Folks in the Springlake-Earth communities were saddened Friday by the loss of a fine community builder, a church worker, father and husband... Herschel had tried hard to live although he had lived in the shadow of death for a long time, he would not give up. Pain, he became accustomed to and it was never too great to cause him to give up the desire to live. He seemingly enjoyed life day in and day out... But, last Friday afternoon, Herschel Sanders could no longer, in person, remain in this world, to walk among his friends and neighbors... and doubtless our loss will be heavens gain.

Will soybeans become a major crop in the Panhandle of Texas and Oklahoma? Leland Wilson of Farnsworth and the High Plains Research Foundation worked together this year to find out.

Members of the Board of Trustees of the Foundation, Drew Ellis of Perryton, and Ralph Blidgett of Spearman, invited Leland Wilson to conduct the test as part of the Foundation's Farm-Centered Research work. Barry Love, assistant Agronomist, and Paul Belcher, Technician, of the Foundation staff worked with Wilson in the testing program.

Dr. Earl Collister, Director of the Foundation, stated "Results of the test indicate that farmers in the area will be interested in soybean production in the future."

There were three released varieties and seven experimental strains selected from the breeding program at the foundation in this test.

The new HINN variety produced by the High Plains Research Foundation, which will be available for general use in 1965, produced the highest of 39.5 bushels. Yields of the other released varieties were; Lee - 35.5 bushels and Hill 35.2 bushels. The yields of the seven experimental strains, from the Foundation's breeding program, varied from 38.5 to 18.4 bushels per acre.

Farmer Leland Wilson and Barry Love of the Foundation staff are seriously contemplating a larger acreage planting of the HINN variety and an early maturing strain in 1964.

This short season strain is believed to offer a very good possibility for a crop in the area with 105 to 115 days between planting and maturity. The HINN variety is 130-135 days in maturing.

Soybeans drop their leaves in early fall. There is no storage problem for the beans dry out rapidly. Bean growth usually stops when temperatures drop below 30 degrees. There is an interest in the short season bean for the High Plains. Elvin D. Glenn, Kress, conducted the Farm-Centered Research on soybeans in cooperation with the High Plains Research Foundation. Ten varieties and strains were tested at this farm in 1963. Barry Love, Assistant Agronomist, and Paul Belcher, Technician, of the High Plains Research Foundation staff, worked with Elvin in the testing program.

The farm tests showed possibilities of developing more varieties of soybeans with better adaptation to the soil and climate of the High Plains. Farmer interest in soybeans has increased a great deal this year, and a continued growth in acreage is contemplated. A good market is available.

The yields of the released varieties showed the new HINN variety to be high with 37.9 bushels. The Lee variety produced 35.8 bushels and the Hill 33.4 bushels. Yields of the seven experimental strains from the Foundation's breeding program varied from 36.9 bushels to 17.4 bushels per year.

The beans were all planted June 12 and harvested November 5. All beans were thoroughly inoculated and received adequate irrigation.

Barry Love, Assistant Agronomist for the Foundation says, "The HINN soybean may add an additional crop for much needed diversified farming."

Lawson Reports 15 Accidents In March

The Highway Patrol investigated 15 rural accidents in Lamb County during the month of March, according to Sergeant D. W. Lawson, Patrol Supervisor of this area. These wrecks accounted for three deaths, four persons injured and an estimated property damage of $24,405.00. The rural traffic accident summary for Lamb County from January through March of 1964 shows a total of 28 crashes resulting in five persons killed, ten persons injured and an estimated property damage of $33,990.00. All of the rhapsody of spring is in the air. Thousands of motorists will be breaking away from the restraints of winter to take week end drives and trips. Children will also bring forth bicycles, roller skates, scooters and little red wagons. All of which spell added danger on our streets and highways. Many of these motorists will lessen their attention to their job of driving in order to concentrate on the rhapsodies of spring, thereby leading them into traffic violations. These motorists may possibly forget that increased violations of traffic laws lead to accidents and deaths. The Sergeant stated: "What better time than April to remind motorists, pedestrians and all street and highway users about the importance of knowing and obeying traffic laws."

Weeds Cost Money - Can You Afford Them?

Which Crops Can Be Flamed?

With proper burner adjustments, tractor ground speed and gas pressures, most crops can be flame cultivated without damage to yield or quality.

The following chart shows results of tests conducted by the High Plains Research Foundation:

Proven Successful	Experimental Stages	Sesame
Cotton	Sugar Beets	Broccoli
Grain Sorghum	Peanuts	Tomatoes
Soybeans	Safflower	Lettuce
Castor Beans	Cabbage	Parsley
Onions	Green Beans	Bell Peppers
Potatoes	Blackeyed Peas
Corn	Carrots

What Investment In Equipment Is Necessary?

Flaming is done with midget, two, four or six-row machines. Two-row midget attachments for flaming equipment will cost about $185; four row, $375; and six-row, $525. The larger burner will run about $60 for the four row and $150 for the six-row. Middle-flaming attachments for four-row cost $235 and six-row $330. The basic combination of power unit and high clearance frame is about $3,000.

What Are Fuel Costs of Flaming?

Fuel costs vary according to the crop and equipment. One farmer who flamed off grain sorghum and weeds used about 30 gallons of LP-gas per acre.

Here are comparative figures of actual per acre costs of various crops:

Crop	Flamed	Dollars Saved
		Hand Hoed	With Flaming
Onions	$4.55	$18.50	$13.95
Carrots	2.45	24.00	21.55
Potatoes	2.10	45.00	42.90
Corn	2.83	6.72	3.89
Soybeans	1.49	10.00	8.51
Castor Beans	2.06	4.78	2.72
Cotton	5.00	10.00	5.00
Grain Sorghum	1.49	4.62	3.13
Safflower	7.09	13.35	6.26

How Much Time Is Required To Flame?

An operator with a power unit can cover his field at the following rates of speed:

Tractor Speed	Coverage
3 miles per hour	4 1/2 acres
4 miles per hour	6 1/2 acres
5 miles per hour	8 acres

The High Plains Research Foundation acknowledges with thanks financial support from Gene Bumpus, Inc., Plainview and Western Tank and Steel, Lubbock, who made this publication possible.

What Are The Advantages of Flaming?

- Economy over hand labor reduces the farmer's cost and raises his profit.
- In some crops, such as corn and grain sorghum, yields have been increased because the root systems of the plants were not disturbed by conventional cultivation.
- Continued use of flame cultivation will reduce weed and grass populations as deeply buried seeds are not plowed to the surface where they will germinate, and the present weed crop is killed before it can produce new seeds.
- In certain crops such as young cotton, there is evidence of a reduction in the insect population. (Flame cultivation is not a complete insect control measure).
- In castor beans, there has been noted a reduction in Alternaria leaf spot disease after flaming.
- When a cash crop and weeds come up together and are the same size, crops such as grain sorghum and corn may, at the proper time, be "flamed off" with all surface vegetation killed. The cash crop will renew growth within four to six days, but most weeds will not. This saves replanting costs, soil moisture, and gains valuable growing time.
- Flaming equipment can be taken into a field after a rain much quicker than conventional cultivators can operate.
- It is safe to use because it does not poison crops or contaminate water supplies. There are no harmful residual effects to the soil by using flame cultivation on crops.
- Service and maintenance of flame cultivators is very simple if clean fuel is used.
- It is an aid to mechanical harvesting:
 - Lower leaves of the mature cotton plant are destroyed, thereby yielding a cleaner, higher grade cotton.
 - Destruction of above-ground foliage on below-ground producing crops, such as potatoes, at harvest time makes harvesting of the crops much easier and cleaner.
 - Tests on field drying of grain sorghum have shown promise of earlier harvesting of grain, especially on dry land sorghum.
 - Field drying of grain sorghum dehydrates the leaves and it can be combined at a faster speed.
 - Dehydration of grain sorghum leaves helps prevent grain from riding through the combine. (Farmer experience indicates an increase in yield up to 500 pounds per acre.)

What Are Some Other Uses of Flaming?

- Pre-emergence: Use of flame on a seeded area after weeds have come up, but just prior to emergence of the seeded crop, has proved to be highly successful.
- Non-selective (broadcast): Burning of an entire planted area to kill not only weeds, but also to kill-burn the tops of certain plant crops.
- General burning: Use of a special attachment to destroy trash, weeds, feathers and other combustible materials along fences, irrigation ditches, and roadways.

FLAME CULTIVATION IS PREVENTION - NOT SALVAGE

Flame Cultivation Is Not New

Flame cultivation has been used in the Mississippi Delta region for about 18 years but, because of lack of knowledge regarding adaptation to other farming situations, it did not spread to other areas until recently. In 1959 the High Plains Research Foundation began studies of its use in controlling weeds in cotton and effects of flaming on the cotton itself. During the following years, research has been expanded to cover other crops and secure more detailed analysis of results. Since 1960 the Foundation staff has also conducted experiments in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Though research continues, flame cultivation is well past the experimental stage.

How Does Flame Cultivation Work?

Flaming does not actually burn the weed to the ground. Rather, the generated heat raises the temperature of moisture in plant cells above the boiling point, causing cell walls to rupture. Nutrients and moisture cannot move through the weed then, so it shrivels and dies.

When Is The Best Time To Flame Cultivate a Crop?

Because of the wide range of heat tolerance in various crops, effects of weather conditions, and the many different types of mechanical equipment available, a set rule on correct timing is difficult to determine. The individual farmer MUST work with his equipment or LP-gas dealer in timing his flame cultivation. Detailed information on proper timing for specific crop varieties is available at High Plains Research Foundation.

(Research in new techniques and experiments in new types of equipment, such as shields, for use in flaming very young vegetables are being carried out.)

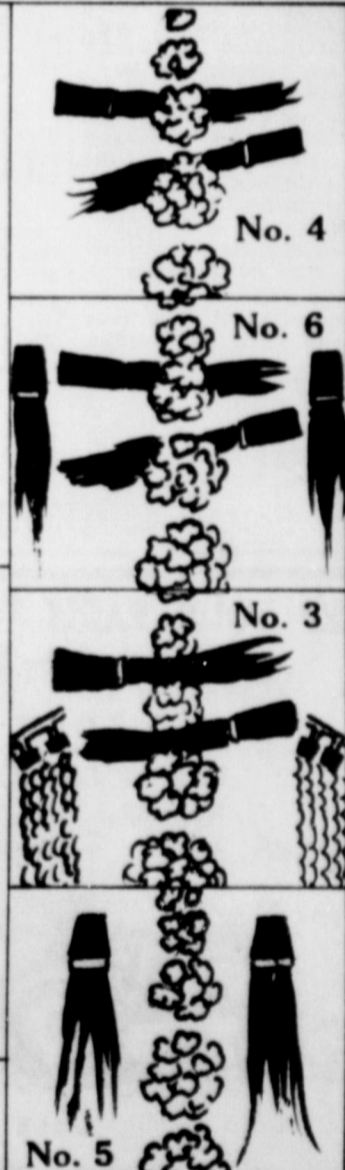

When Is Cultivation Not Cultivation?

When it is Flame cultivation. No stirring of soil takes place (unless combined with a conventional cultivator in the furrow, illustration No. 3). Burner attachments using LP-gas are mounted on a regular or high clearance tractor which is driven through the crop. The burners emit controlled flame either under the row crop at soil level (cross flaming, see illustration No. 4) or along beside the crop in the furrow (parallel flaming, illustration No. 5). The two burner settings can be combined, as in illustration No. 6. A more nearly correct name for this weed-control method is "selective burning."

Water - Soil Management Under Study

Muddy water, worst of all is muddy tail-water. The term "tail-water," as we use it, applies to that water which pours from the furrows at the lower ends of irrigated fields, and mud? Well, mud in this case, is good fertile top soil. When tests were run by the Water District on a series of tail-water samples to determine how much top soil was being washed away, the results were astounding. They were even rechecked to make certain that there had been no mistakes.

As much as 14 tons of fine West Texas top soil was found to be moving with each acre-foot of tail-water. The smallest amount the scientists found was five tons per acre foot of tail water. Using a nice round 10 tons as an average and multiply that figure by 100 feet, which would be an acre foot of water over 100 acres of land how much top soil is being removed annually from the irrigated farms of West Texas? It is disturbing, isn't it? But all of the water doesn't run out the ends of the rows. Most of it soaks into the ground. How fortunate for us that most of it is soaked up by the soil, for if it were not, our lakes would be filled with topsoil, and much of the High Plains would be caliche desert.

DON'T BE A LITTERBUG!!! Conditions such as pictured above, are typical in back alleys over a large portion of our fair city. Residents are urged to keep the town clean by using trash barrels, rather than strewing trash in the alleys... Earth needs another clean up day.

Control Program On Boll Weevils Adopted

The High Plains of Texas will carry out a million dollar program to protect the area from the costliest of all cotton insects, the boll weevil, beginning in September of this year.

The control program is known as "diapause control" and was officially adopted by the area wide Boll Weevil Eradication Committee when it met Jan. 17 under the sponsorship of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. The committee is made up of one member from each of the 23 High Plains counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers and the vote to adopt the program was unanimous. In the election of officers, John R. Pugh of Route 1, Lubbock emerged as Chairman of the area wide committee, and Andrew Boggs of Kress was selected as Vice-Chairman.

Diapause is a phase through which the weevil passes during the fall of the year when preparing to hibernate, and the control program's success depends on killing him before he completes that preparation, thereby greatly reducing the number of weevils emerging in the Spring to infest crops. Involved in the High Plains program will be the spraying of cotton acreage from the line of westward infestation back to where ranchland forms a natural barrier on the East. Present calculations indicate that some 160,000 acres of cotton will need to be sprayed at ten day intervals from about the middle of September until the cotton is killed by frost or by desiccation. It is estimated that the average field will need spraying three times.

Once weevils have established themselves in an area, in-season control costs from $20 to $60 per acre plus the unavoidable damage, and the unanimous vote of the committee indicated their feeling that spending one million dollars, or about 50 cents per High Plains acre, will be a good investment against spending the hundreds of millions that would be spent should the weevil infest the entire High Plains.

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. is furnishing office facilities and personnel for the program but funds collected will be kept completely separate from PCG funds and will be received and disbursed by the Boll Weevil Steering Committee rather than PCG.

The mechanics for collecting the million dollars from the High Plains was turned over to a Finance Committee composed of Jimmy Taylor, Big Springs, Don Anderson of Crosbyton, Rob Simmons of Spur, Weldon Martin of Tahoka, and Morris Thomas of Hale Center.

The working organization which will be responsible for much of the program's success will include the TA committee, the Steering committee, the Area-wide, and County Committees in each county and a committee from each of the communities within a county. Final organization of these committees is underway and is expected to be completed by the middle of February.

In addition to the million dollars that is to be raised on the High Plains, there are precedents for Federal participation in programs of this nature on a matching funds basis and it is believed that federal funds and be secured for this project.

Entomologists who are members of the Technical Advisory Committee and who have studied the High Plains problem estimate that spraying of extensive but declining acreages will be necessary for perhaps three years, after which only localized outbreaks will need to be patrolled.

ARE CATARACTS CATCHING??

Are cataracts catching? Is it safe to look directly at the sun while wearing dark sunglasses? Will a child eventually outgrow crossed eyes?

Medical scientists know the answers to these questions. Do you know them?

You may be going blind and not realize it. Chronic glaucoma, often called the "sneak thief of sight," may cause permanent loss of sight very slowly and without symptoms noticeable to the patient, especially those over 40 years of age. The best defense against glaucoma is a medical eye examination at least every two years.

Are cataracts catching? Cataract, the clouding of the lens within the eye, cannot spread from one eye to the other. It is not contagious. It may, however, develop independently in each eye.

Surgery is the only known effective treatment for cataract at present. Claims that magic salves or drops will dissolve the cataract are false.

Is it safe to look directly at the sun while wearing dark sunglasses? No, never look directly at the sun while wearing sunglasses. Tinted lenses will provide relief from the sun's glare but not from the harmful infra-red rays that can penetrate the dark glasses and damage the delicate retina of the eye.

Is blindness preventable? One of every two cases of blindness could be avoided, according to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, by diligent use of sight-saving knowledge.

Can glaucoma be cured? Glaucoma, or hardening of the eyeball, can usually be controlled if discovered in time. Increased pressure causes the eyeball to harden. The eye doctor--ophthalmologist--can usually control the pressure so that vision is preserved.

Since glaucoma symptoms may be absent while the disease is present, health authorities advise a periodic eye examination.

Can eyes indicate bodily disease? Sometimes the eyes act as a barometer and foretell the coming of bodily ailments. Such conditions as hardening of the arteries may first be detected in this way. Periodic examinations enable your physician to detect the signs.

Will a child eventually outgrow crossed eyes? Children do not outgrow crossed eyes. Visual defects such as crossed eyes and amblyopia--dimness of vision--can lead to permanent loss of vision in the affected eye. Treatment should be initiated at least by six years of age. Eye exercises, glasses or surgery may be required.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Polly,
Just finished reading another "letter from home" the Earth News-Sun so I'll sit me down and tell you how grateful we are for your kindness. I know you are very busy but take a minute while I say "thanks for such a wonderful paper." We really enjoyed seeing how the band has grown on. In April 9th issue (this date also marked the day I passed the state board test for beauty operators) we were in the Band Boosters Club when it was a wee one and what a struggle! The Truman Stines, Golden Green and his wife and so many others really worked! We are proud of the band now Great work by Great folk! Enjoy so much your "nosin." You all keep up the good work. Hope to visit you someday. So thanks for the weekly visits home--and best wishes.

Yours truly
Mrs. E. M. Borden, Jr. (Elsie)

TEXAS RANKS 30th IN REVENUE COLLECTED fiscal affairs. Based on the most recent national survey conducted by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, TML's report showed the following.

1. Local governments in Texas raised $108.53 per capita in 1960, contrasted with the national average of $126.76. Local revenue raised in Texas amounted to $56.39 per $1,000 of personal income for residents of the state, ranking Texas as 23rd among the states on this measurement.

2. On local government direct general expenditures, Texas was 31st among the states in per capita local outlays averaging $153.47 per individual. This amounted to $79.74 per $1,000 of personal income, placing Texas No. 29 in the nation. On the national average, local government general expenditures amounted to $187.83 per capita, and $84.64 per $1,000 of personal income.

PUBLIC AID FOR LAMB COUNTY TOTALS $26,866.

Public aid being paid to some 570 persons in Lamb county each month totals $26,866, according to a U.S. Government report.

The majority of the aid is in the form of old-age assistance which goes to 477 beneficiaries in this county. Average amount received here is $52 per month, or a total of $24,804.

The recent report details the number of persons receiving assistance as well as the amount they get each month, for Lamb county and for every other part of the country. Entitled "Public Assistance in the Counties of the United States," it is released from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Other aid comes in the form of assistance to needy families with dependent children under the age of 18. Of the 8,887 children under 18 in Lamb County, an aid is required for 80 of them. An average of $17 per month is required for each dependent a total of about $1,360 per month.

The remaining category covered relates to permanently and totally disabled people in the 18 to 65 group. Of the 11,377 people in this county in that age span only 13 are receiving aid and the average payment is $54 per month.

The old-age assistance in Lamb County is at a rate of 292 persons per 1,000 in the over-65 age group. This compares with a statewide rate of 332 per 1,000. So, in proportion to population, there are fewer residents of Lamb receiving old-age assistance which is the major type of aid. The report showed that declining rural areas are the ones with the greatest proportion of people requiring assistance.
