and companies like Atlanta Life Insurance grow," he told a large group of citizens at the church.

"Without people like Mr. Cooke, we wouldn't be able to grow like we have," said the president of the $100,000,000 insurance company.

"Mr. Cooke was elected to the Board of Directors of Atlanta Life Insurance because of his outstanding record," said Mr. Hill.

Also citing Mr. Cooke for his many achievements with the Black owned insurance company was Henry N. Brown, secretary and senior vice president who was a classmate of Mr. Cooke in Waco. "I'm very proud to be here, this day and be a part of this great program for him," said Mr. Brown.

He was presented a gift from the company by Mr. Brown who flew in from Atlanta to make the special presentation.

Dr. Heenan Johnson introduced the speaker of the hour. "We are most fortunate to have one of the most outstanding Blacks in America to be with us on this occasion," said Dr. Johnson.

With tears in his eyes, Mr. Cooke told the congregation of his appreciation for such an appreciation. "Words can't express how I feel, but I would like to thank each of you," said Mr. Cooke.

"My family and I are happy," he said. Last Sunday morning was his birthday.

Youth Choir Number One of Bethel was responsible for the music of the hour. It was under the direction of F. E. Brown, with Avis E. Patterson as pianist.

"We wanted to do something for a man who has done so much for his church and community," said Rev. A.W. Wilson, pastor.

Dr. R. A. Pillow made a special presentation to Mr. Cooke from the Trust Department of the church.

don't support the young people like we can and should.

The crowd was small as compared in past years. It is up to us to get behind all activities of these young people. After all, they are our adults of tomorrow. If we don't support them, then who will.

Of course, what happened last week is past history. Why not start doing something NOW about supporting these young people. They need our support now.

Young people, don't give up because the adults of the Black community didn't support you like they should have done. You are still great! Hang in there and keep doing something positive for yourself, school and community.

The Atlanta Life Insurance Company should be proud of their president, Jesse Hill, Jr. who was in our city last weekend. His presence here should make every Black brother and sister proud to be Black. We hope to be able to have other outstanding Black brothers and sisters in our city in the future.

The visitation of Mr. Hill was a first for the Atlanta Life Insurance Company. It was the first time, to this writer's knowledge, that anyone from this company's home office has visited our city.

This man, who was truly tired after traveling many places in America over the past few weeks, told it like it really is last Sunday morning at Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church. It's a shame all Blacks in Lubbock were not present at this special effort.

Maybe other top Blacks will come and speak to us. It is our hope that this type of an effort will continue. What's good for the Black community is good for Lubbock.

Among the guest attending the services were State Sen. Kent Hance, State Rep. and Mrs. Froy Salinas and daughter, Judge and Mrs. Rod Shaw and many others. "What's happening to me today, can happen to many of the young people here today if you work hard," he concluded.

Today's Cows Yield Twice as Much Milk As Those in 1945

In 1945 America's dairy herd of 25 million cows produced 119.8 billion pounds of milk — but this year the herd, although now down to 11 million cows, is expected to produce more than 120 billion pounds, according to Dairy Research Inc., a part of the United Dairy Industry Assn.

This means that the average annual yield per cow has risen from less than 2.5 tons in 1945 to more than 5 tons today.
