You folks have always been so nice about helping with the advance publicity for the rodeo, I felt you might like to have the enclosed story about this 29th annual event. About 150 boys will be riding as contestants while all of our 385 boys will have some part in the production.

McClure Family Has Reunion In Gruver

The annual McClure family reunion was held Friday and Saturday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Perkins in Gruver. It was a double celebration, marking the return of Johnny McNamara's tour of duty in Tyland. Johnny is the son of Mrs. Perkins.

The group ate "high on the hog" throughout the two day celebration. They also played games, looked at old family records, but most of all, just visited.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Johnny McNamara of Copperas Cove, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Reese of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Tom Packard, Jana and Kim of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Frank White and Gary of Littlefield and Mrs. Mike West of Lubbock.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Howard McClure, Mrs. C. O. Bibby, Mrs. Dolan Fennell and Mr. and Mrs. James Packard all of Springlake.

Auto Insurance Rates Cut Effective August 27

True to its promise, the State Board of Insurance ordered an average statewide reduction of 4.3 per cent in private auto coverage premiums, estimating 90 per cent of motorists will save at least $25 million. New rates are effective August 27.

Further, according to Board Chairman Joe Christie, the competitive rating law September 1 will mean further savings for many. Christie said one company has indicated it will ask authority to cut its rates 15 per cent across the board when the competitive rating law takes effect.

Another law passed by the legislature this year, however, may cancel out the savings for some and actually bring a slight increase. The personal injury protection coverage of at least $2,500 for medical expenses and lost earnings or services due to accident, regardless of who was at fault, will be added to all policies automatically unless motorists reject it in writing.

Christie said even rejections written on "brown paper sacks" will be considered valid. P.I.P. coverage costs $22 to $44, but many will substitute it for medical coverage which already costs $15 to $22 a year.

4Hers Return From National Tour

Sheila and Kent Lewis returned last week from Washington, D. C. where they attended a Citizenship Short Course at the National 4-H Center. They were two of seventy one delegates from Texas to participate in the course. During the summer more than 6,000 teenage 4-H members from 42 states will attend.

Designed to develop a greater understanding of individual responsibilities of citizenship, the one-week session was filled with listening, learning, sharing and touring.

The most interesting part of the course was hearing Congressman Bob Casey from Texas and Keith Sebalance from Kansas speak. After their speeches, everyone was allowed to ask questions concerning the activities of the government.

The program this year featured small group discussions of contemporary topics. They attended sessions on Economics Jobs, Money Management, and Ecology. They also discussed International Affairs dealing with the wars, food prices, and President Nixon.

The group saw their federal government in action through a session on the executive branch held at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and by spending a whole day on Capitol Hill. They visited Congressman George Mahon. He furnished a tour through the Senate's House, Congressman's House and watched how Congressman Mahon voted.

Field trips to historic sites included: White House, Jeffersons Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, Arlington Cemetery, Marine Memorial, Smithsonian Institute, Library of Congress, and Mount Vernon. Also Country Hall of Fame in Nashville, Tenn. and Bourbon Street in New Orleans, La.

Most important of all, was learning ways to put citizenship into action in our own community. They hope to influence their 4-H members and make a stronger club.

The Citizenship Short Course is conducted by the National 4-H Foundation in support of the 4-H program of the Co-operative Extension Service. You can learn more about 4H by calling 385-4004 in Littlefield.

Widow Raped, Police Investigate

A widow, in her late fifties, in the Circle community between Springlake and Olton was raped by a young Spanish man about 8:30 Wednesday evening.

According to Lamb County authorities, the woman had just taken a bath and had a bathrobe on when she answered a knock at her door. The man told her he was out of gas and the woman let him in to use the phone.

When he came through the door the man knocked her to the floor and held a knife at her throat.

WATERMELON FEAST AND GAMES was the pass word for fun as Springlake youth gathered Friday for a party at the Terry Bridge Memorial Recreational area. 27 attended the event.

'Canning Precautions'

Quite often we hear of a friend or acquaintance who has suddenly been stricken with a case of "food poisoning." Or, occasionally, a community may experience an outbreak of food poisoning from foods improperly packaged or improperly handled during and after preparation.

Since summer normally is the canning season when fruits and vegetables are at their peak, now is a good time to re-emphasize canning precautions.

Health authorities in California reported that more than 62 per cent of all cases of botulism were due to string beans, asparagus, fruits and other vegetables canned at home.

Another 24 per cent was due to the preparation of animal products. With the great amount of home canning and freezing done in Texas, officials of the Texas State Department of Health are concerned about the possibility of this potentially fatal disease.

You probably have had no problems with home canning and freezing. But then you may have been lucky. How would you answer these questions?

*First, do you believe that home freezing is the best method of food preparation, and the least likely to cause the growth of germs?

*Is the disagreeable odor evident with spoiled food a sure-fire indicator that the food is spoiled?

*Are nausea and diarrhea always the first symptoms of botulism?

Before answering these questions, let's take a closer look at what food poisoning really is.

Among bacteria involved in food-borne diseases are three arch criminals of the germ world. These are salmonella germs, staphylococcus and botulism germs.

The source of salmonella is found in the intestines of human carriers and domestic animals and may be present in meat or dairy products, eggs or egg products. One strain of salmonella contaminated an unchlorinated public deep water supply in Riverside, California in 1966 and produced an epidemic of 15,000 cases of diarrhea.

Staphylococcal food poisoning may occur from a large number of contaminated products. Contamination may be from bovine origin -- in contaminated milk or milk products, or of human origin. Toxin-producing staphylococci of human origin may come from purulent discharges from infections of a finger or hand, nasal secretions, or the apparently normal skin of hands and forearms. This is one reason disposable plastic gloves are widely used by food handlers.

Good sanitation in food preparation, plus proper cooking and quick, thorough cooling of prepared foods, are good insurance against staph and salmonella occurrences.

Botulism is caused by a deadly poison -- a toxin -- produced by a germ found abundantly in the soil. This germ is one of the spore-forming bacteria and is very resistant to normal heat and cold. It can grow without air, which makes it such a sinister threat in home canning. The germ itself doesn't cause illness, but the toxin it produces can be fatal to man. Although some outbreaks have been caused from commercial products, the vast majority of botulism cases have been due to eating improperly processed home-canned foods.

Now let's answer the questions. First, the pressure cooker method is safer and preferred for canning. Still, precautions should be taken as to length of time and degree of temperature for preparation of any food. Studies on the heat resistance of the spores of the botulism germ prove that home canning by the cold pack method, still widely used in Texas, is extremely dangerous. All home-canned products should be boiled for at least three minutes with thorough stirring before serving.

Second, is odor always evident with spoiled foods? No. Factors such as acidity and nutrient value play a part in odor. Canned foods could be free of obnoxious odor, appear in good condition and still contain organisms of botulism. Never use canned goods that are puffed out on the ends or spurt when opened. And, never taste a suspect, canned food before it is cooked properly. You can even get botulism by smelling a contaminated food. Third, are nausea and vomiting usually the first symptoms of botulism? Botulism's clinical manifestations relate primarily to the nervous system. Change in voice, such as hoarseness, often is the first sign noted. It is a serious intoxication (not an infection) characterized by weakness, dizziness, headache and constipation. However, vomiting and diarrhea may occasionally initiate illness. Symptoms usually appear within 12 to 36 hours sometimes several days after eating contaminated food. About two-thirds of patients die within three to seven days, usually from respiratory or cardiac failure or from infectious complications.

State Health Department officials say that proper preparation of all foods could make botulism a thing of the past.

Consumers And Phase IV

AMERICANS TAKE FOOD SUPPLY FOR GRANTED

Having been raised in a society where food has been abundant and low-priced relative to most of the countries in the world, Americans have come to take their food supplies for granted. But now the picture has changed!

The Phase IV program to halt inflation begins Aug. 12 and will directly affect the food industry as well as most every aspect of the United States economy, says Dr. William Vastine of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In spite of publicity emphasizing beef shortages in warehouses and retail stores, there has been little evidence that the continued beef price freeze of Phase IV will be compromised before the Sept. 12 deadline, he notes. However, consumer pressure to remove this price freeze combined with that being exercised by retailers, processors and produce groups would appear to be forthcoming.

According to the specialist in marketing and food distribution, consumers will feel the impact in several ways. The most direct will be in the unavailability of beef in some locations. Consumer hoarding in anticipation of price increases following the removal of the beef price freeze is also evident. Continued high prices for most meat items during the coming months can be anticipated.

"Indeed there is little hope of any staple commodity being truly abundant in the near future," the Texas A&M University System specialist points out.

Meanwhile, the only bright hope lies in this fall's harvest, believes Vastine.

"If the 6 percent increase in the corn crop over last season and the 24 percent increase in soybeans, 5 percent increase in grain sorghum, and 8 percent increase in the wheat crop is realized, some price relief by late 1973 or early 1974 would be expected."

Sunstroke Or Heat Exhaustion May Result From Heat Exposure

With summer heat scorching Texas, there is the possibility you could become a victim of sunstroke or heat exhaustion during the blast-furnace weather ahead, advises the Texas State Department of Health. The combined effects of the sun, exercise, heat and excessive perspiration with water and salt loss can produce serious symptoms and may even be fatal. Exposure to excessive heat may result in heat exhaustion, heat stroke, and heat cramps with heat exhaustion being the most common. In exhaustion cases, the persons temperature is approximately normal; in stroke, it is high. Most likely to be affected are the aged, the obese, the very young, alcohol addicts, and those suffering from any disease that impairs the strength of the entire body, say state health officials. Sunstroke is caused by over exposure to the hot sun while heat exhaustion is due to prolonged exposure to high temperatures indoors or outdoors, in sunstroke the body overheats. Usually the victim has a severe headache and everything looks red to him. Often the victim becomes unconscious. Heat exhaustion is caused by prolonged heat and high humidity, but it is very different from sunstroke. The victim is usually conscious but weak and dizzy. His temperature falls instead of rises, and he feels cold and clammy. In either case, call a doctor at once. The victim should be moved into the shade or a cool place and any tight clothing loosened. Simple, common-sense precautions will nearly always prevent these conditions. During hot weather: Don't expose yourself to the heat when you don't have to. Don't go out in the hot sunshine without a hat. Don't wear heavy or tight clothing. Don't exercise strenuously in the sun or heat. Don't exercise just before or after meals. Don't overeat. Don't overindulge in alcoholic drinks. On sultry days, keep the air circulating to help the evaporation of perspiration. Keep shaded windows open and use an electric fan. Profuse perspiration helps cool the body, but it draws fluids and certain chemicals away. If you perspire freely, you may need extra water and salt. Drink water often throughout the day, one glass at a time. The amount of salt needed depends on how much you lose through perspiration. Office workers probably get enough in their food, but others doing heavy labor may need salt tablets periodically or a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a glass of water every hour. Elderly people are prone to develop heat stroke. It may appear in them on hot days during such apparently mild activity as a walk. But they are not the only victims. Heat cramps usually involve the abdominal muscles or the limbs. Loss of chemicals in profuse perspiration precedes the cramps. The condition may be associated with heat exhaustion. Heat cramps usually respond better to firm pressure than to vigorous kneading. Remember, the aging, the very young, alcoholics and people with heart trouble are easily affected by sun and heat.

Adapting Drip Irrigation To Field Crops

In an effort to conserve irrigation water on the South Plains researchers are looking to a relatively new method called drip irrigation.

The system, used mostly in greenhouses, gardens and orchards, is being viewed for use on major crops as well, but with modification.

Dr. Otto Wilke, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, is heading the study.

Two techniques may make drip irrigation practical for some field crops, says Wilke. One idea is the use of plastic drip irrigation trail lines, instead of sprinklers, attached to a pivot sprinkler system.

In studies being conducted at Lubbock, three such plastic lines were attached to a pivot system made available through the cooperation of Gifford-Hill & Western and Lubbock Christian College, explains Wilke.

"Early results with these 100-foot long lines are promising," he adds. "Advantages of using drip trail lines instead of sprinklers are that the water is applied only behind the drive wheels, lower operating pressures are needed, less water is lost to evaporation, and salty water does not contact plant leaves."

However, the plastic pipe can be damaged by grazing cattle, the researcher points out. And in sandy soils it may be difficult to germinate seeds because the drip system may not wet the surface soil uniformly.

The second technique involves the development of a tractor-mounted rig to move drip irrigation pipes in cotton.

Explains Wilke, one drip line can be used to apply a single irrigation to 40 rows of cotton during the fruiting period. Two funnels with belled entrances are attached to the tractor and are used to pick up the pipe and move it laterally two rows to water alternate furrows. Pipes are moved once or twice daily and can be moved without stopping the well pump.

Research for the study is being conducted at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock, and is supported in part with funds from the TAES, Texas Water Resources Institute, the Office of Water Resources Research and the Plains Cotton Growers.
