"Live for today; learn from yesterday; dream of tomorrow." This is the motto of the 1972 graduating class of Springlake-Earth High School.

Each graduating senior reached a goal in his life and could feel a dream realized as he marched forward to receive a diploma, which changed him from a student to an alumnus of S-E High. As the band played the "Grand March" and the 45 seniors made their exit, shouts of laughter and joy were heard expressing their happiness and pride of accomplishment. Thus, they were fulfilling the first phase of their motto, "Live for today."

Approximately 30 people gathered Monday, May 29, for Memorial Day Services, held at the Springlake Cemetery. The number was somewhat smaller this year, due to the disagreeable weather.

An inspiring message was brought by Rev. Glen Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Springlake, entitled "The Meaning of Memorial Day."

Boy Scout Troop 614 and their scoutmaster, Freddy Kelley, did a drill and placed flags on the graves of all the veterans. A short business meeting presided over by R.A. Axtell, preceded the services.

Bobby D. Green Has Unusual Talent

Bobby D. Green of Earth has a very unique talent. He makes sculptures from pipe, baling wire and copper. Bobby D. first started this as a hobby, but has been doing it for a living since January.

Bobby D. started carving when he was just a boy but just started making these sculptures lately. He said he started, "messing around with it." His ideas are original and most of his work has a western effect to it. Some of Green's work takes only a day or two to create, while others take a couple of weeks. It all depends on the type of work.

Bobby D. has been selling his sculptures to local people. He has even taken more orders, but can't fill them yet. He is trying to have enough for his showing at Lubbock.

Green's work is on display at the House of Alexander, 2001 Broadway, in Lubbock. They will have an art show June 5th presented by Bobby D. Everyone is invited to come.

ARTIST BOBBY D. GREEN

His work will be on display at the "House of Alexander" in Lubbock, on June 5 and 6.

want to disappoint Mrs. Jones. It is at this time that a happy glow comes across his face and he hits upon a plan whereby you can do your neighbor a big favor. All you have to do is pay him the C.O.D. charges and then get your money back from Mrs. Jones.

This way she will receive the package in time and not be disappointed. After all, the C.O.D. charges amount to only $10. Being a friendly neighbor, you give the delivery man $10 and he goes on his way leaving you with a warm feeling inside knowing that you have helped Mrs. Jones.

Later in the day when Mrs. Jones returns, the feeling begins to turn to doubt because Mrs. Jones informs you that she has not ordered any C.O.D. packages. You open the package to inspect the contents and find only rocks.

Another take-off on this scheme, and perhaps even more insidious, is practiced where there has been a recent death in the family. The knock on the door in this case presents a person who has a package for a Mr. Smith at this address. When informed that Mr. Smith has recently passed away, the stranger gets a sad look on his face and says that Mr. Smith was in his store last week and picked out a beautiful gift for Mrs. Smith.

It was to be a surprise for Mrs. Smith and he knew that the gift would bring her so much pleasure. Sentiment often pushes the person to go ahead and accept the item and pay for it, usually at an inflated price, and even though they don't need it, because it had been picked out for them by their deceased loved one.

Be an informed consumer. Don't fall for rackets similar to those above described. When a stranger knocks on your door and asks for money, demand proof of his identity. Know all the facts before you part with your money.

Water Safety Rules Listed For Spring

AUSTIN --- With an eye on the weather and some grim statistics, the Texas Safety Association has issued a reminder to water sports enthusiasts about some new laws and safety rules.

"In 1970, in Texas a total of 546 persons lost their lives in drownings," according to Lloyd F. Palmer, General Manager of the Texas Safety Association.

"While boating, some 78 persons drowned, but a staggering 468 persons drowned in incidents that did not involve boats," Palmer pointed out.

"This year both state and federal laws require that all boats have one Coast Guard Approved Life-Saving Device on board for each person on board the boat," the safety group spokesman continued.

In addition, the Texas law requires that children under 12 years of age must wear life-saving devices at any time a boat is underway," Palmer said.

He said this rule alone, if strictly obeyed could save a number of lives each year. Enforcement of the new law regarding life-saving devices is being carried out by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officers and by local authorities throughout the state.

"Since so many drownings are occurring in non-boating incidents," said Palmer, "the Texas Safety Association feels there is real need to promote swimming instruction for every member of the family. Throughout the state each year excellent supervised courses in swimming are offered by the American Red Cross, YMCA's, YMCA's, school districts, and city recreation departments.

Learning to swim is an extremely effective way to prevent the tragedy of a drowning from striking your family," Palmer advised.

"Now is the time to check to see who is offering swimming lessons in the local community and to begin preparations for all family members to learn to swim," Palmer emphasized.

"Water sports enthusiasts are growing in number each year in Texas. Estimates indicate that there will be more than 500,000 boats registered by the end of the year in the state. Add to that the hundreds of thousands of Texans, young and old, who take part in other water recreational activities and the scope of the challenge of water safety can begin to be seen," the TSA executive said.

Palmer also cautioned boating enthusiasts to keep a wary eye on the weather during the spring and early summer in Texas. He said that the unpredictable nature of the weather during April, May, and June can create extremely dangerous conditions for boating.

"While we are already enjoying near perfect temperatures for boating activities, Texas weather still presents some hazards to boaters," he said.

Winds and sudden weather changes are a prime factor at this time of the year according to the safety group spokesman.

He explained that sudden wind changes can create high waves that make boat handling difficult. He cautioned boaters to check local weather forecasts closely before venturing out on the water and to heed local wind warnings.

"If caught out on the water when unexpected rough weather comes up, head for the nearest shore or shelter," Palmer stated.

He also outlined some rules to remember in such situations.

1. Put life preservers on all passengers in the boat.
2. Head into waves at a slight angle and reduce speed.
3. Seat passengers in the bottom of the boat as close to the centerline as possible.
4. Head for the nearest shore or protected area.

5. If the wind and waves are too high to make progress, or if the motor fails, trail a sea anchor from the bow to maintain a heading into the waves. A bucket or weighted item of clothing will serve as a sea anchor in an emergency.

"It is most important in such situations that everyone remain calm. Panic can kill in the water," Palmer said.

Mrs. Jay Winders was admitted to the Littlefield Hospital and Clinic Monday afternoon. She had major surgery Tuesday morning. Late Tuesday afternoon she was reported to be resting well.

Valedictory Address

By Marian Dawson
Parents, Teachers, Classmates,
Friends:

I have the privilege tonight of representing this 1972 graduating class, and I hope I will speak for most of its members.

In the book, THE SELF YOU HAVE TO LIVE WITH by Winifred Rhodes, we read these words: "Here is a parcel of ground. It is not precisely the same today as it was yesterday. It is by no means the same as when it was bought twenty-five years ago. Every drop of rain that has fallen, every wind that has blown, every bit of sunshine that has penetrated it, every bit of work that has been done upon it, every seed that has fallen, every crop that has been grown—everything that has happened to it has left a mark of some kind." So it is with each of us. Our lives have been and are being continually created day by day by our family, our teachers, our friends—through every experience. Tonight, we want you to take a look at us—the products of your homes, schools, and churches. The question is, "What kind of products are we?" Do we know ourselves—our goals and our potential for reaching them? Do we know our community—its strong points as well as its weaknesses? And what do we know about the rest of the world and its search for truth? More important, how will we use what we have learned so far to make our lives count?

You have helped to prepare us for the future in many ways. This is a church-oriented community, and we have been given every opportunity to grow spiritually. I am grateful for the fulfillment that has come to me through my church, and I know I speak for many of my classmates. Also, our lives have been enriched by the responsibilities we have assumed, with your help, in such organizations as 4-H, band, choir, and sports—to name only a few. Too, if we do plan to go to college, for the most part, we will be able to compete successfully with others because of our adequate academic training.

On the other hand, there are areas in which we might question how effective our training has been. I would mention briefly three of these.

First, are we being properly equipped for job opportunities suited to our capabilities? In his book, FUTURE SHOCK, Alvin Toffler says, concerning education:

"Youngsters are given little choice in determining what they wish to learn. The curriculum is nailed into place by the rigid entrance requirements of the colleges, which, in turn, reflect the vocational and social requirements of a vanishing society."

Actually, there is a surplus of professional personnel on the job market at the present, but there is great need in the vocational, technical, and mechanical areas that is not being met in our community and similar communities. Our schools need to put more emphasis on these areas.

Second, have we been taught to think through the solutions of our problems? Perhaps you parents and the school have made too many decisions for us. Again Toffler says:

"Students are seldom encouraged to analyze their own values. . . Millions pass through the education system without once having been forced to probe their own life goals deeply, or even to discuss these matters candidly with adults and peers."

We've had the chance to express ideas but little chance to try them. We are often given the "right" answers but with no explanations as to why they are right. Now we have to make decisions of our own. We must decide what to do about drugs, alcohol, the sex revolution. Now we are old enough to vote. Can we make decisions intelligently and independently?

Third, have we been made very aware of the problems of the complex urban communities in which most of us will be making our homes? Will we be a part of the problem or will we be problem solvers? Since 1948, one out of five Americans has moved every year. Here, our parents and grandparents are deeply rooted. We are not really a part of the transient society. Along with this, by world standards we are an affluent community relatively free from pressing environmental problems—water, air, and noise pollution, overpopulation, ghettos. We have isolated ourselves to the point of apparent disinterest as to what is happening in New York, Africa, and Viet Nam. We simply do not seem to deeply care. And so, on the one hand we are blessed by a healthy isolated environment, and on the other, we are asking ourselves, "Will I be able to cope with the realities with which I will be faced?"

And so tonight, this class of 1972 feels a challenge indeed. We live in a rapidly changing world, and it would be very easy for us to throw up our hands and say, "There is nothing I can do." It is true that none of us in all likelihood will ever have WHO'S WHO wanting a brief outline of our career. Most of us would be listed only in the pages of the BOOK OF THE AVERAGE, which hasn't yet been printed. But though no great book will bear our name on its title page, though the cure for cancer may not be found by our knowledge of science, though our dreams and longings and plans are hindered by adverse happenings in our lives, and though we are small people instead of great, there is one very important thing we can do for the world.

We can grow a soul! This is our most urgent task. Our noblest concern is the concern for souls. The greatest art in the world is the art of developing the inner person.

Regardless of the advantages or disadvantages that have been ours to this point, we can start where we are, with what knowledge we have gained, and with what tools for living we have acquired, to begin the living of a victorious life. This is not easy. A soul is grown, just as a body is grown, by giving it food and exercise.

Pearl S. Buck at the ripe old age of eighty was asked if she wanted to be young again, and she replied, "No, for I learned too much to wish to lose it. It would be like falling to pass a grade in school."

A newborn child has to learn how to breathe, to cry, to eat, to sit up, to walk, to talk—all the techniques of beginning his span of life. Year by year, we must work for techniques in order to master ourselves and reach a growing understanding of ourselves and others. It is this growth that determines the real success or failure, happiness, of life.

So it is my desire for my classmates and for myself—in fact, for all of us—that we be aware that today, no less than any past time, the habit of living consciously with God can give strength for enduring what has to be endured, energy for going forward when the going is hard, further insight into that which is true and desirable, wisdom for the planning of one's ways and the choosing of one's path, and inspiration for heroic and victorious living of life.

by MARY LEE THOMPSON

There's a "burn epidemic" going on in America. Would you believe that last year, fires caused 12,200 deaths, 330,000 injuries, and $2.8-billion worth of property damage. Fires rank second to automobile accidents and to falls in the number of deaths or crippling injuries they cause.

According to Howard Tipton, executive director of the National Commission on Fire Prevention & Control, the public, unfortunately, is slow to realize the problem.

Adequate fire prevention and education are lacking. State and local fire codes are often inadequately enforced. City fire inspections cover industrial and commercial buildings but may omit residential dwellings where most fire deaths occur.

Also houses are not required to have early fire-warning detection systems—not even in federally assisted construction. One thing people do not realize is that more deaths result from inhalation of smoke and gases than from actual fire.

Other factors contributing to the nation's burn epidemic include the fact that fire departments do not conduct enough prevention and education programs to supplement their firefighting efforts. Also there is no national institution to train firemen the way the National Police Academy trains policemen.

More research is necessary on fire-safe construction, and on the nature of fire itself. There also should be a national information system.

The National Commission on Fire Prevention has submitted a preliminary report to President Nixon. He has noted that the valor of the nation's firemen "should no longer be a substitute for finding effective ways to prevent fires and to protect firemen in the hazardous environment in which they must work."

PARTY LINE

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Green and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baker traveled to Paducah to attend the funeral of H.C. Ryan, the father of Mrs. A.R. Stewart. Mr. Stewart is a former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Springlake.

EARTH NEWS-SUN

FRIENDS WITH YOU was rendered by a group of seniors during the Commencement exercises, Saturday night when 45 seniors received diplomas.

Valedictory Address

By Marian Dawson
Parents, Teachers, Classmates,
Friends:

I have the privilege tonight of representing this 1972 graduating class, and I hope I will speak for most of its members. In the book, THE SELF YOU HAVE TO LIVE WITH by Winfred Hoades, we read these words: "Here is a parcel of ground. It is not precisely the same today as it was yesterday. It is by no means the same as when it was bought twenty-five years ago. Every drop of rain that has fallen, every wind that has blown, every bit of sunshine that has penetrated it, every bit of work that has been done upon it, every seed that has fallen, every crop that has been grown--everything that has happened to it has left a mark of some kind." So it is with each of us. Our lives have been and are being continually created day by day by our family, our teachers, our friends--through every experience. Tonight, we want you to take a look at us--the products of your homes, schools, and churches. The question is, "What kind of products are we?" Do we know ourselves--our goals and our potential for reaching them? Do we know our community--its strong points as well as its weaknesses? And what do we know about the rest of the world and its search for truth? More important, how will we use what we have learned so far to make our lives count?

You have helped to prepare us for the future in many ways. This is a church-oriented community, and we have been given every opportunity to grow spiritually. I am grateful for the fulfillment that has come to me through my church, and I know I speak for many of my classmates. Also, our lives have been enriched by the responsibilities we have assumed, with your help, in such organizations as 4-H, band, choir, and sports--to name only a few. Too, if we do plan to go to college, for the most part, we will be able to compete successfully with others because of our adequate academic training.

On the other hand, there are areas in which we might question how effective our training has been. I would mention briefly three of these.

First, are we being properly equipped for job opportunities suited to our capabilities? In his book, FUTURE SHOCK, Alvin Toffler says, concerning education:

"Youngsters are given little choice in determining what they wish to learn. The curriculum is nailed into place by the rigid entrance requirements of the colleges, which, in turn, reflect the vocational and social requirements of a vanishing society."

Actually, there is a surplus of professional personnel on the job market at the present, but there is great need in the vocational, technical, and mechanical areas that is not being met in our community and similar communities. Our schools need to put more emphasis on these areas.

Second, have we been taught to think through to the solutions of our problems? Perhaps you parents and the school have made too many decisions for us. Again Toffler says: "Students are seldom encouraged to analyze their own values. . . Millions pass through the education system without once having been forced to probe their own life goals deeply, or even to discuss these matters candidly with adults and peers."

We've had the chance to express ideas but little chance to try them. We are often given the "right" answers but with no explanations as to why they are right. Now we have to make decisions of our own. We must decide what to do about drugs, alcohol, the sex revolution. Now we are old enough to vote. Can we make decisions intelligently and independently?

Third, have we been made very aware of the problems of the complex urban communities in which most of us will be making our homes? Will we be a part of the problem or will we be problem solvers? Since 1948, one out of five Americans has moved every year. Here, our parents and grandparents are deeply rooted. We are not really a part of the transient society. Along with this, by world standards we are an affluent community relatively free from pressing environmental problems--water, air, and noise pollution, overpopulation, ghettos. We have isolated ourselves to the point of apparent disinterest as to what is happening in New York, Africa, and Viet Nam. We simply do not seem to deeply care. And so, on the one hand we are blessed by a healthy isolated environment, and on the other, we are asking ourselves, "Will I be able to cope with the realities with which I will be faced?"

And so tonight, this class of 1972 feels a challenge indeed. We live in a rapidly changing world, and it would be very easy for us to throw up our hands and say, "There is nothing I can do." It is true that none of us in all likelihood will ever have WHO'S WHO wanting a brief outline of our career. Most of us would be listed only in the pages of the BOOK OF THE AVERAGE, which hasn't yet been printed. But though no great book will bear our name on its title page, though the cure for cancer may not be found by our knowledge of science, though our dreams and longings and plans are hindered by adverse happenings in our lives, and though we are small people instead of great, there is one very important thing we can do for the world.

We can grow a soul! This is our most urgent task. Our noblest concern is the concern for souls. The greatest art in the world is the art of developing the inner person.

Regardless of the advantages or disadvantages that have been ours to this point, we can start where we are, with what knowledge we have gained, and with what tools for living we have acquired, to begin the living of a victorious life. This is not easy. A soul is grown, just as a body is grown, by giving it food and exercise. Pearl S. Buck at the ripe old age of eighty was asked if she wanted to be young again, and she replied, "No, for I learned too much to wish to lose it. It would be like failing to pass a grade in school."

A newborn child has to learn how to breathe, to cry, to eat, to sit up, to walk, to talk--all the techniques of beginning his span of life. Year by year, we must work for techniques in order to master ourselves and reach a growing understanding of ourselves and others. It is this growth that determines the real success or failure, happiness, of life.

So it is my desire for my classmates and for myself--in fact, for all of us--that we be aware that today, no less than any past time, the habit of living consciously with God can give strength for enduring what has to be endured, energy for going forward when the going is hard, further insight into that which is true and desirable, wisdom for the planning of one's ways and the choosing of one's path, and inspiration for heroic and victorious living of life.

by MARY LEE THOMPSON

There's a "burn epidemic" going on in America. Would you believe that last year, fires caused 12,200 deaths, 330,000 injuries, and $2.8 billion worth of property damage. Fires rank second to automobile accidents and falls in the number of deaths or crippling injuries they cause.

According to Howard Tipton, executive director of the National Commission on Fire Prevention & Control, the public, unfortunately, is slow to realize the problem.

Adequate fire prevention and education are lacking. State and local fire codes are often inadequately enforced. City fire inspections cover industrial and commercial buildings but may omit residential dwellings where most fire deaths occur.

Also houses are not required to have early fire-warning detection systems--not even in federally assisted construction. One thing people do not realize is that more deaths result from inhalation of smoke and gases than from actual fire.

Other factors contributing to the nation's burn epidemic include the fact that fire departments do not conduct enough prevention and education programs to supplement their firefighting efforts. Also there is no national institution to train firemen the way the National Police Academy trains policemen.

More research is necessary on fire-safe construction, and on the nature of fire itself. There also should be a national information system.

The National Commission on Fire Prevention has submitted a preliminary report to President Nixon. He has noted that the valor of the nation's firemen "should no longer be a substitute for finding effective ways to prevent fires and to protect firemen in the hazardous environment in which they must work."

YEAH! WE FINALLY MADE IT! This group of seniors seem to be happy they are out of high school.

Salutatory Address

BY Becky Littleton

Friends, I address you all that way since to me that is the important thing. It is an honor to stand before you tonight as Salutatorian representing the Class of 1972 and offer our most sincere welcome for your attendance at our commencement exercise. It is truly good to be honored with your presence.

These exercises mark the end of twelve years of education. Twelve years filled with fears, frustrations, anger, joy and pride. Twelve years we will never forget. As seniors we are about to face a bright new world. But has our twelve years of education prepared us for that world?

To answer this, we will have to define education. Is education merely the technical training one receives in school? While Vice-President, Lyndon B. Johnson said in a speech in June, 1963, "It is a mistake to confuse skill with education. A man who has been taught to hold a job has not been educated. He has been trained. And the man who has merely been trained is not qualified to take his place in a free society as a fully participating citizen. Education, of course, is not something that is acquired just in schools. All of life is an educational process." With that thought in mind we look at the concept which I will call the total educational environment. The accumulation of all those factors which influence us. Included are training, work, and friendship. All combining to produce our most important assets-- our attitude.

Webster's dictionary defines attitude as a mental position with regard to fact or state. To us, attitude is a frame of mind.

Attitudes are shaped by home environment, Teachers, religious leaders, and perhaps even more influential are our peers. Until this point in our lives for many of us the attitude which has been instilled is merely that the goal of education is to prepare oneself to make a living. Instead let ours be an attitude of education as a preparation to live.

To live lives based on a respect for all other people-- whether they be white, black, rich or poor. And through that respect a respect for ourselves. Writer Frederick Perls put it this way:

"I do my thing and you do your thing. I am not in this world to live up to your expectations, and you are not in this world to live up to mine. You are you, and I am I, and if by chance we find each other, it's beautiful."

This then, is the dream the hope, and the prayer of the Class of '72. That we can go forth and carry this respect to all parts of the earth.

Now, as we look out on our bright new world, let us celebrate our new found creed that through respect for others and thus ourselves all men shall profit and the Class of '72 will have truly lived and fulfilled our purpose.

"And when the broken-hearted people living in the world, agree, there will be an answer, let it be--But though they may be parting there's still a chance that they will see. There will be an answer--Let it be.

We've found an answer, now let it be!

WTSU Conducts Seminar For Teachers

A non-tuition, four-week seminar on constitutional studies for teachers will be conducted by the West Texas State University government department July 18-Aug. 11.

The special seminar is made possible through a grant from the Texas Educational Association, a private foundation based in Fort Worth.

"The seminar is being held at a time when the United States is approaching its bicentennial celebration, and among the topics covered will be one relating to the role and philosophy of the Founding Fathers," said Dr. Roy E. Thoman, associate professor of government and director of the special program.

"Other topics include a survey of constitutionalism, the evolution of American constitutional law, federalism and ideological approaches to the U.S. Constitution," he added. Thoman said the seminar will be limited to about 25 persons. Applications should be returned to him at West Texas State University, Canyon 79015 by June 30.

"Although this is a non-credit seminar, each teacher-participant will be awarded a letter certifying successful completion as evidence of professional interest and growth," Thoman said.

The seminar will be conducted Monday through Thursday from 9:10 a.m. to 10:40 a.m. in the Old Administration Building except the program will begin on Tuesday and end on a Friday. Dr. Travis McBride, head of the government department, will serve as a participating professor.
