

NOSIN..... WITH POLLY

The best joke of the season was pulled last week when Buford Price literally stopped traffic through Earth while fishing in the snow. Several sympathetic souls, though thinking he had "flipped his lid" seeing him working frantically in the ditch filled with water and ice surrounded with melting snow, would stop, and with feeling in their voices ask him how the fishing was. While waiting for his answer he most always would hook a big two or three pound live fish in the gills and pull him out as he flopped around. Bystanders almost "lost their uppers."

This went on for quite awhile. Price himself had ended up laughing until he was crying, which made the show even greater, and it looked like the sale on fish hooks and straight pins were about to boom. When E. C. Hudson, his employer, saw all the commotion, and seeing Price standing by the ditch, went out to see what was going on, immediately he also wanted to know if he were catching anything. Buford pulled up his big string of fish which by this time had grown to seven big flopping, live fish, each weighing two or three pounds each. Hudson's expression changed to that of a man who was combating the desire to post a "NO FISHING" sign and grab his own rod and reel and get with that fishing hole.

By that time Price had decided his desire for pulling a joke had been fully realized far beyond all expectations, so he divided his fish with Hudson, though he said eating them could never be as much fun as he had already had with them. (He had been given the fish by a friend who had just returned from Texhoma).

Mutt McNeil says there is a lot of people in this area who just thrive on being sweet and thoughtful.

Following the robbing of their store Sunday night, she said she had received a couple of cakes from friends and Tuesday she received a cottontail rabbit from a colored man in the area, who had "good luck hunting." He told her how rough things had been with him at times, and after hearing of their bad luck, he just wanted to share his "good hunting luck" with her. She said they were so thankful to be living in an area with people like we have here.

You never know where and how you may find a new friend. But Camilla Wheatley found one recently in a most unusual way.

Seems Miss Camilla Wheatley of Amarillo discovered a February 6 issue of the Earth News-Sun in an empty Pet Milk box, which a Pet Milk Co. Representative had left. In looking over the paper she found a picture of our local Rain-bow Girls of which Camilla Wheatley is a member. She immediately wrote our Camilla and to acquaint Camilla with herself, included a clipping from the Amarillo paper, which was published a few years back when she returned to Amarillo. It told of Miss Wheatley's home under construction, and of the many unusual furnishings which would be used throughout her home from the many lands Miss Wheatley had toured. Seems she worked in a branch office from her Amarillo job in Casablanca, Africa for two years and toured Africa. Two years were spent in Guam and three years in Japan.

Miss Wheatley works for an International Company which has offices in many foreign countries. She said that in all the lands she had toured she had never found another Camilla Wheatley. She invited Camilla to visit her soon.

All I can say is: (We charge $3.00 a year for a subscription. But we have not yet determined our price for locating new friends.) I wonder if there is an interesting Pauline Middleton running around loose in this Old World who would love to conspire with me ? ? ? ?

STRIKING A BALANCE

(A distinguished Texas judge offers pointers on combating our rapidly increasing juvenile delinquency problem.)

By JUDGE SARAH T. HUGHES

JUDGE HUGHES

Teen-agers want independence in making decisions about clothes, their spending money, their choice of friends, and yet they want to maintain the security of home and happy family relationships.

"It takes a lot of patience and understanding to cope with us, I know," one girl said. "Most parents don't want to try to do this. They give us lectures instead."

Independence Vs. Firm Guidance
Parental responsibility is to maintain a balance of giving boys and girls a certain latitude to try out and gain further independence, at the same time providing firm guidance when it is so often needed.

Despite the desire of youngsters to have greater opportunity for making decisions, 90% in a poll said they thought families should get together and discuss each other's problems.

Not Before They Can Swim
Our job is to teach them to swim on their own, certainly—but not to throw them into the very deep water of our complex modern life before they have learned well. We must BE THERE and feel our way on when to give the helping hand.
