

NOSIN' . .

WITH POLLY

John Garrett being a man with an eye for business, was inviting most of the town out to Mike Dent's for dinner one day last week. Upon being asked if Mike knew they were being invited, John explained "I don't guess he does but he bought half a beef from me and the sooner he eats it up, the sooner he'll buy another half."

Little Joe Dent, grandson of Hubby Dent was in the store this week. Someone came in and spoke to him and said "What are you doing?" To this, he replied "Helping Harold." Then came the question "Well what's Harold doing?" To this, Joe replied "Just moseying around."

Floyd Brock, a friend of the Starkey's and a Loveland contractor who has been working in Earth for the past month, and taking his meals at the Quick Lunch Cafe, became ill last week, and sent word to Mrs. Starkey that her biscuits had made him ill. Faye, upon receiving his message, wrapped up a couple of her biscuits and sent them back to him. I guess she works on the theory of giving him a "hair" from the dog that bit him."

Mrs. Marvin Sanders, and Mrs. Phelps just made life so simple for me by keeping the office open last weekend, that I took off for Oklahoma to see our folks. Came back Monday there they were, office open, everything going smooth. Folks like that surely help to make life more happy for their fellow man.

SS Classes Set Dec. 14 Date For Christmas Party

The Ruth and Lydia Sunday school classes of the First Baptist church met with Mrs. Dora Bell Tuesday night for their regular monthly business meeting. The ladies discussed plans for their Christmas party which will be held Tuesday night, Dec. 14, in the home of Mrs. Paul Wood. Pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream and coffee were served to Mrs. Kathleen Cole, Clota Bell Kelley, Faye Waide Opal McCarty, Matt Patterson, Ollitha Sanders, Connie Sanderson, Wanda Marie Haberer as co-hostess and Dora Bell Kelley.

GS Troop 21 To Make Gifts For Needy Family

Girl Scout Troop 21 met Thursday afternoon for its regular meeting. Judy Woods, president called the roll. Judith Chester, secretary, took up the dues. During the business session the group voted to make gifts for a needy family for Christmas. They also made plans to visit a girl in the near future. "Jimmy Crack Corn," "Little White House over the Hill" and "Make My Living in Sandy Land," were played by the group.

Sunbeams Hear About Japan

The primary Sunbeams met Tuesday afternoon in the First Baptist Church to continue their study on Japan. The Worship Program was begun with the rally cry led by Kenneth Kendrick and the watchword by Pruda Sanders. The Sunbeam song was led by Dean Kirby and the Prayer by Linda Kelley.

The group were told a story of a typical Japanese home where two Japanese girls lived and attended a Kindergarten class. In the story, Japanese customs and ways were highlighted. A Japanese game was played and the group sang "Jesus Loves Me" in Japanese. Some of the groups completed the build up posters on which they have been working for the past six weeks. These posters are symbolic of the life in Japan. This ended their study of Japan.

Mrs. Pat McCord served refreshments to Vicki Talbert, Donna Scott, Jill McCord, Peggy Kelley, Jesse Cole, Buddy Burnett, Freddie Kelley, Cheryl Welch, Kenneth Kendrick, Kenneth Schaefer, Dean Kirby, Pruda Sanders, Alice Jacques, Joan Sanderson, Cheryl Foster, Donna Davis, Jacqueline Parish, Carolyn Cowley, Lonnie Whitford, Jerry Anderson, Louise Gregory, Carol Ann Kendrick, Linda Ardis, Wanda Robinson, Alie Pearl Waide, Louise Payne, Tommy Gregory and Donna Kay Talbert.

Counselors present were Wayne Rutherford, Linda Kelley Francis Cole and Betty Parish.

Board Lets Building Contract; Injunction Will Be Requested

Cafe Man Charged With Liquor And Barbiturate Sales

Wednesday night three local men helped the sheriff's force make a case against Vivian De Luna, manager of the Luna Cafe here. They called Sheriff Dyer's office and reported that one of them had purchased dope from De Luna. They offered some capsules as evidence and asked his arrest.

Officers took the evidence and said they would send it to a crime laboratory to be analyzed. They reported Thursday that they had arrested De Luna and charged him with sale of liquor and barbiturates, although they say the capsules may turn out to be stronger than barbiturates.

Primary Sunbeams To Study Brazil

The primary Sunbeams will begin a new five meeting series of study on Brazil, beginning Tuesday at the First Baptist church. This is in preparation for "The Foreign Mission Offering" the Sunbeams are accustomed to giving each year near Christmas time.

Two special meetings will be held on Saturday in order for the group to have the entire study course by the first of Dec.

The offering each child will bring at the end of the series will have time to arrive at its destination for Christmas. Schedule of meetings for the next month is Tuesday, Nov. 16; Tuesday, Nov. 23; Saturday, Nov. 27; Tuesday, Nov. 30; and Saturday, Dec. 1.

Sunbeams End Japanese Study

The pre school age Sunbeams met Tuesday evening with their leaders, Mrs. Delma McCarty, Mrs. Elton Schafer and Mrs. Donald Kelley. The children heard stories about Japan and Bible stories. Later they colored in their Japanese color books. Refreshments were served to Becky Parish, Donna Welch, Linda Gregory, Annita and Donita Kelley.

Odd Fellows To Make Tractor Award November 22

Earth Odd Fellow Lodge 123 has organized a Past Grand club and it was announced that a donation of $25 would go toward a Ford tractor which will be given away Nov. 22 at the Community building following the Rebekah Thanksgiving dinner. The tractor is on display in front of Star cafe. It was announced that all donations would be appreciated and proceeds would go to the building fund to pay for the Lodge hall.

Brownies Present Towels To Lions

Brownie Scout troop 23 accompanied by their assistant leader, Mrs. Terry Moore, presented the Lions Club with a large number of tea-towels which the group had made during scout meeting. They arrived at the Sanders Lumber Co., where Lions President Delma McCarty is manager, introduced themselves and presented the tea-towels.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Brockert, are adding a dining room, bath and utility room to their home, 1 1/2 miles north and 1/2 mile west of Springlake school.

Shots Shatter Windows At School and In Cafe

Two shooting frays in the area alarmed citizens last weekend. The first took place Saturday night in the Aquilon Cafe in Earth. Arturo Rodriguez was arrested and charged with aggravated assault. He is alleged to have fired several shots from a pistol at his father-in-law, Polo Cantu, operator of the cafe. No one was injured but the bullets shattered plate glass in the front of the cafe.

The second shooting in the area took place sometime Sunday night. An unknown gunman fired fifteen .22 caliber bullets through the front door of the Springlake high school building. Six panes of glass were shot out. The other nine rounds penetrated the 2 1/2 inch wood door and some of them imbedded themselves in the bulkhead board.

The vandalism was discovered Monday morning. No one on the campus reported hearing the shots. Superintendent O. E. Lumsden said he was in the building about 1 p.m. and that it had not occurred at that time.

Deputy Sheriff Randolph investigated the incident Monday but so far as is known found no clues as to the gunman's identity.

However, Thursday afternoon a gun was found in a student's car and authorities are checking it to see if it is the one which fired the bullets found in the school walls.

Superintendent O. E. Lumsden and Principal A. H. Burton found the gun while searching for whiskey in student's cars. Their search took place after a boy turned up somewhat intoxicated in class after the noon hour. The classroom teacher sent him to the office and the superintendent took him home, then undertook a search of the cars to see if they could find the source of his liquor. They found one bottle of liquor and a .22 caliber pistol.

The sheriff's office was notified and Deputy Homer McClary investigated the incident and said he would turn the gun over to Randolph. No arrests had been made or charges filed late Thursday afternoon.

The school trustees were called into a special meeting Thursday night to consider the matter.

Wolverines Still Trying For A Tie

The Springlake Wolverines suffered their only conference defeat of the year last Friday when the big Dimmitt line stopped the Wolverine rushing attack until the final quarter, and bad luck plagued their passing game.

This leaves Amherst and Dimmitt undefeated in the conference. The Springlake aggregation hopes to knock Amherst off the top rail tonight, and then are hoping that Amherst's fine passing combination of Nuttall to Hardwick will find Dimmitt's Achilles heel and throw the district championship back into a three way tie, where it was before last Friday.

The game with Amherst kicks off at the local stadium at 8 p. m., tonight.

Visual Aid Program Given At First Baptist

A visual aid program was held Sunday at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church. Rev. James Clark, employee of the Baptist book store in Fort Worth, was the main speaker, assisted by James John, student at the Seminary in Fort Worth.

Rev. Clark demonstrated the various equipment used in visual aid programs. Record players, movie projectors, film strips, slides and strips, flannel boards and opaque projectors, all of which are useful in assembly programs or classroom activities for all departments in the church.

Pat McCord is the visual aid chairman for the church? He studied visual aid work while he was serving in the armed forces. There were approximately twenty-five present for the meeting.

Seven Win Turkeys At Sunday Shoot

Seven persons won turkeys in another Jaycee turkey shoot Sunday afternoon at the former city park location. Proceeds are used for Jaycees activities during the year. Anyone is eligible to enter the shoot.

Billy Hodge was the top winner Sunday, taking home three frozen turkeys. Rusty Henderson was a two time winner. Other winners were James Herriage, Jerrell Jacques, Jack Hadaway, Marion Barlowe and Bob Boone.

Pvt. Hinson On 14-Day Leave

Pvt. and Mrs. Kenneth Hinson arrived in Springlake Sunday morning for a 14 day furlough. Pvt. Hinson and Mrs. Hinson will leave Nov. 19 for Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, where he will begin a medical training course at Brooks Medical Training Center there.

Mrs. Bill Kisinger was recently released from the Greene Clinic in Farwell, where she had received several blood transfusions, after having had the flu.

A few days after her release she cut her hand and lost all her donated blood, and had to have three stitches taken in her hand.

Now imagine is some what recuperated and we hope nothing else happens for awhile at least until she is strong again.

School District Voters Favor Present Site 6 to 5

After winning two more rounds in the battle over the new school buildings the Springlake school board signed a contract Tuesday night with S. R. Duncan of Lubbock to commence work at once upon the construction of the new school buildings on the present campus. The group which has been trying to get the new buildings at Earth claimed that the board had broken a promise not to award a contract until the dispute had been settled in the courts. They said that an injunction against the carrying out of the contract would be requested in district court.

Soldiers Home On Furlough

Pvt. Mackey McCarty of Earth and Pvt. Dudley Roach of Springlake, arrived Sunday morning to spend a fourteen day furlough here with their parents. Both boys took their basic training at Ft. Bliss, and after their furlough, they will go to Camp Gordon, Georgia for 28 weeks of special training courses.

Brownie Troop 24 has Election

Brownie Scouts of Troop 24 met with their leaders, Mrs. Denton Talbert and Mrs. Elmer Kelley, Thursday, Nov. 4. Rev. Gene McBride, outgoing president, was in charge of a short business session in which Floydell Crawford was elected new president, Donna Kay Talbert, song leader, Creyl Foster, game leader and Marilyn Coker and Carolyn Kelley, hostesses.

Other members present were Vicki Prather and June Propes. Vicki Lynn Talbert was a guest. The scouts played games, and Girl Scout calendars to sell were given to each Brownie. The group formed the magic tunnel and deposited their weekly 5 cent dues in their Brownie bank.

Take Dinner At Muleshoe

Mrs. W. C. Terry, Mrs. Zoe Wilson, Mrs. Bonnie Haberer and Mrs. Lina Hite were guests of Mrs. Carra Morgan at a dinner in Muleshoe Sunday. The group then went to the Haberer home where they visited for a few hours, later they had cake and coffee in the Terry home.

Matthews Have New Daughter

Rev. and Mrs. Gene Matthews are the parents of a 7 pound, 7 ounce daughter, born Thursday, Nov. 4 in the Amherst hospital. Marta, is the Matthews' first daughter. They have three other sons, Michael 7, Larry 4 1/2, and Roy 2 1/2. Matthews is pastor of the First Methodist Church of Earth.

Farmers Union Elect Delegates

Farmer's Union met Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Community building. Rev. Cecil Meadows, pastor of the local First Baptist Church, was guest speaker for the evening. His subject was "Christian Rural Overseas Program."

The group selected delegates to attend the State Convention held at Wichita Falls on Dec. 3 and 4th.

SPRINGLAKE HIGH SCHOOL student Lou Ellen Antior points to some of the bullet holes in the school's front door, put there by an unknown gunman Sunday night. (News Photo)

543 voters turned out in Saturday's referendum and voted 292 to 247 to erect the new buildings at the present school site. At the Springlake box the count was 179 for the present location, 5 for moving to Earth and 2 for moving to Springlake. In the Earth box 113 voted for the present site, 242 for moving to Earth and 2 for moving to Springlake.

Proponents of the move to Earth contend that if the votes cast in the Earth box by persons living on the east side of the district were removed, the west side vote would have been four to one for beginning a school system at Earth, and that on that basis they would continue to oppose the construction of the buildings at the present site.

Ted Borum, one of the appellants in the litigation, told reporters Wednesday, "After careful consideration of the issue concerning the location of our schools, and because so many people have insisted, we, the appellants, have decided to appeal the decision of the State Board of Education to a district court."

Borum said he was speaking for the other two appellants and for the school patrons who are backing them. Monday the State Board of Education at Austin upheld the previous decision of the Commissioner of Education, who ruled that the Springlake school board had the authority to decide where the buildings should be erected.

The contract as let Tuesday calls for four additional rooms added on the north end of the present high school building, a 12 room elementary building to lie just north of the cafeteria and parallel to it, and a 1100 seat gymnasium and a 1000 seat auditorium south of the high school and north of the stadium. These two will be separate sections but will be under one roof. The back part of the auditorium section will include a band practice room, four individual practice rooms and a band office.

Total amount of the contract for the above construction is $359,975. With $30,000 remaining from the $400,000 bond issue, the school board hopes to increase the elementary building to 14 rooms.

Royal Couples First Home

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's
Editor

The Duchess of Windsor has her decorating problems, even as any housewife, she reveals in her first published article, which will appear in two installments in the October and November issues of Woman's Home Companion.

Her subject is the remodeling and decorating of the "first real home" she and the Duke have owned since their marriage—a quaint old stone mill about an hour's drive from Paris. Describing step by step the transformation of the mill into a home, the Duchess writes:

"After living in rented houses and with other people's things for so long—we've gathered together in this enchanted spot all our most cherished possessions. Like the arden we've planted here, we've put down roots.

This is the first home the Duke and I have owned since we were married—in fact it is the only one—for even our house in Paris is leased. What endears it to me is not only that it is really ours, but that it is so different from any house we have lived in before. And because it is small and intimate and informal, I have been able to use the things we love most and have owned for years."

One of the problems faced by the Duchess was making room for all the priceless collections and furnishings owned by the man who once was King of England, and in blending harmoniously the many styles of furniture accumulated by both the Duke and Duchess from their many previous homes. She says:

"We've used a great deal of the furniture that came from Fort Belvedere, the Duke's home when he was Prince of Wales and King. We also have here some of the things we had in Nassau and the furniture we had made for us when we were married.

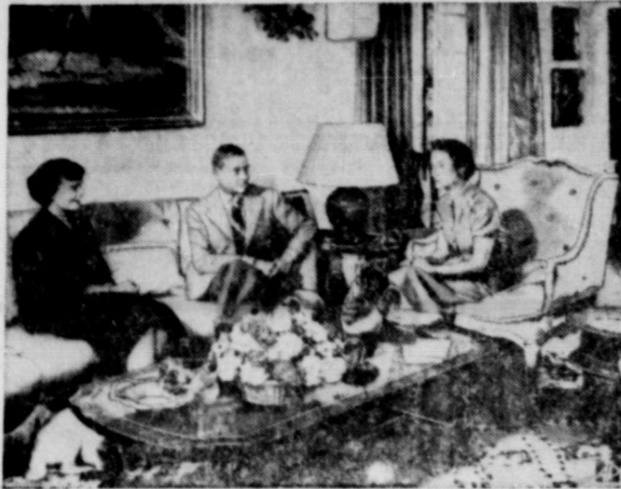

"I suppose because we haven't had a house of our own for so long, the Duke and I like to surround ourselves with familiar things. Each small object reminds us of some event in our lives, some shared experience, some old friend or member of our families. We both are terrific collectors by nature and collections reared a place to stay. Of course you have to add, too, my passion for fixing up and decorating houses.

"That began years ago when I was a navy wife. Wherever I lived, I soon learned that there were certain tricks which would turn an impersonal or discouraging room into something homelike and personal. And this experience has stood me in good stead since. I've learned that the things you love and that mean most to you are the important furnishings of a house."

The royal couple discovered their dream house two years ago, dring down a winding road from Paris. The old mill, consisting of four buildings, had been the residence of the painter Drian who had done a portrait of the Duchess before the war. The Duke had been talking of buying "a little place in the country" while the Duchess was holding out for a house in Paris. But she lost her heart to the old stone mill. The remodeling presented many problems, as she explains:

"Stone walls two feet thick and hand-hewn beams a foot square aren't easy to alter. We wanted to make one large hall out of the entry and sitting room on the first floor of the mill building. Of course, plumbing is a problem in any old house and we had worked over and over our plans to fit into the tiny space the bathrooms we needed."

After getting a builder started on the major architectural

DRAWING ROOM . . . Here the Duke and Duchess of Windsor chat with their friend, Margaret Biddle, who helped advise them on the decorating and remodeling of their "first real home," near Paris. The sofa group is ornamented by the famous picture Sir Alfred Munnings painted of the Duke on horseback when he was Prince of Wales. The coffee table, given the couple in Nassau, has a map of the Bahams in black and antique bronze.

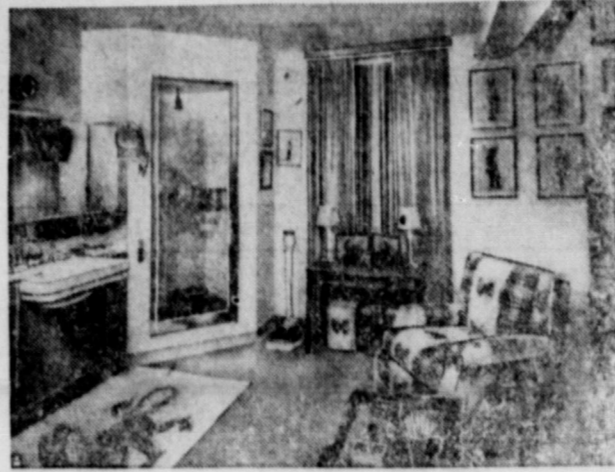

DUCHESS' BEDROOM . . . The far window behind the dressing table opens over the millstream, of which the Duchess says: "What I love best about this room is the peaceful splashing of the waterfall under the window." She has used clear pastel colors in the striped antique taffeta draperies over the old beams, and in the harlequin bedspread. The little Victorian rocker in the foreground belonged to the Duchess' American grandmother.

changes, the Duchess left for New York, and a shopping spree. She writes: "I adore to shop. All my friends know I'd rather shop than eat. I could hardly wait to get to New York to look for wallpapers and fabrics for the mill."

In its present finished state, the house is a charming blend of the old and the new, with every room filled with treasures from the romantic past of the famous couple. The Duchess has gone in for a great deal of color throughout the house, but her favorite room appears to be her bedroom, which she describes thus:

"My bedroom is long and narrow with sloping beams, a little like a tent—so I decided to emphasize this by draping the beams with striped antique taffeta. The colors in the curtains are repeated in the harlequin bedcover—a present from my husband on my last birthday. Its pieces are put together by hand like a patchwork quilt—I had decided it would be too expensive but the Duke ordered it for me anyway as a surprise."

Explaining her theory of decoration, the Duchess says: "I think every house should have a theme in decoration—even if the theme is as simple as the one I chose for the mill—fruit and flowers. Then the decoration becomes something like a musical composition, each room carries the theme but with variations of mood and pace."

DUKE'S DRESSING ROOM . . . Writes the Duchess: "One of our planning problems was the Duke's dressing room and bath just across the landing from my room. We solved it by building fixtures into closets and cabinets and setting a stall shower in one corner."

Between 1909 and today, U. S. per capita consumption of eggs increased 40 per cent, green vegetables 60 per cent, citrus fruit and tomatoes 80 per cent.

Earth Is Well Represented At District 9 WMU Meeting

The First Baptist Church of Earth was well represented as the societies of the West Plains Association of Women's Mission Union met Tuesday in Littlefield First Baptist church for the 36th annual session of District 9 WMU.

Those attending from Earth were Mrs. Leon Foster, Mrs. Meadows, Mrs. Earl Miller, Gerald Inglis, Mrs. T. S. Mrs. Lena Hite, Mrs. D. E. Mrs. Mrs. Travis Scott, and Earl Parish.

Highlights of the meeting were Mrs. Clark Estes. Costumed members of the WMU represented the 12 societies in 1880 and the organization's growth since then. Mrs. Estes and Mrs. Melvin Pittman served as readers as the participants in the pageant presented pantomimes and displayed comparative posters.

Miss Henderson, who is executive secretary of the WMU of Texas, Dallas in her address, "We Must Prevail," told the members what must be done in the future to mission work.

The session theme was based on the 75th year of WMU in Texas, the Diamond Jubilee year, and the district theme was "They did not fail—We must prevail."

In a business session presided over by Mrs. Henry Heck of Idaho, reports were heard from the officers and committees, including Mrs. Lee Hemphill of Littlefield, who is Young People's Director for the district.

All district officers were re-elected.

The call to worship in music for the morning session was presented by Mrs. J. N. Marks, Jr., with an accordion solo; in song by a trio from Levelland; in scripture by Mrs. A. Hope Owen; and in prayer by Rev. F. E. Swanner. Hymns of praise were led by Raymond James, Lubbock, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Don Kinard and at the organ by Mrs. Earl Hobbs, both of Lubbock.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Cecil Bartlett of Littlefield, and by Mrs. J. G. Edwards president of the West Plains Association of WMU.

Royal Couples First Home

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's
Editor

The Duchess of Windsor has her decorating problems, even as any housewife, she reveals in her first published article, which will appear in two installments in the October and November issues of Woman's Home Companion.

Her subject is the remodeling and decorating of the "first real home" she and the Duke have owned since their marriage—a quaint old stone mill about an hour's drive from Paris. Describing step by step the transformation of the mill into a home, the Duchess writes:

"After living in rented houses and with other people's things for so long—we've gathered together in this enchanted spot all our most cherished possessions. Like the arden we've planted here, we've put down roots.

This is the first home the Duke and I have owned since we were married—in fact it is the only one—for even our house in Paris is leased. What endears it to me is not only that it is really ours, but that it is so different from any house we have lived in before. And because it is small and intimate and informal, I have been able to use the things we love most and have owned for years."

One of the problems faced by the Duchess was making room for all the priceless collections and furnishings owned by the man who once was King of England, and in blending harmoniously the many styles of furniture accumulated by both the Duke and Duchess from their many previous homes. She says:

"We've used a great deal of the furniture that came from Fort Belvedere, the Duke's home when he was Prince of Wales and King. We also have here some of the things we had in Nassau and the furniture we had made for the house we rented at LaCroc—our first home after we were married.

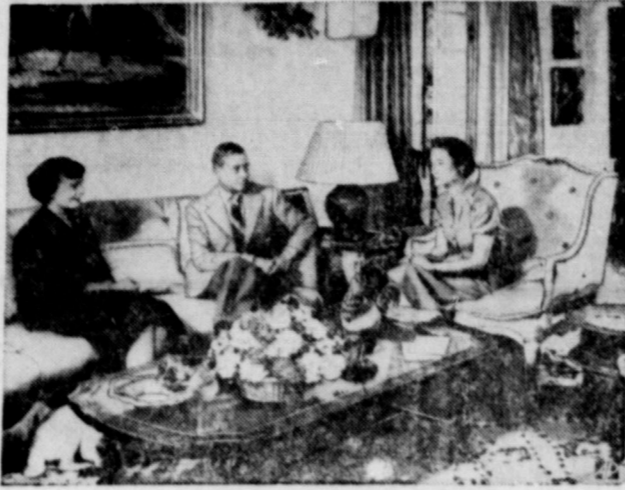

"I suppose because we haven't had a house of our own for so long, the Duke and I like to surround ourselves with familiar things. Each small object reminds us of some event in our lives, some shared experience, some old friend or members of our families. We both are terrific collectors by nature and collections need a place to stay. Of course you have to add, too, my passion for fixing up and decorating houses."

"That began years ago when I was a navy wife. Wherever I lived, I soon learned that there were certain tricks which would turn an impersonal or discouraging room into something homelike and personal. And this experience has stood me in good stead since I've learned that the things you love and that mean most to you are the important furnishings of a house."

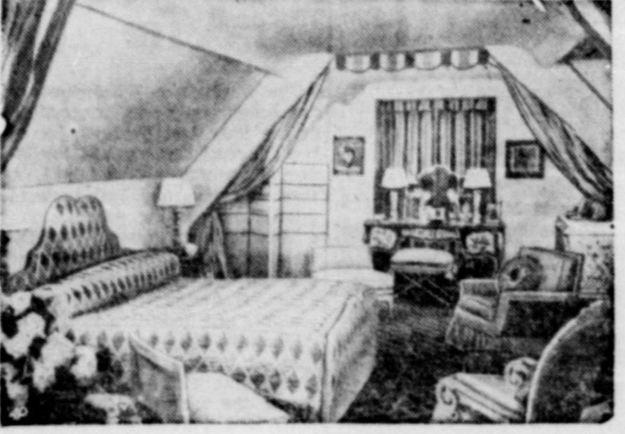

The royal couple discovered their dream house two years ago, dring down a winding road from Paris. The old mill, consisting of four buildings, had been the residence of the painter Drian who had done a portrait of the Duchess before the war. The Duke had been talking of buying "a little place in the country" while the Duchess was holding out for a house in Paris. But she lost her heart to the old stone mill. The remodeling presented many problems, as she explains:

"Stone walls two feet thick and hand-hewn beams a foot square aren't easy to alter. We wanted to make one large hall out of the entry and sitting room on the first floor of the mill building. Of course, plumbing is a problem in any old house and we had worked over and over our plans to fit into the tiny space the bathrooms we needed."

After getting a builder started on the major architectural

DRAWING ROOM . . . Here the Duke and Duchess of Windsor chat with their friend, Margaret Biddle, who helped advise them on the decorating and remodeling of their "first real home," near Paris. The sofa group is ornamented by the famous picture Sir Alfred Munnings painted of the Duke on horseback when he was Prince of Wales. The coffee table, given the couple in Nassau, has a map of the Bahams in black and antique bronze.

DUCHESS' BEDROOM . . . The far window behind the dressing table opens over the millstream, of which the Duchess says: "What I love best about this room is the peaceful splashing of the waterfall under the window." She has used clear pastel colors in the striped antique taffeta draperies over the old beams, and in the harlequin bedspread. The little Victorian rocker in the foreground belonged to the Duchess' American grandmother.

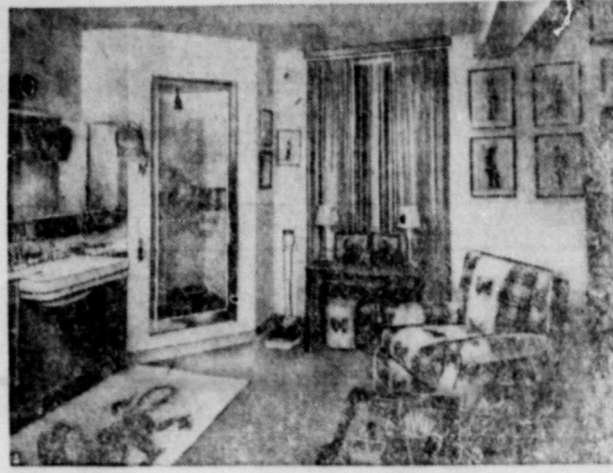

changes, the Duchess left for New York, and a shopping spree. She writes:

"I adore to shop. All my friends know I'd rather shop than eat. I could hardly wait to get to New York to look for wall papers and fabrics for the mill."

In its present finished state, the house is a charming blend of the old and the new, with every room filled with treasures from the romantic past of the famous couple. The Duchess has gone in for a great deal of color throughout the house, but her favorite room appears to be her bedroom, which she describes thus:

"My bedroom is long and narrow with sloping beams, a little like a tent—so I decided to emphasize this by draping the old beams with striped antique taffeta. The colors in the curtains are repeated in the harlequin bedcover—a present from my husband on my last birthday. Its pieces are put together by hand like a patchwork quilt—I had decided it would be too expensive but the Duke ordered it for me anyway as a surprise."

Explaining her theory of decoration, the Duchess says: "I think every house should have a theme in decoration—even if the theme is as simple as the one I chose for the mill—fruit and flowers. Then the decoration becomes something like a musical composition, each room carries the theme but with variations of mood and pace."

DUKE'S DRESSING ROOM . . . Writes the Duchess: "One of our planning problems was the Duke's dressing room and bath just across the landing from my room. We solved it by building fixtures into closets and cabinets and setting a stall shower in one corner."

Between 1909 and today, U. S. per capita consumption of eggs increased 40 percent, green vegetables 60 per cent, citrus fruit and tomatoes 80 per cent.

Parish Is Well Represented At District 9 WMU Meeting

First Baptist Church of Earth was well represented at the meeting of the West Plains Association of Women's Missionary Societies held Tuesday in Littlefield First Baptist church of the 36th annual session of District 9 WMU.

Those attending from Earth were Mrs. Leon Foster, Mrs. Meadows, Mrs. Earl Miller, Gerald Inglis, Mrs. T. S. Mrs. Lena Hite, Mrs. D. E. Mrs. Travis Scott, and Earl Parrish.

Highlights of the meeting were "Missions Yesterday and Tomorrow," by Mrs. Parker of Chili, a pageant singing WMU from 1880 until an afternoon address, "Must Prevail" by Miss Eula Henderson.

Mrs. Parker told the more than 100 persons attending the meeting much could be done for missions by just giving up one of the little things for themselves. She illustrated her appeal with such things as the price of a package of chewing gum. She stressed the needs of the mission workers in Chili and emphasized there is a great need for the WMU to be more faithful in mission support.

Mrs. Parker was born in Pickton and was graduated from Texas Tech in 1937. She was appointed in 1942 and has been in Santiago since then where she attended language school and has served in different capacities with the church and as dean of women. Mr. and Mrs. Parker have two children.

The pageant was directed by Mrs. Clark Estes. Costumed members of the WMU represented the 12 societies in 1880 and the organization's growth since then. Mrs. Estes and Mrs. Melvin Pittman served as readers as the partied pants in the pageant presented pantomimes and displayed comparative posters.

Miss Henderson, who is executive secretary of the WMU of Texas, Dallas in her address, "We Must Prevail," told the members what must be done in the future in mission work.

The session theme was based on the 75th year of WMU in Texas, the Diamond Jubilee year, and the district theme was "They did not fail—Me must prevail."

Time To Mail Christmas Overseas Packages Is Now, Postmaster Advises

IT'S UP TO YOU

By
Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

In recent weeks many millions of people throughout the world have participated in special religious services. It has been one of the most widely spread worship experiences in human history. World Wide Communion Sunday united all fellowships of Christians in this rededication to God as the Supreme being. The Protestant churches of the world including their member groups behind the iron curtain broke together in renewed dedication to the service of God. Millions participated in this great sacrament and prayed for themselves, their families, their nations and a world distressed by sin, sorrow and war. Such a united prayer coupled with serious action applying the principles of the Savior could change the world situation very rapidly.

The month prior to Nov. 15 again has been designated as the acceptable time for mailing Christmas parcels to members of the armed forces serving outside the continental United States, according to Littlefield Postmaster C. A. Joplin.

The term "armed forces overseas," has been made to include the personnel of the armed forces, members of their families and authorized United States civilians employed overseas who receive their mail in care of postmaster. New York, N.Y.; San Francisco, Calif.; New Orleans, La.; Seattle, Wash.; or Fleet Post Office at New York, N.Y., or San Francisco, Calif.

Air parcel post intended for personnel of the Armed Forces serving overseas or on naval vessels should be mailed not later than Nov. 25. Such parcels destined for delivery in Japan, Korea and the islands in the Pacific should be mailed as early as possible, preferably not later than Nov. 1, in view of the distances involved, Joplin said.

Articles for overseas delivery should be packed in boxes of metal, wood, solid fiberboard or strong, double-faced corrugated fiberboard, testing at least 275 lbs. Fiberboard boxes should be tied, as other boxes, with two lengths, and two crosswise cords knotted at crossings, then covered with heavy paper and tied same way again. Gummed on the flaps where they meet strengthen the boxes but are satisfactory alone. Boxes should contain sufficient cushioning material to prevent rattles or jarring of contents.

Christmas cards should be with first-class postage rate Nov. 15, or by Dec. 1 if sent air mail, to insure delivery to Christmas.

Addresses should include serial numbers and rank. APO numbers of the addressee, and the office through which the mail is to be routed. Keep That Makeup Kit Spotless

By VIVIAN BROWN
Newsfeature Beauty Editor

Cleanliness should go right down to your pocketbook. The inside of your purse should be as clean as a teddy bear's ear. It doesn't make sense that freshly shampooed hair be messed up by a comb or lolly pins dug out of a dirty purse or that a nice complexion should be sullied by a powder puff laden with bacteria. Lovely skin and lustrous hair must be kept clean to preserve their beauty.

Sometimes the girl who carefully shops for the latest Dior dress copy is stingy about investing in a few compact. She'll tolerate broken mirror, a bad closure that causes leaking powder and a scratched up case, always trying to squeeze the last bit of use out of it.

A new compact is a glamor investment. A box of cotton puffs that are inexpensive enough so that a fresh one may be used

Plan Talent Show In Amherst Friday

"Cousin Ken" and "Agee the clown" will be featured as the master of ceremonies for the "Old Fashioned Talent Show" set at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Amherst. Sponsors for the program are members of the Amherst Garden club. The club will use proceeds from the show for the Amherst band fund. Adult admission tickets will be 75 cents and children's admission tickets will be 35 cents.

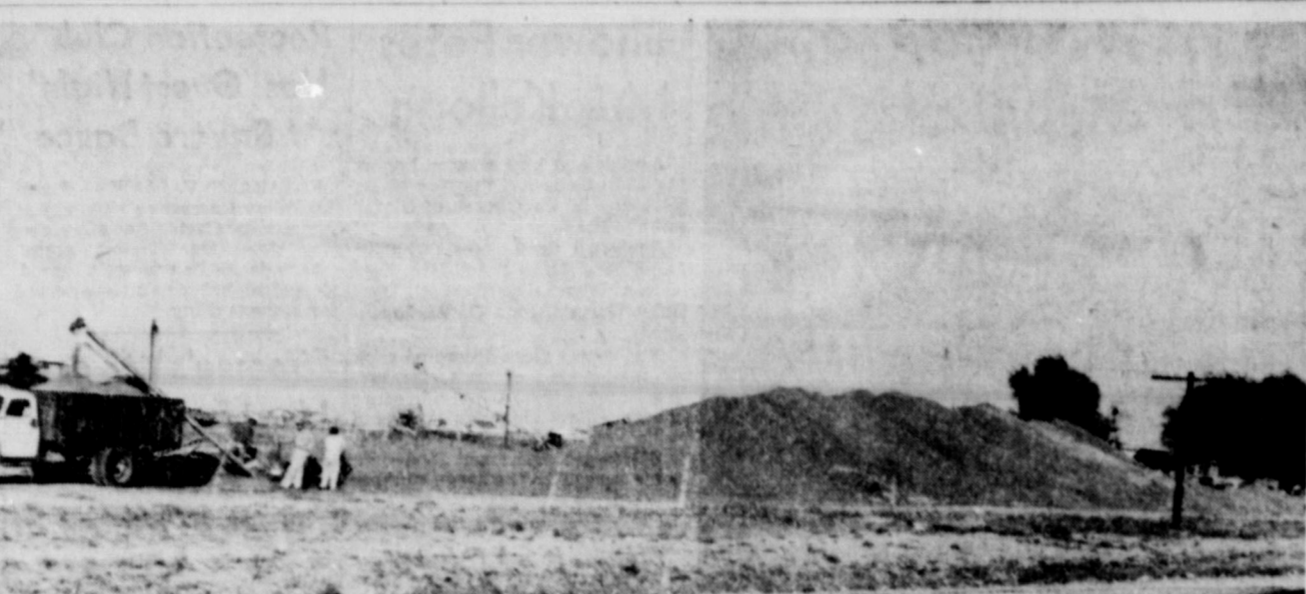

Performers are scheduled to compete from Amherst, Earth, Littlefield, Lubbock and Sudan Mrs. H. W. Howard, president of the club, said a dress rehearsal will be held at 7:30 Thursday night.

rural traffic accidents. "High speeds, therefore, become a highly selective enforcement problem. That is, with the manpower available we can see most potential results through speed control via radar, if it will increase the probability of detection and arrest. Hence, a limited number of radar units backed by publicity might do in two months what otherwise would take a year. Right now, we want results in November and December, 1954.

NOT ENOUGH RADAR "Arrests usually increase when police manage to increase supervision. Frequently, arrests will later decrease as violators "adjust" to the additional supervision and observe regulations. Publicity, we think, will serve as an adjustment aid. At present, we do not have enough radar units to get results in two months without the aid of a widespread public information program paralleling the use of radar.

The Texas Highway patrol is fully aware of the significance of rural speed violations in the accident picture and has been bending every effort with the available manpower to control speed as attested to by the 41,086 speed arrests and 69,004 speed warnings made through September of this year. No change in policy is being made nor are our efforts being intensified as we have been doing all possible with orthodox methods of detection and pacing.

"Radar will simply be another tool of detection. Radar is no cure-all. It draws heavily on available manpower resources by directing them at one violation only. We consider it only another weapon in the arsenal of society to protect the citizenship against the consequences of the acts of the thoughtless, the careless, and the indifferent. Another tool is our fleet of high-powered police automobiles capable of overtaking any stock car on the highway."

R. V. CRUTCHFIELD of Springlake Elevator and two helpers have a big job on their hands moving this grain into the elevator. It had to be dumped in the rush days of Springlake's largest grain harvest when the elevator became filled and could not be trucked out as fast as it was coming in. Now 60 carloads have been moved to Littlefield, where there is still a little space available, and the hard job of moving this grain into the elevator has begun. Crutchfield says it is none the worse for its several weeks on the ground. (News Photo)

Goliday Now Flashes Speed For Army Gridmen In Germany

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

Newsfeature

BERLIN—One of the world's fastest sprinters is flashing his speed this fall in the backfield of a U. S. Army football team here. But he hasn't made the first team yet.

Track star James (Jet Jim) Goliday, a private first class in the Berlin command, sees action at right halfback for the Sixth Infantry Regiment's Berlin Bears.

The thing that keeps the fleet-footed Negro out of the starting lineup is a potentially costly tendency to fumble.

"If he could hang on to the ball," says Coach John Serafin, "Jim would see a lot more action."

The Bears are playing a nine-game schedule this fall against other Army teams in northern Germany.

Serafin, a first lieutenant from St. Albans, N. Y., who played football at Syracuse University, says: "We're using Goliday in spots where we think his speed will pay off. That's mostly on wide end sweeps."

Goliday isn't worrying about the possibility that a football injury might ruin his chances for the 1956 Olympics track team.

He figures football will help keep him in condition and says with a grin: "I've been hurt before."

Goliday presently weighs 170 pounds, some five more than he considers his best weight for track

Before entering the Army, Goliday won all but five of 357 races. He arrived in Berlin early this year and was assigned as a supply clerk in a battalion headquarters of the sixth infantry regiment, the American garrison here.

Goliday, who comes from Chicago, is rated by many track experts as one of the fastest sprinters in the world today.

His best time for the 100-meter dash is 10.3 seconds or just one-tenth of a second off the world record. His best clocking for 100 yards is 9.5 compared with the world mark of 9.3.

Highway Patrol Begins Using Radar Speed Meters Against Fast Drivers

The Texas Highway patrol has announced it will start using radar speed meters during November to bring high speed drivers on Texas highways under control.

In letters to Texas newspaper editors, W. J. Elliott, chief of the Texas Highway patrol pointed out the following problems facing his department:

"The Texas Highway patrol is charged with the enforcement of traffic regulations to prevent congestion and accidents. While alcohol and fatigue are important causative factors in traffic accidents, our records indicate that among these and other contributing causes, speed stands alone as a common factor that determines severity of accidents. Speed per se in any given accident situation determines the degree of damage and the degree of injury.

It does not follow that there is any magic mph above which injury or death will be certain in traffic accidents generally or below which a driver or passenger will escape injury or death. Types of accidents such as rear-end, right angle, head-on, fixed object, etc., influence severity at a given speed.

The prima facie principle in the Texas speed limit law which is based upon a recognition of these facts. The maximum prima facie limits which include a 60 mph limit on rural roads, daytime, provide a general guide to reasonable speeds. There are many rural areas where, either permanently or temporarily, the fixed limits are unsafe. The Texas law provides flexibility to enforce lower speeds.

In other areas, it is possible that a few miles above the fixed limit may be reasonably safe. The Texas speed law provides flexibility here also, but it clearly places responsibility upon the drivers to drive at a reasonable speed.

The Texas Highway patrol issues a warning when a driver's speed above the posted limit becomes a borderline case between the fixed limit and a rate that is obviously unsafe. The degree of the violation and the surrounding conditions determine whether or not an arrest is made or a warning is issued.

The speed problem we face and shall attack with radar involves a relatively small percentage of our total driving population. This group, about 10 per cent, operates at unsafe speeds in the neighborhood of, and usually far in excess of 70 mph. (About 5 percent exceed 70 mph.) This group contributes heavily to the one-driver accident toll which last year accounted for 60 per cent of our fatal accidents on rural roads. And this group contributes probably more to our non-collision accident toll which last year accounted for 40 per cent of our fatal accidents on rural roads. (This 40 per cent simply ran off the roadway, or overturned in the roadway, and, of course, are a part of the 60 per cent which includes hitting fixed objects, pedestrians, etc.)

DEATH TOLL DOWN "Texas has managed to reduce its traffic death toll two years in succession, nearly 2 percent year before last and over 5 percent last year. On rural roads, the reduction was 3 percent year before last and 7 percent last year. We think that radar speed control can help to obtain another slight reduction this year if the deterrent effect of radar can be increased through state-wide publicity during November and December.

"At present (October 26, 1954) Texas, statewide, is running 2 percent above last year's traffic deaths. Towns and cities are running under, state and federal highways are up 1 per cent, and farm-to-market and county roads are running 25 percent and 4 percent respectively above 1953.

"Present speed control is ineffective because the number of available patrol cars is adequate to supervise only about 8,000 miles of highway and cannot possibly supervise over 50,000 miles of the state highway system (which includes farm roads).

"Proper control over our high speed drivers will come about only when the probability of arrest is high. Until we effect this high probability of arrest on our rural roads, 5 per cent to 15 per cent of our rural drivers (who operate at excessive speeds) will continue to cause about 30 per cent of our

Want to Dance With a Robot?

DANCING MACHINE . . . Two pretty dance instructors look over the robot instruction aid developed by Ralph Holcomb, Ada, Okla., who says all you have to do is follow the procedure. It was conceived to help the lame walk again. And it has everything but sex appeal, if you can believe its inventor.

It is a robot dance instructor, a strange-looking framework of steel and aluminum that is supposed to remind any wallflower into a Gene Kelly or Ginger Rogers.

The thing is the brainchild of Ralph Holcomb, veteran inventor and one-time test pilot who developed a series of training methods used by the Navy in World War II, and whose silent "tactile talk" is being developed by the CAA into an international language of flight.

The patented device has six pairs of movable lights which are projected on a dance floor, or pair to guide each pupil. Signal lights are taped to the feet of the dancer who leads. The lights are set to move in a pattern duplicating the leader's footwork, and to the beat of a steady dance tune.

It works something like the multiple check writer, except you move your feet instead of your fingers, and you're dancing instead of paying the bills.

Just put your feet where the lights flash and you're in step with the leader. Soon you get the rhythm and you're dancing.

So says Holcomb, and preliminary tests were convincing enough to get well-heeled backing and

Livestock Dental Check Up Time Now

Now is a good time for farmers to have a dental check-up for their livestock—while animals are being prepared for winter quarters and winter rations—the American Foundation for Animal Health suggested this week.

"Like human beings, animals need their teeth examined occasionally if the rest of their bodily functions are to perform efficiently," a Foundation spokesman said. "Quantity and quality of rations are important but it is equally vital for the animal to chew and shred this food so it can be digested properly," the Foundation added.

Dental troubles in meat-producing animals are of three principal types, the Foundation pointed out. They include difficulties associated with erupting or shedding of teeth; injuries sustained from biting on hard objects; and anatomical irregularities, such as misshaped jaws, unopposed teeth, and more teeth than it is normal for an animal to have.

Symptoms of dental difficulties include frequent drooling; slow, deliberate chewing, indicating pain; and sudden drawing back from cold water while drinking.

"It should be a veterinarian but a short time to go over the teeth of animals being placed in winter quarters," Foundation authorities said. "Such a checkup can mean better eating, better digestion, and better health for the animals all through the winter."

Red Cross Executives Meet Friday

Mrs. Lyle Brandon, executive secretary of the Lamb county chapter of the Red Cross, reported on the executive secretaries meeting in Dallas which she attended recently at the regular meeting of the Red Cross executive board Friday afternoon. Rev. J. Henry Cox presided over the meeting.

J. E. Chisholm reported on the disaster services in the state of the Red Cross during the fiscal year from July, 1953, to 1954.

A letter of resignation was read from Ted Borum of Earth asking to be released from the chapter board. The resignation was accepted and a letter sent to Borum expressing appreciation for his services in the past.

Attending the meeting were Rev. Cox, Chisholm, Elroy Wislan, Mrs. Bonnie Haberer, Mrs. C. A. J. Joplin, Mrs. Lester LaGrange and Mrs. Brandon.

Family Fun Advocated As Delinquency Curb

What this country needs, says an expert on juvenile delinquency, is a good old-fashioned family that has its fun together.

"There is a definite trend away from family activity," insists William N. McKay, parole officer of the Connecticut Third District Juvenile Court.

"The mother has her interests, the father his, and the child goes its own way. Family activities in which parents and children work and play together are fast disappearing from the American scene."

McKay thinks that in thus breaking up the family unit, our American culture is also promoting juvenile delinquency. It has two basic characteristics, he says, which cause most of our trouble with youngsters. They are:

1. Selfishness. "Delinquency, neglect, divorce, desertion, immorality, alcoholism and the acquisition of money to be neglected of family solidarity are all symptoms of our culture that are based on selfishness."

2. Our social thinking lags behind our ability to create. "We must teach our children to develop their social thinking so it can compete with their scientific skills. We can build a car that goes 100 m.p.h., but we cannot expect people to drive it without dilling others. We build a hydrogen bomb, but cannot harness it or peace."

McKay says there will always be problem boys and girls until an answer is found to the broken or emotionally disorganized homes that produce them.

"Neurotic and immature parents produce similar children who become the same kind of parents. Rarely does a child surmount the leading frustration of a broken or disorganized home."

Of his cases, McKay says, 40 per cent of the youngsters are from broken homes and another 40 per cent are from homes where the only surviving parent or both parents are working.

Juvenile offenses, are symptomatic of underlying personal or family problems, explains McKay. "You protect the community by treating the offense. To bring about a readjustment in the child, you must also treat the underlying causes."

Most delinquent or emotionally disturbed children suffer from definite lacks in their living patterns, McKay says. A few are:

1. Lack of love and affection and emotional.

2. Lack of security—material and emotional.

3. Lack of recognition.

4. Lack of discipline.

5. Lack of variety of experience.

6. Lack of character training.

Abilities, Inc.

Four men, with one good leg and five good arms among them, formed Abilities, Inc., at West Hempstead, N. Y., and proceeded to solicit jobs to be done in its plant, by handicapped people. With not an able-bodied person in the house, the factory is growing, prospering and hiring more handi-apped. The full story is in the Wall Street Journal for Oct. 8.

Miss Hulda Turner is one of the hired hands. She was born blind, but made it through college in fine style. And then she went stone deaf. She hunted five years for a job. Abilities, Inc., couldn't be stumped by an applicant like that, so it set her to work in the packaging department. She did so well at that she was transferred to a tri-ky job of cable wrapping on a sublet contract given Abilities, Inc., by the Sperry Gyroscope Corporation.

It took a little doing to tell Hulda how to wrap the cable. But she got her instructions letter perfect and does her work the same way. There are 141 othr handicapped persons in the shop with Hulda.

Now lay the paper down and complain about hay fever or athlete's foot or the fact that there's nothing in the paper today.—Dallas Morning News.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

Alert observers frequently notice that some goods or articles are patented, whereas other seemingly similar items are copyrighted. The question accordingly arises as to what constitutes the difference between a patent and a copyright.

Patents are granted to inventors on new and useful articles of manufacture, compositions of matter, methods and processes, ornamental designs of articles of manufacture and certain types of plants.

Copyrights are granted to authors, composers or artists on works such as books (which includes not only bound volumes, but also pamphlets, leaflets and even single sheets), periodicals, speeches, plays, musical compositions, phonograph records, works of art, including sculptured works, maps, photographs and motion pictures.

The function of a patent or copyright is to give its owner the right to exclude all others from infringing the patent or copyright—that is, from practicing the invention, or copying the copyrighted material. Patents give protection against any infringer who makes, uses or sells the invention, regardless of whether he is a copyist and re-knew of the patent. Copyrights, on the other hand, give protection only against a copyist and not against one who independently does the same thing.

A patent runs for 17 years and cannot be renewed. A copyright runs 28 years and may be renewed once for an additional 28 years. An inventor or author may himself apply for a patent or copyright. However, only persons trained in such work should prepare and prosecute the necessary applications, since it often happens that an unskilled person, because of his lack of knowledge of the law and the procedure, will do irreparable damage to the rights to which the inventor or author was originally entitled. Sometimes rights are forfeited completely through the mistakes of unskilled persons.

(This column, based on Federal law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever act on facts because the facts may be interpreted any way without the aid of attorney who knows the change the application of the law.)

The pictures that hang on our walls, like as not, got there by default.

This one little Jackie gave us, 20 years ago on Christmas. He chose it because it had a dog in it, and cost only 50 cents. Yet long after little Jackie has moved to Timbuctoo and couldn't remember the incident to save us, it keeps its place on our walls.

Another was a wedding gift; a better print, of course, its donor loved green, so she chose a subject decked out in her favorite color. The fact that we prefer reds and yellows doesn't matter. We keep that picture hanging.

A glance at our walls recently disclosed four such gifts. Another we bought, sight unseen, because we knew the artist. An enlarged photograph of a cathedral was presented by a World War I soldier. Two others were purchased when our taste was, to say the least different.

Yet there they all hang—literary of England, Cowboy, French rhapsodies, Audubon print, and Karpis's watercolor. Year after year they stare at us and at each other, apparently as permanent as death and taxes.

Interior decorators have long encouraged an occasional change in picture diet. Yet the average homemaker would as soon change husbands as replace the familiar

Voting On National Cotton Marketing Quota Referendum To Be Held Dec. 14

A national marketing quota of 10 million bales, standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight and a national acreage allotment of 18,113,208 acres of the 1955 crop of upland cotton were proclaimed Oct. 14, by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

He also announced that a national cotton marketing quota referendum will be held Dec. 14, 1954. At least two-thirds of the cotton farmers voting in the referendum must approve marketing quotas before they may be made effective. A referendum on marketing quotas for the 1955 crop of extra long staple cotton will be held on the same date.

The marketing quota and acreage allotment levels are determined by provisions of law. Under the basic formula in these provisions, the marketing quota would be below the announced level if it were not for a "minimum" provision in the law. This minimum is 10 million bales, and that automatically becomes the marketing quota under the present supply situation.

The national acreage allotment, under the legislative provisions, is that acreage, based on the national average yield per planted acre for the years 1949-53 inclusive, is required to produce an amount of cotton equal to the national marketing quota.

PROCLAIMS QUOTA

Under provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, the Secretary of Agriculture is directed to proclaim, later than Oct. 15, a national marketing quota and a national acreage allotment for upland cotton whenever he finds that the total supply exceeds the normal supply.

According to the latest available statistics, the total supply of upland cotton for the 1954-55 marketing year is estimated at 21.5 million running bales, more than 3.8 million bales above the "normal supply" of 17.7 million bales. The "normal supply," as specified in the legislation, is the current marketing year's estimated domestic consumption of 9.1 million bales and exports of 4.5 million bales, plus a 30-per cent reserve of 4.1 million bales. (A running bale is a bale as it comes from the gin and usually averages heavier than 500 pounds gross weight.)

The total supply figure for 1954-55 includes an Aug. 1, 1954 carry-over of 9 million bales. 1954 estimated production of 12.4 million running bales, and estimated imports of 50,000 bales. (This total supply figure includes the commodity set aside from normal prints. She never really looks at them, either; they're part of the living habit, like a bathtub, venetian blinds, and aluminum cooking utensils.

Recently the spouse asserted himself as head of the house and moved a couple of new prints into the old frames. After the first shock, we've got such a lift from them that we're thinking of lobbying for a National Chance-Pictures Week with the next session of Congress.

NEW LAND-SAVER

TW TUMBLEBUG

Helps to conserve your soil and get the most out of hilly fields, irrigated fields and terraced fields. The two-way, roll-over TW gang plow turns all furrows one way, eliminates dead furrows and back furrows. You can turn all furrows uphill so that each furrow acts as a dam to keep soil on the hillside, not rushing downhill when the rain hits.

Heavy beam construction, heavy frame members permit deep tillage plowing. Square axles for greater strength. Roller bearing disc wheels. Solid, round swinging hitch for greater strength and shorter turns. Hitch has horizontal adjustment of 52 inches—can be used with crawler tractors. Available with general purpose, stubble or deep tillage bottoms.

Other important features: adjustment for uniform depth, spring-trip safety release. Stop in soon, and let us show you all the TW Tumblebug features.

marketing channels as directed under Title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954.)

COTTON CARRY OVER

The large supply of cotton available for the 1954-55 marketing year is due principally to a large carry-over on Aug. 1, 1954, resulting from the 1953 crop of 16.4 million bales, the fourth largest crop on record.

The national marketing quota is defined as the amount of cotton needed from the 1955 crop to make available a "normal supply" of cotton in 1955-56. However, legislation also provided that the minimum national marketing quota for the 1955 cotton crop shall be 10 million bales or one million bales less than the 1953-54 domestic consumption and exports, whichever is smaller. Were it not for this legal minimum, the national marketing quota for the 1955 upland cotton crop would be 9.7 million bales (500 pounds gross weight).

Data Being Compiled

State and county agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees are now compiling acreage data from which to base 1955 farm acreage allotments. The national allotment will be apportioned to states, the state allotments to counties, and the county allotments to farms according to provisions of the law. Individual farm acreage allotments will be made available to producers prior to the referendum.

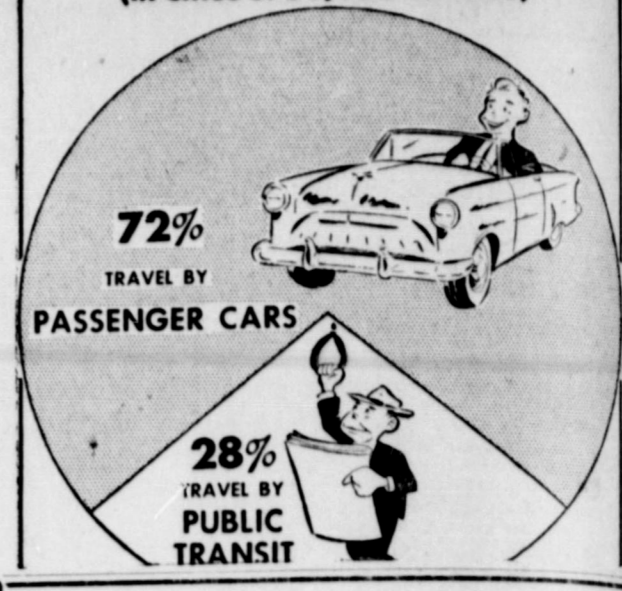

If growers approve quota in the referendum, price supports on the 1955 upland cotton crop will be made available to eligible growers at a level between 82% and 90 per cent of parity, the precise level depending on the level of supply at the time of the referendum. If quotas are turned down, supports to eligible growers will drop to 50 per cent of parity.

Growers who exceed their farm acreage allotment under a cotton quota program will be subject to penalties of 50 per cent of parity on the farm's excess production. In addition, cotton and other crops produced on the farms will be ineligible for price support. In general, the farm marketing quota—which is the amount that may be marketed free from penalty is the production from the farm's acreage allotment.

In the referendum on marketing quotas for the 1954 cotton crop held last December, 94 per cent of production from the farm's acres
